FIRST PRACTICAL TEST FOR HOOVER IS NOW AT HAND

Work of Special Session, Opening Monday, Will Be Limited Strictly to Farm Relief, Tariff Revision and Possibly Congressional Reapportionment, If Administration's Plans Successfully Realized—Robinson, However, Favors Much Broader Program.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(I. N. S.)—A new congress, as dominantly republican as the political wave that washed it into office last November, assembled in Washington tonight for the special session which President Hoover called to make good his campaign pledges of farm relief and tariff revision upward.

The assembly of the new congress signalizes the end of President Hoover's political honeymoon. Thus far, with no congress on its hands, the new administration has sailed smoothly and serenely ahead. Now the shooting begins. The first practical test of President Hoover's leadership will be furnished in the weeks immediately ahead.

If the plans of the administration can be successfully realized, the work of the special session will be limited strictly to farm relief and tariff revision, and possibly congressional reapportionment, which previous congresses have been ducking since 1920 in defiance of the constitution.

The leaders think they can hold the program to that. There are others, however, who are not so sanguine. Congressional machines have been known to get out of hand before. This is particularly true of the senate, where party discipline is not so strong as in the well-policed house.

Robinson Differs.

Already Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, the minority leader, has announced that the democratic program embraces quite a number of things not on the Hoover program, including flood control and attempted regulation of speculative gambling on the New York stock exchange. However strong the republican majority may be, and it is stronger in this seventy-first congress than in any since the advent

FLIERS KILLED IN AIR CIRCUS

Crowd Thrown in Panic As Planes Crash in Air; Two Dead.

DETROIT, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Before a horrified crowd of 3,000 persons, two planes crashed 800 feet in the air at the Ford airport here this afternoon killing A. H. Kreider of Hagerstown, Md., and Captain Bruce of the Royal Air force of Canada and perhaps fatally injuring William Naylor of Akron, O.

Kreider was instantly killed. Captain Bruce died a short time fater being admitted to a Detroit hospital.

The crowd which had gathered to see an air circus held in conjunction with the aircraft exhibition here, was thrown into a panic.

Lives of hundreds of persons were endangered when the two crafts hurtled to earth crashing fifty feet apart.

Kreider was flying at about a height f 800 feet in the air when his plane was struck bullet-like by the craft of Captain Bruce who with Navlor had just taken off from the airport for Akron, O.

Kreider's plane toppled, nose downward, and swirled dizzily to the ground followed a fraction of a second later by the plane carrying Captain Bruce and Naylor.

Naylor was not expected to live. His condition was reported at a De-

Crew Plans to Fly Southern Cross Out Of Jungle Clearing

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 14 (Sunday)—(U. P.)—The crew of the marooned trans-Pacific monoplane Southern Cross will attempt to fly the plane from the jungle clearing in which it was forced to land nearly two weeks ago, it was learned today from A. A. West, Australian aviator, who succeeded in landing a light plane in the clearing.

The expert airmanship of Capt. Charles E. Kingsford-Smith, commander of the stranded crew, saved the machine from damage, the Australian aviator said upon his return to Wyndham.

Capt. C. T. P. Ulm, second in command to Kingsford-Smith, sent messages of thanks to Sydney citizens for dispatching a Canberra air line plane with provisions.

The crew will recondition the plane on returning to Sydney for another flight to England.

A California Girl Leaps To Death

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. April 13—(UP)—Leaping from the upper floor of a downtown office building, Carmen Jack, believed to be a University of California student, plunged thirteen stories to her death.

The girl had entered the office of an insurance company on the thirteenth floor during the noon hour and asked for some blank checks. She scribbled a fewnotes on them.

Then one went to a window, hesitated for a moment and then hurled her body into space. Thirteen stories below the body crashed through a skylight and fell to the lobby floor amid hundreds of persons.

A note found asked that Ione be notified at a certain telephone number and continued, "This may seem cowardly but it is the only way."

Another note asked that her body be turned over to the University of California medical school so that they can find out whether I died of cancer or tuberculosis."

DANCER HELD IN FATAL SHOOTING

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Thelma Graham, 23, dancer, formerly of Dallas, Tex., was held today in connection with the fatal shooting of Harold Clark, 29, projection machine operator in the theater where both were employed. Clark was shot through the body in Miss Graham's room early today. He insisted before his death that the shooting was accidental. Letters postmarked Los Angeles and apparently from Clark's mother were found in his pockets.

Seize Canadian Beer

SANDUSKY, O., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Two kegs and 210 cases of Canadian beer, seized late yesterday when a rum chaser from the United States coast guard station at Marblehead, near here, overhauled two boats in Lake Erie, was destroyed by being poured into Sandusky bay late tonight.

DEATH TAKES NORTHBROOK

LONDON, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Lord Northbrook, head of the great Baring bank, is dead here at the age of 78.

BOY, 6, CRUSHED BY FREIGHT CARS

Frank Bilka of Crete Is Suffering From Serious Injuries.

His left shoulder almost torn loose from his body Saturday afternoon, Frank Bilka, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bilka of Crete, was in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth's hospital Saturday night. Besides the shoulder injury he was suffering from five broken ribs, hemmorhages caused by the collapse of the left lung, and shock.

The accident happened on a siding near the Crete Mills about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Using a "car puller,' Mr. Bilka started to take two freight cars loaded with wheat to the elevator when he and another employe of the mills heard the boy scream. The boy had been playing in the vicinity but was not known to be near the cars until his call was heard. He was caught between two of the cars.

The accident wrenched his shoulder from the body, leaving it hanging by only a few muscles. Breaking of the ribs on the left side caused the collapse of the left lung. He was attended by Dr. E. J. Stejskal of Crete and rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital where he was put under the care of Dr. C. H. Arnold.

Dr. Arnold said the boy was suffering badly from shock besides serious physical injuries. Hemmorhages in the lungs might necessitate blood transfusion, Dr. Arnold stated.

ASSESSMENT ON BANKS NOW DUE BUT NOT MADE

Passage of Pending Bills Would Make Levy Impossible.

NO MOVE IS MADE BY DEPARTMENT

Failure to Act Means Big Loss to the Guaranty Fund.

While public attention is centered on bills in the legislature whose enactment will materially modify the guaranty fund system in Nebraska, after providing for partial payment of accrued losses to depositors in failed banks, the fact has almost escaped notice that no special assessment on going banks has thus far been made during 1929 for the benefit of the guaranty fund, under the old law still in effect.

The present law authorizes special assessments to be levied not exceeding one-half of 1 per cent in any year. This is in addition to the regular assessments made on January 1 and July 1 each year, which together amount to one-tenth of 1 per cent annually.

Since 1923, when the guaranty fund commission was created, the full special assessments have been levied by the state trade and commerce department every year. All of these assessments were collected except the last one for 1928, made under date of December 26, payment of which was resisted and held up by the banks through an injunction suit. That suit was recently tried in the District court of Lancaster county, before Judge Frost, whose decision is being awaited.

The restraining order which prevented the trade and commerce department from collecting the December special levy on banks applies only to that one assessment. Should the department see fit it could go

DEPOSITORS TO DEMAND RELIEF

Will Insist That Legislators Make Provision To Pay.

Sorensen Says Guaranty Law Should Not Be Repealed.

After an all-day schooling in Lincoln Saturday on the banking situation, more than 500 depositors of failed state banks in all parts of Nebraska were prepared to "shoot both barrels" Monday in their effort to get the sort of legislation they desire.

At the Saturday afternoon meeting in the Cornhusker hotel Attorney General Sorensen and Senator Kenneth Wherry explained the situation to the depositors and expressed their views on what action is needed. Governor Weaver, C. E. Abbott of Fremont and R. T. Jones of Scottsbluff spoke at the morning meeting.

Mr. Jones, lobbyist for the depositors, called for as many as possible to remain in Lincoln over the weekend or return to the city Monday morning in order to make their own views known to the legislators. A number volunteered to do this lobbying work. Others were urged to get in touch with senators and representatives by telephone, telegraph or mail in a last minute drive for legislation favorable to the depositors.

Sentiment for payment of "100 cents for every dollar deposited in the banks" and for retention of the guaranty fund system was strong. Every time either of these stands was taken by a speaker the crowd gave him an ovation by handclapping and stamping on the floors.

"I don't think we should repeal the guaranty fund law at this time," said Attorney General Sorensen. "It ought never to be repealed as long as the state has the bank-monopoly law."

Fund Not Broke.

"They say the guaranty fund is busted," the speaker continued. "This doesn't happen to be true. The guaranty fund is not busted."

It has assets of a book value of $32,000,000 and claims against stockholders for an additional $5,000,000. Admitting that they are not worth the book value, Mr. Sorensen said, "The way the assets are thrown on the market, in an attempt to sell them at any price, of course they get a low price."

Estimates are that assets will shrink to $11,000,000 he said. In addition to these assets the assessments bring in $1,700,000 each year and the revenue from farms and interest on notes brings this to $2,000,000. Although the liabilities may be $26,000,000, the attorney general declared "that any business with assets of $11,000,000 and an annual income of $2,000,000 is not yet broke."

"There is no question but what the state has a moral obligation to pay at once and in full de-

BIG PROBLEMS BEFORE SOLONS IN FINAL WEEK

Showdown to Come Early on Bank Audit and Code Revision.

General Budget Measure May Pass the Senate By Wednesday.

Important problems of state policy, still undermined after three and a half months devoted in the main to trifling matters, are before the two lawmaking bodies of Nebraska for settlement during what may be the closing week of the 1929 legislative session.

Many of the state senators and representatives do not expect to see a satisfactory solution reached on several of the principal questions, which have been put off, to the last while "chickenfeed" bills were given the right of way during the earlier period. Many of them doubt whether the legislature can get through and adjourn by next Saturday, April 20, the date that has been tentatively fixed.

Should it develop that the end cannot be reached at that time, the two chambers can reconsider their action and set the time further ahead, or they can revert to the archaic practice of "stopping the clock" and thenceforth ignoring the calendar. The latter method is somewhat risky, as it might produce a situation endangering the validity of what was done after the actual date for adjournment had passed.

Fight Over Bank Investigation.

There will be a showdown not later than Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning on Governor Weaver's bank audit and investigation bill, H. R. 585, which the senate dressed up in a way that does not please either its introducer, Representative Burke, or the governor.

Newton Has Two Jobs

WTSHINGTON, April 13—(U. P.) Whatever problems Representative Walter H. Newton, republican, Minnesota, may be facing, unemployment is not one of them, for he has been elected as representative by the people of Minnesota and appointed private secretary to President Hoover, and Monday or soon after he must choose between them.

MOREHEAD NOT HIGHLY HOPEFUL

Congressman Does Not Think Special Session Will Help Much.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 13.—"I am inclined to think this special farm session will merely put the government to considerable expense and will probably not accomplish anything worth while," commented John H. Morehead, First district congressman, just before he and Mrs. Morehead departed for Washington, Saturday night.

The congressman voiced the belief that no plan has yet been outlined aceptable to all factions.

"One of the worst features of the country now," he said, "is that credit is made too easy and I shall not be in favor of any farm legislation that would tend to let the bars down still farther, although if a bill with real merit is proposed I shall certainly vote for it."

Girl Smokers Warned.

NEW YORK, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Three small blazes in one day, each the result of the careless disposal of a lighted cigaret stub by one of the girl students, occurred in Barnard college here, it became known today when a warning was issued against smoking anywhere except in the smoking room.

DEBENTURE PLAN IN AID MEASURE IS TURNED DOWN

Export Bonus System Rejected, 17 to 4, By House Committee.

CONFEREES PLAN TO WORK SUNDAY

Hoover's Suggestions for Minor Changes Delay Completion.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(UP)—A farm relief bill which President Hoover has approved will be introduced Monday at the opening of the special session of the seventy-first congress, Chairman Haugen of the house agriculture committee announced tonight.

A few suggestions for changes made by the president at a white house breakfast to committee members today delayed completion and announcement of all the bill's provisions, scheduled for today, until Sunday or early Monday. Mr. Hoover approved most of the features of the bill as now stands, Haugen said.

The committee today voted down, 17 to 4, a proposal to include the debenture plan, or export bonus system, in the measure and on test vote the old equalization fee proposal was defeated 17 to 3.

Reading of the bill for amendments and minor revisions virtually has been completed. Haugen said eleven pages of the fifteen-page bill had been approved and the remainder of the draft was not relatively important.

Will Be Offered Monday.

"We will meet at 9:30 a. m., tomorrow and hope to have the bill completed before 2 o'clock", Haugen said. "It will be introduced Monday as soon as the house is officially organized for business."

The United Press learned authoritively that the bill will set up a federal farm board of seven members, including the secretary of agriculture.

The board will be given wide power to administer a $500,000,000

LOIS PIERSON IS SPELLING CHAMP

Walter Degenfelder Wins Second in County Contest.

Girl Victor Has Perfect Score in Oral and Written Tests.

Lois Pierson, 12-year-old eighth grade student from District No. 107, won championship laurels against sixty-two contestants Saturday afternoon in the county spelling contest held at the court house.

Together with Walter Degenfelder, 12, of Emerald, Lois will represent Lancaster county schools in the inter-state match at South Sioux City, Neb., April 26, and at the state contest in Omaha soon.

The Degenfelder boy stood second high in the written quiz with a grade of 98 and sixth in the oral contest. Lois stood high in both with a perfect score.

Her victory was not an easy one. For five minutes Merna May, 13, of Walton, daughter of Otto A. F. May, gave her a close race, going down on the word: "flotilla."

Miss Pierson is the daughter of F. A. Pierson, rural route six, Lincoln. Walter, the son of Charles Degenfelder, also lives on rural route six.

Miss Charlotte Alexander, county superintendent of schools, was in charge of the contest. Judges for the oral test were Mrs. Bell Betz, Lincoln Women's club; Logan Mocroft, Waverly; H. H. Leavitt, Walton; Mrs. Fred Claus, county Federation Women's clubs, and Mrs. Mattie Perkins, Parent-Teachers association.

Pronouncers were Lulu Wolford and Mrs. Althea Carver. Mrs. Lou Hurd president of the County Parent Teachers association, and Mrs. Harry Thompson, president of the Crounse association, were the committee on words. In the written contest Mrs. Edith Heilman, Walton, pronounced words, and Lulu Horn, city librarian, O. E. Jerner, and C. W. D. Kinsey, were judges.

Others who aided in direction of the contest were Mrs. Ella Colbert, manager of assistants; Marguerite Hensley and Irma Warta, registrars of contestants; Mrs. Annetta Bute, designator of contestants: Alice Gerbeling and Irene Warta, registrars of guests; Arnold Broz and Victor Chab, ushers.

Detroit Bank Robbed

DETROIT, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Shoving a note through the teller's cage demanding "all the big ones," a lone bandit today held up the Peninsular State bank and escaped with loot estimated at $6,000. In his haste, the bandit dropped $200 as he fled to an automobile parked in an alley at the side of the bank.

In Medical Revolt

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago coroner, resigned from city medical association because it expelled Dr. Louis E. Schmidt for connection with a newspaper advertising public health institute.

LINCOLN GETS RAIN SATURDAY

Light Showers Received Here, And At Milford And Dorchester.

Rain began falling in Lincoln shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night and from that time until after midnight showers fell intermittently.

The precipitation was not heavy, however, and reports received by the Burlington at midnight indicated that the rain was not very general.

A slight downfall was reported by the railroad agents at Dorchester and Milford.

The forecast for Sunday indicated that the weather would remain unsettled with the possibility of showers.

The mercury rose to only 62 degrees Saturday, this temperature being recorded at 2, 3 and 4 p. m. The skies were overcast most of the day.

Robbers Kill A Woman and Son

NEW ORLEANS, April 13—(INS)—Mrs. Annie Flink, 49, and her 14-year-old son were killed today, presumably by robbers.

The heads of the woman and her son were evidently crushed by an axe found near her body.

More than $2,000 were overlooked by the robbers, but the cash box was emptied of a small sum of money.

Suspect Identified As Escaped Convict

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—J. Kaven, under arrest in San Jose on automobile theft charges was today identified as Bruo Kochnyski, a former prisoner at the Ohio State prison, who disappeared during a fire in the prison brick plant in October, 1928.

Identification was made by Clarence Morrill, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal identification, who declared that until today it was never known whether the convict had escaped or had lost his life in the fire.

CAPTAIN ON THE CARRISO DROWNS

HONOLULU, April 13—(U. P.)—The motor ship Carriso today again broke into the day's news.

A radio from the ship, due here next week, received by the local agent, said that Capt. Richard Connell had fallen from the gangplank while the Carriso docked at Samarai, New Guinea, and had drowned.

Several months ago Chinese members of the crew attempted to mutin after they had seen "devils" walkin the decks of the vessel and indulging in startling gymnastic feats.

Connell, at that time, asked the assistance of police when he arrived at this port.

AFGHAN REBELS CAPTURE TURKS

Two Women Killed When Ottoman Plane Shot Down.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Two women passengers were killed today when Afghan rebels shot down a Turkish airplane carrying members of a Turkish military mission over Afghan territory.

All the remaining members of the mission were captured by the rebels and are being held prisoners.

U. S. DESTROYER SAILS

SAN DIEGO, CAL., April 13—(I. N. S.)—The United States Destroyer Hull sailed from here today, bound for an unannounced port on the West Coast of Mexico, apparently to protect American interests in the coastal war zone.

CONFERENCE ON REPARATIONS HAS REACHED CRISIS

Allies Ask $30,000,000,000 From Germany As Total Bill for World War, To Be Paid Over Period of Fifty-Seven Years, Which Causes Consternation In Ranks of Berlin Delegates To Paris Conference—Breakup of Gathering Would Mean Continuation of Payments Under Dawes Plan.

PARIS, April 13—(U. P.)—The allies presented Germany today with a memorandum fixing her total bill for the World war at close to $30,000,000,000.

The German delegation to the conference of reparations experts was called before a plenary session of the conference and the memorandum was handed to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief eGrman delegate.

Its contents were kept secret, although it may be published Monday. The United Press was informed, however, that the allies demanded annuities starting at slightly more than $2,000,000,000,000 gold marks ($476,000,000), gradually increasing during fifty-seven years to 2,500,000,000 gold marks ($585,000,000).

No Total Mentioned.

No total was mentioned nor rate of interest fixed, but when Germany finishes paying she would have paid in all 125,000,000,000,000 gold marks, ($29,750,000,000), including interest. It includes of course the sums already paid since the war.

The staggering total met with consternation in German circles.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, April 13—The weather outlook for the period from April 15 to April 20, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys: Temperatures mostly seasonable but may be above normal toward close of week; rather frequent precipitation south portions, probably one or two periods north portions.

Nebraska and Kansas: Mostly unsettled Sunday and Monday, probably local showers; not much change in temperature.

Thousands Of Rebels Offer To Surrender

MEXICO CITY, Mex., April 13—(U. P.)—The Mexican consulate at Nogales, Ariz., telephoned President Portes Gil tonight that the rebel generals Manzo and Bernal had offered to surrender 5,000 to 6,000 insurgents in Sonora, provided their lives are spared, it was announced at the Presidencia.

The president telephoned the only terms of surrender acceptable to him would be unconditional. He said the leaders would have to submit to the jurisdiction of the militarists.

Portes Gil held the officers and leaders of the revolt must pay the full penalty prescribed by the law. He promised "generous treatment within the limits of the military statutes, especially to those who were dragged into the revolution."

President Portes Gil told the con-

WOMAN HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Mrs. Mulholland Suffers Injuries in Crash Saturday Night.

Mrs. H. G. Mulholland, 2524 E street, received a deep laceration on her upper lip, three inches long, when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, collided with a machine driven by William T. Albers, 446 D street, at the intersection of Twelfth and E streets at 9:15 Saturday night.

Mrs. Mulholland was suffering some from shock after the accident, Dr. George E. Lewis, who attended her, stated Saturday night. He was called to the scene of the accident and took Mrs. Mulholland to St. Elizabeth's hospital. He took several stitches in the cut on her lip after which she returned to her home.

None of the others riding in the machines which collided was injured. The right side of the Mulholland car was damaged in the accident and the right rear wheel broken. The front end of the Albers' machine was wrecked.

REED DENOUNCES JONES DRY LAW

Says Act Most Prolific Source of Blackmail Ever Devised.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 13—(I. N. S.) — With Thomas Jefferson, apostle of individual liberty, as his theme, former Senator James A. Reed, in a speech before the Women's Jefferson Democratic club this afternoon assailed what he termed present day drifts toward autocracy, namely the Jones law, government spies and regulators, federal bureaus and political preachers.

Declaring he is now a private citizen and not answerable to the democratic party or any one else for his utterances, Senator Reed spoke his mind freely on various questions. He ridiculed Volstead, Jones and the late Wayne B. Wheeler. He took verbal shots at the "ancient dames" and other propagandists who go to Washington to lobby, and he flayed political preachers and religious bigots.

Sees Blackmail Plot.

The Jones law will prove the "most prolific source of blackmail ever devised by man," Senator Reed predicted. "That is because a government agent now can say to a man or woman, I've got the goods on you. It is five years in the penitentiary. How much money for silence?"

Senator Reed said there were more women today in the United States who would drink whisky than ever before in the nation's history.

"That is because there is no more whisky," he remarked sarcastically. "We abolished it by law. In the old days men and women were taught to control themselves, to build up a resistance to the use of liquor, but that isn't necessary now that the state is taking care of the matter.

The "fighting senator" wound up his speech with the remark:

"The things we tamely submit to today would have caused a revolution 100 years ago."

Gene Howe, Once Lindy's Critic, Urges Him To Follow Example Of World Figures Who Tasted Fame

AMARILLO, Tex., April 13.—(U. P.)—Few men have withstood constant adulation, but the press may save Col. Charles A. Lindbergh "from degenerating into a perfect ass," Gene Howe, Amarillo editor and perhaps the first public critic of the colonel, said today.

Commenting on an editorial in the Washington Daily News, which took the colonel to task, Editor Howe congratulated The News on its outspokenness and added:

"Few men in history have been able to withstand constant and extreme adulation, and a truthful presentation from the press of Colonel Lindbergh's conduct toward the public and its representatives may save him from degenerating into a perfect ass."

Howe said he had long been expecting an explosion because of Lindbergh's attitude toward the public and press. But, he added:

"Lindbergh, as yet, is no less of a hero or an ideal than he has been and the Washington News is doing him the biggest possible favor because of its friendly and intelligent criticism.

Must Preserve Ideal.

"Lindbergh's duty to his country is to preserve the ideal which he has created. He typifies, or is regarded as typifying, the best and the highest there is in the young manhood of our country, and if he does not live up to this trust, it will be a loss to the nation.

"All that is necessary is for him to be as mindful of the rights of the public and the press as are Hoover, Coolidge, Taft, Mussolini,

CHANGES IN CITY AMAZE REALTOR

John Alexander Finds Remarkable Progress Made Since 1906.

Wonderful Buildings in Lincoln Delight Visitor.

It is refreshing and encouraging to note the progress being made by Lincoln, according to John M. Alexander, following a drive he made recently, accompanied by Mrs. Alexander and a friend from Tecoma, Wash., and his wife, who have just moved to Lincoln. Usually he has driven into the country, Mr. Alexander says, but on this trip he drove into all sections of the city pointing out the places of interest to the new arrivals. "They were agreably surprised at the wonderful buildings and the activity of the city," he declares, adding that they remarked that Lincoln is known everywhere as "a peppy town."

"This was all very interesting to me, but more so to my father," Mr. Alexander stated. "We came here on the sixth day of the sixth month of 1906. Father had come ahead to try to get work, and succeeded in doing so, in the old Jake Lichtensteiger grocery and market on South Tenth street. Mother and the two boys came after graduation at the little high school at Sigourney, Ia.

"Instead of coming east from the Burlington depot to come up town, we went north and walked through the Burlington freight yards. Finally we were directed toward the business district, and arrived at Tenth and O streets. Well do I remember looking east on O street, lined with houses and buggies tied to hitching posts. The street cars clanged and banged around the corner of the street going north. It was a wonderful sight. This was the first time any of us had ever seen a street car.

"Father had rented a house near Twentieth and J streets, but this distance seemed so far away that I insisted we were living in a suburb. Each morning we walked to work. Jake gave me a place as clerk in his store, but the job did not last long as I put vinegar in a kerosene jug and spoiled a salad being served at a high up dinner. The next best job that could be found was at J. Grainger & Co., trucking freight, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday was a half holiday, with two cars of bananas to unload before going home. This job lasted all summer, when with $100 saved I went to the university.

"Twenty-two years have come and gone since then. Mostly happy hard working years of gain and loss, achievement and disappointments.

"But what a wonderful contrast in the city of Lincoln in that time.

"The man from Tacoma remarked we had plenty of room to expand, as we drove along the road where the new veterans hospital is to be built. We saw the possibilities of a greater Lincoln, as we looked over toward Bethany, University Place, College View and Havelock. Far in the distance we could visualize the new Pioneers park, and homes in the now open spaces between Lincoln proper and these places.

"We drove out to the Shrine Country club and its new building. Few perhaps realize what a big building this is, and what a wonderful addition it is to Lincoln's many wonderful buildings. A wonderful building in Spanish architecture set on a high place overlooking the gently rolling Nebraska hills.

"We came past the many newly developing home districts in the east part of Lincoln: Piedmont, the acres along South street, the new Cotner boulevard, then through the Sheridan boulevard district—a corn field ten years ago—out through Sunset Hill, the Country Club district, and Woodsdale.

"It's a real treat to compare Lincoln, the new and up to date modern Lincoln, with the Lincoln of twenty-two years ago. And it is a pleasure to sell Lincoln to newcomers.

"Our future seems to me to be brighter for the next twenty years than it was in the last. We are on a better footing. Our values are more secure. More buildings and investments. A bigger community. We have men here inspired with the urge to build. A handful of men can build a wonderful business district, but a lot of men can build a great city and a great community. And I believe there are men here to do it."

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

Carl Larson, contractor, purchased a lot in Sunset Hill addition, the past week from Harvey Rathbone, and is contemplating erecting a home soon. A lot has been bought by Otto Skold on Rathbone road. He expects to build soon.

VERMONT PARTY HERE WEDNESDAY

Chamber Completes Plans For Entertainment of 125 Visitors.

Arrangements were completed by the chamber of commerce Saturday for the entertainment of 125 Vermonters who will arrive here at 7 o'clock Wednesday on a special train carrying a display of Vermont products and pictures of the state's scenery. The train will be at the Burlington station and the party will remain until 1:30.

Upon arrival of the visitors they will be met by buses and automobiles and taken for a tour of the city. From the depot they will go to the university campus and from thence to the agricultural college. At the university they will be greeted by Chancellor Burnett, and at the college by Dean Burr.

The inspection of the campuses will include a trip through the stadium, field house and Morrill hall. At the college they will inspect the entire plant.

From the college the party will be shown the veterans bureau hospital site, the Country clubs, Wesleyan, Cotner and Union colleges, and the residential sections of the city enroute to the capitol. There they will meet Governor Weaver and visit the legislative halls.

The trip is planned to have the Vermonters at the chamber of commerce by 12 o'clock, where they will be guests at a luncheon.

Included in the party will be some of Vermont's most notable citizens. Heading the group are Governor John E. Weeks, and Mrs. Weeks of Middlebury. Herbert T. Johnson, adjutant general of the state guard also is in the party as are a number of the editors of the leading newspapers, and some of the Boston publications. There are also a number of other state officials, leaders in agriculture and livestock, and industry as well as a number of government officials.

DR. HEDBLOM TO GIVE ADDRESS

Former Nebraskan Will Talk to Medical Society Tuesday.

Dr. Carl Hedblom, professor of surgery at the University of Illinois college of medicine, will speak to the Lancaster County Medical society at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Sharp building. His subject wil be "Diagnosis of Acute Abdominal Conditions."

Dr. Hedblom, who is recognized internationally as an authority in the field of surgical research and practice is a former Nebraskan who was born near Aurora. He was formerly on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin and has been head of the European hospital at Shanghai. For the past several years he has been head of University of Illinois.

Preceding the regular meeting in the medical society quarters, a dinner in honor of Dr. Hedblom will be held at the University club the department of surgery in the to which all members of the society and visiting physicians are invited.

LINCOLN MAKES RAPID ADVANCE

Present Day City is Nothing Like That of Ten Years Ago.

Next Decade Gives Promise of Still Greater Development.

People who have lived in Lincoln ten years or more need to readjust their ideas of the city, if they already have not done so, in the opinion of J. W. Turner, president of the Lincoln Real Estate board. The Lincoln of today, he says, is an entirely different city than that of a decade ago. The population has increased nearly 40,000, business has gained correspondingly, as has the trade area with the development of better roads allowing automobiles, trucks and bus lines to run through the city.

Not only has there been an increase in these respects. There also has been an extension in the area of the city itself, both within and without the territorial limits, and the person who is now thinking of the city in terms of ten or twelve years ago is entirely out of harmony with the real situation, he says.

Sees Still Greater Gain.

Declaring Lincoln's population will increase more rapidly in the next ten years than it has in the past, Mr. Turner declares hundreds of people are turning their faces in this direction because the city's many attractions have become known from one end of the country to the other. People who do not realize this and fail to adjust themselves to these conditions are making a serious mistake as "this growth is just ahead of us and we should prepare for it.

"Even though we have a population of 90,000 it is hard for some people to realize that Lincoln has just started to grow. Most of us are here because we think this is the finest place on earth in which to live, and in which to educate our children. Thousands elsewhere are beginning to believe as we do and nothing is going to stop them from coming here to live. If we are wise we will give them a hearty welcome, first taking precautions that they will be cared for after their arrival. These folks should not be talked to in terms of the past. Talk with them only in terms of the present and future!

311 New Home Owners.

"It is interesting to know that since 1920 there have been 3,361 new homes built in Lincoln. Of these 311 were built and are being occupied by the owners. Remodelled houses are the ones that are for rent, and the record shows that last year alone these numbered 172 worked over at a cost of $81,195. Remodeling is in line with the modernizing program of the board and more of it should be done.

"There are many old homes in Lincoln and the owners should show a greater interest in bringing them on a par with those of more modern design. It should be done from the standpoint of difference in appearance and also to make them sell or rent easier. Then, too, they improve the community and increase the value of the land they stand on; and this is more important than all the other reasons.

"Most of these houses are on property that is close-in; what is considered the more valuable land. Any way it is looked at it is far too valuable to be used in connection with a rundown house that is being rented.

"The 311 houses built last year cost their owners more than a half million dollars, in addition to the $81,195 spent for modernizing. Nine apartments cost $310,000 more and remodelling two others, $12,000. Include in this 499 new garages at a cost of $296,000 and the aggregate reaches $5,221,608. The number of permits was 1,05[illegible].

"It will be time well spent to 'Know Your Lincoln'."

Sunday Denounces Dry Law Breakers

DENVER, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—"Billy" Sunday, the fighting evangelist, uttering sparkling denunciations of violators of the Volstead law, spent a few hours in Denver today, enroute to Sterling, where he will open a tabernacle revival tomorrow.

"Give 'em the jack screws," and "Hand the bums the cold flash and snare 'em with the rope," were a couple of "Billy's" ejaculations in referring to those who vote dry and drink wet.

"Ma" Sunday acompanied the evangelist.

BANK INCREASES CAPITAL $40,000

First State of Lincoln Now Has Total Stock of $50,000.

An increase of $40,000 in the capital stock of the First State bank of Lincoln, bringing the total to $50,000 was announced Saturday by Henry Heiliger, president.

The bank, which was formerly located at Bethany moved to quarters in the Sharp building in November, 1928. Its capitalization at that time was $10,000.

A stockholders meeting and election of new directors will take place soon, Mr. Heiliger stated.

CHAMBER ASKS A LARGER FUND

Officials Say Is Needed To Keep Pace With Growing City.

In a letter sent to the entire membership last week the chamber of commerce stressed the need of a larger sustaining membership fund" to keep pace with the growing demands of a growing city." The fund now totals slightly more than $20,000.

"We must have $17,000 within the next few days," the letter says, "to pay the obligation which the chamber found necessary to assume in connection with bringing the veterans bureau hospital to Lincoln. We are told the institution will bring at least 200 families to the city as members of the staff and attendants at the hospital.

"There is the growing importance of Lincoln as a convention center. Add to this the good roads program which is costing the chamber $1,200 a year, and a new directory for the jobbing and manufacturing district.

"Money should be available to make Lincoln the center of aviation activities, including the manufacture of planes, establishment of schools of flying and to teach aviation to say nothing of the funds that are needed to establish new air lanes. These would embrace mail, passenger and express between Lincoln and the most important cities of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys.

"One of the most potent population catchers Lincoln has ever had is its fine system of schools, and institutions of higher education, especially the University of Nebraska and the creditable denominational colleges."

The letter also stresses the need of signs along the highway, and "Funds are needed to promote a campaign to make Lincoln the largest cattle feeding in transit point in the western territory. We believe 20,000 head of cattle can be brought to Lincoln annually for feeding from the western ranges and finished here for market to better advantage than anywhere else in the country."

"Funds also are needed to advance the importance of Lincoln as an insurance center," it is brought out. There are in the city thirty-three home insurance companies with general headquarters here, and as many more state agencies of outside companies.

The letter says these conditions must be met "because they are obligations the chamber cannot disregard without disaster to the interests of the city. The manner in which the membership of the chamber measures up to this responsibility is going to determine in a great measure the future development of the city."

SPANISH FLIERS FETED

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Capt. Francisco Jimenez and Capt. Ignacio Iglesias, Spanish trans-Atlantic fliers who, flew here from Buenos Aires, were feted and acclaimed today. The airmen landed at 4:40 o'clock Friday afternoon, minus their mechanic who was left at Buenos Aires under arrest. He is alleged to have tampered with the mechanism of the plane, delaying the scheduled hop-off of the aviators from Thursday until Friday.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver 999—1292- E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Advertisement.

STOCKS ENJOY A BRISK RALLY

Active Issues Regain Most of Ground Lost in Early April.

Business Reviews for the Past Week Comment on Bright Outlook.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Recovery was the order in all financial markets this week. Released from the restraint of high money rates and persistent calling of loans by the banking institutions, the stock market enjoyed a brisk rally, which for most of the active stocks restored the bulk of the ground lost in early April. Bond prices moved upward, not only in the listed markets, but in the outside investment markets where the better grade of municipal and utility securities are sold. Business surveys showed an excellent operating record in the steel, copper and other industries and the outlook for American business as a whole is very bright.

Reports of first quarter operations show that the steel and automobile industries established new high records in daily output, as well as for weekly and monthly sales. The cotton goods industry equalled the best expectations and the three branches of retail trade, the chain stores, the mail order and the department stores, set up new high totals of sales for the period under review.

The third consecutive weekly shrinkage in brokers' loans, as reported on Thursday, brings the total $366,000,000 under that of the March peak, and this despite the fact that there has been a considerable volume of new financing through the stock and bond markets. Whether this meets the requirements and expectations of the reserve board is problematical, though it is generally believed that the board will be satisfied if speculative loans, so-called, do not reach a higher total than the one already recorded. The loaning rates for call and time money ruled at 9 per cent or fractionally less, which shows conclusively that there is no large supply of funds for stock market purposes.

Copper Price Drops.

The "readjustment" in copper prices, not unexpected in view of the recent sharp advances in the market for the red metal, brought copper back to 19½ cents a pound against the recent peak at 24 cents. This was no great hardship to the copper producers, who are in a position to make good profits at 17 cents a pound, which is more than 2 cents below this week's quotation.

The government's report on winter wheat for April shows condition as 82.7 per cent of normal, compared with 68.8 per cent last year, 84.5 per cent in 1927 and a ten-year April average of 80.9. This condition promises a crop of 581,000,000 bushels, against 579,000,000 bushels last year. The report shows less abandonment than usual with little loss in the Ohio valley, except in Illinois. Conditions on the Pacific coast are generally under the average. The rye crop is estimated at 44,000,000 bushels, against 41,788,000 harvested last year.

Of the eighty lines of business in New York City reporting to Bradstreet's this week, eight were better than last year, sixty-three were equal and nine below the record of a year ago. Two lines reported collections better than a year ago, while forty-nine were equal to a year ago and twenty-nine below a year ago. Commodity prices were firm.

Bradstreet's food index number for the week (the sum total, per pound, of thirty-one articles of food) is $3.43, against $3.44 last week and $3.31 for the corresponding week of 1928.

Bank clearings for the current week aggregated $12,098,648,000, an increase of 16.9 per cent over the corresponding week of 1928.

Wheat News Bullish.

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Wheat sold ½ to ¾c higher today, with active buying on bullish news from Washington regarding farm relief. Corn was ½c higher to ⅝c off with a mixed trade and oats ⅝c higher to ¼c lower.

For the week wheat was 5¼ to 5⅝c higher, corn 3⅝ to 4c higher and oats 1⅝ to 2½c up.

Bearish news had little effect on wheat prices in the past week. Generally favorable weather conditions both in this country, Canada and abroad, along with a poor export demand, was more than offset by general buying on prospects of farm relief legislation. Reports from Washington indicating probable establishment of a $500,000,000 revolving fund for the purpose of handling the surplus crop also had its effect.

The wheat market displayed easiness at times with scattered selling, but oversold conditions quickly prevailed and short coverings as well as good support from strong commission houses prompted a rally.

The government placed the condition of winter wheat at 82.7 per cent, which is well above the ten year average and about 14 points above last year's condition.

Active buying featured trade in corn. The market showed more resistance to selling pressure than did wheat. The promise of farm relief legislation, smaller receipts and fairly active cash trade figured in the strong undertone of the market.

Livestock Trade Uneven.

CHICAGO, Apr. 13—(I. N. S.)—Uneveness featured trade in livestock this week. Hogs finished 15 to 25c lower for the week, good steers 25 to 40 higher, cows and heifrs 25s highr. Lambs droppd 25c.

Hog rceipts for the week were 105,000 against 118,000 last week and 108,000 a year ago. n spite of lighter receipts here and at eleven principal markets the trade was inclined to go slow. Dressed pork at eastern centers continued to sag and local shipments declined. The best hogs available sold at $11.65 late, with most of the 175-225 lb., butcher at $11.40 to $11.60. Heavy hogs cleared at $11.25 to $1.510.

The steer market was lower early, but losses were recovered in line with an active demand. Top during the week was $14.85, with more steers this season. Medium to good classes at $14 to $14.76 than at any time cashed at $13 to $14. Week's receipts numbered $39,000 against $35,500 last week and 40,500 a year ago.

Cows and heifers soared with steers. Cows sold at $7 to $10.50 and heifers ranged from $9 to $14.50. Week's receipts of calves were 23,000, largest of the year. Prices subsided $1 to $1.50, with sales late in the week at $12 to $15.50.

Sheep receipts were 68,000 against 67,000 last week and 50,000 a year ago. Trade was fairly active. Good to choice lambs closed at $17 to $17.75, with a few to yard trades at $17.75. Plain to medium lambs sold at packers at $16 to $17.

Chicago Cotton Advances.

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—After ruling uneven during the week's trade, cotton prices finished 12 to 20 points higher. Trading was limited. The run of news was mixed.

The Liverpool cotton market was construed as bullish. Domestic mill consumer 632,808 ruinning bales of lint cotton during March, the report said, against 598,098 bales in Februay and 581,325 bales in March last year. Heekly government crop deport was favorable.

Today's final prices were unchanged to 5 points higher. May at $19.95; July, $20.00; Oct., $19.88; Dec., 19.95, and January, $19.94.

AIR TRAVEL POPULAR.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 13—(U. P.)—Increasing popularity of air travel from the Mexican border to Mexico City is seen in the announcement made here today by the Missouri Pacific lines of a new and faster passenger train schedule, effective April 21. The new schedule will make it possible to leave Houston, Tex., at 10:30 p. m., and eat lunch the following day in Mexico City.

Rheumatism Overcome By Walking

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rids the wearer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 279 Lee St., McKenzie, Tenn., is so anxious to prove their statement that they are willing to send any suffer their liberal trial offer. Write them today.—Advertisement.

AUTO CLUB DRIVE TO BEGIN MONDAY

Annual Campaign For New Members Open To Everyone.

The Lincoln Auto club annual membership campaign will open Monday under direction of W. J. Kirkbride and W. A. Robbins. The campaign this year, will be on a little different basis than other years, for the reason that everyone is eligible to enter the mileage race, securing members for the club, and being rewarded for same.

The campaign will last until June 30, unltss otherwise terminated or extended by the judges of the contest.

The Auto club is constantly extending its services for the motorists of the community and state. Members may receive A. A. A. service, over the entire state of Nebraska now. The Nebraska Motor club, with which the Lincoln Automobile club is affiliated, has over 200 service stations in Nebraska.

Hundreds of people daily are routed through the touring bureau of the Lincoln Automobile club. After rains, storms, snows, and bad road conditions, as high as 2500 phone calls have been answered in a single day.

ITALIAN SEAPLANE DESTROYED

NAPLES, Italy, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Fire completely destroyed an Italian four-motored superwal seaplane today while anchored in the Bay of Naples. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The plane, similar in design to that which Com. Francisco de Pinedo made his four continent flight two years ago, was being used in air mail service in conjunction with the English-Indian air mail route, recently inaugurated.

Hawaii Urges Whipping Post to Control Crime

Women Foster Bill With Sever Penalty to tSamp Out Attacks on Minor Girls.

HONOLULU, April 13—(U. P.)—A bill providing that men guilty of rape or assault on minor girls shall be whipped in addition to imprisonment was introduced today in the lower house of the territorial legislature.

The bill was purely a woman-inspired measure. It was drafted and prepared for presentation by a committee of local women after a series of meetings held at the local Y. W. C. A.

Coming in the wake of a wave of indignation after a series of local sex crimes, it is generally conceded that the bill has more than an even chance of passage.

The bill, as drafted does not do away with any penalty now demanded by territorial law. The whipping would be in addition to all other punishment determined by the courts.

It is proposed under the terms of the measure, to mete out whippings in a definite schedule of a certain number of lashes for crimes of varying seriouness.

BORDER GUARDED BY LARGE ARMY AS FIGHT NEARS

Largest Mobilization of Troops Since Before World War.

Wyoming Regiment Ordered to Report Sunday at Bisbee, Ariz.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 13—(U. P.)—Parts of virtually every fighting branch of the United States army were encamped tonight along the Mexican border adjacent to Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, or were moving there to protect American lives and property from Mexican revolutionary activity.

Air corps, infantry, cavalry and artillery all were operating under "war" orders issued by Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, commander of the Eighth corps area, with headquarters at San Antonio.

The chemical warfare service and tank service are the only fighting branches not included in troop movement orders of the past ten days, but as they are services attached to the infantry they can technically be included in the nation's latest war gesture.

Troops now concentrated on the southern border represent the largest regular army troop movements since the period directly before the United States entered the World war.

Troops that were ordered to move Saturday to Bisbee, Ariz., a central point from which they can be hurled against any section of the southern frontier, were sent out from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, Friday, a day ahead of their schedule. This rush order was issued, General Lassiter said, because of a disturbing situation in the state of Sonora. The troops included the Twentieth infantry, and number approximately 2,500 or 3,000 men. The regiment was ordered to be at Bisbee by Sunday.

Concurrently with the order affecting the Twentieth infantry, General Lassiter instructed Brigadier General Moseley, a commander at Fort Bliss, Texas, to order one battery of the Eighty-second field artillery, which has been directed to Hachita, N. M., to proceed past that point to Don Luis, Ariz., a point half way between Naco, Ariz., and Hachita. The artillery battery, armed with four 75 milimeter guns, is expected to be ordered on to Naco to supplement infantry, cavalry and air corps forces already operating there, with Fort Huachuca, Ariz., as their base.

The entire Seventh cavalry stationed at Fort Bliss is now marching to Hachita, with the exception of one squadron which is already at Fort Huachuca and Naco. A part of the regular infantry and cavalry forces stationed at Fort Huachuca have been at Naco for the past several weeks, representing the first troop movement since that place became the center of the Mexican war theater.

The artillery and cavalry sent out of Fort Bliss number approximately 600 men. At Columbus, N. M., made famous by the raid of Pancho Villa, is the temporary station of Troop A of the Seventh cavalry under the command of Capt. A. J. Wynn of Fort Bliss. These troops are under orders to patrol sixty miles of the New Mexico border between Columbus and the Culbertson ranch. Hachita, N. M., is the central point for all the Seventh cavalry.

Only two points on the Texas border have so far been the destination for recent troop movements. St. Helena, Tex., and Presidio, Tex., both in the Big Bend country, are patrol headquarters for cavalry detachments sent from Camp Marfa, Tex. The first platoon of the first cavalry with two machine guns is at St. Helena, and Troop A of the same regiment has taken up station at Presidio.

PIPE ORGAN IS INSTALLED AT THE WADLOW MORTUARY

A Reproduco pipe organ designed particularly for mortuary service, has been installed at the Cecil E. Wadlow mortuary, 323 South Twelfth street.

Leading mortuaries in the larger cities of the country have taken this step to offer the beauty of organ music at funeral services, according to Mr. Wadlow. The organ possesses a tone of exceptional quality, due to added perfection in voicing the pipes. The Wadlow chapel is the first in Lincoln to be equipped with a pipe organ.

New Switchboard Cut In at Auburn Saturday Night

Telephone service over a new seven-position switchboard at Auburn was "cut in" at 1 o'clock Saturday night by the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company.

"Cutting in" of the service for local and long distance over the new board marks the final step in opening the new telephone company building at Auburn, recently completed.

The mayor of Auburn made the first call over long distance on the new system to J. H. Agee, general manager of Lincoln, to extend congratulations on behalf of citizens of Auburn.

The following officials of the company were on hand to superintend the opening of the new board: M. T. Caster, plant superintendent; J. Pugsley, installation foreman; F. E. Behm, assistant plant superintendent; C. C. Donley, traffic engineer, all of Lincoln; and R. H. Ojers, distribution manager, Nebraska City.

Says Adolescent Problem Greatest Facing Educators

"The greatest problem confronting educators is the reaching of a proper understanding with growing people during the ages of adolescence," declared E. W. Lantz, assistant professor of secondary education at the teachers college in a talk on "The Psychology of Adolescence" at the Saturday morning session of the scout seminary of representatives from Nebraska and western Iowa held at the Temple.

"Between the age of twelve and the time full maturity is reached the boy undergoes great changes," he said. As long as he is still a child and after he has become an adult other people show a readiness to understand him, but he loses contact with others during the adolescent period. "Parents cannot try too hard to bridge the gap with efforts for an understanding," he declared.

W. H. Morton, principal of the Teachers college high school, spoke on "The Home, Community and Scouting." He told how students who were one-sided in their interests would be brought to a balance better through a continuation of their strong interest than by abandoning it in favor of something else. A student enthusiastic about music can be made interested in other fields by showing him the necessity of being well rounded to succeed in anything, he said.

Following a noon luncheon at the Cornhusker hotel, Dr. J. E. M. Thomson, president of the Cornhusker area, made a short talk. F. C. Woolworth talked on "Committees That Function," showed some research reports and led a group discussion.

H. C. Koch, professor of secondary education at the Teachers college, spoke on "How to Prepare a Thesis" in the concluding talk of the afternoon. A round table discussion followed and the seminar adjourned.

Escape From Jail at Holdrege

HARRY DUNN.

FRANK JAMES.

Former inmates of the state reformatory who escaped Friday night from the Phelps county jail at Holdrege where they were being held for trial on a charge of robbery with firearms. It is believed that someone smashed a window and stole the cell key from the place where it had been hidden by Sheriff Hanson and released the pair. The men's wives are thought to have fled with them in an automobile according to State Sheriff Condit. The men served time in the reformatory after being convicted and sentenced to a term of two years in Gosper county on a breaking and entering charge.

SOLONS TO HEAR AIMEE PREACH A SUNDAY SERMON

Plans Service While Waiting to Testify for Judge Hardy.

Legislators in Quarrel Over Whether to Put Her on Stand.

STATE CAPITOL, Sacramento, Cal., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Aimee Semple McPherson will make her first public appearance since coming here as a witness in the Hardy impeachment trial Sunday afternoon, but not in the role for which she has been cast by the state of California.

Kept from her pulpit in Los Angeles by her required daily attendance here while waiting her turn to take the witness stand, Mrs. McPherson decided to make the best of it by preaching to the senators who are trying her friend, Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy.

Members of both houses of the legislature were, along with the rest of the public, invited to hear the evangelist, who promised that no mention of the Hardy trial would be made in her sermon.

Judge Hardy, who, in years gone by was a familiar figure both in the pews and on the rostrum of Angelus temple, indicated he and his son, Rex Hardy, would go to hear the evangelist preach tomorrow.

Anticipating a good sized attendance, Mrs. McPherson has obtained permission to hold her services in the city auditorium, with seats for 8,000 persons.

City ordinances forbid the charging of admission where free use of the auditorium is granted, but there is nothing to prevent the evangelist from taking a "love offering."

"I have never missed preaching on Sunday in years," Mrs. McPherson explained as she hurried arrangements for the revival, "so, on the spur of the moment I decided on this meeting tomorrow."

Anticipate Huge Crowd.

Hearing about this, City Manager K. A. Klugel immediately ordered a special police detail on duty at the auditorium Sunday afternoon to prevent a possible stampede of spectators who have vainly been trying to crash the gates of the senate chamber in hopes of seeing the comely evangelist.

Dissension in the assembly board of managers, prosecutors of the Judge Hardy impeachment case, blazed into the open here today, with the members frankly at loggerheads on the question of whether Mrs. McPherson shall be placed on the stand as a state witness.

The long-smouldering row over "Aimee's testimony," considered vital by one faction and futile by the other, broke wide open today when Assemblyman William Hornblower, one of the San Francisco prosecutors, announced he was vigorously opposed to calling the evangelist as a witness.

"I am absolutely opposed to putting Mrs. McPherson on the stand," Hornblower said today. "We don't need her testimony and in my opinion it would be a serious mistake if we took up the court's time by a new recital of her much-told kidnaping story.

"Mrs. McPherson, when she takes the stand, remembers nothing about the entries in the Angelus temple books. She remembers nothing of the financial affairs of the temple.

"All she does remember is that she gave Judge Hardy a $2,500 'love offering' out of the kindness of her heart and purely as a gesture of friendship.

Says Trial Not a Show.

"And I don't propose to have her on the witness chair merely for the sake of the spectacle. This is a court trial and not a show dramatizing Aimee's personality."

Assemblyman Walter Little of Los Angeles, on the other hand, is declared to be strongly in favor of calling the woman evangelist and examining her closely as to the type of services that Judge Hardy performed for Angelus temple.

The senate court of impeachment was in adjournment today over the week-end. Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seilaff, mystery woman in the "Miss X" episode of the McPherson disappearance, who told a sensational story yesterday of her connection with the case, was to be rigidly cross-examined next week by counsel for Judge Hardy.

CRETE EDITOR HAS OPERATION HERE

(Special to the Star.)

CRETE, Neb., April 13—Walt B. Rogers, owner and editor of the Crete News, was taken to the Lincoln General hospital Saturday morning for an emergency operation. Mr. Rogers came to Crete a year ago from Hastings, where he had been in newspaper work.

Attendants at Lincoln General hospital said Saturday night that Mr. Rogers had come out of the operation satisfactorily. The operation was performed by Dr. Stanley Welch.

Uldrich Convicted In Trial at Wilber

First Criminal Case Tried in New Saline County Court House Ends Saturday.

(Special to the Star.)

Wilber, Neb., April 13—The first case tried in the new Saline county court house ended Saturday in the conviction of Albert Uldrich on a charge of adultery. The case went given to the jury at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The jurors deliberated but two hours.

The complaint was brought by Minnie Brunkow, wife of Erich Brunkow and the mother of three children. The Brunkows and Uldrichs live on farms about a mile and a half apart near Tobias. The alleged offense occurred September 24, 1928. Uldrich denied guilt and offered an alibi as his principal defense.

District Judge Proudfit will sentence Uldrich Tuesday. County Attorney T. J. Dredla prosecuted the case and the defendant was represented by John Hartigan of Fairbur"

STUDENTS WILL ATTEND DINNER

Engineers of State To Sponsor Affair in Omaha Wednesday.

Approximately 150 engineers and students of engineering will attend a complimentary dinner given by the Nebraska sections of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers in Omaha, Wednesday, April 17.

The affair will be given by engineers of the state for those enrolled in the student branches of those organizations. Students have been invited from the universities of South Dakota and Nebraska, and will provide entertainment at the dinner.

It is expected that all of the faculty members of the department of electrical engineering and most of the faculty members of the department of mechanical engineering will attend the dinner.

The program is:

Business meeting, C. D. Robison, chairman, Nebraska section, A. I. E. E., presiding.

Student program, L. E. Shoemaker, senior E. E., U. of N., presiding.

Group singing: (a) University of South Dakota songs; (b) University of Nebraska songs.

Saxophone duet, J. O. Weyand, junior M. E., U. of N., and M. J. Senn, junior E. E., U. of N., accompanied by C. E. Brokenicky, senior E. E., U. of N.

"A Few Remarks," Dean O. J. Ferguson, U. of N.

"A Few Remarks," Dr. B. B. Brackett, U. of S. D.

"Diesel Engines for Aeroplanes," C. W. Sharp, junior M. E., U. of N.

Piano solo, C. E. Brokenicky, senior E. E. U. of N.

"A Few Remarks," E. Johnson, chairman U. of S. D. branch A. I. E. E.

Reading, "The Tamer of the Brute", W. Dickenson, senior E. E., U. of S. D.

"Telephone Rates," P. F. Fink, senior E. E., U. of N.

Saxophone and clarinet solos, M. Kautz, sophomore E. E. of U. of S. D.

Electric organ number, W. C. E. Bahls, senior E. E. U. of N.

University of Nebraska students planning to attend include:

Mechanical engineering: I. M. Hember, graduate student; seniors; C. C. Dunklau, E. L. Krasser, J. D. Novotny, S. [illegible], juniors; H. Erickson, G. E. Evans, R. A. House, L. W. [illegible], F. [illegible], Meyer, R. J. Prohaska, C. W. Sharp, J. O. Weyand, W. O. Williams, S. Wolf.

Electrical engineering seniors; L. T. Anderson, W. C. E. Bahls, L. S. Baker, C. E. Brokenicky, F. [illegible] Chapman, J. M. Clema, H. E. Cook, C. W. Cowley, K. T. Davis, P. F. Fink, V. E. Hays, C. J. Herman, C. L. Kingrey, A. S. Metcalf, H. D. Miller, V. M. Petersen, M. E. Scoville, L. E. Shoemaker, M. G. Shoemaker, R. A. Vanderlippe.

Electrical engineering juniors: A. E. Caress, A. D. Cleveland, R. R. Dysart, G. P. Gibson, P. F. Hoyt, R. S. Humberd, H. D. Kimberly, J. D. Kleinkauf, F. E. Lange, F. V. Peterson, M. W. Roberts, D. C. Ruden, D. Schneider, M. J. Senn, H. G. Wiltse, F. M. Wolcott, D. E. Woods. W. E. Stewart, sophomore, will also attend.

Garden Club Meets Monday Evening

The Garden club of Lincoln will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock at Morrill hall. The subject will be "The Iris, Where From, How, and Where To." Dr. Harry Everett will lead the discussion and colored slides of the Iris and the Delphinium from the state of Washington will be shown in connection with the lecture.

MARCH MERCURY ABOVE NORMAL

Crops in "Fairly Good" Condition Despite Lack of Moisture.

March, 1929, averaged warmer than normal, with deficient precipitation, wind movement, relative humidity, and cloudiness, and practically normal sunshine, according to the monthly report of the Lincoln weather bureau.

"At the beginning of the month the condition of winter wheat was uncertain in many localities, due to cold weather and insufficient snow cover during February. As the month advanced, however, the crop was found to be in fairly good condition, except in some south central counties, where many fields were abandoned. In this territory considerable alfalfa and sweet clover were also winter killed. Both winter wheat and fall sown rye began growth during the last week and generally appeared in fairly good to very good condition. The ground was frozen to a greater depth than usual during the winter but by the end of the second decade frost was well out of the ground and during the last decade considerable plowing and disking were accomplished with soil in excellent condition, except in the south, where moisture was needed. Seeding of spring wheat and oats and potato planting made a good start in the south and were starting locally in other parts of the state. Stock came through the winter in good condition. Ice in rivers began moving mostly between the twelfth and fourteenth, and due to unusual thickness, gorges were numerous and there was considerable local flooding and a number of bridges were damaged.

"The monthly mean temperature averaged 40.5 degrees or 4.9 degrees above normal, all parts of the state being warmer than normal. The daily mean temperature since January 1 this year averaged 2.49 degrees and for the same period last year averaged 33.6 degrees, the normal being 27.5 degrees. The first and third decades averaged more than 4 degrees above normal and the second decade was still warmer, averaging about 9 degrees above. Except for short periods daily temperatures were persistently above normal maximum temperatures for the month ranging from 64 degrees to 83 degrees and were recorded on the 10th, 20th, 27th, or 29th. Monthly minimum temperatures were between 2 degrees and 21 degrees and were recorded generally on the first and ninth.

"The total precipitation for the month was .80 inch, or 73 per cent of normal. The snowfall was 5.4 ly one-half the monthly precipitainches, and constituted approximation. Light scattered rain or snow fell at widely scattered points during the first five days and general storm prevailed on the 11-15th, 21st-24th, and 30th-31st. During the remainder of the month no precipitation of consequence was recorded. Monthly totals ranged from no measurable amount in areas along the southern border to more than two inches fell over northern counties west of Holt county, while less than one-quarter inch was recorded over about a third of the state, comprising central and south-central counties. The total precipitation since January 1 this year is 2.18 inches, and for the same three months last year was 2.07 inches. The normal precipitation for this period is 2.37 inches."

THREE PROMINENT SPEAKERS SECURED

Will Address Meetings When Social Science Groups and Academy of Science Convene in May.

State organizations of the social sciences, history and geography will meet at the same time as the Nebraska Academy of Science in Lincoln, May 3 and 4. Several general sessions have been arranged in addition to the special group meetings.

Three prominent speakers from outside of the state have been obtained. These meetings, and the group sessions, will be attended by professors from all colleges in the state and by high school teachers. The speakers will be Dr. W. T. Root, head of the history department, University of Iowa; Dr. Dayton C. Miller, head of the department of physics, Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio; and Dr. W. Elmer Ekblaw, professor of geography at Clark university, Worcester, Mass.

Dr. Ekblaw is ranked as one of the foremost authorities on polar geography and has published extensively in that field, according to Dr. N. A. Bengston of the University of Nebraska, who is in charge of arrangements for the combined social sciences meetings. He was in charge of the scientific work of the Crocker Land expedition of 1913-17, spending four years living among the people farthest north and conducting geographic explorations in that area.

Dr. Ekblaw will give two talks to the general meetings, "The Land and Life of the Polar Eskimo," and "The Arctic Sledge Trail Beyond the Northern Lights."

ANNOUNCING

A new 8-cylinder V-type car at medium price . . .

The VIKING

THIS WEEK General Motors presents an entirely new automobile.

It is the Viking.

It is an 8-cylinder car, of 125-inch wheel base, with Bodies by Fisher.

Its price is $1,595 at the factory.

It is built in the Oldsmobile factories and sold through Oldsmobile dealers.

* * * * *

Details will be given in the coming advertisements of the Viking. The purpose of this message is to tell briefly why and how General Motors has produced this new car.

There has been a public demand for an 8-cylinder car of General Motors quality in the medium price field. As far back as three years ago the first steps were taken to fill it.

The Oldsmobile organization was selected to create the new car. At its disposal were placed the Research Laboratories, the Proving Ground, Fisher Body, the Art and Color Section—every resource for development and test.

The Oldsmobile staff approached the task with an Open Mind. Its engineers literally started from scratch; they were not committed to any design. By the most grueling of tests, every phase of performance was checked and compared—General Motors requiring only that the ultimate result meet its standard of quality and maximum value—and the 90-degree V-type 8-cylinder engine won its place under the Viking's hood.

The bodies of the Viking were designed by Fisher, whose craftsmen sought distinction along the most difficult path: the achievement of beauty and elegance through simple lines.

General Motors is proud of the Viking and acknowledges the generous public patronage which has made it possible to offer a new car of such quality at medium price.

* * * * *

The General Motors lines now include 90 passenger car models, ranging in price-at-factory from $525 to $7000. They are as diversified as to types of mechanical design and body styles as human tastes and pocketbooks. But all are of General Motors quality; all have Bodies by Fisher; all give maximum value for your automobile dollar, whether you buy for cash, or on time, or use your present car as part payment.

The Viking is now on display in the showrooms of Oldsmobile dealers

ESCOBAR SEEKS MEXICAN PORT

Rebel Commander Says Mexican Revolution Just Starting.

Insurgents Believed Hastening to Guaymas By Motor Trucks.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 13—(I. N. S.)—A race for the important Sonora port of Guaymas was believed on today.

Under a screen of massing his forces for an attack on Naco, Sonora, Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, supreme commander of the Mexican revolution was believed hastening the pick of his forces from Chihuahua and eastern Sonora to Guaymas by motor trucks.

And federals were reported making every effort to press north from Sinaloa to Guaymas. It was reported that finding rails and bridges torn up north of Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, where Gen. Plutarco Calles now has his headquarters, the federals have commanded ships at Mazatlan to transport their forces to Guaymas.

With two of the leading figures in the revolution already across the border, observers here would not be surprised to see others seek refuge in the United States. Gilberto Valenzuela, presidential candidate and said to have been one of the prime movers in the revolutionary movement, and Gen. Francisco Manzo who commanded the futile rebel campaign in Sinaloa ending in failure to capture Mazatlan, were the two leaders who sought refuge here. Mano, in all health, was expected to leave as soon as possible for Rochester, Minn., while Venezuela was said to plan to make his home in Los Angeles.

Revolt Just Starting.

Indicating that struggle will be waged, however, before the revolution is over, General Escobar told International News Service in Nogales, Sonora, that the "revolution is just starting, not ending."

Revolutionary leaders were considerably cheered by a report that a German munition ship has reached Guaymas. Escobar blamed failure of his Chihuahua campaign on lack of ammunition.

It is believed here that the rebel forces outside the concentrations at Agua Prieta and Minaroa in the Guaymas in southern Sonora will vicinity of Naco and Navajoa and be broken up into small guerrilla bands.

positors who placed their money in banks after they had been taken over by the state," said Mr. Sorensen. "I'm sure that the legislature will appropriate for this purpose and such depositors will be paid before the first of July."

A League Question.

There is a legal question as to whether the state as a whole can be taxed to pay depositors who placed their money in institutions before they were closed, he stated. Lawyers are about equally divided as to whether the court would sustain such appropriations, Mr. Sorensen thinks. An assuredly legitimate appropriation, however, he thinks, is for the state to pay the expenses of the guaranty fund commission. This would return about $3,000,000 which has been taken out of the fund.

The proposition for a constitutional amendment to permit the state to appropriate for the remainder of the deficit will do two things Mr. Sorensen thinks. It will tell whether the people want the state to pay and it will remove the legal objections to making such appropriations.

A few of the state bankers have exaggerated the facts about the condition of the banks, Mr. Sorensen declared, in order to help win their lawsuit combating the assessments and to help convince the legislature they need relief.

"The state banks at the present time are in better condition than at any time during the past seven or eight years," he stated. "They are making more money now than they have for several years. The reserves have gone up from 6 per cent to 35 per cent. In general the state banks are sound and getting out of trouble."

Guaranty Good Thing.

Retention of the guaranty fund law will be the best possible thing for the banks themselves as well as for the depositors, he maintained. Thte assessments could be carried without difficulty, he declared, and added that it was a mistake to judge the operation of the system over just a few years but that instead a period of 25 or 50 years must be cisidered.

Since bankers got concessions from the legislature and advertised that deposits were guaranteed, Mr. Sorensen declared that the few banks which are agitating for repeal are not good sports.

Senator Wherry devoted his talk largely to discussing the legislation now being considered.

"If every depositor got nothing else from this meeting it was worth the price of the visit for him to hear Governor Weaver say, 'You may be sure if we don't get anything better out of the legislature we'll keep what we have now', stated Wherry.

Underhanded indirect repeal of the guaranty law is the worst danger said the senator. He pointed out that to repeal or weaken the law means to violate pledges of both parties and declared that this action will harm bankers and businessmen as well as bank depositors.

"The people must insist that the deficit is paid first," stated Mr. Wherry. "Then, if they must, they can repeal the guaranty law. But to change the act now may mean releasing bankers from their obligations."

Strangles Husband To Death With His Tie During Quarrel

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Grasping her 50-year-old husband's necktie, during a domestic argument, Mrs. Clara Fischer tonight strangled him to death, according to her confession to Town Hall police.

The couple had been alienated for some time and reunited only recently, Mrs. Fischer told police.

"He made as though he was going to hit me," she sobbed to police.

"I grabbed at his neck, got hold of his tie and started to twist it. Before I realized what was happening he was dead."

In Liquor Scandal

Capt. oJseph A. Burkheiser Detroit police department harbormaster, accused of aiding border rum runners. He was suspended.

committees on this bill nearly two weeks ago, Mr. Burke was given two associates from the house who declined to back him up in the demand that several of the senate's amendments be rejected. The other two house conferees, Messrs. Baily and Spencer, lined up with the three senators by signing a report which recommends acceptance of virtually all senate amendments.

Burke does not purpose to let this anti-Weaver contingent walk over him in this fashion, and he will fight the report when it comes back to the house. Since the membership of the lower chamber is generally favorable to the governor's program, an interesting time is looked for when the question comes to a head.

The particular things the senate did that Burke objects to, which are also displeasing to Governor Weaver are these:

1. Elimination of advisory legislative committee, comprising three house members and two senators, to assist the governor and the attorney general in the investigation.

2. Striking out the provision for legislative confirmation of the governor's appointee as chief examiner to conduct the investigation.

3. Striking out the provision for keeping secret the names of persons giving confidential information or "tips" regarding bank matters, who are not themselves involved in irregularities and would not be subject to prosecution therefor.

Code Reform in the Offing.

The next two or three days will also reveal how far the "battalion of death" in the state senate is ready to go in its opposition to Governor Weaver's main code repeal and reorganization bill, H. R. 425. At this time, the measure is in the hands of a committee headed by Senator Jim Rodman of Omaha, who is hostile to it, with Senator Perry Reed, the head and front of the code brigade, as his chief lieutenant. Unless other members of the committee take matters into their own hands, little old 425 may have a hard time getting out to a place on general file.

And even if the committee votes to put it out, the bill must still run the gauntlet of the senate itself, where the old guard of the death battalion will be lined up to resist its passage.

Two other bills of the governor's series, H. R. 466 and 476, consolidating the administration of fish and game, state parks, and forestation in the hands of a special commission appointed by the governor, have good chances of passage in the senate, thanks to a lot of work done in their behalf by officials of the Izaak Walton league.

In the house, the Warner senate bill, S. F. 78, transferring gasoline tax collection to the state treasurer, is on general file and will be reached in its regular turn within two or three days, if not moved ahead as a special order. The opposition delayed its progress as long as possible, but could not prevent its coming to a vote. The outlook is good for this bill to become a law.

Appropriations eGt Attention

The finance committee of the senate spent Saturday going over H. R. 280, the general budget bill for the next fiscal biennium, and hearing spokesmen from different departments, institutions, and activities. tI may do some more work Sunday. The chairman, Senator Reed, thinks the committee will be able to turn the bill back to the senate reasonably early in the week. In that case it may pass the upper chamber by Wednesday, after which conference committees will be appointed by both chambers to look it over together and compromise points on which the two chambers differed.

A report was heard Saturday that the senate finance group might cut down some of the large items in the bill as it came from the house; but no confirmation of this was obtainable from the members.

Monday will be the 77th day in the house and the 70th in the senate. At least six more days are to be added before the windup, since both branches will reconvene Monday and work through to and including Saturday. The house will meet at 9 a. m. and the senate at 10 a. m. Monday.

FLIERS KILLED IN AIR CIRCUS

troit hospital this evening to be extremely critical.

Kreider's body was almost unrecognizable when it was taken from the tangled mass of wreckage.

Charles S. "Speed" Holman, president of the Northwestern airways was stunting in the air at the time of the crash and the attention of the greater part of the crowd of 8,000 spectators was focused on him. It was not until the sharp crack of the impact of the two planes that the crowd became aware of the accident.

Mrs. Lindbergh Unperturbed.

DETROIT, Mich., April 13—(U. P.)—The air crash in which one man was killed and two seriously injured did not prevent Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, from taking off in a twenty-passenger plane for a pleasure flight. She showed no nervousness desjite great excitement at the field after two planes collided and fell to the ground.

DEBENTURE PLAN IN AID MEASURE IS TURNED DOWN

revolving fund to operate stabilization corporations and aid farmers in marketing their crops.

President Hoover will be authorized to appoint the board members, who will be confirmed by the senate.

Authority to loan co-operative organizations money in advance of their crop harvest probably will be given the board by the legislation. Stabilization corporations also will be able to borrow funds direct from the board.

An Insurance Provision.

A new insurance provision, empowering the board to sell insurance to co-operatives against loss of their crops from the revolving fund is included in the bill.

Other features of the long awaited measure include power for the board to designate commodities to come under the provisions of the farm relief bill, authority to make the board's ruling final in all matters under its consideration, and authority to establish advisory councils to advise the board on various commodities.

The committee took steps to protect the American consumers, however, by inserting a clause in the bill prohibiting stabilizations corporations to withhold commodities from the market if prices have become so high the public is unduly burdened.

Committee members said an appropriation of about $1,000,000 would be made available by the special session for starting the work of the board and that the remainder would be made available as soon as needed.

ADVICE OFFERED LINDY BY HOWE

Pershing, Lloyd George and other outstanding personalities of modern times.

"Surely this is not asking too much of this remarkable young man, who has achieved so extraordinarily. If Lindbergh will follow the examples of those of his elders, who also have tasted fame, the present incident will be speedily and completely forgotten."

Howe said that regardless of what Lindbergh may say or think, if he were to be ignored by the press, he would become the unhappiest man in the world.

Called Lindy "Swell Head."

It was Howe, as editor of the Amarillo News-Globe, who several months ago publicly accused the famous flier of having the "swell head," but later healed that over with an explanation from the colonel.

"Since I accused Lindbergh of having the swell head about a year ago, I have received hundreds of letters from newspaper men who complained of the treatment they had received at his hands.

"They declared they were prohibited from expressing their opinions because of the business offices of the newspapers which employed them.

"I received no later than last week a letter from one of the most prominent editors in the east and he stated that Lindbergh was the most unpopular celebrity with whom the reporters and cameramen have to deal.

"I must say that personally I have no reason for complaint. I gave Lindbergh both barrels because of his actions when he visited Amarillo for the first time. He was rude and sullen to small boys who rushed up to see him at Clovis, which is near Amarillo.

"Twenty thousand people waited all day hoping to see him, as his manager had announced he would stop at Clovis.

"Lindbergh later returned to Amarillo and in a statement said that he 'probably was to blame,' and that he held no hard feelings toward me or anyone in Amarillo.

"He said he did not know that he was supposed to stop at Clovis and expressed regret. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to apologize fully and completely.

"I did not apologize because of the storm of criticism with which I was deluged from all parts of the country."

Claim Mud Was Thrown.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(U. P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was advised today in an editorial in the Washington Daily News to bear bravely the cross of being hero-worshipped by millions of people.

The newspaper pledged itself "that we will never join the mob that appears to be forming to tear him from his pedestal."

"The 'phone has been ringing fairly constantly since yesterday afternoon and our readers want to know whether or not we intend to tell that young smart aleck where he gets off," The Daily News editorial said.

"The inquiries relate to a thing Lindbergh did yesterday afternoon at Bolling field. It seems he expressed his steadily growing disdain for the crowds that wait to worship him by manipulating his machine to throw mud. He slashed reporters, photographers and women tourists impartially, so it is told, in what seemed to be an unbridled expression of impatience.

"Well, we'd like to tell the boy where he gets off, but we doubt that it would serve any good purpose," the paper said.

THOUSANDS OF REBELS OFFER TO SURRENDER

sul to warn General Rabatte that if the rebels continued to resist the federal advance they would be punished relentlessly until complete peace and order was restored in the state of Sonora. General Rabatte is head of the troops at Nogales.

The report of the surrender offer was regarded here as the virtual end of the revolution. Extra editions containing accounts of Porte Gil's telephone communication were rushed to the streets and great excitement prevailed.

Agua Prieta Bombed.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Three federal airplanes dropped six bombs on Agua Prieta, opposite this city in Mexico, at 7 o'clock tonight, according to reports here. Agua Prieta is held by rebel forces. No serious damages or casualties were reported.

COUNT GOTO DEAD

TOKYO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Count Goto, former foreign minister of Japan, died today at Kyoto, aged 73. He had a long public career and national honors will be paid at his funeral.

Farm Relief—Liquor—Hoover On Grid For Press Roasting

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—"Hoover efficiency" and the policies of the new administration were taken down, brushed up and dissected at the dinner of the Gridiron club tonight while the president, members of his cabinet and many other distinguished guests looked on.

In song and skit, the famous dining club of Washington correspondents satired and burlesqued everything from prohibition to farm relief, from southern patronage squabbles to international affairs.

In addition to the president and the cabinet, the guest list included many members of the diplomatic corps, Chief Justice William Howard Taft, Governor Roosevelt of New York, Governor Byrd of Virginia, Governor-elect Kohler of Wisconsin, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, senators, representatives and others.

The dinner opened with a tremendous crash off stage.

"Great heavens, what was that?" inquired President Roberts, to which a member replied:

"Mr. President, you may think that was just the usual crash to open a gridiron dinner, but it wasn't. That was just Mr. Hoover conserving another Coolidge policy."

Solon "Drops Baggage."

Almost immediately there was a second crash, which turned out to have been caused "by a congressman dropping his baggage getting off a boat."

The machine-like precision of the new administration and its domination by the first engineer since George Washington was revealed when a large and complicated machine was trundled on stage, surrounded by members posing as cabinet members. The cabinet officers dropped their recommendations into the hopper and the Hoover policies came out below after the machine had whirred noisily for a few minutes.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon dropped in a recommendation against publicity for tax refunds. The answer came out below that there would be full publicity for income tax refunds. Senator Borah tried his luck at formulating a policy against going into the World court, but the machine whirred against him.

President Hoover's predilection for fishing was satirized in another skit wherein the music committee appeared dressed as fishermen. It was explained that this was "a fisherman's administration."

1932 Is Mentioned.

"He (Hoover) fished for the nomination for eight years and got it. He fished for the election for five months and he got it. Give him two more months in the white house and you'll see him throw out a hook baited for a fish called 1932," explained one member.

"But think of a fisherman banning the most famous of all fishing expressions," interjected one member.

"What is that?"

"Please pass the flask."

The "Gridiron Theater guild," presented an up-to-the-minute version of "Strange Interlude." The action revolved around a tragic episode of companionate marriage between "Pa McNary" and "Ma Haugen," with "Aggie, the beautiful farm relief girl." A hired girl and Dr. Hubert Work, completed the cast.

Pa McNary and Ma Haugen split over the question of having Aggie's equalization fee cut out.

Ma Haugen refused to let Dr. Work proceed with the operation and Pa McNary cast her off.

Can't Bear the Name.

"It's just a matter of scientific birth control, Madam," said Dr. Work. "Aggie's going to have a little sister and her name ain't going to be McNary-Haugen. Uncle Herbert just can't bear that name."

After Ma Haugen had taken her offspring and departed, Dr. Work jointed Pa McNary in companionate union with the hired girl, who turned out to be Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey. They were cautioned to have no little equalization fee.

A group of California "Forty-niners" was shown whooping things up in Washington in celebration of a Californian being in the white house. They declared their intention of backing Hoover at every turn, but at that point the "Twenty-niners," club members dressed in gingham dresses, rushed on the stage and told the "Forty-niners" to be on their way because the women were now running things in Washington.

After the "Forty-niners" had been told there was to be "no likker" no gambling, no shooting, and no vice," and that the women were even planning a law against golf, the "Forty-niners" wouldn't wait for a train to get out, but started back west my "airyplane," to the tune of "California, Here We Come."

Curtis in Spotlight.

Vice President Curtis' Indian ancestry was the vehicle of a musical number presenting "The Private Life of Curtis of Kansas, the Kaw Man." It was explained that, although a former jockey, the vice president never bet on the races. His connection with the tracy was "all in the spirit of the great outdoors and the Boy Scouts."

A club member impersonated Col. W. J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general, who said he had received a new decoration "The Order of the Boot."

Another skit pictured the extra session of congress dragging along in August, with members in linen suits. Everybody objected so much to everything that was proposed that finally "Senator Watson," the republican leader, having learned that a load of diplomatic liquor had been seized in front of the capitol, proposed a recess and it was carried with a whoop.

An old time bar was set up on the stage to provide the background for a humorous soliloquy on the Jones law and prohibition in general.

Speeches were made at the dinner by President Hoover, Chief Justice Taft and Governor Roosevelt. Following custom they were not reported.

HOOVER FACES HIS FIRST TEST

of the Harding administration, the democrats can make things exceedingly unpleasant for the administration if they choose to do so.

The new congress assembles to find most of the ground work already laid in farm relief and tariff revision. The hearings have all been held, and the subject matter reduced to writing.

There are two farm bills, senate and house, differing somewhat in detail and application, but both following the broad outlines of the republican platform and the Hoover campaign speeches on the subject. The adjustment of differences will take long and tedious debate and conference.

There is but one tariff bill. It has not yet been completed, but is expected to be in fairly complete form by the last of next week. The extent of the revision to be attempted has not been divulged as yet. Mr. Hoover wants it limited to benefiting those industries which, like textiles, have not shared equitably in the distribution of prosperity.

May Upset Apple Cart.

It has been the experience of recent tariff bills, however, that once congress gets started tinkering with the tariff no one knows where it may end. The you-scratch-my-back-and I'll scratch your's feeling that pervades the floor when it comes to voting on specific schedules has upset the apple cart before. It may do it again.

Congress assembles Monday, but it won't really get down to work until the last of the week. With characteristic lassitude, they will convene at noon Monday and adjourn immediately after informing President Hoover that they are in session. Tuesday they will meet again at noon, hear President Hoover's message and adjourn so that everybody can go to the opening ball game of the season. Wednesday they'll meet again and it is probable the farm bills will be introduced, with adjournment immediately following to give members a chance to study them.

There will be many new faces in the new congress—the result of last November's whirlwind—and new leadership. In the senate, the veteran Watson of Indiana makes his bow as republican leader. In the house the pugnacious Garner of Texas becomes the democratic leader.

Women's Influence Grows.

The growing influence of women in politics is exemplified in the house, which will have eight feminine members—Mrs. Kahn, republican, California; Mrs. Rogers, republican, Massachusetts; Mrs. Norton, democrat, New Jersey; Mrs. Oldsfield, republican, Arkansas; Mrs. Langley, republican, Kentucky, and the "three Ruths," Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican, Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, democrat, Florida, and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, republican, New York.

A negro, Oscar De Priest, of Illinois, takes his seat in the house, marking the first time in more than a quarter of a century that one of his race has been seen there.

The duration of the session is a matter of pure speculation. The leaders are optimistic enough to think they can get away by mid-June or July 1 at the latest, but a good many veteran observers believe that the dog days of August may find congress in its shirt sleeves and berating Washington heat.

Editor's Note: On the eve of the special session of congress, republican and democratic leaders were in disagreement over the program. Administration spokesman insisted the program should be limited to farm relief and tariff revision. Democratic spokesman declared the congress would have to consider other legislation. In the accompanying articles, International News Service presents the views of the republican and democratic leaders of the senate:

BY SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON, (IND.)
(Republican Leader of the Senate)

WASHINGTON, April 13—In his campaign for election Mr. Hoover promised to call a special session of congress for the purpose of considering farm legislation, particularly, unless the short session which began last December gave favorable consideration to that subject. This did not occur and, in order to keep his promise to the people, the president has called congress in special session.

The senate is a continuing body, its committees already are in existence, and there is no way to prevent the introduction and reference of bills for consideration by those committees; and yet it is both hoped and desired that but few bills will be given consideration in the senate aside from those having reference to farm relief and tariff revision.

It may be considered desirable to pass a reapportionment bill, also one providing for the taking of the census of 1930, but, following the wish of the president, it will be the general policy of the majority party in the senate to refrain from pressing other measures for consideration.

It is not believed that the farm bill will occupy the attention of the senate for any great length of time and, because of the present friendly attitude of a majority of democratic senators toward a protective tariff, that measure is not likely to require as much time for consideration in that body as hitherto.

The regular session of congress will begin in December and it is not now believed that there is any other legislation of an emergent character that will require action at the extraordinary session.

By SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON, (Arkansas).
(Democratic Leader of the Senate)

WASHINGTON, April 13—The constitution authorizes no limitation on subjects which may be considered by either or both houses of the congress during an extraordinary session. Action on farm relief legislation and tariff revision, bills relating to flood control on tributaries o fthe Mississippi, census, reapportionment and the policy of the federal reserve board toward transactions on the stock exchange are certain to receive consideration.

Any tariff revision likely to occur at this time will probably prove more harmful than beneficial to farmers. Protective tariffs as a general rule are oppressive to the growers of agricultural products. All the evidence points toward general revision upward, which will augment the burden now borne by farmers in the United States. The effort to make "privilege" or "special favors" under tariff laws applicable to business and citizens will fail.

It would be interesting and it might be helpful if the president would state his views respecting the details of the administration measure for farm relief, and perhaps this will be done in his message to the congress.

If general tariff revision is undertaken the session cannot terminate before late summer. It is absurd to anticipate a quick consummation of such a prodigious task.

BUTTE ENJOYS A BOOM.

BUTTE, Mont., April 13.—(U. P.)—With fourteen individual mining companies in full operation in the Butte district, this mining camp s witnessing the most active business it has seen since the war. This is the largest number of mines ever operated in Butte, including the period previous to the amalgamation of the "Hill" mines and Heinze properties by the Anaconda Copper Mining Co.

ASSESSMENT ON BANKS NOW DUE BUT NOT MADE

ahead with another special assessment now, for the year 1929, unless enjoined a second time by a new legal proceeding on the part of the banks. Up to this time, however, State Commerce Secretary Bliss, in charge of the state banking administration, has made no move in that direction or indicated whether he purposes to do so.

Only Short Time Left.

If anything is going to be done about making a special assessment under the present law it must be done soon or not at all—that is, if the legislature should enact and the governor sign the senate substitute bills for H. R. 299 and H. R. 382. These bills now carry the emergency clause, so that if passed and signed they will go into effect at once.

The minute they are put into force the old guaranty law will be superseded, and no further special assessments can be made under its provisions. The two measures now pending do away with all special assessments.

It has been customary heretofore to divide the yearly special assessment of one-half of 1 per cent into two equal parts, collecting the first half installment about April 1 and the other about October 1. There is no legal impediment in the way of making the entire special levy at one time, however.

Omitting a special assessment for 1929, at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on approximately $250,000,000 of deposits in solvent state banks, would deprive the guaranty fund of $1,250,000 that they would otherwise have to pay into the fund, assuming of course that the guaranty law is held constitutional and valid by the courts.

Under the terms of H. R. 299 and H. R. 382, regular assessments only are to be collected in future, each January 1 and July 1. Together, these assessments will amount to one-half of 1 per cent each year, or one-fourth of 1 per cent as the proceeds of each semi-annual period.

Would Curtail 1929 Revenue.

Should they become effective before any special assessment were made under the old guaranty law, there could be no other assessments during the remainder of 1929 except those for the date of July 1—three-twentieths of 1 per cent to apply on the existing deficit and two-twentieths to meet current losses of this year.

The total income for the rest of 1929 would thereby be reduced to a total of $625,000 for both purposes, compared with $1,250,000 which would be realized from a special assessment right now—a difference of $625,000 in favor of the special assessment, if made and sustained by the courts.

Another point not to be overlooked is that some state banks may nationalize in the near future, and no assessments could thereafter be collected from them. However, they would be liable under a special assessment made while they are still operating under state charters.

The pending bills which have just been passed by the senate will come before the house Monday on the question of obtaining its concurrence in the senate's amendments. Conference committees will doubtless be named to consider their new features. As soon as the two branches agree on the form of the legislation, if they can and do agree, it will be sent to Governor Weaver.

A permanent reduction of $250,000 a year in assessments on the banks will result from these enactments, since the combined total is lowered from six-tenths of 1 per cent in the old law to five-tenths of 1 per cent in the new measures.

GERMANS ARE STAGGERED BY DEBT OFFER

The Germans had wanted to start the annuities to about $300,000,000 and have them run for only thirty-seven years.

Members of the various delegations made no effort to hide the fact that the conference had reached its crisis and will certainly break up next week unless the Germans show a disposition to reconcile their offer with the vastly greater demands of the allies.

Dawes Plan Would Continue.

In that case the Dawes plan, under which the Germans are now paying $625,000,000 a year for an unspecified number of years, would be continued.

Germany asked for the present conference, but really has never made an official offer, although a German offer is standing "under the table," by which Germany would pay annuities varying from 1,200,000,000 gold marks, ($285,600,000) to 2 billion marks ($476,000,000) over thirty-seven years.

The French press was critical today of the experts' action, pointing out that despite the repeated statement that the allies intended forcing Germany to make an offer, they have really made an offer themselves, putting Germany in the more favorable position of accepting, refusing or countering with a greatly reduced total.

Frisco Judge Sets Lenient Precedent For New Jones Law

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Granting to San Francisco's first bootlegger sentenced under the drastic new Jones act, Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, dean of government turists here, issued a statement in which he recommends paroles for first offenders and the use of discretion in enforcing the rigid penalties of the new federal statute.

George A. Williams, "telephone bootlegger" who delivered a quantity of liquor to federal prohibition agents, was granted parole for three years.

Faces Liquor Charge—Charges of liquor to be filed against Alvin Garrett, 114 West Twelfth street, College View, who was brought to the police station at 12:30 Sunday morning. He was arrested by State Sheriff Condit, Deputies Gates and Weygint, Lieutenant Rymer and Detectives Goodwin and Schrup. Two pints of liquor were purchased from Garrett with marked money, according to the officers. A flask also was taken at his home, the officials claimed.

DEMAND FOR GREAT HERBAL REMEDY KNOWN AS HERB JUICE GROWING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS

Lincoln People and Druggists Were at First Dubious and Doubtful About its Unusual Merits, Repeating Qualities and the Unheard of Demand Which Very Shortly Followed its Introduction Here.

The test of time and real genuine merits show better than theory what can be expected of a good medicine. The continued growth in the ever increasing sales of nature's greatest tonic-laxative is a foregone conclusion of what the people in Lincoln and adjacent territory think of the actual results they have experienced from the use of the great herbal remedy known as Herb Juice. They now have the satisfaction of knowing beyond a question of a doubt that they can rely on this wonderful medicine to relieve them of that dreaded malady, constipation and all the aggravating ailments arising therefrom, and restore them to good health and happiness. "The enthusiastic words of praise which hundreds of good reliable people of Lincoln and the surrounding country are now bestowing upon this wonderful herb-laxative every day," said the local representative of the Herb Juice Medicine Co., "is indeed very gratifying to all of us."

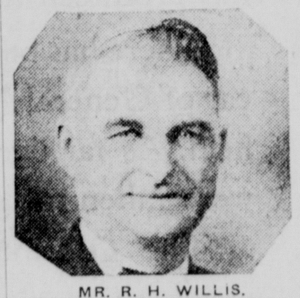
Through the amazing discovery that constipation is responsible for most all ailments of today, such as headaches, backaches, nervousness, dizziness and that despondent and distressing feeling, we are able to give the people a real medicine with powers not probably possessed by any other medicine on the market today. That is the ability to correct constipation and build up and strengthen the entire system. This great herbal laxative assists nature in keeping the food which we eat moving, thereby stimulating and encouraging the natural functioning of all the organs of the body.

If you have not as yet tried this wonderful remedy, go at once to Harley Drug Co., 11th & O Sts., and have the local representative of this great system purifier and body builder explain the merits of this remedy to you. No matter if you are sick or not. It is now springtime and everyone, regardless of how well you may feel, needs a good spring tonic to help you withstand the hot summer days which are soon to follow. Everyone cleans house in the spring. That is an old established custom. So why not clean your system. It will add years to your life. Try a bottle of this great medicine today.

"I HAVE A PERFECT RIGHT TO PRAISE IT"

Famous Medicine Stands on Its Merit; Phenomenal Sales Record of Miller's Herb Extract is Due Solely to the Fact That it Gives Satisfaction.

"Yes, I have a perfect right to praise Miller's Herb Extract, the one medicine to do more for me than any preparation I ever used in all my life. I had blinding headaches for days, lost time from work on account of my deranged system. I felt dreadfully bad, discouraged to the point of desperation—no relief in sight, I struggled on as best I could until the great Herb medicine was strongly recommended for my trouble. It was wonderful relief this great medicine brought me when other remedies failed to give satisfaction in my case. I'm glad of the opportunity to tell my friends and other sufferers of a medicine that gives the desired results—it did this for me," said Mr. R. H. Willis who resides at 1931 U St., Lincoln, Neb., as he joins the vast throng of satisfied users of Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice."



MR. R. H. WILLIS.

"My health had been failing me for years. I tried most of the remedies and treatments that promised relief and with my failure to find the right one suited for my trouble I got worse instead of regaining my health. I spent hundreds of dollars for medicines that failed to overcome those terrible ailments. I needed a good system cleanser and regulator, something to get at the source of my troubles and free my system of the poison which had accumulated during the years I was chronically constipated. I took strong purgatives that never regulated my bowels, my appetite was poor, no food I ate had the right taste, I lost in weight and strength until I was only a shadow of my former self. I frequently had bilious attacks, headaches too severe to fully describe. In addition to all this misery, I was bothered with weak kidneys, rheumatic pains in my hip so bad that I could hardly walk. Yes, I felt like my whole system was full of medicine, due to improper elimination. Bowels wouldn't act for days unless I used a strong purgative and the medicines I used upset my stomach so bad that I would get deathly sick at times. But I found a different medicine—Millers' Herb Extract. This wonderful Herb medicine did for me what other remedies had failed to do for years. Now I am praising it like so many other people whose cases were similar to mine. Instead of poor health, aches and pains every day, I have something to be thankful for—Good Health. Of course, my purpose in giving this signed statement for publication is to induce some other sufferer to start using the Herb Extract remedy, and I wouldn't ask this of anyone had I failed to get satisfaction through the use of Miller's Herb Extract. The fact is, I'm perfectly satisfied with results in my own case, I have a perfect right to praise a medicine which accomplishes so much for me, when hundreds of dollars were wasted on medicines that did me no special good. I heartily recommend its use to everybody in need of a medicine that will do the work."

SOUR STOMACH AND CONSTIPATION BANISHED

After 6 to 8 Years Intense Suffering, Says Well Known Hospital Attendant. Gives All Credit to Famous New Herb Medicine Called Herb Juice.

"In my opinion you just can't beat Miller's Herb Extract known as Herb Juice for quick and satisfactory results. It has relieved me of a case of chronic constipation and general stomach disorders of years standing, and too after all else had failed. I am glad that there is such a medicine on the market today for all sufferers who really need a medicine that will stop their suffering and misery," said Mr. Ed Knight, well known and efficient attendant at the State Hospital, Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative.

"I believe wholeheartedly that Miller's Herb Extract is the greatest medicine on the market for constipation and general stomach disorders. I know that it is the most satisfactory remedy I have ever used, the only medicine to relieve and banish all my ailments and restore me to good health. I think it takes a real medicine to do that much." Mr. Knight in praising the famous new Herb Extract remedy joins thousands of others who have been greatly benefited and are now once more enjoying good health after taking a course of this great herbal remedy. "I want you to know," continued Mr. Knight, "I never fail to tell my friends and others about this great medicine and what it has done for me. I conscienciously believe it will do as much for other like sufferers. I suffered from chronic constipation for years, stomach all upset most of the time; liver inactive, bowels very irregular and I frequently had sick headaches and dizzy spells, felt tired and wornout all the time, lacked energy and pep, was nervous and restless, couldn't get my rest and sleep at night. I was in misery most of the time. But a few bottles of Miller's Herb Extract put me on my feet and in a much shorter time than I ever expected. I am now feeling fine and dandy, enjoy a good appetite and fine digestion, no longer troubled with a sour, gassy stomach, headaches or dizzy spells, bowels act freely and regularly, get good restful sleep, have gained 20 pounds in weight and have a greater amount of energy than for a long time. I think it the greatest medicine ever offered to suffering humanity. I have learned by test and experience and am glad to recommend it to other like sufferers."

You don't need any pills with this medicine. It's a real medicine within itself, and guaranteed to give results. A medicine you can take three or four bottles without seeing any results is not much medicine.

Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Medicine Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Harley Drug Store, 11th & "O" Sts., to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many Lincoln citizens.

Prices $1.00 per bottle, 3 bottles $2.75, 6 bottles $5.25; add 10c per bottle for postage and packing when ordering by mail.—Advertisement.

INSIST PAYMENT BANK DEPOSITS

Mass Meeting at Superior Adopts Strong Resolutions.

Says Efforts of Legislature Have Appeared Feeble.

(Special to The Star.)

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 13.—A mass meeting held here Friday was attended by representatives of approximately 4,000 depositors in two closed Superior state banks. The meeting adopted a preamble and resolutions calling upon the members of the legislature to "execute their pre-campaign pledges" by securing to all depositors the full amount of their deposits. The preamble and resolutions in full follow:

Whereas the Nebraska state legislature has met and is now nearly ready for adjournment, having made but apparent feeble and futile efforts to execute their pre-campaign pledges to preserve the integrity of the Nebraska state bank guaranty law, and to secure for every depositor in the banks heretofore closed the full amounts of their respective deposits, and,

Whereas we believe that a crisis exists in the financial circles of the state, demanding speedy and effective action;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That it is the sense of this meeting that it is the moral obligation of the state of Nebraska, and an obligation which the state is estopped from denying legally, that it shall pay to the depositors in the banks already closed every dollar of the deposits which they were led to believe were guaranteed by the strength and assets of the said state and not merely by the strength and assets of the banks of the state.

We call upon the members of the Nebraska state legislature, the governor, the attorney general and the other officers of the state to forget politics and political affiliations and to bend their mutual and co-operative efforts to the consideration of ways and means by which to accomplish this end of repayment, setting forth these ways and means in appropriate legislation, securing its immediate passage.

We endorse the plan of the state assuming and paying back into the guaranty fund the approximately three millions of dollars of administration costs of the guaranty fund commission.

We do not presume to dictate to our governor, our representatives in the legislature and the other state officers the nature of the legislation they should adopt or the course of the action they should take in alleviating the present crisis. They have doubtless given it more thought and are in a more favorable position than are we to decide the proper course to take. But we do demand, as we believe we have a right to demand, that this situation shall not go by the present legislative term without some earnest, honest efforts being made to correct it.

State to Observe Child Health Day

Nebraska will observe its third annual May Day as child health day, stressing a program of pageantry and outdoor sports as the culmination of a year round program for healthy boys and girls. Dr. Miles J. Breuer of Lincoln is state chariman of May Day, Miss Louise Murphy of the division of child hygiene of the state bureau of health is secretary, and Mrs. May Morley is chairman of the Lancaster county health council.

President Hoover's proclamation of March 27 designated May day as Child Health day, and many Nebraska communities are planning celebrations to stress the significance of healthy childhood. The plans are sponsored by the American Child Health association and city and rural communities are to observe the day with community gatherings and with play festivals.

During the week, teachers are urged to check pupils' vision, undernourished, listless children, and posture. Mrs. Morley, who is organizin gthe county child health council, spoke to the Lancaster county teachers Saturday afternoon on "Celebration of May Day" in place of Dr. Breuer.

A Red Cross camp will be held July 5 to August 30 to encourage and increase child health.

BERNICE BOLLER, SOPHIA JOBMAN HIGH IN SPELLING

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 13— Bernice Boller, 11, and Sophia Jobman, 13, are the oral and written spelling champions, respectively of Gage county's grade and rural schools. Winning over a field of fifty contestants at the court house Miss Boller returned the 1929 honors to district 54, a rural school west of Cortland, where she is a seventh grade pupil. Miss Jobman, an eighth grade pupil, represented Rockford. Second to Miss Boller in the oral contest was Nora Tyner of Barneston, while William Hajek, the only boy to place in the ranking groups, won second in the written contest.

First and second place winners in both division will be leigible to represent Gage county in their respective divisions throughout the present year. Among the contests they are expected to attend are: The interstate spelling contest, April 26, at Sioux City, Ia.; the World-Herald at Omaha, the state contest during the 1929 state fair at Lincoln and the Gage county district No. 1 invitation contest here April 18.

Authorities Unable to Find Relatives of Mike Novak, Killed at Falls City Saturday.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 13—Unable to locate any relatives of Mike Novak, 48, Kansas City, who succumbed here Saturday morning from injuries received when he attempted to board a Missouri Pacific freight train, the body was sent to the Omaha medical school this afternoon.

Local authorities were unable to confirm the report that a sister of the deceased, Josie Novak, lives in Pittsburgh, Penn.

Novak had been employed on the extra gang of the Missouri Pacific until four days ago.

WILBER NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

WILBER, Neb., April 13—The junior class play, "Oh Kay!" was presented here Friday evening to a large and appreciative audience. Leading parts in the play were taken by John Zwonechek, Minnie Zimmerman, Floyd Herman, Marjorie Cordts, Lillian Brabec and Edith Doane. The play was coached by Miss Ula Peterson, junior class sponsor. Proceeds of the play will be used to defray the expense of the junior-senior banquet.

In the sectional declamatory contest held at Endicott Monday, Wilber won two firsts and a second. Beth Chase took first in the humorous division; Marion Moore first in oratorical; and Marjorie Cordts took second in the dramatic, losing by one point. Beth Chase and Marion Moore will represent Wilber in the district contest.

Miss Eva Clopton, who has been a teacher in the Wilber schools for the past four years, has accepted a position at an increase in salary at Hebron.

Chapter B. F., P. E. O., met with Miss Carrie Savage Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Tom Littrell. Mrs. Lyda Trobough gave a very interesting paper on architecture. Dainty refreshments were served.

Members of the Rotary club were entertained Thursday evening by Marjorie Cordts and Marion Moore, who had won first place in their respective divisions in the local declamatory contest.

The Bridge club was entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. George Shestak. Refreshments were served by the hostess, after an evening at bridge. High score was made by Mrs. Anne Dodson, second Miss Matie Tobiska.

The Five Hundred club met at the home of Mrs. Rudy Kunc Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Rudy Stastny made high score, Mrs. Earl Watkins second. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shimonek returned Tuesday from Hamilton, Mo., where they had been visiting Mrs. Shimonek's parents for a few days.

Mrs. Anthony Shimerda gave a garden talk before the Beatrice Arts and Craft club at their last meeting.

Thirty-five young people from the high school are taking part today in the district music contest at Geneva. A girls glee club, a boys glee club, and a mixed chorus represent Wilber.

The funeral services for Lad Jelinek, who died of a rifle wound Monday, were held here Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Jelinek had been married three years and they had no children.

Charles Schupbach returned from a Beatrice hospital this week. He had had his tonsils removed, and received other medical attention.

The Havel & Houser ambulance went to Omaha Thursday to bring Mrs. Joe Endler home. She had been at the University hospital for several months, but had improved to the extent that she desired to be brought home.

CLARA'S CAR IN CRASH.

HOLLYWOOD, April 13—(U. P.)—When Clara Bow's automobile collided with another here today, Marion de Auberan, maid to the screen star, was slightly injured. Miss Bow was not in the machine. Police said the accident was unavoidable and did not hold either Miss Bow's chauffeur nor the driver of the other car.

DEDICATE NEW RAILWAY DEPOT

Passenger Station at Marysville Attractive Structure.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., April 13—Formal dedication of the new St. Joseph & Grand Island railway passenger station at Marysville, Kas., was attended Thursday afternoon and evening by an appropriate program, including speeches by high officials of the railway, a response by the mayor and an official opening and showing of the edifice, at which a great crowd attended, not only from Marysville, but from all the countryside and surrounding towns.

C. E. Hedrix, resident superintendent for the division at Marysville was master of ceremonies. Several official cars from St. Joseph, Kansas City and other terminals were parked in the yards. Boy Scouts assisted in ushering and directing the crowds and concerts were given inside and outside the station by a band composed of shop workers from St. Joseph. Ice cream, wafers and coffee were served by the railway to all visitors who passed in line through the building. In the evening a public dance was planned in the spacious waiting room of the station, the benches being removed from the center, but the crowd was so dense that the young couples had to forego that pleasure and listen to the band play, while standing packed into the space.

The station was started about nine months ago and only recently completed at a cost of nearly $140,000. The new station is located just east of the old one and the latter is now to be used for freight service only. The structure is of brick, tile and stucco, highly decorated with leasing color schemes, waxed tile floors, red tile roof, huge fireplace, and contains a neat dining and lunch room, ticket offices and all other necessities of a depot. The station grounds are parked, sown to blue grass and fringed with shrubbery.

CELEBRATION IS HELD BY LEGION AND AUXILIARY

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 13—Members of the Alliance posts of the American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary held at joint meeting here last night in observance of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the American Legion. District Commander A. H. Dilley of Sidney delivered the main address at the meeting and told of the history of the Legion.

Other speeches were made by Commander R. R. Reutlinger and former Commander Glen Patrick of the Alliance post. More than 300 attended the meeting and there was a representation of 15 posts over western Nebraska.

DEATH AT CHESTER.

(Special to The Star.)

CHESTER, Neb., April 13.—Mrs. Jack Harris, 70 years old, resident of Chester for the past thirty years, died Friday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harley Herald, just south of Chester, where she had been living for the past few years. She was the widow of Jack Narris, veteran Burlington railway engineer, who died here eight years ago. The family lived at Wymore and Fairmont before coming to Chester. Surviving besides the daughter here are three sons: James and George, railway trainmen of Wymore, and Charley of Denver.

They come to SEE— They stay to BUY . .

THOUSANDS come to see De Soto Six because any automobile sponsored by Walter P. Chrysler is a magnet to those who look for the latest and finest in fine cars.

They stay—and many of them buy—because the De Soto Six exceeds their expectations of what even a Chrysler-built car gives for so moderate a price.

They find a roomy, comfortable car with long, low lines and attractive color combinations—a stylish and distinguished motor car.

They drive, and find a speedy and vigorous car—with ample power, a remarkably fast get-away, rapid yet smooth acceleration—a car that holds the road securely at all speeds and with alert response to brakes and clutch and wheel.

They discover in the De Soto Six amazingly restful riding qualities and the smoothest engine encountered in a low-priced six. They see evidences of Chrysler craftsmanship which assure long life, easy maintenance, low running cost and a satisfactory re-sale value.

And they find all these distinctive attributes of Chrysler Motors quality at a price well below $1000.

Is it any wonder that since the first day of its introduction, De Soto Six has outclassed in popular favor any other first-year car?

See De Soto Six and drive it. There is no obligation. Come in today.

Arrest Four at Kimball—Three men and one woman were arrested near Kimball Saturday afternoon by Deputy State Sheriff Clark after he had seized a 500-gallon still, 7,000 gallons of mash, and a truck loaded with 300 gallons of liquor, State Sheriff Condit reported Saturday night. Sheriff Clark was assisted by a deputy sheriff from Kimball county and a constable from Mtichell. The state sheriff's department captured a still at the same place about six months ago, the owners making a get-away at that time. The truck was loaded ready to pull out when the raid was made, Sheriff Condit said.

MYRON HERRICK IS HONORED BY GOTHAM THRONG

Return of Body of Beloved Ambassador is Impressive Event.

Statesman Begins Last Journey to Native City of Cleveland.

NEW YORK, April 13—Draped in an American flag, the casket containing the body of Myron T. Herrick, America's beloved ambassador to France, was being speeded aboard a New York Central train tonight toward his home in Cleveland, where he will be buried on Monday. The train departed at 5:30 p. m., after great throngs in New York City had paid reverent tribute to the memory of the noted statesman.

Mr. Herrick's body was returned from France, where he died a week ago Sunday, aboard the French cruiser Tourville which docked at its pier here shortly before noon. Many thousands of people had been waiting at the pier despite the heavy clouds and threat of rain.

Dignitaries, representing the nation, state and city, boarded the French warship as it anchored and stood with arms bowed on the aft deck of the ship where the casket lay under the frowning guns of the Tourville.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to whom Mr. Herrick had been sort of a "father," was one of those who went aboard the ship. Visibly affected he viewed in silence the flag-draped coffin in which the body of the ambassador reposed. Then he left the cruiser to join the procession in honor of the man who was his adviser during those great days following Lindbergh's epic non-stop flight to Paris.

The pier was decorated with American and French flags and strung with black and purple. Shields of both were prominently placed. When the Tourville tied up at the pier there was a general blast of whistles from craft in the harbor, followed by silence.

A hushed silence was maintained as the casket was borne ashore. And at 12:15 it was placed onto the caisson of a field piece by French sailors. The caisson was drawn by six bay horses.

Crowded Streets Bow.

Then followed an hour's journey, at a foot pace, through silent streets packed with mourners numbering between 50,000 and 75,000. Traffic in Fifth avenue and other thoroughfares was stopped as the funeral cortege passed.

As the body started from the pier to the railroad station wireless informed the batteries at Fort Jay that the procession was starting and a nineteen-gun salute at intervals of one minute was fired.

Men stood bareheaded in the streets as the gun caisson containing the body passed. Every street through which the procession passed was dense with people—men, women and children, many of whom had been waiting for hours. Thousands of heads were poked out of the windows of skyscrapers.

In the line of march were battalions of soldiers and marines, a company of French sailors, a clattering regiment of mounted policemen, gold-braided admirals, frock-coated ex-ambassadors and bemedalled generals.

Dignitaries representing the federal government, the state and the city were in the procession. President Hoover was represented by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. French Ambassador Paul Claudel was there. So was Mayor James J. Walker. High army and navy officials and representatives of many organizations were on hand.

The president had ordered that full military honors be accorded for "a distinguished American." Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt had issued a proclamation in which he set aside the noon hour for tribute of the state to Mr. Herrick's memory.

Lindbergh in Cortege.

The procession from the pier was headed by the caisson, followed closely by the ambassador's son, Parmeley Herrick and his wife, the latter in full mourning. They were followed by Colonel Lindbergh, Mayor Walker and Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen. Then came the army and navy officers, state department officials and the officers of the Tourville.

Funeral music was played along the line of march, as well as patriotic airs, including "The Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseilles."

Flags on the public buildings all over the city were at half mast, by order of the governor.

The Tourville, gray against the gray water, steamed into the harbor during the forenoon, escorted by two United States cruisers, the Marblehead and the Cincinnati. The municipal steamer Macom steamed out into the bay, with dignitaries aboard, and met the incoming French warship.

As the warship containing Mr. Herricks body slowly moved toward its pier, the French crew lined the rail. Two sailors with fixed bayonets stood statue-like beside the coffin which was resting on the aft deck. Over the casket lay a flag. At the feet of the ambassador was a black velvet pillow, and pinned to it was the decorations he had won for nearly twenty years of diplomatic service.

The procession through the streets lasted for more than an hour, and then the gun caisson turned into the baggage entrance of the Grand Central depot. As marines lifted the casket to an elevator the infantry band played, "Nearer My God to Thee."

The ambassador's body was held until 5:30 p. m. when it left aboard the train for his home in Cleveland.

FIRE PREVENTION RECORD OF CITY DRAWS APPROVAL

Lincoln's fire prevention record for 1928 drew words of commendation in a letter from President Butterworth of the United States chamber of commerce received by Secretary W. S. Whitten of the Lincoln chamber.

Mr. Butterworth thanked the Lincoln chamber for its assistance in making the 1928 inter-chamber fire prevention contest the most successful in history. He further said Lincoln finished in the first division below the winner and honor cities of its class and possessed a record to make an impression on its citizens.

Copies of the letter were sent to Merle Rathburn, chairman of the fire prevention committee; Harriet E. Towne, junior civic league, Louis C. Hansen, chief of the fire department and W. J. Kent, boy scout executive. Officers and directors of the chamber of commerce congratulated the fire department and thanked the junior civic league and boy scouts for co-operation.

"TORCH SLAYER" RETRACES RIDE

Campbell Stoical as Scene of Woman Murder is Revisited.

Had Been Discharged for Feminine Fascinations in Omaha.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 13—(U. P.)—The curious intellectual-infantile mind of Henry Colin Campbell failed to react today when prosecutors took him over the route he followed on the morning that he killed and destroyed by fire his bigamous bride, Mrs. Mildred Mowry.

The 60-year-old engineer, whose weakness led him to murder, sat unflinching in the rear seat of a police motor car today as he was taken to Cranford, N. J., where Mrs. Mowry's burning body was found.

The route he had described in his confession was followed. At one point he said:

"That's where I shot her."

Then he sat back and said no more, even when his motor car was taken to a spot where a facsimile of a woman's body had been rudely drawn on a staked out plot of ground. It was the spot where Mrs. Mowry's body was found in the snow February 23. He disdained to look and was more worried about newspaper photographers than the gruesome sketch.

Threats by Crowds.

At points along the road which Campbell traversed this afternoon there were demonstrations which showed the angry feeling of the populace. Cries of "lynch him," were heard at several places from groups which had congregated when they heard Campbell was coming by. There were no actual attempts at violence, however.

He was brought back to jail and prosecutors continued to be amazed by the intellectuality that could be so warped as to permit this man to have a childish passion for dolls and also to plan so thoroughly a murder.

His pretty wife, 25 years his junior, blames morphine for the downfall of Campbell.

"That's the only thing I can think of," she told reporters. "I still can hardly believe it."

Known in Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., April 13.—(U. P.)—The "torch slayer" of Elizabeth, N. J., was known here as a versatile worker, it was revealed here today. Coming here as an editor of the educational bureau of information of the Union Pacific railroad in 1911, Henry Colin Campbell, admitted murderer, directed his activities toward medicine, civil engineering, photographing and wrting technical textbooks.

Meanwhile he was discovered to have played with the affections of five women, all employed in the information bureau. This brought about his discharge.

He left Omaha in 1914 with Rosalea McCready, his present wife, leaving stranded Emma Bullock Campbell, who claimed she was never divorced.

Campbell was one of the best amateur photographers he had ever seen, D. C. Buell, his chief in the information department, said today.

NATIONAL OFFICERS OF FRAT RETRACT A LIQUOR CHARGE

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Charges that liquor was manufactured in the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house here and that drinking in the house was "general" were retracted by the national organization of the fraternity after an all day meeting today.

In a report signed by Norman MacLeod, national president, F. D. Moore, president of the eastern division of the organization, and Frank S. Hemmick, executive secretary, the arch or national chapter of the fraternity admitted its assertions, made public after a travelling secretary had visited the University of Virginia chapter, were unfounded, and declared "the chapter has made earnest efforts to discourage and lessen student drinking with substantial success."

INMAN DIVORCE TO HIGH COURT

Appeal Expected Unless Judge Reverses His Alimony Ruling.

RENO, Nev., April 13—(I. N. S.)—It appeared certain tonight that the Inman divorce case will go to the Nevada Supreme court.

Legal forces representing Walker P. Inman, wealthy Duke tobacco fortune heir, who won a sweeping victory in his effort to divorce his wife, Helene Garnett Patton Inman, and attorneys for Mrs. Inman spent the week end preparing for arguments Monday before Judge George Bartlett over the latter's action in disregarding a recommendation of the jury that heard the Inman case on the question of alimony.

This was one of the big issues of the trial. Inman sought a divorce and insisted that an agreement entered into November 27, 1927, in which he agreed to pay Mrs. Inman $15,000 a year for not more than five years should stand.

Wife Files Cross Suit.

Mrs. Inman filed a cross suit for divorce and asked that this agreement be set aside and she be granted $250,000 in its stead.

The jury in finding for Inman apparently desired to soften the blow for the pretty defendant and recommended to Judge Bartlett that she be allowed $1,500 a month alimony from Inman until such time as she remarried.

The court refused to be bound by this recommendation, holding that in finding for the plaintiff the jury should have approved the 1927 agreement.

He agreed, however, to hear arguments Monday on this point.

If he fails to change his ruling and recognize the alimony award of the jury it is regarded as certain that the defense will take the case to the Supreme court and on the other hand if he should set aside the agreement it is expected Inman will take an appeal.

Bandits Get $15,500

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Three bandits this afternoon raided the headquarters of the roofers' union and escaped with loot totaling $15,500.

Fifteen persons, in the place when the bandits entered, were lined up against a wall and their pockets were searched. The bandits escaped.

A COAST RAIN PROPHET DYING

California Will Miss "Padre of Rains" Forecasts.

Father Ricard Won International Renown as Astronomer.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Fighting a brave but seemingly losing battle, Father Jerome S. Ricard, 79, "Padre of the Rains," was near death here tonight.

The aged priest and noted astronomer was stricken with a severe cold this week which aggravated an affliction of the heart.

Already the last sacrament of the Catholic church has been administered to the Jesuit father, who then said: "I am ready if God wills it."

Mourning throughout California was general because of the serious illness of the man who is both a priest and a great scientist.

For years agriculturists of the far west have taken Father Ricard's weather advice, having implicit faith in the "sun spot" method of forecasting weather which won for him the title of the "Padre of the Rain."

Forecasted Month Ahead.

They'll miss those monthly bulletins, telling in detail what sort of weather California may expect for the next thirty days. One was issued April 1, and it probably will be the last.

Born in France, Father Ricard came to the United States as a young man. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1871 and came to Santa Clara university a few years later. Since 1879 he has taught higher mathematics and astronomy at Santa Clara, inning international recognition in the latted field. He is a member of all important astronomy societies in the world.

But it was as a weather forecaster that California knew its "Padre of the Rains." Back in 1900 he started development of a theory that "sun spots" indicated the trend of weather.

Ignoring ridicule, Father Ricard continued his studies and it wasn't long before farmers noticed that the weather turned out as the "sun spot" theorist said it would.

Taking two weeks at first, Father Ricard issued regular weather bulletins. Then he used a month as a unit and forecast the weather for thirty days in advance and on occasion he would foretell weather for the entire season.

Farmers' "Rain Bible."

For a long time now the monthly weather bulletin issued by Father Ricard has been a "rain Bible" for California farmers. No succesful newspaper would dream of failing to publish it.

But now the "Father Ricard weather forecast" must fade into history for physicians agree that even if he should recover, which is doubtful, he will not have sufficient strength to continue his scientific research.

Only the remarkable condition of the kindly and learned priest has sustained him thus far in his illness.

AUTOS IN U. S. SHOW INCREASE

Total Registration is 24,493,124; Gain of 5.9 Percent.

Comparison With Total Population Shows Car Per Family.

Total registration of motor vehicles in the United States during 1928 was 24,493,124, a gain of 1,359,883, or 5.9 per cent over the number registered in 1927, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, and state registration authorities. The figures include passenger automobiles, taxis, busses, motor trucks and road tractors. In addition 148,169 trailers and 117,946 motorcycles were registered.

New York heads the list for 1928 with 2,083,942 vehicles registered. California is second with 1,799,890; Ohio is third with 1,649,699; Pennsylvania is fourth with 1,642,207; Illinois is fifth with 1,504,359; Michigan sixth with 1,249,221; Texas seventh with 1,214,297; Indiana eighth with 823,806; New Jersey ninth with 758,430; and Wisconsin tenth with 742,135.

In percentage gain, Arizona ranks first with 16 per cent. The District of Columbia is second with 13 per cent. Missippi and South Dakota each report a gain of 12 per cent; New Mexico, Alabama and Connecticut report 10 per cent; Tennessee and Texas report 9 per cent; and South Carolina, Vermont, Wyoming, North Dakota, Michigan and Delaware report 8 per cent.

One Car per Family.

Comparison of the registration total with the 1928 estimated population of 120,013,000 indicates that there is now one motor vehicle for every 5 persons in the United States; or one for every family.

From the owners of the 24,493,124 motor vehicles, the states and the District of Columbia collected in license fees, registration fees, permit charges, fines, etc., the sum of $322,630,025. This is $21,568,893 more than was collected in 1927 and an increase of more than 7 per cent.

After deducting $21,524,733 for collection and miscellaneous purposes, the balance of $301,105,292 was applied to state highway funds ($208,880,272), local road funds ($60,393,109), and to state and county bond funds ($31,825,911).

The registration totals and fees collected for all states are as follows:

The position of the feet should be on the floor when driving a car and not on the clutch or brake pedals.

If the engine can be cranked by hand, easily, and the starting motor works sluggishly, that is an indication of a discharged battery, worn brushes, or burnt commutator.

PRESIDENT EIGHT SALES INCREASE

Studebaker Dealer Says Popularity Reflection of Value.

Five - Passenger Sedan One of Outstanding Models of Year.

The sensational increase in the sales of Studebaker's new President eight since its introduction early this year is a direct reflection of its outstanding value in the fine car field, according to Frank DeBrown, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here.

"Championship performance combined with remarkable distinction of line and color have carried the President eight to new sales heights thus far this year," said Mr. DeBrown. "Added to these factors is a completeness of appointment which ranks the President with many cars several hundred dollars higher in price.

"The President five-passenger sedan is one of the best examples of the President's outstanding position. Its 115 horsepower straight eight motor sets an entirely new standard of effortless performance. No other car in automotive history has ever established such a record of enduring, brilliant performance as the President's achievement in traveling 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

"Supplementing this performance is an ease of handling assured by a host of engineering features all contributing to Studebaker engineers' ideal of a 'well mannered' car—sure footed on the road at any speed and responding& to the lightest touch on steering wheel and pedals.

"The grace of unusually low body lines, made possible by Studebaker's new double drop frame construction, is accented by two spare wire wheels carried in front fender wells. Additional emphasis on the beauty of the well proportioned body is afforded by a new treatment of bit panel, body moulding, and window reveals. Curved windshield pillars and a smart new visor design frame the non-shatterable safety glass windshield.

"Two choices of color and upholstery are offered. One provides fine mohair upholstery and an exterior finish of Manchuria blue with fine ivory striping. The other choice is a smooth broadcloth interior with sable lacquer, Burgundy fenders, and black wire wheels.

"The enthusiasm being shown for the President eight indicates that it will continue to dominate the eight cylinder field as it did last year. At its price of $1,895 at the factory the five passenger state sedan represents a new achievement in motor car value."

Tires Require Correct Air Pressure.

The chief factor in the life of any pneuatic tire, either balloon or high pressure type, is the air contained in it. The air cushion within the tire supports the load, while the tire itself is simply a container for the air. The amount of air should always be sufficient to carry all the weight of the loaded vehicle, leaving the tire free to perform its natural functions without requiring it to bear any more of the burden than necessary.

HUDSON STARTING LINE OF TRUCKS

Makers of Hudson-Essex Cars Prepare Launch Into New Field.

Vehicles Will Be of Light Commercial Type on Essex Chassis.

Hudson Motor Car Co., maker of Hudson and Essex cars, has completed plans to launch a line of light delivery commercial vehicles, with bodies specially designed to meet the requirements of the chief users of a carrier of this type. Bodies will be mounted on Essex chasses adapted and designed for this service.

It is announced that the line will be introduced about July, and will be marketed through the present Hudson and Essex distributor and dealer organization. Hudson's dealer family, it is said, has been expanding with noteworthy rapidity since the first of the year and covers the country more intensively than at any previous time in the company's history. The Hudson management felt in selling organization would appreciate the added sales opportunity offered by the new product.

Sales Executive in Charge.

Sam C. Mitchell, for several years a sales executive for the Hudson Motor Car Co., has been appointed commercial vehicle manager and will handle the distribution of this entirely new product through the Hudson-Essex distributor and dealer organization. Establishment of a commercial vehicle department marks a decidedly new and important development in the progress of the company.

Emphasis will be laid by the company on smartness, quick acceleration and economy of operation. These are features of Hudson-Essex activity which already have been brought to a high point of development in the manufacture of passenger cars.

Set-up for the manufacture of the new line is already well under way at the Hudson-Essex plant in Detroit, where the new activity will be housed.

DODGE BROTHERS MADE PRECISELY

Thousandth of an Inch is Wide Margin in Automobile Building.

Accuracy of Tooling Adds to Power and Quiet Operation.

The corner jeweler who sits in his window all day long performing minute and mysterious operations on tiny objects would probably gasp in amazement if he were asked to shave a scale from a butterfly's wing down to one-third of its original thickness. A scale from a butterfly's wing is only fifteen ten-thousandths of an inch thick, and to cut it down to five ten-thousandths (one-half of a thousandth of an inch) calls for tools almost too fine for the mind to conceive.

Yet this one-half of a thousandth of an inch represents the limit of tolerance allowed in fitting pistons of engines used in Dodge Brothers new six. They must fit into the cylinder bore with a clearance varying not more than one-third the thickness of the scale on a butterfly's wing. Such precision insures full delivery of power and eliminates noise and wear.

Accurate Gear Mesh.

Carrying out the reduced butterfly wing scale still farther by dividing it into five equal parts, represents the limit of tolerance allowed in the contour of gear teeth used in the Dodge Brothers new six. Holding gear teeth to such minute limits mean smooth meshing and quiet operation.

By taking two and one-half of the five equal parts into which the butterfly wing scale is now divided, the result is greater than the inaccuracy allowed in the alignment of the main bearings of the new six engine.

Combustion chambers of the new six cylinder heads are machined to within five thousandths of an inch of a specified size, this costly operation requiring the frequent replacement of cutting tools, yet this machining is of vital importance to obtain compression equality and smooth engine performance.

So closely is the assembly of the Dodge Brothers new six checked that there are thousands of inspections, many of which must be accurate to a thousandth of an inch. These inspections start from the source of supply of raw materials, and continue through every operation until the car is finally checked for shipment.

NASH BREAKS SALES RECORD

Ten Marketing Centers Report Increase of 52.95 Per Cent.

KENOSHA, Wis., April 13—When final reports were received by Nash sales department officials from marketing centers in the United States, it was found today that Nash "400" Series car sales in the ten highest sales points during the week ending March 30 were greater than those in any previous week on the records of the Nash Motors Co.

The total number of "400" cars bought in these ten motoring centers rolled up an increase of 52.95 per cent over the sales made at the same points in the corresponding week of 1928.

This significant buying record for Nash was not limited alone to the ten metropolitan markets where sales were largest and which are considered an American merchandising barometer. A further check revealed that the sales of these increasingly popular cars in all distributing centers during the closing week in March equalled the peak figures of the first week in July last year, when the Nash "400" demand had reached its height following announcement and nationwide introductions of the new type cars.

New York Leads in Total.

New York led the Nash sales procession through the banner week in total car sales and marked up a 25 per cent increase over its records for the week last year. Chicago people bought more than 53 per cent more Nashes than they did in the week a year ago. Boston, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, San Francisco and Detroit—the other leading Nash markets for the week—showed substantial gains to bring the total increase in Nash cars sold in the ten cities to 52.95 per cent.

"No more conclusive evidence is needed to show that Nash in 1929 may expect the greatest volume of business in the experience of the company," declared C. H. Bliss, general sales manager in commenting on the brilliant sales record. "The entire Nash organization is prepared to do bigger things this year than ever before."

DR. B. A. JENKINS TO SPEAK HERE

Will Address Nebraska School Heads at Banquet Friday.

School executives from all parts of the state will convene in Lincoln April 19 for the annual spring meeting of the Nebraska Superintendents' and Priniepals' association. Dr. Burris A. Jenkins of Kansas City, Mo., formerly editor of the Kansas City Post, will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be held in the evening at the University club.

Nebraska educators will conduct the morning and afternoon sessions, dealing with problems of school administration. The value of a school survey to the community, child accounting, and economy in school administration are among the subjects to be considered.

Present officers of the association are J. A. Doremus, Aurora, president J. A. Jimmerson, Auburn, vice-president; and C. H. Velte, Crete, secretary.

Auto Notes

Cleaning a Disk Clutch.

To clean the disk clutch, drain off the oil or grease, by unscrewing the plug at ehe bottom of the housing, replace the plug and then pour a gallon or two of kerosene into the housing and run the engine. When the engine is running, hold down the clutch pedal for a minute or so, then let it in and hold down again. Do this for from 10 to 15 minutes.

The average horn will blow 150,000 times before wearing out.

Poor steering causes more skidding than faulty brakes or careless use of them.

Apply brakes gently when driving through water if they are the exposed external type.

Never permit any passenger to stand on the running board of a moving automobile.

The appearance of a car can be greatly improved by painting the top with a good dressing.

Any light bulb that is allowed to get dirty is ore likely eo burn out than one kept clean. It is because the dirt prevents the radiation of heat as rapidly as necessary for long life.

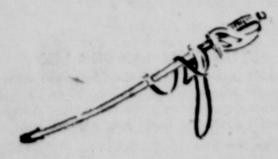
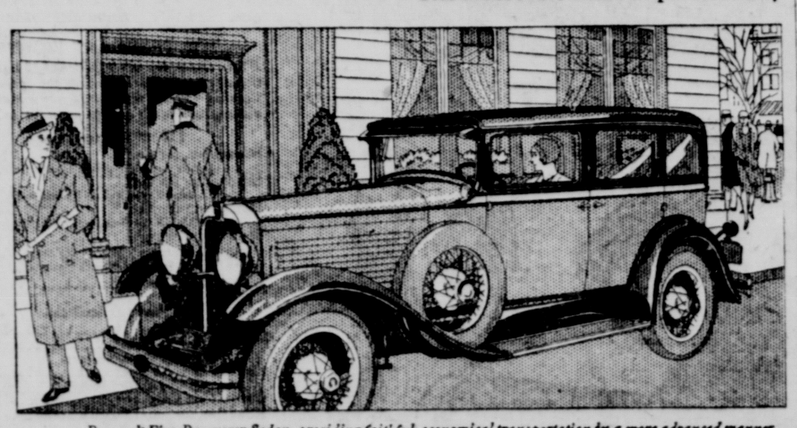
MARMON-BUILT

The world's first Straight-Eight under $1000 . . . Now on display





Roosevelt Five-Passenger Sedan, providing faithful, economical transportation in a more advanced manner

THE long awaited is here . . . The year's most impressive achievement of America's fastest moving industry is brought to public view . . . The move so freely predicted has now actually happened—Marmon has built a straight-eight to sell (at the factory) for less than $1000.

There have been any number of four cylinder cars at this price . . . Today there are many sixes at this figure . . . But there is only one straight-eight—the Roosevelt.

And it is but natural that this first low-priced straight-eight should come from Marmon. Marmon for more than three years has devoted its central efforts toward simplifying and making the straight-eight a practical, economical and long-lived car for all to own.

Consider First Its Beauty

The first time you see the Roosevelt you are sure to recognize it as a new achievement in smart, yet thrifty, transportation. It's low and in the modern manner. No conflicting lines—but from radiator to back end one graceful line follows straight through. Marmon has taken the attitude that a $1000 car can be just as stylish in appearance, just as modern in appointment as a car costing twice this amount.

Furthermore, Marmon has made sure that the Roosevelt should measure up to the time-famed standards of Marmon performance.

The Roosevelt Motor

The Roosevelt motor is a straight-eight, built completely in Marmon plants. It develops 70 horsepower—far more power than any other car in its price field. There are no waits while the motor is picking up the load—few hills that require a gear shift—no place any car of the price can go that the Roosevelt can't go in even less time and far more comfortably. The Roosevelt will out-perform any car in the world at or anywhere near its price.

The Roosevelt follows in all fundamental points Marmon proved features of design. Furthermore, Marmon had plenty of time. The Roosevelt was thoroughly proved out months before the first car was manufactured.

A STRAIGHT-EIGHT FOR EVERY PURSE

Roosevelt, $995; Marmon 68, $1465; Marmon 78, $1965. Prices at factory. Group equipment extra. Inquire about our attractive income purchase plan.

NEBRASKA NEWS

LINCOLN WOMAN NOW PRESIDENT

Mrs. J. R. Carnahan Made Head Pawnee Presbyterial.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., April 13—At the closing session of the two-day convention of the Pawnee Presbyterial, held at Mission Creek church this week, Pawnee City was chosen for next year's convention of the women's society of the United Presbyterian churches in southern and western Nebraska.

Attendance at the convention was cut by bad weather, but most of the towns of the district were represented. Societies included in the reports were Summerfield, Minden, Lone Grove, Burchard, Superior, Benkelman, Pawnee City, Lincoln and Mission Creek. The men's Presbytery from the same churches also held its convention in concurrent sessions with the ladies.

Officers chosen by the Presbyterial are: Mrs. J. R. Carnahan, Lincoln, president; Mrs. J. H. Hart, Burchard, first vice president; Mrs. J. H. Morrison, Pawnee City, second vice president; Miss Stella Baird, Lincoln, secretary; Mrs. George M. Miller, Pawnee City, treasurer; Mrs. Alfred Eastwood, Mission Creek, junior secretary; Mrs. J. H. Etzelmiller, Minden, young women's secretary; Mrs. Paul Dinsmore, Burchard, literature secretary; Mrs. Chas. Glasgow, Mission Creek, thank offering secretary; Mrs. C. C. Thomas, Superior, temperance secretary. Rev. Glass of Minden was chosen moderator of the men's Presbytery.

Among visiting speakers on the two-day program were Mrs. J. C. Alter, Lincoln, former home missionary worker in Tennessee mountains, and Mrs. A. M. Reed, Manhattan, Kas., for two years a teacher in Egypt, who gave a missionary address.

Seward Declaimers

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., April 13—In the Seward high school declamatory contest here last Monday night first place in the oratorical division was won by Arthur Schultz, eighteen year old son of Mrs. W. F. Schultz. He is a junior and is taking the vocational and commercial course.

In the dramatic class first place went to Marjorie Stubbs, a junior, fifteen years old and daughter of Col. and Mrs. P. F. Stubbs of near Garland. She is in the normal training department of Seward high.

Better Homes Week Receiving Attention

Many Organizations to Participate in Observance Throughout Webster County.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., April 13—Better homes week, inaugurated seven years ago as an educational and civic movement, national wide in its its scope, and operating through local committee, will be fittingly observed in Red Cloud and vicinity April 21 to 27. The local committee working through the various civic educational, social and religious organization, is making definite and interesting plans which promise to make this event an outstanding one in the community. The children of the local school will have a large part in the coming campaign, displaying posters and art work on home life and home improvement in the windows of local firms during the week, as well as writing essays on the home, which tend to provoke thought and discussion of home improvement. Other organizations taking an active part in the campaign include the local ministerial union, Business Women's club and the local farm bureau.

FRANK DIETRICH AND WIFE WEDDED FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 13—In exceptionally good health and voicing the prediction that they would enjoy many similar affairs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dietrich Thursday observed their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary by attending a surprise dinner in their honor.

Mr. Dietrich, 88 years of age, was born in Berks county, Penn., and has resided in this county 60 years. Mrs. Dietrich, 11 years her husband's junior, was born at Baltimore, Md., and has lived here 71 years. They were married on a farm near Falls City, April 11, 1872.

APPLES NOT DAMAGED.

(Special to The Star.)

PERU, Neb., April 13—Fruit is not thought to have been damaged materially by the heavy frost which covered this vicinity Friday morning, as buds were not far enough advanced. Winds a week to ten days ago whipped the bearing twigs and possibly caused a small percent of damage. Considerable acreage is in fruit around here. Apples are not damaged so far in the Peru and Shubert vicinities.

MASONIC INSTRUCTION.

(Special to The Star.)

WASHINGTON, Kas., April 13.—A district school of instructions for Masonic lodges was held at Washington Thursday afternoon and evening with a large membership in attendance. Charles Wells of Topeka was instructor. J. E. Gillett, of Washington, former master here, but now a district deputy, Elmer Strain, grand secretary, and Forest Ayers, grand junor warden of Kansas, were also in attendance.

BENEDICT WINNER TWO FIRST PLACES IN DECLAMATION

(Special to The Star.)

BENEDICT, Neb., April 13—Benedict high school won two firsts in the sectional declamatory contest held here Thursday night. Marian Cross wining in dramatic and Sara Louise Lytel in humorous. William Gambel of York placed first in oratorical, while Norris Getty of Waco won the extemporaneous. Second places were won by Wilma Langenheim of Utica in the oratorical, William Hice of York in the dramatic, Erma Villig of Seward in the humorous and Orville Moore of York in the extemporaneous. The winenrs of first place will be entered in the district contest, which will be held in about two weeks. Schools besides Benedict competing were: Seward, York, Waco and Utica. Supt. William Parkinson of Polk was judge of the contest. Supt T. F. Tyler of Benedict was manager. There are forty-two member schools in the district this year.

WHEAT OUTLOOK CONSIDERED BAD

Many Fields in Webster County Being Plowed Up.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., April 13—With many farmers in this locality plowing up their wheat fields preparatory to planting the ground to corn or other grain, the wheat to be grown in Webster county this year promises to fall far short of the annual average, in the opinion of many.

Fully 25 per cent less acreage than usual was planted to wheat last fall, which, along with the wheat winter killed and that damaged by the recent high winds, leaves much to be desired in the outlook for this particular farm product. Damage from wind appears to have hit hardest the fields seeded late in the fall, the wheat not having had time to make a good growth and become well matted before winter set it. As a result of the exceedingly high wind of a week ago many fields are drifted in places with dust, which has completely covered the wheat, while in other fields the soil has been blown from the roots of the plants, leaving them exposed and in such condition that a material reduction in the yield is predicted.

AUSTIN FUNERAL BEATRICE SUNDAY

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 13—The funeral of Charles N. Austin, pioneer who passed away at his home here Friday, will be held Sunday at 1:30 o'clock with Rev. Ross McCown in charge. The Odd Fellows will conduct the services at the grave.

As a small child Mr. Austin came here seventy years ago with his parents. He was a son of H. B. Austin, who with E. C. Austin, operated the first sawmill here and provided the building material for the first prominent buildings in Beatrice.

He had been employed at the Dempster plant for thirty-one years, was one of the city's veteran firemen and charter member of the Beatrice lodge of Odd Fellows.

LEGION BOOSTS PARK.

(Special to The Star.)

SIDNEY, Neb., April 13.—Members of the American Legion post of this place have just contributed $200 more toward securing trees and shrubs for the American Legion park that has been established here. This makes a total of $1,000 that the legion has paid out for improving the park.

BIG RAIL BUSINESS.

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 13.—Work of the Burlington railroad at this station has increased so rapidly the past week that all crews are now employed and no men are on the extra board. Three work trains have started for the season on this division, and an extra yard crew was put on Thursday to do switching to clear the local yards.

The South Dakota tour was completed March 28 at the South Dakota State college, where the Peru debaters advocated a retention of trial by jury. The practice of no decision contests was followed.

WILL INVESTIGATE PUMP IRRIGATION

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 13—There wil be a conference of members of the city council, the Lions club, the county agent and interested farmers, here Monday to consider location for three test wells to be sunk on farms in the Pumpkin creek valley, to experiment with pump irrigation. Officers of the Western Public Service company will meet with this group and will be prepared to start at once on construction of an electric line into the valley to provide power for the pumps, as soon as the wells are completed.

A parked car with headlights full on is not only an annoyance to the drivers of oncoming cars but is an unnecessary drain on the battery.

Big Leagues Face Barrier In Pennant Flights of 1929

Majors On Their Marks to Tilt the Lid Off Baseball

Dope In American Circuit Points to Yanks as Likely Repeaters; A's, Browns, Senators Given Rating as Strongest Opposition; Cubs and Giants Touted Fight It Out for Flag Laurels In National; Rajah Hornsby's Temperament Makes the Bruins' Chances In Flag Race Trifle Doubtful.

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, April 13—(UP)—Another baseball season will be under way in eight major league cities Tuesday afternoon with a quarter of a million fans watching the teams in action and millions more from coast to coast eagerly awaiting the first returns. Many familiar figures will be missing and in their places will be highly touted, ambitious youngsters who hope to win their way into the hearts of the American baseball populace.

Ty and Tris Missing.

Ty Cobb will be absent from the American league for the first time in 25 seasons and Tris Speaker will be missing for the first time in 22 years. Other veterans will ride the bench and watch younger talent perform in their places.

Besides the enormous interest in the two pennant races the two questions of paramount importance to baseball fans are:

Will Rogers Hornsby help or hurt the Chicago Cubs?

Is Babe Ruth through?

The answer to those two questions also may solve the outcome of the two pennant races.

What About the Rajah.

If Hornsby's powerful bat offsets the loss of defensive strength in the Cubs' infield and the temperamental star sticks to his knitting and does not cause the same trouble he did with the Braves, Giants and Cards, the National league pennant may fly from William Wrigley's flagpole ni Chicago.

If Babe Ruth has another good year, the New York Yankees may break the three-year jinx which halted the Detroit Tigers in 1910 and the Yanks in 1924. No American league club has ever won four straight pennants.

That Law of Averages.

The Yanks have won three pennants in a row and six out of the last eight. The law of averages may catch up with the Yankees this season and bring them back to earth—earth being any spot below first place.

Baseball experts predict that the Yanks, Athletics, Browns and Senators will make the running in the American league and the Cubs, Giants, Pirates and Cards in the National league.

Although many experts are afraid to predict a new American league champion, they feel the Yanks are in for a rougher season than was the case last year, when the Athletics furnished the only position and that not until September.

Mackmen Crippled.

Connie Mack is starting the season under a big handicap, with three of his stars laid up. Lefty Grove, who turned in 24 victories last season, has an infected finger on his pitching hand. Al Simmons, who batted .351, is out of the game with bad ankles. Joe Boley, brilliant shortstop, has a "dead" arm.

The Yanks' machine seems fairly well knit, with a great deal depending on Babe Ruth, the new infield arrangement and Herb Pennock. It seems safe to say the veterans of the Yanks have gone back some. How far they've gone probably will determine whether the Yanks win again.

Senators Worth Watching.

The two clubs getting a lot of support are the Senators and the Browns. Walter Johnson has developed a dangerous looking club in his first season at Washington. Gos'in's recovery, an improved infield with Bluege at short and Myer at third, and a steady pitching staff are the factors which may keep the Senators high in the race.

Dan Howley turned out the surprise club of the 1928 season and

Lincoln Pair State Champs at Handball

Phil Aitken and Bill Folsom, prominent in Lincoln golf circles added handball to their list of athletic trophies Saturday when the pair copped the Nebraska state Y. M. C. A. doubles title. The Aitken-Folsom combination beat O. H. Worth and R. Wurgler of Omaha in the finals, 21-16, 21-9, and eliminated L. Foster and L. Watt of York in the first round, 21-8, 21-10.

Wurgler won the singles championship without the loss of a game. He beat A. Eichberg of Lincoln, 21-13, 21-16, and trimmed Watt of York in the finals, 21-8, 21-8.

Four rounds—Tony Gagliano, Omaha, vs. Joe Vienna, Ft. Crook; 132 pounds.

Five rounds—Freddie Penn, Omaha, vs. Ronnie Stewart, Council Bluffs; 118 pounds.

Six rounds—Pep Jennings, Des Moines, vs. Flash Random, Kansas City; 118 pounds.

Ten rounds—Harold Matthews, Lincoln, av. Frankie Garcia, St. Joseph; 118 pounds.

Referee—Herman Joyce, Omaha.

By "CY" SHERMAN.

Harold Matthews' toughest boxing assignment of the present season is the one which will confront him Monday night in a 10-round main event battle in the Liberty theatre ring. The Lincoln mite, who has yet to meet a reverse in an even year of professional fisticuffing, will be tearing into Frankie Garcia, Mexican glove-whirler from St. Joseph, and taking the short end of the weights to the extent of six pounds.

The articles require Garcia to scale no more than 118 at 2 p. m. Monday, but several hours will elapse before the gong clangs, which means that the St. Joe boy probably will climb between the hemp strands weighing at least 120.

Neat Chunk of Pounds.

As Harold's best battling poundage is 112 to 114, it is inevitable that the local mite will be conceding a neat chunk of pounds—and weight easily counts in a heap in a mitten fracas involving the flyweights or the bantams.

Information from St. Joseph, rated as reliable in the Matthews camp, that Garcia is the hard-hit-

BIG BAM MAULS PAIR OF HOMERS

Ruth Swings Lusty Stick While Yanks Put It Over Dodgers.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 13—(U. P.)—Babe Ruth hit two home runs today as the New York Yanks beat the Brooklyn Robins, 10 to 5. Ruth's first homer in the first inning was one of the longest ever made at Ebbets field, the ball soaring high over the right field fence. His second homer in the eighth inning came with Koenig on base. By innings:

Making Good as "Big Time" Coach.

MR. AND MRS. FRED C. THOMSEN.

Another Nebraska boy made good in "big time" coaching circles when Fred C. "Terible" Thomsen, former Cornhusker football and baseball athlete, was promoted to the position of director of athletics at the University of Arkansas. Thomsen follows Francis Schmidt, another ex-Huseker, who moved to Texas Christian university.

Thomsen enrolled at the University of Nebraska from Minden and during his varsity days played an end and halfback position on the football team and was catcher and outfielder during the baseball season. Thomsen maried a Lincoln girl,, Sunbeam Burton, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Turton, 3227 Starr street.

A. A. U. Czars Weaken.
Chip On His Shoulder.
Is Stagg Consistent?
Cinders for the Ashcan.

SPORT directors of American colleges evidently are getting somewhere in the war they have been waging to smash the control of athletics usurped by the Amateur Athletic Union. The first sign that the czars of the A. A. U. were weakening was manifested when Avery Brundage, a western man and former Big Ten conference athlete, was elected to the presidency of the so-called "amateur" union.

In office long enough to take a survey of the national situation, during which period he has become convinced that the union has some fences that badly need fixing, Mr. Brundage recently issued a statement in which he invited constructive criticism of the union's policies and asked the college men to meet with him and his associates for a general discussion and get-together movement designed to clean the union's house.

As spokesman for the colleges of the middlewest region, particularly the Big Ten conference, of which latter body he is commissioner of athletics, Major John L. Griffith has replied to President Brundage, giving notice, in effect, that college sport never will consent to wear the A. A. U. yoke. In a formal statement, Major Griffith says in part:

"MR. AVERY BRUNDAGE, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, and Mr. Gustavus T. Kirby, past president of this organization, have recently issued statements to the effect that the A. A. U. has not kept up with the growth of the country and have suggested that it should be reorganized. Mr. Brundage, in his statement released to the press, is quoted as saying that 'There is ground for criticism and need for complete rejuvenation of the A. A. U.' Mr. Kirby, in a pamphlet containing a discussion of amateur athletics, states 'That the A. A. U. has at last come to realize the deplorable situation in which it finds itself.'

Links' Manager Predicts Pitcher Will Line Up For 1929 Season.

Return of Pitcher Ernie Krenk to the fold, an event forecast for an early date, will forge the final link and complete the chain of preparations by the Lincoln club for participation in the Nebraska State league pennant chase. Krenk has been at his home in Dwight since he was sent back by the Milwaukee Brewers, minus a fair test of his ability to make the grade, but Manager Bob Browne of the

Jones Due to Emerge From Temporary Retirement When Nation's Wizards of Links Strive for Mastery On New York Course; Smith, Farrell, Hagen and Elite of Scotch Game Booked to Make Their Bid for High Honors In National Compet Dated For Final Week In Month of June.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The advance billing for golfdom's biggest show, featuring a couple of gentlemen by the name of Jones and Smith, was out today with a whoop and a bang. The show will go on at the Winged Foot golf club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 27, 28 and 29, in the guise of the thirty-third competition for the national open championship and, what with this fellow Jones, the well known Robert T., and that fellow Smith, alias Horton, no title event in the history of golf in America has had quite the sparkle and appeal of this one.

Mr. Jones Also Present.

Jones, of course, always is Jones and will be until such time as age and the demands of his profession rob him of his own. In this championship, he will be making the first of two public appearances he has allotted himself during the tournament year. In this championship, he will attempt to add lustre to a record that includes two titles and two ties in the last five years, to say nothing of four amateur championships and two victories in the British open.

One could ask no more than to see this golfer of the ages come out of the semi-retirement for a supreme effort, which possibly might be his last. There have been dark hints that Robert soon may withdraw himself from circulation altogether.

Most Everybody Else.

So much for what one could ask. What one will get is something considerably better. Not only will the starters include Farrell, who beat Jones in a title play-off last year; Hagen, 1928 British open champion, and all the good ones who have been around for years, but also the reigning sensation of the winter season, Horton Smith, a man seemingly capable of matching consistent brilliance with Jones himself.

Many a good man has tried that before and failed. But that fellow Smith, winner of seven or eight big money tournaments, seems to have proved that there can be no monopoly on sensationalism. Judged on his record, Smith is the first golfer of recent years who is qualified to take a permanent issue with the greatest of them all.

The Official Details.

The details of the affair, announced today by the championship committee of the United States Golf association, are of peculiar interest, therefore the championship proper will be governed by the customary schedule, calling for two rounds of 18 holes each on June 27 and 28 and the reduction of the field overnight to the first 60 low scores and ties for the 36 holes that will wind up the business on June 29.

The 72 holes thus contested will determine the order of the finish, provided there is no tie for the big money. If there is, it will be played off the following day on the basis of 36 holes, morning and afternoon.

Prizes for the Good Ones.

In the event that Mr. Jones or some other amateur is the winner, he will get a gold medal, custody of the championship cup for a year and the usual chamber of commerce greeting. If a pro gets away with it, he will get the medal, the cup, the greeting and $1,000 "in money," as the committee is careful to phrase it. The rest of the prize money, totalling $5,000 in all, will be scaled down from $750 for second place to $50 each for those finishing from sixteenth to twentieth inclusive.

A total of 150 players will be eligible for the championship rounds at Winged Foot and quite a number of them won't have to

NEBRASKA HIGH CINDER SQUADS FACE CAMPAIGN

Relays at Hastings Fired First Gun; Track Fest At Callaway Friday and York Invitation Dated For Saturday Features Of This Week's Card.

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE.

Tuesday—Banacroft, Lyons, Scribner triangular meet.

Wednesday — Fairbury dual at Wymore, Scribner, Lyons, Oakland triangular at Oakland.

Friday—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway. Relay carnival at Grant. Red Willow county meet at McCook. Plattsmouth dual at Asland. Humboldt, Dawson, Table Rock triangular at Humboldt. Oshkosh dual at Lisco. Hildreth dual at Minden. Tobias dual at Dewitt.

Saturday—York college invitation meet. Clay county meet at Clay Center. Harlan county meet at Alma. Crete, Wilber, Dewitt triangular meet at Wilber. Bancroft, Rosalie, Pender triangular meet.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The track curtain having been lifted with the Hastings relays yesterday the cinder season in Nebraska interscholastic circles will be on full force this week, with the Seven Valleys meet at Callaway next Friday as the first major event on the sport card.

The Seven Valleys compet, with Supt. W. A. Rosene in charge, is always one of the red letter events on the interscholastic card. This season should prove no exception, with 37 schools already signifying their intention to enter the competition and the prospect that this number will top the 40 mark by the time of the meet.

Three Classifications.

The Callaway trackfest includes three classes—senior, junior and girls. Gothenburg copped the senior division last season and is in the running this year, with North Platte and Cozad figured to give close argument. Mullen, second to Overton in the junior event last year, is touted as the junior favorite this season. Callaway won the girls class last season and expects plenty of competition from a field which includes Elm Creek and Sargent.

Southwest Nebraska track fans will have their interest divided between the Red Willow county meet at McCook and the relay carnival at Grant.

County meets of interest in the south section include the Clay county meet at Clay Center and the

WEEPING WATER DEFEATS AVOCA

AVOCA, Neb., April 13—Weeping Water high defeated Avoca in an exciting 11-inning game here yesterday, 10-9.

The eleventh inning was the real thriller of the afternoon. Snipes of Weeping Water in the eleventh hit a home run with a runner on the sacks. Pitcher Benicke of Avoca hit for the circuit in the last of the eleventh, but the bases were empty.

Weeping Water plays at Lincoln high next Tuesday.

Batteries—Bickford and Snipes for Weeping Water; Benicke and Carver for Avoca.

Nebraska Cage Teams Top Big 6 Conference In Getting the Money

Cornhusker football already is setting the pace for the Missouri Valley region, from the standpoint of attendance records, and University of Nebraska basketball is coming into its own. The 1928-29 Cornhusker quintet played to the largest crowds in Nebraska cage history, according to figures announced Saturday by John K. Selleck, business manager of athletics.

Crowd Totals for Season.

Crowd totals for the 16 games of the past season's schedule shows that 38,500 witnessed the Cornhusker cagers in action. The home attendance was 23,180, while the crowds away from home totalled 15,320. Estimates are made of attendance at the Drake, Colorado and South Dakota games. Other figures are actual "gate count."

The largest crowd of the season was 8,874 spectators at the Missouri game in Lincoln ,the opener of the Big Six conference season. The Tigers drew $650 as their share of the gate. Other Big Six schools that received more than the "guarantee" were Oklahoma and Kansas, attendance at these games each topping 3,000 figure.

Coliseum Did It.

Basketball interest and the fine University of Nebraska coliseum made possible the Nebraska record attendance, according to those in charge of athletics at the Cornhusker institution.

While Nebraska paid visiting teams more than their guarantee on three occasions, the Cornhuskers collected a bonus but once, that being on the crowd of 3,768 at Oklahoma.

According to Business Manager of Athletics John K. Selleck, basketball showed a surplus for the first time during the 1928-'29 season.

Books Show Profit.

The balance on the credit side was $2,912.95, whereas during the 1927-28 schedule the cagesters failed to break even.

However ,the above figures do not include coaches' salary, medical attendance, floor cost and advertis-

Bunionists Accused Doing Their Running On Soft Auto Seats

CAMBRIDGE, O., April 13—(I. N. S.)—That some of C. C. Pyle's cross country bunioneers are riding in automobiles was the charge hurled here today by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Gracy and C. C. Bird. Bird and Gracy, who were assigned the task of patroling the road between Wheeling, W. Va., and this city, declared that at different times during yesterday's run they saw a least a dozen of the runners in automobiles.

They stated that they could substantiate their statement, if need be, by the tesimony of several individuals, who also saw some of the racers in automobiles.

Dissension In Ranks.

Dissension exists within the ranks of the runners, the deputies of Guernsey county continued. They related an incident at the close of the race yesterday, when one runner, who had just arrived, flung an oath at the official timekeeper and pointed to another runner indignantly asking "How did that—— get here ahead of me? He never passed me on the road."

The town as a whole is also indignant, according to the sheriffs, because of alleged "fakes" by followers of the "show" or carnival which is accompanying the derby participants.

Gavuzzi Goes Ahead.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Peter Gavuzzi, England, was leading Ed Garner, Seattle, Wash., negro, by 29 minutes at the end of the fourteenth lap of C. C. Pyle's trans-continental bunion derby here this afternoon. The official elapsed times are: Gavuzzi, 89:39:52; Gardner, 90:08:55. Salo, Passaic, N. J., still was in the money at the end of today's 24 miles run from Cambridge. His elapsed time is 94:44:52.

Pennant Odds Fluctuate With Moods of Finicky Stars

Ball Clubs Once Rated As Having Chance Cop Flags Tumble In Dope

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—As the big league pennant races get underway, the odds on several of the 16 contenders have fluctuated because of various late developments, including injuries in exhibition games, and bad feeling aroused between players and their managers.

Tigers Tumble In Dope.

In most of the hot stove league forecasts, the Detroit Tigers were picked to finish ahead of Washington in the American league scramble. Due to the squabble between Manager Bucky Harris and a small clique on the Detroit club, headed by Harry Heilmann, the Tigers are now rated as second division material. Most of the experts figure that the motor city crew will suffer from internal dissension, although to all intents and purposes Bucky and Handsome Harry have kissed and made up, with Harry promising to stay on his good behaviour in the future.

Senators Working.

The splendid showing made by the Senators in their exhibition games, coupled with the eagerness of the players to do or die for dear old Walter Johnson, have led the experts to concede the Nats a good chance of landing a first division berth.

At first it had been thought that some of the Washington players would take advantage of Old Barney's amiability and loaf through their training, but apparently every member of the team has been working his head off for the former pitching ace. The Nats captured 10 of their first 10 starts against National league teams.

Row In Mack Camp.

Bad blood among the Philadelphia Athletics became apparent when Susce, fiery young catcher of the Phillies, started a fist fight with a certain member of the A's during an exhibition game. Instead of going to the rescue of their team mate in the time-honored manner, several members of the Athletics were heard to offer the belligerent backstop vocal encouragement.

Connie Mack's public announcement that he was "thoroughly disgusted" with his team did nothing to ease the situation.

Bush On Warpath.

Donie Bush went on the warpath soon after the Pittsburgh squad reached training camp, and informed the Pirates that they would not be allowed to play poker for keeps. Uncle Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers issued a similar ultimatum to his nephews.

Pirates Hard Hit.

These mild excitements were as nothing, however, to the epidemic of injuries which hit both Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. All the Robins except Herman and Bissonette were laid up at one time or another. Pie Traynor, crack Pirate infielder, has been handicapped by a hip injury and Ray Kremer, star right-hand pitcher, is suffering from leg trouble again. Bush has been shuffling Traynor, Adams, Bartell, Grantham, Stroner and others around in the infield in an effort to find the right combination.

Paul Waner's Holdout.

And Paul Waner's persistence in holding out was Bush's crowning grief.

The St. Louis infield also has been shifted around like a New York policeman but the Cardinals are now being picked by many observers to finish higher than the Bucs.

Some of the experts are also forecasting that the St. Louis Browns will grab the pennant in the American League. They figure that the uncertainty surrounding Pitchers Pennock and Moore and the light hitting of Durocher and Lary will hurt the Yankees, and that injuries and apathy will hold the Athletics back.

Sox Going Nowhere.

The Shires-Cissell "insurrection" upset the White Sox quite a bit, but the Sox were going nowhere in the first place and the dissension on the club will only help them to get there sooner.

The Phillies were all set for a big drive to finish sixth in the senior circuit, but the loss of Thevenow probably will just about ruin them.

While the pennant prospects of the above-mentioned clubs have changed more or less due to late developments, the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants look every bit as strong as they did on paper two months ago. They are still hot tips to grab the first places in the National league race.

CHOPPY'S SQUAD AWAY TO SOUTH

Nebraska U. Baseballers Hit the Road to Play Sooners, Tigers.

Harvey Grace, hard-hitting outfielder and first-sacker, will be a member of the Cornhusker baseball squad which pulls away Sunday afternoon for games with Oklahoma and Missouri. Grace's place on the squad was doubtful because the Mascot pastimer has just been released from the hospital.

Grace's presence on the team roster removed Jake Maser, who has been nursing an injured digit which has kept him on the sidelines during a number of practice workouts. Members of the party, in addition to Coach "Choppy" Rhodes and Student Manager Ray Hall, are:

Pitchers—Theodore Pickett, Clair Sloan, Henry Armatis, Joe Pochop, Williard Urban.

Catchers—Meredith Williams, Harold Halbeisen, Russell Snygg.

Infielders—Lloyd Betts, Marshall Keyes, Glen Ullstrom, Laverne Williams.

Outfielders—Harvey Grace, Willard Witte, Gilmore Decker, James Row.

Tuesday and Wednesday games are scheduled with Oklahoma at Norman. The two games with the Missouri Tigers at Columbia are scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

WOODMEN CLUB AT HAVELOCK SUNDAY

The Modern Woodmen No. 969 will play a practice baseball game at Havelock today at 2 o'clock.

High School Track.

ZORN HAS TRIO OF VETERANS.

BURWELL, Neb., April 13.—Coach Wilbert Zorn has three lettermen on his Burwell high school track squad. The veterans are J. Gaukel, sprints and broad jump; M. Thompson, 440-yard and pole vault, and G. Hoyt, hurdles and jumps.

New men of promise include J. Cronk, javelin; J. Rouse and S. Pinas, distances; L. Webb, hurdles; A. Anderson, sprints. The schedule:

April 19—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway.

April 26—Wranglers relays at Burwell.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

DEWITT HAS FOUR VETERANS.

DEWITT, Neb., April 13.—Dewitt high has good prospects this year with fourteen candidates, including four lettermen, reporting to Coach Noerrlinger.

Brier in his first try at the broad jump leaped 20 feet 5 inches. Schaff runs the furlong in 23 seconds and heaves the shot close to 42 feet. Presnell also heaves the iron ball around 42 feet. The other veteran is Norton in the discus and vault.

Promising candidates include Delay and Lake, distances; McEntarffer and Petersen, half-mile; Weibel, sprints and hurdles; Shumard, hurdles. The schedule:

April 16—Wilber at Dewitt.

April 19—Tobias at Dewitt.

May 3—Southeastern meet at Beatrice.

May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

BEAVER CITY INVITATION MEET.

BEAVER CITY, Neb., April 13.—Beaver City high will sponsor an invitation meet to be held here Saturday, April 27. Fifteen teams from southwest Nebraska and northern Kansas have enrolled.

Track lettermen reporting to Coach S. A. Woodbury include Captain Larsen, all-around athlete in the distances, high jump and quarter-mile; Babcock, distances; Campbell, half-mile and 440-yard dash; Coffey, javelin and discus. Promising new mterial includes Longsine, sprints; Brunning, distance, Borngroves, pole vault; and Davis, heights.

FALLS CITY MEET LISTED.

FALLS CITY, April 13.—Invitations have been extended 20 southeast Nebraska and northeastern Kansas schools to participate in the Falls City Journal fifth annual track and field championships to be staged here Wednesday, April 15.

Tecumseh has won class A for the past three years. The classification of teams:

Class A—Tecumseh, Auburn, Pawnee City and Falls City in Nebraska; Sabetha and Hiawatha in Kansas.

Class B—Honey Creek, Verdon, Salem, Dubois, Humboldt, Dawson, Stella, Shubert, Sacred Heart (Falls City) and Rulo of Nebraska; Highland, Hamlin, Morrill and Reserve of Kansas.

NEW MEN ON CRETE SQUAD.

CRETE, Neb., April 13.—Although over 40 candidates are reporting for track at Crete high school this season, the only veterans are Captain Shepherd, dashes, Ervin Ewegen, discus; and Theodore Fahrnbruch, javelin.

The big point winners of the past three seasons were graduated last spring, the outfit including Hokuf, Aller, Parker, Stedman and Mitchell. Hokuf, Parker and Stedman were members of the 1928 championship high school pentathlon team.

Robert Gibb, former North Loup athlete, is showing promise of being a good sprinter, while Glen Jessup, former Wymore athlete, is showing good form in the hurdles. Noyce is clearing 10 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and getting good results with the javelin. Delwin Dunlap and Harold Robb look good in the middle distances and Howard Stedman, Norman Smith, Otto Kubicek and Ode Shebl give promise in the distances. John Parlick, Brick Muff, Ed Kenney and Heyhoe are working in the short sprints.

Warnke, Rietfors and Robb are the jumpers; Shepherd and Gibb have been getting around 40 feet with the shot, and Rietfors, Taylor and Fahrnbruch are working on the pole vault.

Other members of the squad showing promise include Freeouf and Rhea, weights. Baker, Kobes and Yant, jumps; Henning, Vesatka, Schmitt, Roland, Sigmon and Stromer, mile; Norton, Conneliy, Feeken, 880-yard run; Wagner, Hicks and Atteberry, quarter-mile. The schedule:

April 20—Triangular meet at Crete.

April 26—Wesleyan invitation meet at Lincoln.

May 3—Southeast Nebraska meet at Beatrice.

May 4—Hastings college invitation meet.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

TRACK INTEREST AT HUMBOLDT.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., April 13—Track interest is enjoying a big boom at Humboldt high school this season. It is the second year of track here, but Coach M. C. Huff has forty men in suit, and increase of 30 over last year.

Frank Jenkins, hurdler is the only letterman on the squad. Others showing up well include Earl Fergus, Owen Rist, Leonard Proctor Wilbur Bourne, Dale Reid, and Earl Schuler in the field events and Willard Randolph, George Dorland, Austin Glathar, Merriwell Hodapp, Otto Kotouc, Harold Hudson and Robert Montgomery on the cinders. The schedule:

April 16—Pawnee City dual at Humboldt.

April 19—Humboldt, Dawson, Table Rock triangular at Humboldt.

May 3—Little Ten of Richardson county meet at Humboldt.

May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.

HILDRETH SQUAD IMPROVES.

HILDRETH, Neb., April 13—Hildreth finished in a tie for second place in a quadrangular meet at Franklin last Wednesday. Minden won the meet with 56 points. Franklin and Hildreth each scored 42 3-5 points and Bloomington finished fourth with six points.

Lettermen reporting to Coach R. E. Arehart include Eugene Mars, weights and jumps; Ford Neubauer, sprints, hurdles and vault; Irvin Schwartz, jumps and the hurdles; Earl Gitt, hurdles and broad jump. Promising new material include Otto Lenser, Randolph Soker, Wilbur Carpenter, Edward Braams and Burdett Smith. The schedule:

April 19—Dual at Minden.

April 26—Dual at Franklin.

April 27—Beaver City invitation meet.

Three Games This Week In Playgrounds Loop

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Monday—Jackson high vs. Bethany at University Place.

Friday—Lincoln vs. Bethany at Bethany; Jackson high vs. Teachers College high at Teachers field.

Three contests o fthe Greater Lincoln league playgrounds baseball schedule are slated to be played this week, bringing into action Lincoln, Jackson high, Bethany and Teachers College high, the four competing teams of the loop circuit. Lincoln high defeated Teachers College high last week, 8-3, in the initial contest of the schedule.

The Bethany-Jackson high game, carded for Monday on the Jackson high diamond, originally was scheduled for last Friday. The change in the date was made because of a school dramatic production at Bethany.

Lawrence Solman, president of the Toronto club of the International league, went south to his training camp on a honeymoon.

HI YOUTHS BOW TO OLD-TIMERS

Brownies Downed, 13 to 6, In Spring Combat With Alumni.

Former football stars of the Lincoln high gridiron returned to action Saturday and defeated a picked high school outfit in the capital city oval, 13-6, as the feature exhibition of the Red and Black spring practice season. The alumni team was composed largely of members of the 1927 all-victorious state championship team, a large percentage of the group being represented on the present grid roll of the University of Nebraska.

Lack of practice prohibited any dazzling offensive play from the hands of the alumni, but the "old-timers" held sway throughout the game and succeeded in teaching the 1929 prospective gridsters many of the finer points of football.

Intercepted Pass.

John Stone, '27 quarterback, intercepted a forward pass early in the second quarter and raced 60 yards for the first alumni touchdown. Stone had replaced Boulter in the alumni backfield, the latter having injured his leg in the skirmish. A series of line bucks and end runs carried the alumni within the high school's one-yard line shortly afterward, but Bill Weir, diminutive Lincoln end and brother of Ed Weir, recovered a fumble that stopped the procession. Another unsuccessful attempt to score followed when Packer's forward pass to Folger was incomplete over the Lincoln goal.

Fowles Also Scores.

Fowles, Lincoln halfback, intercepted a Packer pass late in the first half and ran 40 yards to a touchdown, knotting the count at 6-all at half-time. A Schmitt-to-Masterson pass for the extra point failed.

When Coach W. H. Browne substituted freely into the Red and Black ranks in the last two minutes of play, alumni gridsters ripped through the revamped Lincoln defense and scored, a Packer-to-Perry forward pass for 25 yards registering the tally. Packer's pass to Poore on a fake kick play garnered the extra point.

Masterson Intercepts.

Masterson intercepted an alumni forward pass on the 30-yard line in the fourth period, which represented the high school squad's only scoring opportunity of the second half. Four ensuing attempted forward passes, however, were incomplete.

Harvey Bauer and Claude Austin, captains of the '26 and '27 elevens, respectively, and Perry, Packer, Koster, Boulter and Kiesselbach, all members of the Cornhusker grid squad, starred for the alumni. Raugh of the 1926 team and Tindall of the '27 outfit also did some dazzling for the alumni. Masterson, Sauer and Bauer were the chief strength of the Lincoln offense, while Sauer was the main cog in the defensive play. Prestegaard, Schmitt and Kneeland starred on the line.

Lineup and Summary.

Alumni, 13—	Pos.	—Lincoln, 6
Kiesselbach	LE.	Soderlund
Koster	LT.	Schmitt

Eddie Collins, captain of the Athletics, is entering up on his twenty-fourth season in the American league.

AMATEUR GOLF

Edited by GREGG McBRIDE

STATE MEETING TUESDAY.

Directors of the Nebraska State Golf association are expected to gather in Omaha next Tuesday to formulate plans for the coming season on the links.

Foremost of importance will be the selection of a site for the 1929 tournament and emissaries from the Lincoln Country club plan to be on the scene to renew their invitation to stage the annual state classic.

Reports from Omaha indicate that the Lincoln Country club and the Omaha Country club are in the running for the tourney location. The capital city golfers presented the first bid and will renew this invitation at the Tuesday meeting.

CHAMP LIKES NEW COURSE.

Foye Porter of the Happy Hollow club, Omaha, was a Monday visitor in Lincoln. While in the city he inspected the Lincoln Country club course and declared it ideal for a tourney site.

Porter's okay on the L. C. C. site carries considerable weight as the Happy Hollow player is the state champion as well as president of the state aassociation.

COURSES BUSY SATURDAY.

The fine weather Saturday had the golf courses crowded, with big turnouts at each club. Antelope club proved the most popular, with a waiting list at the first tee most of the day.

A bumper turnout is anticipated today, weather permitting. A blind bogey contest at Antelope park will enliven the day for the muny golfers.

WOMEN IN TOURNAMENT.

Golf is a part of the athletic program mapped out by the women's department of physical education at the Univeristy of Nebraska. A tourney for women will open at Antelope next week.

BIG DAY FOR DEKLOTZ.

Paul Deklotz, Antelope club golfer, enjoyed a big day Saturday. He won the blind bogey contest and in addition shot a hole-in-one. Deklotz pitched over the creek to sink his tee shot on the 90-yard No. 8. His net of 78 plus a 10-stroke handicap gave him the bogey winning number of 88.

PROS TO MEET MONDAY.

Lincoln golf professionals will journey to Omaha Monday for the first annual meeting of the Nebraska Golf Professionals association. Election of officers and a round of golf over Happy Hollow course is on the books.

Reigh Count Lugs Plenty of Weight

NEWBURY, Eng., April 13—Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 Kentucky derby, failed again in his second start in England when he finished far back in the Newbury Spring Cup today.

The handicap was won by William Barnett's Athford, which ran second in the Lincolnshire. Mrs. G. H. Drummond's Gang Warily was second and B. Warner's Residue third.

The American champion was asked to carry 126 pounds and may have found the burden troublesome. The winner carried only 103 pounds.

Twenty horses started in the mile race, valued at $7,500.

Soon Fell Behind.

Jockey Chick Lang got Reigh Count away to a good start and on even terms with the rest of the field, but after the first few strides the American horse weakened and began to fall behind. From that time on he was not a serious contender. He edged over toward the rail and raced in the second group of laggards the entire distance.

When Reigh Count was led from his stable, wearing a flowing yellow robe, one of the foremost paddock experts of Great Britain commented on the haughty carriage of the American horse, as contrasted with the more humble bearing of some of the other horses.

The American horse was the center of an admiring crowd while being stripped of his blanket and being mounted by Jockey Lang.

Athford, the winner, ran second to Elton in the Lincolnshire handicap.

The betting odds today were 11 to one against Reigh Count. Five other horses were favored by shorter odds.

Snow Storm Blocks Beantown Ball Game

BOSTON, Mass., April 13—(U. P.)—Snow prevented the Boston Red Sox and the Braves from meeting in a city series baseball game today.

NEW MARKS AT HASTINGS MEET

Eleven Records Broken In Annual Carnival On Cinders.

HASTINGS, Neb., April 13—The breaking of 11 meet records featured the third annual Hastings relays Saturday afternoon, 400 college and high school athletes being represented in the competition.

Hastings college athletes carried off the major share of the college trophies, by scoring in nearly all the events. Hertz of Peru Teachers set new records in the shot and discus, heaving the iron ball 45 feet 10 inches and hurdling the platter 128 feet 1 inch. Mendel of Yankton college set a new mark of 23 feet in the broad jump and won the 100-yard dash in 10 1-10 seconds.

Friend high, coached by Avard Mandery, former University of Nebraska athlete, won the medley and 40-yard relays in the high school section.

Ray Alf, former Doane college athlete, was clocked in 30 8-10 seconds in a special 300-yard race.

STANFORD CLEANS UP IN TRACK MEET

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Stanford track stars, scoring clean sweeps in seven events and getting eight out of nine points in three more, walked through a meet with the Southern California conference all-stars here today. The score was Stanford 106 3-4 to 33 1-4 for the all-stars.

The third of the Waner boys, Travia, is getting a tryout with Des Moines.

ACROSS THE NET

BUMPER TENNIS SEASON.

What promises to be the greatest season in the history of Lincoln tennis is already under way. A string of seven clay courts, rated among the besti nthe middlewest, makes possible the optimistic outlook for the net sport in the capital city.

The Lincoln Tennis club plant at Antelope park was not completed until late spring and the 1928 season was slow in getting started. Favorable weather condition this year have permitted an early start and the club courts have been the scene of constant play.

PLENTY OF COMPETITION.

With the courts in first-class trim, the racquet-swingers have not been slow in settling down to business. J. D. Lau, Charles Warren, B. E. McProud, Earl Fullbrook and Joe Stanton are among the old standbys making an early appearance.

Lau is close to a daily customer on the courts, unfavorable weather being the only element that will keep "J. D." off the clay surface. His game has improved over last season, much to the discomfort of several youngsters who have taken him on in friendly tilts.

MAGEE REJOINS SQUAD.

Harold Magee again is swinging a racquet. After several seasons of absence from the court, he has returned to serve early notice on the Lincoln players that he will be in the running when the tournament spoils are divided this summer.

When he forsook the racquet sport, Magee was rated as one of the most promising players in the capital city circle. From the showing made in the first few sets of the season, he evidently has lost little of his cleverness.

VARSITY TEAM GETS READY.

Members of the University of Nebraska squad will make use of the Lincoln Tennis club courts for practice and matches. Big Six teams to appead in Lincoln this sprinng include Oklahoma, Iowa State and Missouri. Nebraska will play at Kansas and Kansas Aggies in addition to competing in the Big Six conference championships at Ames, Ia.

While Cornhusker racquet-wielders are warming up, the tennis squads of Wesleyan and Cotner also are getting into action. The Methodists opened the season with a victory over York college.

BASEBALL, TENNIS AT RISING CITY

RISING CITY, Neb., April 13—Rising City high does not have a track team this spring, but is spending its time on baseball and tennis. The tennis prospects are not bright with Longacre as the only letterman in school.

A squad of twenty-five baseball candidates is reporting to Coach H. B. Manners. A series of interclass games started the season with the juniors holding a big edge. The regular team is coming along fast and is fortunate to have a pair of good pitchers in Bemis and Smith. The schedule:

April 19—Gresham at Gresham.

April 26—Octavia at Rising City.

May 3—Gresham at Rising City.

May 17—Bellwood at Bellwood.

Lee Head, catcher with the Jersey City club, is another graduate of University of Alabama baseball.

Omaha Boy On Lincoln Card.

Omaha's fighting Italian, Tony Gagliano, is booked to battle Vienna, Fort Crook soldier, in a four-round mitten rumpus on the National Guard Monday night card at the Liberty. Tony displayed his goods early in the season in Lincoln, taking the decision from Oklahoma Vanderveert and winning the plaudits of fight fans.

WINNING NINE AT DORCHESTER HIGH

DORCHESTER, Neb., April 13.—Baseball prospects are good at Dorchester high this season with a squad of 25 candidates, including seven lettermen, reporting to Coach Hungate.

The lettermen are Kennard Powell, pitcher; Robert Simmons, first base; Edward Nelson, second base; Gerald Willis, shortstop; Lester Horan, third base; Dale Simpson, outfield; and Kenneth Nicholson, outfield.

During the fall season Dorchester defeated Beaver Crossing, 21 to 0 and 9 to 2; and this spring beat Milligan, 5 to 0, and trimmed Milford, 10 to 8. The schedule:

April 19—Concordia Academy at Seward.

April 24—Milligan at Milligan.

May 3—Milford at Dorchester.

May 10—Concordia Academy at Dorchester.

May 17—Lincoln at Lincoln.

SUPERIOR SEEKS FOOTBALL GAME

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 13.—Superior high is in the market for a football game to be played at home Sept. 27. Prospects are fairly bright for next fall with six veterans and a majority of the reserves expected to return. The grid slate:

Sept. 27—Open.

Oct. 4—Aurora at Aurora.

Oct. 11—Hebron at Superior.

Oct. 18—Red Cloud at Red Cloud.

Oct. 25—Fairbury at Superior.

Nov. 11—Nelson at Superior.

Nov. 15—Nastings at Superior.

Nov. 22—Burr Oak at Burr Oak, Kas.

Nov. 28—Geneva at Geneva.

High School Track.

THIRTY OUT AT HOLDREGE.

HOLDREGE, Neb., April 13.—Holdrege high has thirty men out for track this spring, Coach Delbert Leffler being in charge of the squad.

Outstanding early season marks are Matson, 5 feet 6¾ inches in high jump; Logsdon, 5 feet 5 inches in high jump; Brewster, over 40 feet with shot; Erickson, 150 feet with javelin; Harmon, 2 minutes 10 seconds in half mile; Aten, 56 seconds in 440-yard dash.

Coach Leffler is devoting considerable time with junior high athletes, working the youngsters toward winning junior high numerals. The senior high schedule:

April 26—Southwest Nebraska meet at Gothenburg.

May 4—Hastings invitation meet.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

O'NEILL SHY VET MATERIAL.

O'NEILL, Neb., April 13—Lack of veteran material makes the track outlook rather dark at O'Neill high school this season. Veterans reporting to Coach F. J. Brokenicky include Charles Graham, dashes; Richard Tomlinson, discus and quarter-mile. A squad of sixteen is in suit.

The schedule which includes the Elkhorn meet also lists:

April 26.—North Nebraska meet at Atkinson.

May 3—Holt county meet at O'Neill.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

Hi Track Numerals.

Track numeral awards were granted the following Nebraska high school athletes Saturday by the University of Nebraska athletic department.

Full blue—Alonzo Miller, Imperial; Temple Egbert and Gordon Wickland, Valley; Clarke Adams, Merna; Ralph Eldrige and Dick Cockburn, Norfolk.

Half blue—Walter Pflum, Stanley Pribbins of Imperial; Mag Egbert, Valley.

Boy Wonder From Joplin Rated as Greatest In Golf

Tommy Armour Places Phenom of Ozarks In Class Above Bob Jones

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, April 13—Even while the golfing peers are still draping Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen with the garlands of link superlatives, there is a growing army which looks in the direction of a youth, not yet 21, and proclaiming with vehemence:

"This boy is the greatest golfer that ever lived."

Out of the Ozarks.

They are referring to Horton Smith, an unassuming, unsophisticated boy, just recently graduated from the Ozarks of Missouri. Horton Smith of Joplin, an unknown two years ago, rated as an "obscure golfer' last season and now demonstrating such amazing skill, such superb technique, such poise and calmness that Tommy Armour, former open champion, declares:

"Horton Smith can take the measure of any living golfer—and that includes Jones and Hagen. If there is any one who has ideas to the contrary, I'll bet them to the limit of my bankroll."

Learned On Nine-Hole Course

Smith learned the game on an unbunkered, flat, nine-hole course in Springfield, Mo. The first set of clubs he had were discarded wooden implements. As soon as he was able, he bought clubs of his own—and selected those with iron shafts. He has used none other since and insists that the standard of his play would lump from 5 to 10 strokes with wooden clubs.

The youthful Horton Smith never knew what a golf trap looked like until 1927, at the age of 18, he entered the national open tournament at Oakmont. He had some difficulty mastering them and finished up as No. 54 on the list that year.

Given Little Notice.

In 1928, he again took a crack at the championship. Of all the contestants, he attracted the least attention. For he was a boy, unheralded and unknown; "just some kid that fell off one of the Ozark mountains and never stopped rolling until he got here," as some caustic observer described him.

Little notice was taken of Smith, until he landed twenty-seventh on the list. That wasn't so good, but still it was high enough to make a few folks curious.

His Winter Campaign.

The experience the Joplin boy gained in those 1927 and 1928 tournaments, plus the tricks he learned playing around during those summers, decided Smith that he might have a fair chance in some of the contests played in the southland during the recent winter. So "the Boy from the Ozarks" packed his steel shafts and went into battle with the starriest pros in all of America.

In almost his first real competition—playing on the Oklahoma open—he gathered in his first championship with 288. That victory gave him the confidence that was needed. Having beaten stars, many of whom were twinkling before he was born, Smith swept through the ranks like a cyclone.

Unbelievable Figures.

He whipped Walter Hagen in the Catalina and California open. In so doing, he scored 245 for 72 holes—an average of less than 62 for 18 and a batch of figures that sound like crazy fiction, not solid fact.

Smith climaxed his brilliant work by winning the $15,000 La Gorce open, played in Florida, which earnings ran his winter total to a mark beyond $20,000 and which tops all winter season pickings in American golfing annals.

Confidence Personified.

Smith is a terrible driver, but so are many others who have been forced to bow to his prowess. He is brilliant in his work on the green. But in that he has plenty of company. He is calm and cool, confidence personified, with beautiful coordination of eye, mind and muscles. But hundreds of other golfers are that way and never have scaled to the Smithian heights.

"What then is the secret? What makes Smith greater than the others?" a man was asked who had been beaten by the Joplin wizard.

"It's the chip shot—that half-stroke of golf," was the answer "Even the greatest living golfers have difficulty in chipping; they either fall short of the pin or roll beyond it. But Smith is practically perfection itself in his chip shots, for he seems able with monotonous regularity, to drop his ball dead in front of the pin."

"And when a man can do that, and also can drive and putt, and have the poise of Smith, he is a world's champion."

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

One of the most interesting phases of golf is the large number of devices employed to correct errors or faults. Many of these carry certain powers of suggestion that frequently do a lot of good. I watched a well known instructor working over a certain golfer who was hooking the ball out of the county. The instructor at first suggested the correct swing that if followed would bring about a permanent cure. But as the player wanted swifter results, the teacher then suggested that he should hit the ball with the heel of the driver and brassie—to have that feeling of hitting with the heel. A golf ball struck off the toe of the club is usually hooked. One struck off the heel is usually sliced. By attempting to swing the heel of the club into the ball the player soon corrected most of the hooking fault. He at least was no longer swinging the club in a circle with the right hand entirely in control. To hit with the heel there must be much more use of the left hand. The two hands should hit together with the same force, but most golfers refuse to give the left hand and the left arm their chance to work. The idea of attempting to hit with the heel, thinking along these lines, will bring the left hand and left arms into more play, and will also have a tendency to reduce or eliminate any hooking fit.

There is another mental suggestion offered by both Vardon and J. H. Taylor. Both have suggested that the player pick out a spot directly in front of the ball for iron play and hit through that spot. If this advice is followed the club head isn't checked so quickly and there is a feeling of hitting "through" the ball, and not so much hitting "at" the ball As a rule the power of the golf swing is applied much too soon—too far ahead of the impact. In place of swinging the club at increasing speed, the effort is usually a lunge or a wallop, and most of the force has been used up before the club head ever gets to its target. Picking out a spot just in front of the ball as the target will often bring about the needed delay in hitting—what is called "waiting on the blow."

What suggestion or cure is there for slicing? Slicing is nearly always caused by faulty pivoting or turning where the left side is checked or stopped too quickly. If the body is only partially turned on the back swing, or insufficiently turned, when the down swing starts the body is then quite naturally too far ahead of the hands, and the hands in turn are too far ahead of the clubhead. Slicing is one of the natural products of tension, of stopping the body before the weight is allowed to flow on the right foot, with the left shoulder and left hip correctly pivoted. George Duncan calls this fault "leaving the left shoulder behind." Let it take the full and unhampered trip.

Jock Hutchison says that the big difference between good golfers and poor golfers is that the good golfers keep back of the ball as they swing. This is true. And to keep back of the ball they must first get back of the ball, which simply means that they must let the weight get back of the ball on the right foot. If the weight is forward on the left leg at the top of the swing there is no possible chance to get back of the ball or to be there as the down swing starts.

What about missing those three and four foot putts? The best thing to remember when this rash breaks out is to get a more comfortable stance and to lighten the grip. This will help to reduce the tension which causes most of the trouble.

RED BIRDS WIN FROM BROWNIES

Cardinals Capture First Game of City Series By 2-1 Score.

ST. LOUIS, April 13—(U. P.)—Twelve thousands fans saw the St. Louis Cards trim the Browns, 2 to 1, in the first major league exhibition game of the season at Sportsman park here today. By innings:

Browns .....000000100—1 6 1
Cardinals .....00001001x—2 7 0

Batteries: Crowder, Coffman and Ferrell; Alexander, Sherdel, Haines and Jonnard, Wilson.

Rally Wins for Tigers.

DETROIT, April 13—(U. P.)—Tying the score with a three-run rally in the eighth inning, the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto International league club in the tenth today, 6 to 5. By innings:

Toronto ....0040001000—5 10 2
Detroit ....0000002301—6 13 0

Batteries: Cantrell, Martin, Naylor and Hulinger; Whitehill, Uhle, Burns, Vangilder and Shea, Phillips.

New York Postponement.

NEW YORK, April 13 — The Giants and the Washington Senators postponed their exhibition game today, the team managers refusing to risk pitching arms in the chilly weather. A Sunday game will round out the series, which now stands three to one in favor of the Senators.

Hookie Hits Three Homers.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13—(U. P.)—Pat Crawford, rookie infielder, hit three home runs today as the New York Giants second team defeated the Baltimore International league club, 10 to 6.

Pirates Trim Memphis.

MEMPHIS, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates came out on top today in their game with Memphis by the close margin of 2-1. The Pirates pulled ahead in the seventh when they picked up their two runs.

Cubs Shut Out Blues.

KANSAS CITY, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The Cubs again defeated the local team here when they whitewashed Kansas City by a score of 5-0 today. Carlson pitched for the Chicago nationals.

White Sox Drub Hoosiers.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Tie games seem to be favorites with the White Sox and Indianapolis. Today the game went into 12 innings before the White Sox could come out ahead, 7-5. Lyons, Walsh and Conally were put on the mound today for the White Sox.

LEGION BACKING BASEBALL PLAN

Service Men Get Behind Summer Campaign For Lincoln Boys.

Organization plans for junior baseball teams to be promoted by the Lincoln post of the American Legion were announced Saturday by Bert Anderson, chairman of the committee in charge of the play.

The Lincoln Legionnaires plan a busy season of baseball for the youngsters, teams being made up of boys 16 years or under, regulations stating that boys born prior to Sept. 14, 1912, will be ineligible for junior play.

Thirty Lincoln Teams.

Organization plans call for at least 30 teams in Lincoln, competing in an elimination round, and a county tournament booked for June 27, 28 and 29. Winners will have an opportunity to qualify up through district, state, regional and national tournament play.

As an added incentive to boys to turn out for the junior squads, arrangements have been made to provide all members of junior teams with week day passes to Nebraska State league games at Landis field.

Baseball Meeting Monday.

Chairman Bert Anderson has called a meeting of team managers and sponsors for Monday, 7:30 p. m., at the American Legion hall, 1516 N street. He also announces that boys may call any member of the following committee to list their names as available for junior team play: Henry W. Andrews, B4422; Herman Yost, MO41; Werner Lehman, MO201W; H. E. Roland, F4541, Floyd Atkins, F6583; Al O'Dell, B4000; Herbert D. Gish, B6891; Bert Anderson, B1045.

In Front Rank of Derby Favorites

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 13—(U. P.)—Roguish Eye has again forged into the front rank of candidates for the Kentucky derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs. The son of Flittergold-Sly Wink was among the favorites during the winter, but did not show impressively in his early spring work.

During the past week, however, the big, strapping colt, owned by J. J. Coughlan has come along fast and is highly fancied by many shrewd horsemen. Roguish Eye is heavily bodied and requires a strong hand.

Jockey R. Jones, who still rides him in the derby arrived a week ago and seems to be able to handle him better than any previous jockey.

Trainer Highly Pleased.

Although Roguish Eye still seems to carry excess weight his trainer, Tiny Scofield, is pleased with the colt's present condition.

Roguish Eye was unquestionably one of the best juveniles of last year. He was beaten by a head by High Strung in the Futurity at Belmont park. That was Roguish Eye's last race. In his previous start in the American National Futurity at Arlington park, he came from fourteenth place to finish third to Double Heart and Clyde Van Dusen.

Reports from the east indicate that Harry Payne Whitney's Beacon Hill is a "dark horse" which will bear watching. The son of Broomstick-Yankee Maid is said to have shown brilliant form in his early trials.

Golden Bear Crew In Hollow Victory

OAKLAND, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Rowing with a magnificent and powerful stroke, the University of California varsity crew today defeated the University of Washington varsity by seven lengths over the three-mile estuary course here.

At no time after the first quarter-mile was the result of the race in doubt. Despite the gallant efforts of the Husky oarsmen, they could not cut down the lead of the Golden Bears, even when the latter reduced their stroke.

The two universities divided the other two races of the regatta—the twenty-sixth annual contest—with California winning the freshman race by a quarter of a length and the powerful Washington junior varsity defeating the California jayvees by three and one-half lengths.

California's time for the course was 15:14 4-5, which failed by less than six seconds to break the course record set by a California crew in 1923.

The Washington jayvees established a record for their class when they rowed the three-mile distance in 15:45. The old record was 16:26 2-5, established by Washington.

California's freshmen came to the end of their two-mile course in 10.37. The record for freshmen is 10:23, and was set by California.

Huskies Win On Cinders.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Led by Rufus Kiser and Steve Anderson, their national distance and hurdling champions, the University of Washington Huskies defeated the California Golden Bear trackmen, 75½ to 55½, here today.

Kiser, long legged, lean Husky runner, opened up the day's fireworks by running the four laps in four minutes and 21 seconds, the best time for the mile yet made on the coast this year.

Harry Carter of the Bears was a scant three yards behind the flying Kiser and was trailed by Cram of Washington.

High School Track.

FOUR PLATTSMOUTH VETERANS.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb. April 13— Four lettermen are reporting to Coach P. A. Rothert of Plattsmouth high school this track season. The veterans are H. Spangler, mile and shot; H. Meisinger, sprints and hurdles; H. Dew, hurdles; and Wiles quarter mile.

New men showing up well include Teepell, discus; J. Galloway, distances; Hennings and Lutz, sprints; McCleary, jumps; Yelick, mile and high jump; Herald javelin; McCrary, hurdles; R. Warren and F. Warren weights. The schedule:

April 19—Dual at Ashland.
April 26—Wesleyan invitation meet at Lincoln.
May 1—Dual at Nebraska City.
May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

SPRIN GWORK AT BANCROFT.

BANCROFT, Neb., April 13.—Spring athletics at Bancroft high school, under the supervision of Coach Romig Krause, are divided between track and baseball.

Lettermen out for track are O. Preuss, R. Bucklin, T. Tighe, H. Graff, P. Rembe and O. Novacek. Outstanding marks made include 10 feet 8 inch in the pole vault and 116 feet with the discus by Preuss; 5 feet 8 inches in the high jump and 40 feet 5 inches with the shot by Tighe; 19 feet in the broad jump and 5 feet 6 inches in the high jump by Bucklin. Graff and Novacek have been doing around 5 minutes in the mile. The schedule:

April 16.—Bancroft-Lyons-Scribner triangular.
April 20.—Bancroft-Rosalie-Pender triangular.
May 3.—N. E. C. A. meet at Oakland

WEYANT BUSY AT GOTHENBURG.

GOTHENBURG, Neb., April 13.—Coach Harlan Weyant has a squad of 40 candidates out for track at Gothenburg high school this season. The squad includes five lettermen.

Veterans include Harold Barnes, all-around athlete, hurdles, sprints, discus, broad jump and shot; Glen Hampton, vault, broad jump and 100-yard dash; Barnes, hurdles, 220-yard dash; Lee Raetz, 440-yard ad 880-yard.

Rex Addie, freshman, looks like one of the "finds" of this section. He has been running second to aBrnes in the low hurdles and broad jump and has done 5 feet 7 inches in the high jump and 10 feet 9 inches in the pole vault.

tOher good prospects include S. Atkinson, distances; C. Carlson, weights; O. Jenkins, hurdles; H. Caswell, jumps. The schedule:

April 19.—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway.
April 26.—Southwest Nebraska league meet at oGthenburg.
May 4—Hastings invitation meet.
May 10-11.—State championships at Lincoln.
May 17.—Dawson county meet at Lexington.

DARK OUTLOOK AT WILBER.

WILBER, Neb., April 13—Prospects for a winning track team are rather dark at Wilber high this season due to the small number of candidates out for the team. The squad includes Gaylord Littrell, Henry Freeouf, Elmert Aksamit, Milo Smith, John Zwonechek, Robert Chase, Albert Janouch, Norman Prucha and Arthur Aksamit.

Freeouf and Littrell are the outstanding candidates Freeouf heaved the shot 44 feet 3 inches in practice, has hurled the javilin 152 feet 10 inches, the discus 105 feet and high jumped 5 feet 4 inches. Littrell is making good time in the sprints, having had two season experience. The schedule:

April 16—Dewitt at Dewitt.
April 20—Crete-Friend-Wilber at Crete.
April 26—Wesleyan invitation at Lincoln.
May 3—Southeast championships at Beatrice.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.
May 17—Saline county meet at Crete.

TABLE ROCK TRACK PROSPECTS.

TABLE ROCK, Neb. April 13—The three lettermen reporting to J. W. Jones, Table Rock track coach, are Roy Shepherd, weights; Louis Jass, weights and sprints; and Frank Smith, middle distance.

Promising new material includes Bain, sprints, Hubka, weights; Herrick, Stehlik, Morton, Harris and Townsend, distances; Tomek, high jump and weights. The schedule:

April 19—Humboldt-Dawsen-Table Rock at Humboldt.
April 26—DuBois, Burchard, Table Rock at DuBoise.
April 30—Mudecas meet at Dunbar.
May 3—Southeast Nebraska meet at Beatrice.
May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.
May 7—County meet at Pawnee City.
May 10-11 — State championships at Lincoln.

AURORA OPENS WITH VICTORY.

AURORA, Neb., April 13—Coach Del Danker has three veterans on his Aurora high track squad. The lettermen are Captain Maurice Stenson, Max Hogg and Vic Jhnson.

Stenson, running for the third season under Aurora colors, ranks among the best high school milers in the state. Hogg is showing good form in the dashes and Vic Johnson in the weights, jumps and hurdles.

New men of promise include Norbert Meismer, Charles Benson, Maurice Toof, Melvin Spray, Glen Cogil and Irvine Francis. The schedule opened with a 76½-71½ victory over Central City. The slate:

April 26-27—Wesleyan or Grand Island meet.
May 4—Hastings invitation meet.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

Rear-Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, played on the baseball team in the late eighties.

EASY TO BUY

For Instance, the Coach $270 Down, and monthly Payments of $39.54

Your present car will probably cover the entire first Payment.

The H. M. C. Purchase Plan Offers the lowest available finance terms on the balance.

EASY TO OWN

On our own streets, here in Lincoln, Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 20½ mils per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Hundreds of records all over the country during "Challenger Week" prove Essex economy. Commercial users operating large flets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car they ever tested.

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in. That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their present cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives.

Max Chatters Much Like Heir to Kaiser Wilhelm's Job

Success of "Fritz" In Gotham Ring Inflates Berlin Boxer's Cranium

NEW YORK, April 13—If Max Schmeling is nothing else, he certainly is a youth who holds himself in rather extraordinary esteem.

Victory over the "all-in" Risko and the hysteria with which Schmeling's triumph was greeted, apparently has had the effect of giving Max an elaborately enlarged head, as the more gentle of the fancy might phrase it.

Forgetful of Knockouts.

Forgetful of the fact that he was knocked out by Gypsy Daniels, a terrible palooka, and also kayoed by Larry Gaines, who is ditto, and unmindful of the knowledge that he never beat a real good man in his life, Schmeling suddenly puts on airs, assumes almost a Prussian military pose, and all but "goose-steps" as he tells the folks in this part of the world what they are to do with reference to him.

Makes Piker of Sharkey.

Compared with Schmeling, this Jack Sharkey from up Boston way, always rated as the great "I" man of ringdom, is but a wispy little violet.

Schmeling can praise himself higher and show more disdain for old John Dominick Public and all his neighbors in two sentences than Sharkey could do in a year of press agent coaching!

And, beyond all that, Schmeling suddenly looks up as a young man who careth little about contracts, written or verbal, and who conducts himself as his temperamental moods dictate.

When Schmeling came to these parts, a pal of his earlier German days, one Buelow, was his manager. The contract was bona fide. But some time after reaching the United States, Schmeling and Buelow quarrelled.

Then Max announced that he had "fired" Manager Buelow and that henceforth the firm of Jacobs and McCarney would do his business.

After Schmeling beat Risko, the German sailed for his fatherland. Prior thereto, he accorded to the Jacobs-McCarney combination the right to make matches for him in the U. S. A.

Repudiation No. 2.

So the boys promptly signed Max to mix it with Paolino in June, the winner to meet Jack Sharkey for the whoop-la championship in September.

And now what do you think Maxie has done?

Nothing, except to cable over to these shores and make the attempt to repudiate the Paolino contract by taking the attitude:

"Let Paolino and Sharkey fight it out in June and I, who have established myself, will meet the winner for the championship. It is not necessary for me to fight anybody in June to prove my right to make my next fight for the title."

Mere Scraps of Paper.

Quaint situation, isn't it? Schmeling first repudiates Buelow, whose contract is regarded as absolutely binding by the New York State hooks up with Jacobs and McCarney and gives them full power to do his business. They sign him to fight Paolino and then Schmeling cables what is equivalent to a repudiation of their action. Contracts with Max? He seems to consider such as mere "scraps of paper!"

If you want to get a slant concerning Schmeling's idea of himself and his thoughts of his own greatness, it is easily possible through the medium of an exchange of cablegrams between Jack Dempsey and the lad from Germany who may prove to be one of the most overrated fighters of the past 10 seasons.

Dempsey Sends Cable.

When Dempsey took a plunge into the promotional ocean, he decided to sign up Schmeling to fight under his auspices via the simple process of getting Buelow, the duly authorized manager, to sign up in Schmeling's behalf. When Buelow had signed the articles, Dempsey sent this cable to Schmeling:

"I am signing you through your manager, Mr. Buelow, three matches, first for world's heavyweight championship, July 2, at Detroit. Putship belt, with diamonds, up for winner of championship. National and New York boxing commissions recognize Buelow as only manager. Building arena with seating capacity of approximately 100,000. Wire me when you leave for America, for me to prepare publicity. Max, this is your big chance. Best personal regards.

"JACK DEMPSEY."

That Haughty Reply.

Schmeling replied that he would refuse to box under any contracts which Buelow made, stated that Jacobs, partnered with McCarney, was his only manager and then, dipping his pen into his "personality perfume," sprayed himself as follows:

"If necessary, I will stay here until Buelow's contract expires. I can make plenty of money here now. I am as big here today as you were in the United States. Everywhere I go crowds follow me. I have been offered large sums to make movies. As for boxing, I can do that here. Joe Jacobs can promote and send for boxers in America. I will draw tremendous gates here.

"MAX SCHMELING."

Announcement of Schmeling's candidacy for the presidency of Germany is expected hourly! Or will Max prefer to restore—and grab for himself—Wilhelm's kaiserling job?

Voigt Wins Final Pinehurst Links

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13—(U. P.)—George Voigt, New York, successfully defended his north and south amateur golf title today, mastering William C. Fownes, jr., Pittsburgh, in the 36-hole finals, nine up and eight to play.

Voigt was four-up at the end of the first 18, after having a medal of 72, and easily disposed of his opponent in the afternoon round.

Van Ryn Conquers Japanese.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13—(U. P.)—John Van Ryn, sixth ranking American tennis star, proved his superiority over Sadadazu Onda, Japanese Davis cup player, today and won the men's singles of the north and south tennis tournament, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

CAT PREPARED CLAW BIG BOY

which failed to materialize two years ago.

Emanuel will enter the ring at 177 pounds and Hudkins will weigh about 166, giving the San Franciscan a decided advantage in weight.

Odds Favor Emanuel.

Betting odds on the fight have fluctuated for several days, but now favor Emanuel at 10 to 8.

The swing of public fancy to Emanuel came when his trainers sent out the word that the fighter's injured right hand had mended and would be ready for hard service.

Emanuel made his final test of the supposedly ailing fist today, hammering away at two sparring partners. At the end of the sparring, he announced that everything was all right and that he felt he would enter the ring at top condition.

Cat All Set to Claw.

Hudkins' camp made no secret of the fact that the Nebraska "Wildcat" planned to use his famous driving and rushing tactics against Emanuel. The Ace predicted his aggressive style will wear down his opponent.

Most Los Angeles fight experts, however, side with Emanuel, despite Hudkins' threats and promises of annihilation. The weight and reach advantages of Emanuel, combined with superior boxing skill, will offset whatever edge Ace may pile up in forcing the fighting, it is thought.

Referee Not Yet Named.

The question of a referee may not be settled until a few minutes before the fight, according to an announcement today.

George Blake, manager of Fidel Labarba, and Jack Kennedy, naval officer, are considered the leading possibilities for the job.

MAJORS ON MARK TO TILT THE LID

many experts believe the Browns will show more strength this season. Others, however, believe the Browns played over their heads last year and will sink to fourth or fifth. The Browns have a strong pitching staff and have picked up two good rookies in Tut Jenkins, a hard hitting outfielder, and Rick Ferrell, a great catcher.

Giants and Cubs.

The Giants and Cubs are getting all the play in the National league. John J. McGraw's club is not much different from the one which chased the Cards to the wire last season.

The Giants will start the season with four pitchers they did not have at the opening of last season—Joe Genewich, Carl Hubbell, Carl Mays and Jack Scott. Bill Walker, who was ill most of last season, and Dutch Henry, who was suspended a larger part of the year, also are ready for duty.

Fred Leach has been added to the outfield and Ed Roush seems to have recovered from an injury which hampered his play last season.

Cubs Have Husky Attack.

With Cuyler, Stephenson, Wilson, Hornsby, Hartnett and Grimm in the lineup, the Cubs have one of the most powerful offensive teams in baseball. If Joe McCarthy can keep his pitchers working smoothly down through September, instead of burning them up during the summer drive, the Cubs are quite likely to finish one-two.

The Pirates have a strong offensive team, but the pitching is uncertain and the defense is not too stable. The Waners, however, make the Pirates dangerous.

Cardinals Not So Good.

The St. Louis Cardinals apparently have lost strength, but they have the pitching to stay in the first division and may possibly figure in the pennant race.

The Cleveland Indians, entirely rebuilt, and the Cincinnati Reds, strong defensively and in the box, are the dark horses in their respective leagues.

Kosky Runs Quarter Under 49 Seconds

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 13—(U. P.)—The University of Missouri defeated Washington university of St. Louis, 82 to 49, in a dual track meet here today in which Bill Kosky, veteran quarter-miler, established a new Missouri record of 48.8 in the 440-yard dash.

Jayhawks Down Aggies.

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 13—(U. P.)—The Kansas university baseball team won the second game of the series with the Kansas Aggies here today, 7 to 6, to even the count with the last year's champions of the Big Six conference.

Occidental college will play three football games by night in the Rose bowl at Pasadena, Cal.

STATE HI BOARD SANCTIONS MEETS

Official sanction was granted three more high school track and field meets Saturday by Secretary Walter I. Black of the Nebraska High School Athletic association. This brought the total of authorized meets for the season to 46 contests. The additions:

April 19—Quadrangular meet at Ulysses.

April 26—Deshler invitation meet.

April 27—Little Western Four conference meet at Lisco.

GLOVE KNIGHTS ON MONDAY BILL IN LOCAL ARENA

ting, mixing type, has wrought no scare in the local boy's training quarters, but the fact is significant that Harold has prepared with more industry and zeal for his go with Garcia than in advance of any other combat of his fist-swinging career.

That Dusty Trail.

Harold has been hiking over dusty roads and hard pavements in a series of daily runs, building up his endurance, and working out at the local "Y" gym in a string of glove workouts designed to improve his boxing and add to his rare punching power.

The Lincoln boy tapered off Saturday in a short exchange with his sparring partners and was pronounced in the pink for the Garcia bout. Harold will devote both Sunday and Monday to a "going easy" program and expects to step into the ring at the Liberty in perfect physical fettle.

The business of giving away so much weight has provoked no worries in the Matthews camp and the Lincoln mite figures on superior condition and punching power to decide the Monday battle in his favor. Herman Joyce, an Omaha referee, has been nominated by State Boxing Commissioner Ira Vorhies to serve as third man in the ring.

Six Bouts; 33 Rounds.

The full card of six bouts and 33 rounds, arranged by Matchmaker Moon for the National Guard program, will feature extreme speed. That's the high note of the ballyhoo spreaders, at any rate, and a glance at the cast of leather-shovers serves to verify that particular claim. Harold Matthews is the only legitimate flyweight on the bill, but the form sheet also includes five bantams, two featherweights, a pair of junior lightweights and a brace of lightweights.

A novel feature of the program is the assured presence of three bantams—Freddie Penn, Pep Jennings and Flash Random—all of whom are bidding for glove engagements with Matthews. Penn and Jennings are the most experienced of the trio and Penn perhaps is the most spectacular. Victorious in a string of nine battles, his opponent every time going down via the kayo route, Freddie is hot on the trail of a whirl at the winner of the Monday night main event.

KRENK SOON IN LINCOLN FOLD

Links figures that the local club's ace of last year right soon will be in line to sign a 1929 contract. With Krenk it is a case of play the game with the Links or run the risk of suspension, the latter sometimes being none too easy to lift.

"Krenk likes the game too well to be quitting," Manager Bob suggested Saturday night, "so I am figuring he will be with us when the opening bell rings May 14."

Browne announced Saturday that Yohe, southpaw pitcher, and Gradoville, second baseman, had filed formal requests that they be permitted to enroll their names as voluntary retirements and the local manager indicated that he was willing to give consent.

To fill the shoes of Gradoville, Manager Bob has signed two second sackers—Thomas of Chicago and Gabler of Jefferson City, Mo., Thomas was with the 1928 Links during the workout season and practically had the keystone bag job cinched, when an acute attack of homesickness, perhaps a longing for that girl friend, pulled him back to the Windy City. Browne anticipates that Thomas, who has had himself reinstated by Judge Landis, will easily make the grade, although Gabler will be given a careful going over during the practice workouts, beginning May 8.

Yohe's place on the Link's pitching staff will be taken by Mike Janesko, a House of David pitcher from Orchard Farm, Mo. Janesko is a six-foot right-hander and his record with the House of David aggregation, in competition with numerous professional outfits last summer, impresses Brownie with the belief that he has hooked a high-class flinger.

James Menzie, a House of David outfielder, who slugged the ball at a .360 clip in over a hundred games last year is to come with Pitcher Janesko to the Lincoln camp.

League President Beltzer announces that every one of the eight clubs on the circuit has been busy for weeks acquiring desirable young talent and that every manager in the league predicts he will start the pennant campaign with a club materially stronger than last year.

Brass Tacks

supreme governing body controlling all amateur athletics in this country. The A. A. U. officials today admit that they have failed. Several reasons are advanced for their failure. The main reason is that the powers of government which they assumed to exercise were not delegated to them by those over whom they claimed jurisdiction.

"The colleges have no right to assume to govern those who are not under the jurisdiction of the colleges any more than the A. A. U. has the right to assume jurisdiction over non-members. If Mr. Brundage's proposal means that the organizations that have behind them an athletic history and that are now promoting amateur athletics are to be asked to attend a meeting and are to be allowed to decide for themselves matters pertaining to their own athletic affairs, then much good will be accomplished.

"The American people believe in the principle of self government. The amateur sports promotional bodies will administer their own activities. If they federate and work co-operatively, they will accomplish more than they will if they function as independent units. It is to be hoped that they will work more or less unitedly. They, however, will decide for themselves how they will function."

MAJOR GRIFFITH'S statement, the logic and fairness of which cannot be successfully controverted, makes it clear that college sport and the A. A. U. usurpers cannot harmonize. The athletic union has too long stood for methods which smack of ward politics, as exemplified by the Tammany clique and other eastern political bosses.

Meantime, signs are multiplying that the union is slipping. The rapidity and completeness of the slipping movement will depend largely on how much fervor and loyalty college men throw into the movement aimed at unhorsing the A. A. U. Presenting a united front, the colleges easily could drive the union into the oblivion which it has long deserved.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, Chicago university's patriarchal director of athletics and much admired character in the realm of college sport, has assumed an attitude toward interscholastic basketball which his numerous admirers will keenly regret. Planting a chip on his shoulder, Amos Alonzo proclaims that Chicago U. will stage a national basketball tournament in 1930 regardless of the recent action of the national high school athletic association, which officially banned the Lake City carnival.

In view of the fact that three-fourths or more of the states hold membership in the national association, the latter body unquestionably has the authority to turn thumbs down on Mr. Stagg's tournament and then make good on its decree.

The attitude of Mr. Stagg justifies the conclusion that he is claiming squatter's rights; he first "thought up" the national tournament idea and purposes to keep on with the tourney without regard to the wishes or opinions of the men whose authority to speak for the high schools of the national cannot in logic be questioned.

Director Stagg, we fear, is convicting himself of inconsistency. He is standing firmly with Major Griffith in the war the latter is waging against the A. A. U., the most undemocratic body today in American sport, and in the same breath is defying the organization which, in the very nature things, has supreme rights and privileges when it speaks for the high schools of the nation.

NOR is Director Stagg wholly consistent in his attitude toward the national collegiate association track and field meet, which has been staged annually in the Lake City for the past 10 years. Selection of Chicago as the scene of this meet has been made by a special committee of N. C. A. members, of which the Chicago director is chairman.

Unfortunately for the national meet, Chicago has not made a success of the annual track and field carnival. The Illinois metropolis has been shamefully inappreciative of its obligations: its refusal to patronize the meet has been little short of a disgrace.

Numerous mid-western cities, Lincoln included, have been more than willing to take over the national meet. Lincoln, in fact, came forward with a definite offer to underwrite the meet with an attendance guarantee of substantial dimensions. Other members of the national track committee were willing to vote the meet to Lincoln, but the committee chairman being none other than Director Stagg, has barred the way to a change. A majority of the committee might have outvoted the Chicago director, but the members, being friendly to the chairman, have hesitated to act.

As matters stand, Director Stagg has stacked the cards to again stage the meet in Chicago and, unless the Lake City quite surprises the college world, the event will be run off in the presence of empty stands, whereas if staged in some other city it could and probably would be converted into an outstanding financial success.

THAT Blackburne-Shires-Cissell turmoil of the White Sox spring training campaign in baseball may have been quite as heated as represented in the press dispatches from Texas, but something seems to hint that the Comiskey boys were in a get-together, the same being designed to break up the publicity monopoly enjoyed by the Cubs.

Whether legitimate or spurious, the feathers flew furiously and the Sox and their touring details suddenly were lifted from the back pages of the Chicago newspapers and gained front page prominence, with eight-column decorations, all of which must have been immensely pleasing to the venerable owner of the Sox.

Peace was quickly patched, Shires and Cissell were restored to their places on the Sox squad and the public, which eats publicity, even though it knows it has been spoofed, will double-step to the box office and buy until it hurts.

A hoax, you say? What of it! The public even pays to gaze at the ridiculous antics of hippodroming heavyweight rasslers and then cries for more, so where's the harm in an occasional baseball spoof?

JOHN BULL, that fat old rascal with the mutton-chops, is conceding nothing to Uncle Sam in the battle of the brassies between the golf pros of the two nations dated for late this month on an English course. As a conceder in anything, John is a howling bust. What he wants he takes, and the other fellow may cheerfully help himself to the leavings.

After the late Walt Travis upset the dope bucket and won the British amateur years ago, John decided that Walt's Schenectady putter should be tossed in the rough. Result: A special rule barring the Travis style of putter. Similar happenings with reference to America's slotted clubs. Ditto for Uncle Sam's steel-shafted implements. John didn't invent them, so John simply won't have them.

In consequence, the Yankee professionals, striving this year to retain the Ryder cup, which they won last year on an American course, will be bearing up under the handicap of using wooden clubs—a disadvantage which may be a material factor in the result of the match.

But John is nothing unless obstinate. The fact that slotted clubs and steel shafts typify improvement in golf, making for lower scores, is so much cinders for the British ashcan. Nevertheless, the Hagens, the Smiths and others of the Yank party aren't licked yet and, until the final count is in, the suspicion amounts to a well defined hunch that they won't be licked at all.

qualify at all. Among the listed exemptions are the first 30 finishers and ties in the 1928 event, members of the Ryder cup team, other American professionals who play in the British open and, with one exception, foreign pros visiting America. The exception applies to Canadian entries, who are invited to qualify "in the district most convenient."

Play In Nineteen Districts.

There will be 19 such districts this year and June 10 has been set aside for the 36 hole test. The districts in numerical order and the clubs designated in each to sponsor the qualifying rounds, follow:

Boston district, Worcester, Mass., Country club; New York district, St. Albans, L. I., Golf club; Philadelphia district, Torresdale-Frankford Country club; Richmond, Va., district, Hermitage Country club; Atlanta district, East Lake Country club; Dallas, Tex., district, Brook Hollow Golf club; Pittsburgh district, Oakmont Country club; Cleveland district, Elyria, O., Country club; Detroit district, Country Club of Detroit; Chicago district, Olympia Fields, Matteson, Ill; Minneapolis district, Golden Valley Golf club; St. Louis district, Normandie Golf club; Kansas City district, Hillcrest Country club; Denver district, Wilshire Country club; Los Angeles district, Lakeside Golf club; San Francisco district, Lake Merced Golf Country club; Seattle district, Seattle Golf club; Omaha district, Omaha Field club, and Dayton, Ohio, district, Miami Valley Country club.

List of Exempted Players.

Harlan county meet at Alma. Each meet should produce some good records.

Invitation at York.

The first of a series of invitation meets will open at York with the holding of the annual York college invitation affair Saturday afternoon.

Several Nebraska high schools will compete in the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Coach H. M. Garrett's Beatrice boys apparently having the best chance of delivering the goods.

While main interest, of course, will center on the county and invitation meets, the athletes will also devote considerable time to the annual interscholastic selective pentathlon which starts this week and finishes April 24. Grand championship and division banners will be awarded the winners, along with medals for the outstanding athletes.

Lincoln vs. Tech On Book This Week

Lincoln high school track and field artists will open their 1929 season next Saturday when they journey to Omaha and clash with Omaha Tech high in a duel meet. No announcement has been made by Coach Sed Hartman as to the outcome of the team try-outs, but five lettermen and a squad of promising new comers will be included in the team personnel.

Captain Fulcher, Davey, Rea and Masterson are the foremost dash men, while Fulcher, and McGeachin are outstanding 440-yard contestants. Half-milers include Holcomb and Johns, while Ayres, Stump and Butcher are the likeliest milers. The last two are lettermen, but Ayres having made a mark of 4 minutes and 50 seconds in the inter-class mile event, is considered a favorite.

Minor and Weir are promising in the high jump, the former being a letterman. Bauer and Minor are outstandimg pole vaulters. Fowles, who jumped 19 feet 10 inches in the inter-class meet Friday, and Weir and King, are broad jump prospects. Meyer, a letterman, will be available in the weigh events, as will George Sauer, with high marks in the discus, shot put and javelin. Schmitt also is candidate for shot put honors.

Jackson Declines Enter Conference

OMAHA, Neb., April 13—Jackson high of Lincoln will not consider membership in a proposed high school athletic conference including Omaha and Council Bluffs schools and Fremont, according to word sent to a meeting here Saturday.

Conference schedules would make its program too heavy was the reason given.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

CHICAGO GRAIN.

By International News Service

CHICAGO, April 13

WHEAT—Closed ½ to ¾c higher today. Corn was ¾c lower to ¾c advance and oats ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher.

Grains were steady and without material price change in the early trading. Commission houses were on both sides of the market with some buying credited to foreigners. May corn again showed firmness on buying by commission houses. Locals were the principal sellers.

Trade in wheat was moderately active but mixed. Commission houses and local professionals were buyers on news from Washington indicating probably establishment of a $500,000,000 revolving fund for the purpose of handling the surplus crops. On the bulge, however, the market met with selling by other commission houses. Liverpool closed ¼ to ½d better.

Weather conditions over the winter wheat belt generally favorable with rains in some parts. Farm relief legislation seems to be about the sole topic of conversation surrounding the grain markets. Estimated receipts were 21 cars. Stocks of wheat at Minneapolis for one day decreased 60,000 bushel. Shipments for one day were 73 cars of wheat and 34,504 bar. of flour.

Corn started steady to ⅝c lower with the December future showing the weakness. Commission houses were fair buyers while locals supplied the offerings. Trade was just fair. Estimated receipts were 72 cars.

Oats opened unchanged to ⅛c lower. Trade was moderate. Estimated receipts were 19 cars.

Provisions ruled easier.

Grains opened irregular today. Wheat was ¼c down to ⅛c up; corn unchanged to ⅛c lower an oats unchanged to ⅛c down.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 13

A belated rally in the oil stocks, at the end of a dull and heavy week-end session, turned the trend of prices moderately upward today.

Industrial stocks as a whole were under the effects of profit-taking and professional selling, and were unable to gain very much ground in the half session.

The spurt in oils accompanied reports of a practical agreement among producers on a new plan for reducing crude production. Pan-American B led the upward move, with a 2¾-point jump to 59¾ and new gains of a point or so were scored by the Standard Oils, Marland, Sinclair and other well known independents. The steel, copper and motor stocks were dull and irregular from start to finish.

There was very little enthusiasm among the bulls in the stock market at the week-end session, and after an irregular opening most of the active industrial stocks sagged to a slightly lower level of prices just before noon. Exceptions to that rule were found in the newcomer specialties to the active list, most of which were held strongly in position by the pools and professionals.

The week-end business reviews were mainly favorable, though a slight falling off in production was reported in a number of the important industries. Manufacturers of motor trucks, motor car accessories, airplane and other products issued very favorable surveys of conditions in their respective lines, which have recently been features by the formation of large new corporations to carry on their business.

Speculative interest centered in the first hour on United States Steel, in view of the forthcoming stockholders meeting and the announcement of the new stock offering next week. Estimates of the price to be asked for the stock ranged from $100 to $150 a share, but it is generally admitted that stockholders will have valuable "rights" in connection with the recapitalization of the big corporation. Steel common moved up fractionally to above 190 in the first period, but a flood of selling orders swept in, preventing any further upward move.

The same was true of American Can, General Motors and other leaders in yesterday's closing rally. Losses of 1 to 2½ points in these stocks represented little more than profit taking and professional short selling, but the side of selling orders was also strong to permit of anything like a rally in any section of the list.

Buying of the principal amusement stocks motor accessories, utilities and high-priced specialties featured the second hour.

Yellow Truck and Briggs Manufacturing, the old favorites in the motor accessory group, received good support slightly below Friday's final prices, but were unable to gather momentum for a new upward move. Officials of the Yellow Truck Company predicted the best year in its history for that corporation this year.

There was also a better tone in the oil stocks, due to the belief that the producers will find a basis of co-operation through the state authorities rather than through federal regulations, or the amendment or repeal of anti-trust laws. The Standard Oil of New York, New Jersey and California held their ground, and good buying was in progress in Mid-Continent, Sinclair and Marland.

Coppers sold off with the softening of the market for copper metal, but stocks in this group have had a tremendous rise in recent weeks and a moderate reaction has been somewhat over-due. Rails were steady with stocks of the Van Sweringen Nickel Palte group in the lead of a slow and featureless move.

The market was steady at the opening today, with extremely narrow price changes in the active issues. A block of 5,000 shares of Yellow Truck sold at 47⅝, up ⅛ from Fridays' close. General Motors sold up ⅜ at 86 for 2,200 shares; Hupp, Packard and Brigs sold fgractionally hiher.

The steel stocks were active and strong, with Bethlehem up a point at 110⅝; United States Steel up ½ at 190; Crucible up ¼ at 89¼, and Vanadium down ⅜ at 94½. Little change was noted in the coppers, Anaconda advancing ⅛ to 142⅜; Kennecott up ⅝ at 84⅞, and Inspiration Consolidated down a point at 51⅛.

The market specialties moved within a narrow price range. American Can receded ⅝ to 133; Advance Rumely was up ¼ at 90¾; General Electric up ⅛ at 224⅝; Montgomery Ward down ⅝ at 117⅛; Sears Roebuck up ⅜ at 146⅝; Westinghouse up ⅛ at 149.

Most of the rails sold fractionally. Erie was in demand at 71⅝, up nearly a point. New Haven was up ½ at 91⅝; New York Central up ¼ at 184 and Union Pacific up ⅛ at 216½.

Oil prices were mixed. Marland sold up ¼ at 41⅝; Pan-American B unchanged at 57; Sinclair down ⅛ at 38⅝; Standard of California down ⅝ at 79⅛; Standard of New York up ⅝ at 41⅝; Atlantic Refining down ½ at 87½.

Consolidated Gas led the utilities and sold up ⅛ at 104½.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspapers Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisements.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisement should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick reference.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:

1 Time	.13
3 Times	.10
7 Times	.09

These offices are open to receive advertisements from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. daily. All advertisements received up until 12:30 p. m. will appear in all city editions the same day. All ads received between 12:30 p. m. and 10:00 p. m. will appear in all editions the following day.

The Only New Cars are in the Salesroom; Those on the Road are Used

EVERYBODY IS DRIVING A USED CAR, the employer and the employe — the millionaire and the clerk — those with independent fortunes and those with comfortable incomes from modest positions.

EVERY CAR THAT PASSED YOUR HOME TODAY is a Used Car and the only difference between them is that some are second-hand and others are first-hand.

"SECOND-HAND" REFERS ONLY TO changes in ownership and implies nothing as to condition. The man with a "second-hand" car may have the better car of the two.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER POINT, TOO. New cars carry a nationally advertised selling price, set by the manufacturer to show a profit for himself—the distributor—and the local dealer.

BUT RIGHT HERE, LET US SAY THAT motor cars are sold on a narrower percentage than other like class of merchandise.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE USED CAR PRICE is determined by a dealer after the car has had a big chance to prove what it is actually worth on the road.

AND THE BUYER, REALIZING THAT, TOO, may be assured that there is no reason why he should not buy a good USED CAR—we said good — while there are many logical reasons why he should.

IF YOU ONLY KNEW HOW CAUTIOUS the dealer is himself, you would banish all doubt when dealing with a legitimate house—but on the other hand, my goodness, what a chance you are taking the other way.

A LEGITIMATE AUTOMOBILE DEALER HAS JUST ONE thing to guard—that's his Reputation. This is the one business that depends on no degree on transient trade. We have to live among those we do business with.

THAT'S WHY THE OTHER CLASS OF dealers don't stay long in business—at all—or in any one town for any great length of time. They can't.

SO WHEN YOU TRY TO SETTLE THE QUESTION of New Car vs. Used Car, let nothing but your pocketbook be your guide but guide your pocketbook to a reliable dealer. You can be safe in either case.

THE DIFFERENCE IN USED CAR PRICES is clearly a difference in intrinsic worth, i. e., market value. No other line of merchandise is priced so closely to intrinsic values.

THERE IS NO MONOPOLY ON USED CARS.

USED CAR COMPETITION IS KEEN, wherein lies the buyer's security. Buy NOW. Bargains are numerous.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

SAFETY IS AIM OF DESOTO SIX

Engineers Stress Efficient Brakes and Rapid Acceleration.

Cooperate With Safety Bureau and Police to Reduce Accidents.

While safety bureaus and police departments throughout the nation are directing their efforts to prevention of accidents, the engineering brains of the country, in automotive laboratories behind the scenes, are co-operating in a silent but equally effective campaign towards the same end.

"Leaving aside the human equation and the tendency of drivers to be careless, the margin of safety from a mechanical point of view depends almost entirely on the principles of quick acceleration and perfect braking power," according to P. T. McGerr local dealer for the De Soto Motor corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors.

"Spring and early summer again bring the perils of the congested suburban highway to drivers with cars that are not equipped with the best braking devices and engines that will not pick up quickly in an emergency. The perfect brake is the first essential of safety—flashing acceleration, where the engine immediately responds to the touch of foot on accelerator, being of almost equal importance.

Each Get Same Pressure.

"The brakes must operate, however with 100 per cent equalization. The same pressure must be applied to the brake shoes simultaneously. Otherwise sideswaying, with its often disastrous results, is virtually unavoidable.

"The De Soto six is equipped with internal expanding, hydraulic four-wheel brakes which are self equalizing, depending upon the principle of hydraulics for their operation and equalization—brake equipment which is the best that engineering skill can produce. They stop the car quickly, operate smoothly and safely, and give the driver perfect mastery over speed.

"The automobile is subjected to innumerable sudden and violent accelerations and decelerations in a day's driving, so brakes must be dependable and simple in operation. Those used by the De Soto six have both qualities. The braking pressure reaches all four wheels at the same time and in equal degrees, making the operation instantly effective.

"Safety in operation, too, demands a quick get-away in traffic. The engine that picks up instantly when the foot forces the accelerator down, minimizes the possibility of accidents. Cars that appear suddenly from side streets and alleys can be avoided—the driver can often slip into spaces directly ahead in the long lines of traffic on narrow roads. These are examples of how quick acceleration helps to cut down the number of accidents that occur every year, in crowded city traffic and on congested highways in the country."

PRICE REDUCTION ON HUPP MODELS

Motor Company Effects Sweeping Changes For Spring.

DETROIT, Mich., April 13—Price reductions affecting all models of the Hupp Motor Co. in the New Century eight and six-cylinder lines which went into effect April 6, furnished sweeping price decreases ranging from $55 to $260.

The price reduction is the most complete ever made by Hupmobile and comes, according to the announcement, as part of the company's extensive program for this year which will more than double its production capacity. On the straight eight series the price reductions range from $80 to $260. On the Country six series, the reductions range from $55 to $160. Following are the prices on the straight eight custom-equipped models.

Carbriolet, $1,845; roadster, $1,815; four-passenger coupe, $1,860; two-door sedan, $1,845, and four-door sedan $1,905. The new prices on the standard equipment cars are cabriolets, $1,755; roadster, $1,725; four-passenger coupe, $1,770; two-door sedan, $1,775, and four-door sedan, $1,815.

New prices on the custom-equipped Century sixes are: Two-door sedan, $1,335; cabriolet, $1,475; four-door sedan, $1,440; roadster, $1,840, and four-passenger coupe, $1,450. For the standard equipped sixes, the new prices are: Two-door sedan, $1,245; cabriolet, $1,385; four-door sedan, $1,350; roadster, $1,390, and four-passenger coupe, $1,360.

The tremendous manufacturing program, which includes a marked increase of production and sales activities of the company, is the basis for the general price reductions. But a few months ago, the Hupp Motor Car corporation purchased the huge and modern plants in Cleveland, O., which have more than a million square feet of manufacturing space available. The revamping and retooling of these plants as a virile part of the production division of the greater Hupmobile organization is now in progress. Approximately $2,000,000 is being spent in these plants alone to make them the most efficient in the industry. In addition, Hupmobile recently acquired control of and has increased the equipment and production capacity of several smaller and subsidiary concerns as part of this far-reaching expansion for this year.

VIKING SHOWS NEW FEATURES

Car Is Asset to Medium Priced Field; Has Fisher Body.

The new Viking motor car, which is now on display in the showrooms of the Lincoln Motor Co., 1820 O street ,local dealers, introduces distinctly new and desirable principles of engineering design to the medium-price field. This new car now makes available at a medium price, the definite superiorities of the ninety-degree V-type eight-cylinder engine. It embodies new beauty and tailored smartness—the latest creations of Fisher artist-engineers.

The new Viking is particularly outstanding in performance. Its ninety-degree V-type eight-cylinder engine delivers eighty-one horsepower with exceptional smoothness throughout the entire speed range. Its response to the throttle is remarkable, both in getaway from a standing start and in acceleration at the higher speeds.

Its top speed is greater than the average motorist will use. And it provides a mighty power reserve for steep hills, long grades and hard pulling.

These desirable and exclusive new characteristics of performance are provided by the ninety-degree V-type principle of eight-cylinder engine design, brought to a new high stage of development by the many individual advancements combined in the new Viking engine.

The natural compactness of the Viking engine, combined with the added strength obtained through ribbing and trussing the crankcase, provides exceptional rigidity—an important contributing factor in smoothness, quietness and long life.

The short, rigid crankshaft is counter-weighted for maximum balance and is supported by large oversize bearings.

Cooling is exceptionally thorough in the new Viking engine. Cylinder walls, valves, valve stem guides and combustion chambers are water-jacketed. Equal manifold distribution of the water in the twin blocks, with graduated outlets direct to points of greatest heat, assures uniform, efficient cooling of the entire engine. The water space extends far down the crankcase wall and assists in cooling the lubricating oil. The engine thermogauge, which is located on the dash shows the actual temperature of the water circulating in the engine. And the Viking engine is further protected by thermostatically-controlled, automatic radiator shutters.

The Viking chassis also contributes much to the performance, comfort, dependability and long life of this great new eight. Remarkable strength and endurance are evident throughout its construction. Its low center of gravity and properly balanced weight are important factors in riding comfort and roadability.

MARMON OFFERS NEW STRAIGHT 8

Machine Will Sell For Less Than $1,000 at Factory.

"Sweeping aside precedent, the newest and one of the greatest accomplishments in automotive history is disclosed in the announcement by Marmon of the world's first straight-eight to sell for less than $1,000 at the factory," states C. M. Long, local manager of the Hartsough Motor Co. "That car is the new Roosevelt."

"Characteristic of the purpose of the car and the ideals of its manufacturer is the name which has been selected—Roosevelt. In the full spirit of this great name, the new car has been designated by Marmon, simply, yet significantly, "A car for all." Mr. Long added.

"A detailed, or even casual, inspection of the new Roosevelt eight is certain to bring forth the question, 'How can Marmon build this car—a straight eight—at the price?' The answer is in a single word—concentration.

"For more than two years, Marmon has centered its attention on straight-eight development. Its engineering department has devoted its resources to the perfection of the eight-in-line type of car. Its manufacturing department has centered its activities on equipment and methods especially designed to produce eights.

"Straight-eight cars, moreover, are not complicated affairs as was the case a few years ago. Design has been simplified—the number of parts reduced—with the result that the Roosevelt can be built by Marmon to be sold at the price of the average six.

"The Roosevelt is now on display in the establishments of Marmon distributors and dealers throughout the country, giving American motordom from coast to coast its first opportunity of inspecting the car that is representative of a development predicted for years and now an actuality. Not "just another automobile" is presented ,but a car that affords straight-eight performance, flexibility and speed at a price that is well within the reach of practically every buyer.

"Coming at the climax of the most successful period of Marmon's long experience in the automotive industry, the Roosevelt establishes a new and higher standard of motor car value."

DEALERS UNABLE SUPPLY DEMAND FOR CHEVROLETS

Public demand the country over for the new Chevrolet six has far exceeded the supply. Dealers everywhere are crying for new models and in many cases they are losing deals daily because they cannot get the cars fast enough to take care of their orders.

Over 300,000 have already chosen the new Chevrolet six. This is because of the smooth six cylinder performance and because they are able to buy a six cylinder car in the price range of a four. It is because they get better than twenty miles to a gallon of gasoline which is a big talking point in Nebraska since the tax on gasoline has gone up. It is because the public likes the distinctive bodies by Fisher. They like their longer, lower and roomier features. The public has purchased this car because it has every modern driving convenience and comfort.

The First Aid Kit.

Every motor vehicle should be equipped with a small first aid kit containing an antiseptic liquid, a sterile salve for burns, two triangular bandages, and similar materials which will make it possible to administer first aid for the slight, as well as serious, injuries which may be encountered while out on the road. With such a kit the treatment of cuts is so easy that it will be used, the application of the sterile salve will relieve the pain from burns, and the easily applied bandages will keep out dirt and protect the injury. The bandages can also be used to stop bleeding and thus prevent fatal hemorrhages resulting from accidents. Then when the doctor comes he will find the "emergency cared for and direct such other treatment as may be necessary

'GRANDDADDY' OF PONTIAC 6 FOUND

Modern Automobile Firm Unearths Old Car of Same Name.

Built About 1907 and Sold With "Don't" Instruction Book.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 13.—The story of the unknown relative who suddenly crops up at a family gathering had a counterpart here when a Pontiac car built years ago bobbed into the limelight at the home of W. J. Frazer, whose father had purchased it about 1904

When A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor aCr Co., introduced the present line of Pontiac cars in 1926, they were believed to be the first automobiles so named until the uncovering of the old-timer here

A tricky and dilapidated one-seater, with a two cylinder engine, a dash board, steel rimmed wheels and all the other accoutrements demanded by the gay blades of the early nineteen hundreds, the car bears a plate distinctly emblazoned with the name Pontiac and revealing the manufacturer as the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Co.

Firm Organized in 1907.

Subsequent investigation at Pontiac, Mich., home of the Oakland company, discloses that such a firm had been organized to build passenger cars but that it had no connection with the Pontiac Buggy Co. which in 1907 evolved into the Oakland Motor Car Co.

From official documents and the memories of old residents at Pontiac, it has been learned that the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Co. had a transitory existence around 1904 or 1905 and then fell by the wayside, like many a similar venture at that early date, leaving Mr. Frazer's car an orphan until it came out of storage to claim name-relationship with the present line of Pontiacs.

Along with the Pontiac's "grandfather," Mr. Frazer also produced a book of instructions issued with the car. This asserts that "there is absolutely nothing of a complicated nature in connection with the operation of the Pontiac, and with a little perseverance anyone of ordinary intelligence can easily become an expert."

From this point on the treatise presents a subtle argument seeking to justify gasoline locomotion as against steam and other forms of transportation of that early date. After asserting that there is nothing complicated in operating the car, the book proceeds to list a forbidding series of "don'ts" that have caused modern sales experts to marvel that any cars ever were sold.

Warns Against Stunts.

It warns against fractured arms in cranking, about the difficulty of climbing hills, and states that "pride means getting chesty, and because you can drive up a lane without tearing down the fences don't start hunting for hard stunts."

It advises grinding the valves with dust from a grindstone mixed with oil, and applying tallow to the drive chain to reduce wear and insure silent operation.

A re-echo of that fast wise crack of early days, "Go get a horse" is seen in this sage observation near the end of the book: "The exercise of good common sense on the part of drivers and owners of automobiles has done and will do much to remove the odium that has been bestowed upon the much scandalized mobile. With proper care and intelligent use of an automobile you may have as reliable and trustworthy a means of transit as any in existence, but neglected and abused you may become the subject of the humorous friend and harping critics who despise the thing until you invite them to ride with you."

Auto Notes

Changing Oil in Crankcase.

It is always the best plan to change oil in the crankcase when returning from a trip instead of before starting on one. Not only does the old oil flow rather slowly when cold, but the impurities in the oil have settled on the bottom of the crankcase over night and the sluggish flow of the oil is not strong enough to carry them off. After a run, however, when the oil has been properly heated up and has been pumped through the engine innumerable times, the sludge and dirt has been well shaken up and is easily carried off with the oil.

Frequent Cleaning Keeps Engine Right.

Faulty operation of an automobile engine is very often the result of allowing a coating of grease to accumulate on the parts of this mechanism. Dust soon settles where oil sweats or is spilled, and a gummy mass finds its way among the delicate parts of the engine, preventing proper running. It takes so little extra time to wipe off spilled oil or grit and the advantages are so great from this little matter of care that it seems almost unbelievable. It is surprising how quickly the cylinders will become coated with a gummy substance, composed of oil, grease and mud, if they are not wiped off occasionally. The careless driver will some day find that his gummy and dirty magneto will not work; his curburetor may become clogged, or his oil line get stopped up. Better make good use of old rags or waste on the mechcanism than to wait until something goes wrong through dirt and grease.

Protection to Pedestrians.

One of the best protective signals for pedestrians to carry on highways at night is a white handkerchief held with the arm full length at the side. In this position the handkerchief is caught and reflected in the top of the bright light beams. If it happens to flare open it becomes momentarily a true beacon.

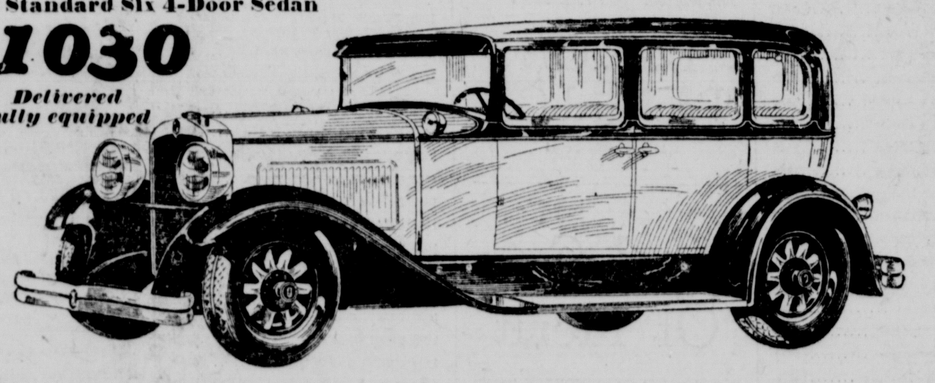
THE RECORD BREAKING NEW NASH "400"

"400" Standard Six 4-Door Sedan

$1030

Delivered fully equipped



Ask the Salesman this Question:

EVERY prospective motor car purchaser should ask every salesman he talks to, this question: "What is the price of this car, delivered to me, fully equipped with all the equipment?"

You should also ask what the difference is between the factory (f. o. b.) price and the delivered price—and then ask what that difference buys.

Heretofore it has been customary for factory prices to cover only the bare car. This permits the dealer to sell you your bumpers and the other accessories, at retail prices.

Nash, in introducing the new "400" Series, pioneered a new practice, by installing this extra equipment at the factory, at no extra cost to you.

When you ask the suggested question you'll find most salesmen (not Nash salesmen) reluctant to answer. They would rather not say how much more there is to pay, or what the extra money buys.

And you'll also find that by reason of the Nash policy, Nash "400" delivered, fully-equipped prices are much lower than those of many other cars with the same factory (f. o. b.) prices, and lower than some cars with even lower factory (f. o. b.) prices.

They got behind the wheel . . got the facts . . and bought BUICKS!

"Starting with the brand new car," continues this owner, "I achieved the remarkable record of driving 3500 miles through the most hilly sections of Pennsylvania and West Virginia without having to make a single gear shift because of lack of power. . . .

"I have tried to climb those same hills with other cars on previous trips but have never turned the trick without shifting gears. My powerful 1929 Buick pulled every hill in high!"

There, in a nutshell, you have one reason why more than twice as many people purchase Buicks as any other automobile priced above $1200—why thousands of glowing tributes are pouring into the Buick factories, as more and more motorists "get behind the wheel and get the facts" about Buick performance.

Come, take the wheel! Drive this epic car. Prove its superiority, not only in hill-climbing, but in getaway, swiftness, smoothness and reliability as well. And then assure yourself the most glorious motoring you have ever had. Buy a Buick!

SOCIETY PEOPLE In The PICTURES

THOSE who come and those who go, to say nothing of lovely brides and attractive brides-to-be, always are of interest.

Two very popular guests who have shared honors at several social functions the past week, are Mrs. Emory Stanley of Philadelphia, who has been the house guest of Mrs. Edna DePutron, and Mrs. Ralph Drain of Washington, D. C., who is a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thorpe.

Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Louise Ludden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ludden, to Kenneth Lowell Nelsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nelsen of Lincoln. The wedding will take place early in June.

Mrs. Herman R. James will leave at the end of the school year for Vermillion, S. D., to make her home. Dean James recently accepted the presidency of the University of South Dakota. Mrs. James has been very active in social and faculty circles in Lincoln.

Miss Ethel Landreth of Alto Pass, Ill., is the house guest of Mrs. Herbert Knudsen, formerly Miss Helen Holtgrewe. Miss Landreth and Mrs. Knudsen were classmates at Lindenwood college, and are sorority sisters in Phi Mu at the University of Nebraska.

The marriage of Miss Gladys Downey to Ellis Mockett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mockett of Des Moines, took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downey. Miss Helen Walt was the only attendant.

Two Country Clubs Plan Opening Spring Affairs

First Dinner Dance of Season at Lincoln Country Club Will Be Held Saturday, May 4; Eastridge's Initial Party Also Will Be Held Sometime During Next Month.

The two major events of the spring season are in the offing, the opening dinner dance of the two country clubs. The Lincoln Country club, as has already been announced, is to have its first dinner dance of the season, Saturday, May 4. Eastridge Country club has made no definite arrangements other than that the party will be sometime in May.

This year, Eastridge is to have mid-week dinner dances instead of the usual weekend affair, and the chosen evening for the frolic is to be Wednesday, according to present plans.

With so many people coming and going, society is more or less at a stand still, with no definite routine of activities as yet. However several parties have been arranged at the Country club for the remainder of the month.

Mrs. Munger to Preside.

Monday, Mrs. T. C. Munger will be hostess at a 1 o'clock bridge luncheon at the Country club. Suggestions of spring will be featured in all of the table appointments, and the afternoon will be spent with bridge at the club.

On Thursday, Judge and Mrs. T. C. Munger will preside at a 7 o'clock dinner at the Country club. Spring flowers will make the tables attractive. Following the dinner, the evenng will be devoted to brdge.

Mrs. O. A. Barber has issued invitations for a 1 o'clock luncheon to be given at the Country club April 24. Luncheon covers will be arranged for twenty-four guests, and spring flowers will be featured in the appointments. The guests will remain at the club for bridge following the luncheon.

On May 1, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeBrown will preside at a dinner dance at the club.

Burnham's Birthday Observed.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Yates entertained twelve guests at dinner last Friday evening honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Yates' father, S. H. Burnham. The table was centered with spring flowers, and suggestions of the spring season

Mrs. Foster Home From Visit East

Lincoln People Come and Go As Usual During the Past Week.

Back in the days when buggies were fringed and be-tasseled affairs and a good two feet and a half off the ground, when linen dusters were built on the straight and draping lines, people thought they really were traveling when they went on twenty and thirty mile jaunts.

But today there is not even the raising of an eyebrow when they nonchalantly dash off to Kansas City, California or New York City for a "few days, you know." It is all very much fun, this idea of being able to breakfast in one city, lunch in another, and dine in a third. And so Lincoln has had people coming and going as usual the past week.

Mrs. J. Earle Foster returned Thursday from New York City where she spent the past ten days with her two daughters, the Misses Virginia and Jane Foster, who met their mother in New York during the spring recess from Mary Lyons school which they are attending at Swarthmore, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Baylor and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Korsmeyer motored to Omaha Saturday afternoon to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Moorhead at a Country club dinner there Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Robers and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holtz motored to Omaha Saturday to be guests in the evening of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Watkins at a dinner. They will return today.

John Rosborough went to Omaha Friday to serve as a judge in a state music contest. He returnto to Lincoln Sunday morning.

Dean and Mrs. Herman R. James left Saturday for Vermillion, S. D., where they will be until Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Collins of Fort Dodge, Ia., arrived in Lincoln Saturday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. H. Channing Collins.

The Misses Dorothy Jackson and Vera Waters spent the Easter vacation with Miss Josephine Buol at her home at Randolph, Neb.

Mrs. C. L. Fahnestock returned to Lincoln Sunday morning after spending the past week with her daughter, Margaret, at Sioux Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow Lieurance of Wichita, Kas., left Saturday for Omaha after spending several days in Lincoln. Mr. Lieurance will appear in a concert Monday night at Crete.

Mrs. John M. Miles and Mrs. Richard Rogers, who have been in Kansas City since Wednesday, returned to Lincoln Saturday evening.

Mrs. Charles Hoss left Saturday morning for Leavenworth, Kas., to be gone until Tuesday.

J. A. Melville of Broken Bow, will arrive Monday to join his wife, and visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Apperson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Letton and daughter Nancy Lee of Denver, will arrive by motor Monday morning to visit Mr. Letton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Letton, and his brother, H. P. Letton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Graham Campbell left Sunday to spend a few weeks visiting at Seattle, Sacramento and San Francisco.

Personals.

Miss Agnes Schmidt and Miss Margaret Schmidt have returned from a ten day trip to Chicago where they attended the Mid-West Trade show of beauty culture. Miss Agnes Schmidt also went to New York City for a short visit.

Mrs. D. C. Stivers, formerly of Lincoln and now of Salt Lake City arrived in Lincoln Thursday to be the guest of Mrs. Rogers Scribner for eight or ten days.

Mrs. J. K. Kerr, sr., of Central City arrived last Sunday to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Kerr. She returned home Friday.

Mrs. J. E. Doerck, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lyman Bray, and by Mrs. Ellis Evans left by motor Friday for St. Peter and St. Paul, Minn.

Alida Fassett Engaged

A very attractive June bride-to-be is Miss Alida Fassett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Fassett, whose engagement to Lloyd Whitaker of Lincoln, is announced today. Mr. Whitaker is a student in the college of engineering, University of Nebraska.

Sports Board Entertaining.

The Intra-Mural sports board is entertaining at tea from 3 to 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at the University club. Two representatives and the chaperone from each sorority and dormitory have been invited. About eighty guests are expected. Betty Wahlquist, president of the board, is in charge of the affair. Those to preside at the tea table are Miss Mabel Lee and Miss Mary Olson. Those serving are the members of the board and will include the Misses Betty Wahlquist, Dorothy McKinley, Margaret Ames, Margaret Ward and Dorothy Weaver. Spring flowers will decorate the tea table and a color note of green will be introduced in the ices and mints. There will be music during the calling hours.

Several Women's Clubs Out-state in Meetings

New President at Homer Announces Committees For the Coming Year; Annual Banquet Is Held at Valparaiso Thursday, and Officers Elected at Hubbell.

The Homer Woman's club met April 9 at the home of Mrs. Allaway, jr. Nineteen responded to roll call after the club creed was read.

Mrs. Evans gave an interesting report of the district meeting at Plainview last week.

Parliamentary drill was conducted by Mrs. Voss. Mrs. Fillman read a paper on "Refinishing Old Furniture." Mrs. Nannie Allaway read a paper on "Landscaping," and Mrs. Lena Wagner read a paper and demonstration on "Table Service." The theme for the program, "Home Day," was brought out in the papers and value was gained from points brought out in the papers.

The following committees were appointed by the new president, Mrs. Clayton, and Mrs. Mary Allaway; Social: Mrs. Alice Stidworthy, Mrs. Iola Leamer, Mrs. Lena Wagner, and Mrs. Virena Byers; Civic, Mrs. Rebecca Voss, Mrs. Julia Ryan, and Mrs. Maude Holsworth. Sick: Mrs. Bess Fillman, Mrs. Elmedo Barber, Mrs. Ella Owens, and Mrs. Catherine Ashford.

Valparaiso Club.

The annual banquet of the Woman's club of Valparaiso was held at the school house Thursday evening, April 4. Husbands of the members, ministers and teachers in the town were guests.

A three course dinner was served at 7:30, the tables being attractively decorated with flowers and yellow candles in crystal holders. Covers were laid for sixty.

The club president, Mrs. Jul Petermichel, acted as toastmistress. She introduced Mrs. C. F. Ettleman who gave the address of welcome. Responses were made by Mrs. C. A. Part for the ministers, M. E. Boren for the teachers and Dr. F. L. Spradling for the husbands. Mrs. Petermichel then introduced members of the club with four line rhymes. The remainder of the evening was devoted to playing games.

Hubbell Woman's Club.

The Hubbell Woman's club held the annual luncheon, business meeting and installation of officers Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alma Irwin. There were twenty-two present, Mrs. E. E. Correll of Hebron, vice-president of the fourth district, and Mrs. Holktham, being out of town guests.

The covers were beautifully decorated, the center pieces being pink. Orchid sweet peas and dolls dressed in similar colors held the place cards. This some color scheme was carried out in the menu. A quartet, consisting of Alice Brown, Ethel Horner, Lelia Cleveland and Bessie Miller gave a group of songs. Much credit for the success of this luncheon is due Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Mina Conklin, Mrs. George Horner, Mrs. O. D. Gooden, Mrs. Chester Clark and Mrs. E. Cresswell who formed the committee in charge of arrangements.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Correll spoke, urging the members to attend the county convention at Wymore. She also told about the Woman's club scholarship fund.

Reports of officers and committees were read and the following officers installed: President, Alma Irwin; vice-president, Victoria Schell; secretary, Alice Brown; treasurer, Vera Fisher; directors, Mina Conklin, Emma Cresswell, Gertrude Redline.

Lookout Club.

Mrs. Frost entertained the Lookout club of Woodlawn Tuesday afternoon. Final reports of the members showed all those who were present had completed the work assigned. Several had not missed a meeting.

Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mathers and Mrs. Warner were appointed to plan a program for achievement day, to be held at the Woodlawn hall, Friday evening, April 26. Mrs. Frost, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Ault were appointed to arrange for refreshments to be served at that time.

The meeting closed with the singing of "In the Gloaming" and "Auld Lang Syne" by all members. Mrs. Warner also played Handel's "Largo."

Nebraska Club Women Aid Worthy Students

University School Of Music Generously Assists With Scholarship Awards. May Exhibit North Dakota Pottery In Every Group In Union. Say Children Should Be Urged To Make Gardens.

Nebraska clubs have for some time devoted funds and interest to securing scholarships in Nebraska schools for worthy young people wanting an education. The generosity of the University School of Music in aiding this cause is a source of gratitude to the club women.

At the fourth district convention at Wymore, April 16-18, Adrian Newens, head of this school will be one of the principal speakers. He will speak Tuesday evening on the subject "Music Education."

The music part of the program has been carefully prepared for the three days of the convention and Wymore's best talent will appear in orchestra, piano numbers and vocal offerings.

The lighter part of club life, which women thoroughly enjoy after the strenuous work of the convention, has been provided for in a reception Tuesday evening following the program; a dinner for state and the district officers preceding the evening program; an auto ride Tuesday afternoon and a supper party Wednesday evening complimentary from Wymore Woman's club to delegates and visitors, at noon Wednesday there will be a luncheon at which the home finance department will be in charge.

Clay Exhibit.

Miss Margaret Cable, chairman of the industrial arts division of the General Federation of Women's clubs, and head of the ceramics department of the University of North Dakota, has devised a plan whereby an exhibit of North Dakota pottery may be sent to every club in the union.

To accompany the exhibit, Miss Cable plans to write a paper which will include the story of clay deposits of North Dakota. Her plain is not to show the finished products as much as the method of manufacture. The pieces to be shown in the exhibit will be those manufactured and finished at the school of mines at Grand Forks. Historic facts of the development of the clay industry in Dakota will be dealt with.

Mother-Daughter Dinners Held By Camp Fire Girls

Groups Center Activities on Honors With View to Large Number Qualifying for Gold and Silver Kiwanis Medals This Year. Outdoor Activities Being Stressed.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet of the Camp Fire girls of Lincoln is to be held at the chamber of commerce April 25. It is expected 250 girls and their mothers will attend, and Camp Fire girls will try to show in an outward way what the mothers mean in their life. A program will be given, with responses by mothers, and mothers who are also guardians of Camp Fire girls. Reservations are being made at the Camp Fire office.

The final examination for posture requirements is to be given at the Y. W. C. A., Saturday, April 20. Girls who were examined in December were given exercises to improve their posture, and this examination will show if they have improved and are entitled to the health honor.

Lists of girls who have earned their Kiwanis medals through this year's contest are coming into the office rapidly. Many girls have earned the medal this year the first time, while others will have their names engraved on the back of their medal if they have completed requirements for the second year. Third year girls are given gold medals, while the fourth year girls have their names engraved on the gold medals. Local honors will also b awarded at the homecoming, May 1, and there will be hundreds of others who get one or more of these local leather honors, to wear on their ceremonial gowns.

Mrs. Davis Will Go to Washington

Is State Delegate to National Conclave League of Women Voters.

Mrs. W. LeRoy Davis, director of the first congressional district of the Nebraska League of Women Voters, will attend the general council of the National League of Women Voters, at Washington, April 22 to 26, as delegate from Nebraska.

The need for reorganization of the federal government is likely to become the subject of intensive study by the league. The Nebraska unit, at its March board meeting, voted to incorporate this in its study and a kit for study has been prepared by the state chairman, Mrs. John P. Senning. The proposal has been submitted to state leagues, and the council, composed of the national board, state presidents, and one state delegate is expected to ratify state and local league approval.

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser of Girard, O., head of the efficiency in government department says that "it is believed the league, by including such an item in the study will be in a position to follow any proposals that may be made."

The four-day council sessions, under the direction of the president, Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, single out for discussion measures which the league will support in the 71st congress, including a federal program for maternity and infancy welfare ,a constitutional amendment to eliminate "lame duck" sessions and the pending Pan-American treaty. Consideration will also be given to the regulation of public utilities, the study of which has been on the league program for a year. On this subject, two books have been prepared. One is on "Muscle Shoals and the Public Welfare," by Marguerite Owen, national legislative secretary. The

Mrs. Alma M. Higgins, Butte, Montana, chairman of gardens in the General Federation of Women's clubs calls attention of club women to the date of National Garden Week, April 14-20. One of her suggestions is that a special edition of the local paper be issued. Club women should furnish reading matter and dealers in seeds, garden tools, nursery stock furnish advertising. There should be talks on planting trees and shrubs, bird sanctuaries, displays of films of parks and gardens. This is the time for clubs to plant memorial trees.

Schools should observe one day as Garden day and when Arbor day is observed children should be urged to have gardens. Libraries should feature pictures of bird houses and gardens. University Club Ladies Day Popular

Attract Intimate Foursomes and Larger Groups for Luncheons and Afternoons.

The University club is proving an exceptionally popular rendezvous and quite a number of luncheons and dinners are to be held there this week. Ladies' days always attract intimate foursomes and larger groups for luncheon and an afternoon of bridge.

Mrs. L. B. Lyman will be hostess at the Ladies' day on Tuesday for which foursomes have been reserved for Miss Anne Stuart, Mrs. Frank Eager, Mrs. W. C. Beachly. Miss Betty Pringle has reserved places for ten.

Tuesday evening thirty members of the Lancaster County Medical society will meet for the bi-monthly dinner and meeting. Dr. Carl Hedbloom of Chicago will be guest of honor and speak. He is a professor of surgery at the University of Illinois.

The hostess at the Ladies' day Wednesday will be Mrs. F. D. Williams.

Mrs. George E. Johnson will give a 1 o'clock luncheon for twelve Thursday. She plans to use garden flowers on the table and to play bridge at the club following the luncheon. Reservations for eighty of the university faculty have been made for Thursday evening by Dr. R. H. Wolcott.

The Lincoln School Forum will meet for dinner Thursday evening. Arrangements for sixty are being made by Earl Johnson, chairman of the social committee.

Mrs. Harry Everett will be hostess for Ladies' day Friday. Miss Sara Apperson has made reservations for a foursome.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hertzler will give a dinner for twelve guests at 7 o'clock. Spring flowers with pink tapers will form the table decorations. After dinner there will be bridge at the Hertzler home, 1650 South Twentieth street.

Alpha Omicron Pi alumnae will gather at the club for luncheon, Saturday. There will be thirty present for the monthly meeting. Reservations for twelve have been made for Saturday evening by F. M. Fling.

Miss Madge Evans was hostess to sixteen guests at a bridge dinner Saturday evening. A centerpiece of yellow spring flowers was used on the table. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson entertained six guests at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Saturday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fryman of Omaha who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Trev E. Gillaspie. They spent the evening informally.

Reservations for one hundred and fifty have been made for the Superintendents association dinner Friday evening. E. M. Hosman, secretary of the Nebraska State Teachers association, is in charge.

Kappa Sigma will hold an alumni luncheon at the club Monday.

Large Buildings Dwarfed When Viewed From Capitol Tower

The two above views of Lincoln, one of the business district and the other of the south residential section, were taken from the top of the state capitol tower. From them Nebraska people may obtain an when the tower is completed and idea of what is in store for them visitors are permitted to go to the top of the tower.

The towering height of the structure can only be realized by comparing the Sharp and Stuart buildings as they appear from the ground and from the capitol tower. That comparison is most surprising when one is looking down.

The other view, south on Fifteenth street, is one of roofs and tree tops, especially beautiful at this time of year when the bursting buds are just seen from above. This conglomeration of green and brown is contrasted with the regular white squares of the streets and sidewalks.

More attractive still, are the hazy green hills and fields in the distance, stretching as far as the eye can see but beyond the reach of the camera.

When the building is completed, it will be possible for visitors to look out over the city from the fourteenth floor which is more than 250 feet above the ground. Those who care to climb a flight of stairs may go up another 75 feet to the tank room floor.

Spring Idea Decorations Carried Out

Farewells and Parties Honoring Visitors High Spots In Week.

Mrs. Don Bery will be hostess at a 1 o'clock luncheon Friday at her home, 3268 Randolph street, to twelve guests. Spring shades of pink and green will be introduced in the flower and paper appointments. The guests will play bridge in the afternoon.

Champe Says:

CHAMPE'S have made it possible for every woman to have a perfect wave at a price any woman can afford to pay. The right price for a permanent wave today is $5 . . . We could not give a better permanent wave if we charged you $25. To pay more than Champe's price of $5 is extravagant and unnecessary. The success of your wave depends upon the skill, experience and knowledge of the operator—not upon the price you pay nor the method used. Champe's operators have gained experience, skill and knowledge through the large volume of waves given and this large volume has made a low price possible. You shop for your coats, your hats, your shoes, why not come up to our shop at any time and see a dozen or more permanent waves being given . . . see the wrapping . . . the steaming . . . the waves after they are finished. Get your permanent now and be ready for the rainy days and hot days of summer. Shops located at Sioux City, Ia., St. Joseph, Mo., Omana and 1229 N street, (upstairs), Lincoln.

IN footwear, there is a tendency to emphasize the combination of reptile and kidskin, in self color, both in opera pump and strapped styles. One exception is an ivory reptile pump with black patent leather encrustations on the outside-quarter only.

Novelties are contributed in sports costumes where printed fabrics are a highlight of the costume-exhibits, by producing all the prints in the shoe fabrics.

Eggshell glace kid gloves are noted in several cases, with striped stitchings of a darker tone. A refreshing novelty offered in the delft blue suede pull-ons worn with a light blue cotton sleeveless frock.

Inasmuch as so much attention is given the sunburnt complexion, as acquired by make-up, the bare-legged vogue came in for a large share of attention, extending beyond bathing and other sports styles.

Champe Says:

"HAIR will be cut short . . . or shorter than last year. Nothing could be smarter or more practical for summer than the sleek, close-to-the-head haircut that leads the hairdressing mode of 1929 . . . and we can give you this chic haircut in our new, exclusive haircutting and fingerwaving shop . . . first, your hair is thinned by stripping . . . then, a diagonal part and fingerwave gives individuality to your hairdress and that sleek, chic effect the mode demands. The Raggedy Ann is very good again this year. Lee Todd, Lincoln's best known haircutter, can give you this new bob and Miss Judy, your favorite fingerwaver, can give you any type of hairdress . . . Shampoo and fingerwave, $1.00; fingerwave (alone) 75 cents; haircut, 50 cents. Call B5173 for appointment — Champe's Fingerwaving Shop, 1227 N (ground floor)."

Scarfs—Scarfs are everywhere — separate to go with sports clothes or forming part of dresses. Thick ones, thin ones, others like capes, large square ones that are tied around the waist with one point reaching hem and others bloused under arm. Much passing of scarfs and scarf ends through loops or buttonholes, on coats and day and evening dresses.

When the Only Car

IS driven off to work with hubby at the wheel and fond wife has time to reflect that she, too, should have a car of her own, she should avail herself of a nice slightly used model from the Lord Auto Co. I discovered the cleverest 1927 Hudson roadster with special built body This model is colored grey and upholstered in red leather and has an adorable roomy rumble seat. They told me the perfect condition of the engine is guaranteed, and the car can be bought for $850. Phone for free demonstration.

Mrs. Champe Says:

IT'S time for your spring permanent. Your hair will look better with a new wave in . . . Have it done where the machines are the finest, and newest, and the operators are famous for creating the most natural and becoming of permanents. There's no need to have your old wave cut off—no need to wait till it grows out—we can wave over your old permanent with the utmost success. The price for the complete permanent is always $5. The Wider the Brim

THE more classy the Babau hat, I found adorable ones of natural and colored straws at Magee's. There is endless individuality in the carefully moulded shapes designed to flatter, some with pearl button trim and some neatly banded and bound in contrasting tones. No type hat is more popular this season than Bakau.

They Are Wearing

ENSEMBLES—dress, coat and hat of complementary tones. They are selecting these individually at Harris-Goar's, and when combined the entire suit is much less than one usually pays for a complete ensemble. Solicit Mrs. Fox on your selection. She knows just what is good. Always at Harris-Goar's you may pay for apparel while you wear it.

Be It Ever So Smart

YOUR costume is simply ruined if your feet are not properly shod. You may indulge yourself in a variety of beautiful shoes if you shop at Gold's. Their spring line of smart models have arrived and the many new types of footwear shown are particularly attractive as well as inexpensive. Czechokslovia has contributed some striking models for dress and golf in a modernistic tan leather. Smart soft patents made with slenderizing heel and arch are a necessity for the street ensemble. Then, too, I found some of colored kid which are very smart to be worn with filmy georgettes for spring's many gay festivities. The price range of $5.95 to $9.95 is synamynous. See these at Gold's, where the slogan is "The best For Less."

DAYTIME shoes: For informal town wear, the shoe in opera, one and two strap, or Oxford form with a solid leather heel is most correct.

Heels for active street wear show a tendency to become slightly lower and more solid in appearance. This type is known as the "continental" heel.

The opera pump is unusually important this season, in both tailored and more formal versions. A new slightly triangular cut to the vamp ensures a better fit.

Brown shoes, in dark chocolate and sun-brown tones, come to the fore for early spring wear, lightening into sunburn-beiges later in the season.

The navy-blue shoe, this season in a slightly brighter tone, is still smartest with an all-blue ensemble. It is usually darker than the costume with which it is worn.

The dark green shoe, while not shown in any quantity, seems correct for spring wear with a costume in which green predominates. Then, it is very chic.

"Royal-bisque" kid, meaning a light, creamy beige, is very smart for formal afternoon shoes to wear with the lovely printed chiffons and pastels.

* * *

Reptilian leathers, especially lizard and water-snake, are very popular this spring.

The long-sleeved chiffon or lace dinner-dress is very often shown.

Fifty Young Men and Women of State University Win Phi Beta Kappa Award

An even half-hundred University of Nebraska seniors, including graduates of the 1928 summer session, midyear, and June were elected to Nebraska Alpha of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, last Tuesday. Lawrence Brockway of Wichita, Kas., with an average of 94.87, ranked first in the list. The fifty included thirty-five women and fifteen men, out of a class of nearly 1,000.

A number of interesting stories center about the election this year, and several of the most prominent seniors are included in the list. Mr. Brockway is a son of Paul Brockway, formerly of Humboldt, who received Sigma Xi honors from the university. He has majored in chemistry, and has been awarded a scholarship in chemistry, in which he has an exceptional future, according to Dr. Fred W. Upson, professor of chemistry. Mr. Brockway, who is partially self-supporting, will return to the university next year to work on his master's degree in chemistry. He received a final semester average of 100 in trigonometry, under Dr. A. L. Candy, the only such average he ever gave, and also received a semester average of 100 in college algebra.

David Fellman is a university debater, having been a member of the teams that met the Cambridge and Sydney, Australia, teams, and is president of Delta Sigma Rho. He has been writing a column on current events in the Daily Nebraskan. Dean Hammond is editor of the Daily Nebraskan this semester, is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity, and of Sigma Upsilon, literary organization, and is president of his social fraternity, Tau Kappa Epsilon. He was awarded the Sigma Delta Chi scholarship key, with the highest average of the four Nebraska students honored. The list numbers two musicians, William Paul Pence, baritone, and Harlan G. Smedley, organist at the First Baptist church.

Munro Kezer, reporter on the Lincoln Star, was president of Sigma Delta Chi first semester, and has been president of his social fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha. Mr. Kezer's mother received Phi Beta Kappa honors and his father was elected to Sigma Xi at the University of Nebraska twenty-five years ago, and Lawrence Brockway's father was in classes with Mr. Kezer's father. He is also a member of Innocents, honorary senior fraternity. Lester Schoene is a debater, and John Charles Pirie received an appointment to West Point. Wilbur Mead has been president of his fraternity, Phi Kappa Psi, and David Yabroff has ben president of Zeta Beta Tau.

Catherine Beekmann is a member of Mortar Board, senior honorary society for women, the A. W. S. board, and Vestals of the Lamp, Arts and science college honorary sorority, and she has been director of the Y. W. C. A. vesper choir and of the Big Sister board. Marjorie Ann Stuff is president of Chi Delta Phi, honorary literary organization, and Ida Lustgarten graduated in music from the fine arts school, and is a member of Alpha Rho Tau, honorary scholastic fine arts organization. The Phi Beta Kappa list also has two sisters, Fredricka and Lydia Wagner. Janet Anderson, Bolin, Hughes, Mead, Morton, Noh, Pence, Roerden, Rogers, Stuff, Van Sickle, Lydia and Fredricka Wagner, Weaver, and Yabroff. Photos by Townsend.

Beekmann, Benedict, Black, Collins, Cunningham, Davis, Engel, Fellman, Olmsted, Race, Schmitz, Sestak, Smedley, Walter, and Worden, Photos by Hauck Sieglund.

Charles Pirie, Bucklin reproduction.

Schmitz is president of her social sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, is prominent in Intramural sports.

The list of Phi Beta Kappa members for this year includes, upper row, left to right, Elva Gene Anderson, Minden; Catherine Beekmann, Blair, Leila Marie Benedict, Franklin; Margaret Kathleen Black, Lincoln; Mrs. Lois Hartman Boggs, Lincoln; Inez Evangeline Bolin, Lincoln; Lawrence Olin Brockway, Wichita, Kas.; Evelyn Collins, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Lucille Katherine Cunningham, Lincoln; Verne Fae Davies, Aurora; Hazel Davis, Woodbine, Ia.; Robert Diller, Diller; Lillian Viola Engel, Lincoln; Evelyn Mae Fate, Clay Center; David Fellman, Sigma Alpha Mu, Omaha; Dean Hammond, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Holdrege; second row, George Robert Hughes, Wymore; Jen Elizabeth Jenkins, Blue Springs; Munro Kezer, Lambda Chi Alpha, Lincoln; Garnet Ireva Larsen, Minden; Marie Katherine Lau, Lincoln; Mrs. Francel Murphy Lauritsen, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Ida Lustgarten, Omaha; Wilbur Lincoln Mead, Phi Kappa Psi, Ashland; Perry William Morton, Acacia, Lincoln; Elinor Josephine Noh, Alpha Phi, Clarkson; Charles Edward Olmsted, Roca; William Paul Pence, Lincoln; John Charles Pirie, Alpha Tau Omega, Lincoln; Mary Alice Race, Omaha; Frieda Josephine Roerden, Seward; Harriet Alice Rogers, Fremont; third row, Mary Janet Schmitz, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Hastings; Lester Philip Schoene, Syracuse; Sylvia Sestak, Lincoln; Harlan Gipson Smedley, Lincoln; Marjorie Ann Stuff, Alpha Chi Omega, Lincoln; Louise Van Sickle, Sigma Kappa, Lincoln; Lydia Elizabeth Wagner, Seward; Fredricka Esther Wagner, Seward; Clara Edith Walter, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Martha Catherine Weaver, Falls City; Wilma Grace Worden, Alpha Delta Theta, Superior; David Louis Yabroff, Zeta Beta Tau, Oxford, Kas.; Hazel Gaecilia Young, Kearney; Rose Mikulas, Wilbur. TYPICAL AMERICAN COLONIAL

This beautiful six room home is located at 2900 South 17th Street and owned by R. F. Schalkopf. It was built by Pauley Lumber Co. The roof is of Red Slate and the exterior is re-inforced Portland Cement Stucco. The gabled front on main roof and vestibule, with the dormer window at the valley line of roof, gives this home the lines that we call AMERICAN COLONIAL. It really is an adaptation of the Colonial plan. A convenient coat closet opens from the tiled vestibule through a mirror door. Effective arched doorways from the central hall give access to all rooms. The living room is finished in Red Gumwood. A fireplace adds to the home-like atmosphere. The kitchen has a broom closet, plenty of cupboard space, large windows and convenient arrangement of fixtures. The second floor has three large bed rooms and ample closet room.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Just to Go Faster and Faster Is the Aim of the Average Modern and, As a Result, Nervous Breakdowns Are Quite In Fashion.

Have You Had Yours?

Nervous breakdowns are quite the vogue.

Almost everyone has had at least one. Or is pridefully looking forward to one.

They are not an idle boast. They really exist.

Yet people keep on their mad pace, heading for one breakdown while recovering from the last, and thinking it is clever and smart to continue a wild, mad pace and neglecting the abuse they are giving the delicate organs of their body.

It is quite in the class with pouring poisonous bootleg beverages down into a tender stomach, fighting to recover mental and physical equilibrium for several days, then starting in all over again.

It's just plain silly.

I know oodles and scads of people who are on this and that prescribed diet because they have bolted their meals for years. And why? So they could hustle madly to get some more meals to bolt. Or so they could corner their share of the excitement modern life offers in their corner of the world. Or to keep up with the Joneses. Or some other equally unimportant reason.

Most Americans get the fidgets about ten seconds after they are born and from that time are just rarin' to go.

Go where? I don't know. They don't know. Just go. Faster and faster. Make a record of some sort. Keep up with someone who is trying to keep up with them. Outsmart their nervous system and alimentary tract. Burn up the road and their own insides.

The wise man is the one who can go into low on the hills and stop to enjoy the scenery as he travels along.

The woman in the following letter has been one of the unwise speed maniacs and is still racing along.

Dear Minerva: I am a woman thirty-three years old, too young to feel old, yet I suddenly find myself overwhelmed with the general rush of life. I have always been active and after marriage was afraid to get into a rut so I have always kept my life filled to the brim with obligations, engagements, clubs, parties, this and that. I have two children and give a great deal of time to them, making their special clothes for little dancing exhibitions, recitals, supervising their practice hours in music and dancing, attending mother's clubs and all the up-to-date complexities of raising children. I hold offices in two other clubs, very interesting, worth-while institutions. I attend gymnasium and daning classes to keep my figure lithe. I am on the go from morning until night. Sometimes I think I work twice as hard as my husband does. And suddenly I am tired of it all. But I am afraid to stop. I am afraid it is an admission of getting old. And that if I do stop that I will fall out of the whirl of things and never be able to get in again.

Do other women ever feel as I do?

A few months ago I thought I had a happy, near-perfect existence. Now it all seems so futile and useless. Is this a harbinger of old age? MIRIAM.

A. One sign that spring is here, perhaps. But a sign you should heed with serious meditation. You have been going on high too long. It isn't a matter of age but a matter of overworked nerves and organs. Heed the warnings and slow down before you stage a nervous breakdown from which you will not emerge with your youthful vigor and verve.

The only way to stop is to place a period after some of the activities you are indulging in. Most of them are useless enough, perhaps. Take a Sabbatical year and see how you can enjoy leisure.

Must Be A Reason.

Dear Minerva: This is the first time I have written to you but you have been giving such good advice that I thought I would bring my problem to you. I have been going with a girl living about ten miles from here. But her folks do not like me, though I do not know why, and so when the girl goes with me she must make an excuse of some sort.

I got tired of her having to deceive her parents all the time and stopped going with her. I went with another girl two or three times, but I did not like her. I kept thinking about this other girl and wanting to be with her. When this first girl found out that I had been going with the second girl it rather peeved her, but I think I can fix that up all right. What I want to know is how to make her parents like me. The girl is eighteen and I am just past twenty-one and have a fairly good job.—L. H. C.

A. I certainly like your spirit in wanting to have the parents of the girl like you. It happens too often nowadays that the young man going with a girl does not care much about what the parents think just so he can be with the girl. And I think you are right in deciding that nothing can be gained in the way of lasting happiness when the girl must deceive her parents every time she goes with you.

You say you do not know why her parents object to you. But surely the girl knows or at least she can find out. The thing to do is for you to find out why they do not care for you and then shape your campaign accordingly. The chances are, if it is true that they are opposed to you, that they have some mistaken idea regarding you. From the tone of your letter, I would judge that you have many admirable qualities. Find out why the parents object to you, then write me again and we will see what we can do about it.

A Mother's Testimony.

Dear Minerva: I am an interested reader of your column and I wish to add a good word for our high school boys and girls. I have given them a number of party dances and I have an intimate acquaintance with them. This crowd of twenty-two to thirty (their ages are from 17 to 19) do not smoke or drink as some people seem to think, and they study every evening except Saturday evening, which is their big night. No crowd could possibly have more fun than they do. Their parties break up at midnight and they go straight home. How do I know? I have a son who in one of them and he is always home a few minutes after the parties break up. I feel like I know those boys and girls as if they were my own children. Some of them come to my house frequently for meals or to listen to the radio for a while. Some of the boys are football players and there is not a "sissy" in the crowd. We were not allowed to dance when we were young, but frankly, I can't see any harm in these house party dances and I think our crowd of young folks are "just fine."—I. A. U.

Love of Children.

Dear Minerva: I have been married six years and during that time my husband slowly but surely killed all my love for him, and all because he refused to love me or to show me any kind of affection at all. A few months ago he took steps to get a divorce and it was just shortly after that that I met a very fine man and whom I have come to love very much. Now my husband comes to me and wants me to halt the divorce and let him come back to me. I have two small children and my husband says they need him and he needs them. However, the man I am in love with has plenty of money and is willing to support the children. What do you think I should do, give up all my chances for happiness in the future, or marry this man when I get my divorce and know what real love is? —MRS. T. L.

A. My dear woman, you now have the most beautiful and genuine love there is if you would only see it, and by that I mean, the love of your childen. Nowhere is there anything so wonderful or so abiding as a mother's love for her child. You speak about giving up your chances for happiness in the future, as though the opportunity to shape and develop the characters and bodies of your two little children meant nothing whatsoever to you.

Of course, the perfect love would be a loving husband and loved children, but unless your husband is much worse than your letter indicates, no step-father can ever take his place in the hearts of your children. Circumstances do sometimes alter cases and because of the meager information which I have, I can answer only in generalities. There are perhaps some cases where a stepfather might be better for the children, but such cases are indeed rare. As the years go by you will learn that the happiness which your children can give you will be greater than the happiness you might receive from this other man.

When Fear Enters.

In a letter today which I am not going to reproduce, a mother mourns in fear the tendency toward youthful criminality. I am not publishing the letter, because it is entirely too stark in its fears, too minute in its retailing of current criminal cases for wholesome or constructive reading. It is truth, but truth in such a bleak, stark form that I feel we are all of us better off without the morbid thoughts it induces. The mother herself is receiving a personal letter, for she has brooded herself into a dangerously fearsome, depressed channel of thought.

I am not one who mourns for the "good old days." I believe the present day is better and the present generation, too, but no one can deny that there is a laxity of control in behaviour. The older ones are often worse than the children.

Self-control, a sense of responsibility, is what we need. Cultivate it, both the young people and the adults. Try to realize the bigness of life, the fact that your little personal happiness of today does not mean so much as your integrity.

Young people are idealists. Adults can help them best by keeping their minds untarnished by fears, by holding the ideal before them, by practicing self control and teaching it.

Lack of Interest.

Dear Minerva: I have come to the place where I cannot solve my own problems. About two years ago I married a man three years my senior. We have never been happy since the day we were married. We were as happy as could be before we took that step.

Now we have a baby one year old and on account of the baby we cannot break up, still we are ruining our lives. He says if I leave him he will do everything in his power to get the baby, so I am staying with him on this aecount. It seems to me he doesn't love me or he would try to be good to me. He never gives me a cent of money and the bank account is in his name. I have done everything to make him understand how I feel but he thinks he is good to me. He never comes home in the evening until 8 o'clock and then he either goes out somewhere or works on his radio. I am always alone. Now do you think that is the right way for him to treat me? He never will talk to me in the evening and he seldom pays any attention to the baby. Before we were married he was always very affectionate but now he simply ignores me. I am getting so I just naturally hate him. It seems ages since he has spoken a decent word to me. Can't you tell me what to do? Mrs. W.

A. There are many adjustments to be made in married life, and one which frequently needs to be made is that of the husband who leaves all the responsibility of baby-tending to the wife and seeks his recreation alone.

You will have to take the matter firmly in hand. Secure someone to stay with the baby on certain evenings and ask your husband to take you out to a show or to visit friends or have friends in the home. He will enjoy the return to social pleasures with you, even though he doesn't realize he has missed them. Just to gradually wean him back to include you in his recreations is worth more than lecturing. Demand a household fund and personal allowance. You cannot have a happy home without it.

Schools & Colleges

Chadron Normal

Miss Edna E. Work, dean of women, and Miss Nelda A. Schmidt of the art department, motored to Alliance, Saturday, April 7.

Miss Florence M. Henderson, instructor of speech, judged the district declamatory and oratory contest, at Spearfish, S. D., Friday, April 5.

Miss Rosa Seeleman of the foreign language department and Miss Helen D. Phillips, instructor of first and second grades in the training school, were in Hot Springs, S. D., Sunday, April 7. Miss Genevieve V. Williams and friends drove to Fall River falls and Hot Springs on the same date.

Marjorie Putnam Chadron, a member of the graduating class of 1929, has accepted a position as instructor in the intermediate grades of the Chadron public schools.

Asenath Schill, '24, recently resigned her position as commercial arithmetic instructor in the Norfolk high school in order to serve as superintendent of the Ellison and White chautauqua circuit. She assumed her new duties Monday, April 8, which will call for travel in Texas, California, Washington, and Oregon within the next few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Hahn spent Sunday, April 7, in the Black Hills of South Dakota. They were accompanied by Miss Agnes M. Erickson, Mrs. H. B. Haworth, and Robert Haworth.

Doane College Notes

The graduation recital of Miss Marie Grosshans, organist, was given at the college chapel, Wednesday evening, April 10. Miss Grosshans belongs to the class of 1930 and will not take her degree until next year, although she is completing the requirement in organ this year. Her home is in Aurora, and a goodly number of guests from her home town were present at the recital.

Secretary F. H. Korab conducted a Doane day service at the Congregational church at Genoa Sunday, April 7. He took with him from Crete, a gospel team of the Y. W. C. A., consisting of Joe Carter, Silver Creek. Don Campbell, Columbus ,and Robert Thiel, Scottsbluff, who conducted the service in the Congregational church at Silver Creek.

Professor Orin Stepanek of the University of Nebraska, was the special speaker at a dinner held at the Cosmopolitan hotel, under the auspices of the department of economics, Thursday evening, April 4. Mr. Stepanek's home used to be in Crete.

The second of a series of Sunday afternoon musicales, given by the Doane college department of music, was presented at the chapel Sunday afternoon, April 7. The program consisted of a group of numbers presented by the chairman of each of the four branches; violin, piano, organ, and voice. A feature of special interest in this particular program was the first performance of two original pieces by Miss Dorothy J. Brandon, organist, which were dedicated to the students of Doane college. The numbers are "In a Chinese Garden" and "Chant D'Armour." Another number of special local interest was Mrs. Jean Lindsay Carlson's "Love Me," which was sung by Mr. Kettering. The entire program was high class, varied, and unusually interesting.

Charles Aller, '32, of Crete, has been chosen as an assistant at Camp Strader for the coming summer.

Coach Ward H. Haylett of Manhattan, Kans., stopped over night at Crete, April 7, on his way home from a visit in Norfolk.

Miss Mildred West, '27, who has been teaching at Mitchell, Neb., has been elected as teacher of history in the Crete high school for next year. She is taking the place made vacant by the resignation of Miss Grace Kinney, '20, who is expecting to teach on the Pacific coast.

The fifth and last number of the Doane-Crete Lyceum course for the current year will be given at Sokol hall next Monday evening, April 15 by the Thurlow Lieurance Concert company which will include Mr. Lieurance, composer and accompaniest; Edna Woolley-Lieurance, soprano; and George B. Tack, flutist. Arrangement has been made also for this company to give a matinee performance at the college chapel Monday afternoon. The matinee is especially for school children, but adults will be welcome.

Kearney Notes

The second annual inter-high school contests sponsored by the Kearney State Teachers college will be conducted at the college on Friday, April 19. Invitations were sent to 366 schools in this district and in district five and in addition students from any school in the state were permitted to enter.

There will be contests in the general subjects of art, athletics, clothing, commerce, dramatics, English, foods, industrial education, music, normal training, and stock judging. The committee in charge is made up of Mrs. Ethel M. Sutton, chairman, Verne C. Fryklund, R. C. Rogers and J. T. Anderson.

Gold pins will be awarded to first place winners and ribbons to the second place winners.

The art contest is under the direction of Miss Marion Smith, and includes division in pen and ink copy of a given cartoon, pencil or pen and ink drawing of any animal from memory, chalk drawing—cartoon or trick drawing in colored or black chalk on large white paper before contesting group, pencil or crayon sketch of full length costume figure from model, and crayon, charcoal, or water color study of group of objects in full value.

Mrs. George Dunn is in charge of girls' athletics which begins with a posture test and a tennis tournament. There also will be competitive matches in swimming, diving, relay swimming, low hurdles, shot, discus, and a track relay race.

Miss Louise Enochs is conducting the contests in sewing, which will be opened with a test of the fundamentals. Other divisions are a standard pattern test, machine comprehension test, fiber selection, identification and testing and units in garment construction. In the latter section the contestants will be asked to do one of four things, decide and apply a suitable color on a smock or a color given, design, make and securely sew a patch pocket on a smock, make placket and cuff for the sleeve or make a durable set-in pocket for a house dress or smock.

The commercial contest will include shorthand, typewriting penmanship, and bookkeeping in charge of Mr. Hale, Mrs. Sutton and Mr. Apel.

The dramatic contests are in charge of Mrs. Miriam Drake and include besides regular humorous, dramatic and oratorical selections, a competitive presentation of one act plays.

The English tests begin with the writing of a five-line limerick. At 1 o'clock there is a one hour test for writers on a general topic, and there will also be a poetry judging contest. This work is in charge of Prof. C. T. Ryan.

Under the general topic of foods, in charge of Mrs. Romayne Webster, comes meal preparation and service, extemporaneous preparation of well known dishes, and food tests.

The contest in normal training is being supervised by R. W. Powell and consists of two parts; the written contest which will be on some special phase of the general topic, "Organization and management of a Modern One-Room School." The oral contest will be on some phase of the general topic, "The Nebraska Rural Teacher as a Leader."

The stock judging work is in charge of T. T. Anderson. The team or individual scoring the highest number of points in stock judging will be declared winner.

R. C. Rogers conducts music contest which includes violin, piano and vocal.

An industrial education division is in charge of Verne C. Fryklund. It consists of a drawing contest that stresses line technique, lettering, dimensions, arrowheads and related data, woodwork contest, and home mechanics.

University Notes

There will be no observatory program a the University of Nebraska Tuesday evening, due to spring vacation at the university, it was announced by Prof. G. D. Swezey of the department of astronomy.

M. J. Kopac, who is a scholar in the department of zoology this year, has been awarded a research fellowship at Johns Hopkins university. He will receive his master's degree here this June, and will then work on his doctor's degree at Johns Hopkins.

Study Number 160 of the department of zoology has just been printed. It is a master's thesis written by Ruth Dorothy Swartz of the department, and was previously printed in the Journal of Comparative Psychology.

Dr. L. A. Sherman will be the guest of honor at a faculty men's dinner club meeting at the University club Tuesday evening, April 23.

Answers to a letter sent to high schools by Prof. H. A. White, of the department of English and president of the Nebraska high school debating league, indicate that the question "Trial by jury in criminal cases should be abolished" is preferred for high school debating in Nebraska next year. Twenty-three of 43 replies were in favor of that question. Two other questions were submitted for choice—"the installment plan of buying personal property is economically unsound," which received 13 votes, and "The president of the United States should be elected for a term of six years and become and remain ineligible for re-election," which received seven votes.

Principal W. H. Morton of teachers college high school spoke Monday at Beatrice to the Gage county school men's league on "School Administration and Supervision."

Officers Named By P. T. A.'s

Riley, Bancroft, Whittier and Bethany Groups Hold Elections.

Kenneth Aukerman gave a reading, and a demonstration on agriculture was presented by Mildred Stanley, Orville Haack, Junior Rine, Doris Westerman, Mary Snapp, and Dorothy Vogelsang. The Optimist creed was given by Evelyn Haack, Melvin Leach, Edward Vogelsang, and Vernon Stanley. Lloyd Stanley gave a harmonica solo. Refreshments were served.

Summer Schools Will Be Held To Study Y. W. Work

Summer schools to study Y. W. C. A. work from all angles will be held this summer in five states according to officials of the Lincoln Y. W. C. A., community chest character building agency. Several representatives from Lincoln are expected to attend the schools which will be open to those who wish to study the methods and program of the Y. W. C. A. movement, either as volunteer or staff workers or as preparation for entering the profession.

The first school will be held in Asilomar, Calif., June 21 to August 2. The next will be at Proctorsville, Vermont, July 1 to August 10. At Lake Geneva, Wis., which will probably be the one visited by the Lincoln representatives the school will last from June 21 to August 2; and at Camp Maqua, Poland, Me., the term will be from July 15 to Sept 1. The usual session of the national school of the Y. W. C. A. will be held in New York City.

Modern problems of girls and women will be one of the themes of the summer session in Vermont. Another will be the place of the Y. W. C. A. in the life of today. The effects of migration and what can be done by a community or organization for the newly arrived immigrant will be studied. Miss Elizabeth Herring will be the executive.

At Asilomar the session will include the interpretation of the Y. W. C. A. as a Christian woman's movement, present trends in community life, the place of religion in solving personal problems, and the significance of the youth movement. Charlotte Adams and Lucile Lippitt of Los Angeles will be in charge of the school.

There will be three types of the courses offered at the Wisconsin school, one an introduction to association work for general secretaries in small cities and towns, another on association methods, and a one week's seminary for volunteers. Charlotte E. Burton and Clara Roe will serve as executives and associate executive, respectively. Anna V. Rice, general secretary of the national board, will also be at Geneva.

At Camp Maqua there will be a laboratory course for association secretaries, especially interested in leisure time activities for girls.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. P-169, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Write him today.—Advertisement.

American Girls Given Credit For Setting Another Beauty Standard

The visions of grace shown here are Adrienne Dore, left; Colleen Moore, center, and Lucy Doraine, right, who are three of the reasons which Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, inset, may have had in mind when he stated that in his opinion American girls had the best looking legs in the world.

(By International Illustrated News)

Whatever there is to be said on the question of legs has been said over and over again, hashed up in just a little different manner each time. It remained for Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, of dear old London, famous British surgeon and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, to add a new line.

Sir Lane recently said a mouthful when he opined that American girls have the prettiest legs in the world. Furthermore, his surgical mind went on to say that even if they had small defects the girls knew how to camouflage them (the defects). In this modern age of short dresses the art of making some things even look like legs is perhaps more of an asset than just being born with the type that men prefer.

No questions but that the "Goddess of Beauty" must have personally supervised the production of the underpinings of nine-tenths of the girls you see on the avenue. And that ain't all. This plethora of goodly legs is not confined to any locality but is mighty general, as Sir Lane says, it is an American trait and that covers a lot of territory. We girls have to hand it to Sir Lane. He knows his legs. But, then, so do we.

Benefit At High School Auditorium

City Council P. T. A. to Present Program Next Saturday Evening.

About 1,000 persons are expected to attend tse Lincoln council, Parents and Teachers benefit program Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the high school auditorium, according to Mrs. George Thurtle who has charge of ticket selling. Mrs. Miles Breuer is assisting her. The proceeds will be used to replenish the expense fund of the council.

Whittier band will open the program with the playing of several selections. A ball bouncing stunt will be presented by the kindergarten children of Prescott school, and Miss Ardath Pierce will give a series of numbers on the piano.

The Merry Songsters, a mixed quartet composed of Mrs. Carl Crisman, soprano; Mrs. Eugene Edwards, alto; B. H. Miller, tenor, and J. W. Beal, bass, will sing.

Styles from 1776 to 1929 will be featured in the style show in charge of Miss Adele Winter of Irving junior high school and the following girls from Irving junior: Faith Arnold, Jane Benson, Madge Benson, Elizabeth Bushee, Margaret Backer, Marion Christian, Mary DePutron, Frances Gregory, Madeline Hagerty, Doris Keefer, Mary Louise Steen, Lois Rathburn, Ruth Turner, Betty Woods and Ruh Weaver. Mrs. Leota Snare of Irving junior high school is directing the performance.

A banjo band directed by Stanley Capps will play, and a one act play, "The Kleptomaniacs," sponsored by Clinton Parent-Teacher association will be presented. Those taking parts are Mrs. W. E. Simpson, Mrs. R. B. Smith, Mrs. T. O. McClary, Mrs. L. McBride, Mrs. R. Stone, Mrs. Carl Lowe, and Mrs. Carl Merting. Mrs. Robert Reed will direct the play.

In charge of the affair is Mrs. I. O. Lansing, vice president of the council. Mrs. J. O. Schon is arranging for programs.

Bryant Has Open Meeting.

The Bryant P. T. A. held an open meeting Thursday evening. Miss Fern Ammon, director of music in the elementary grades, opened the meeting with a short talk, and demonstrations showing the progress of musical instruction through the grades from 1B to 6A were given. Art work of the pupils was displayed, and Miss Charlotte Kizer,art director of the schools, gave a talk, with illustrations from the work done in the schools. The meeting was closed with an address given by C. A. Fulmer, state director of vocational education and vocational guidance.

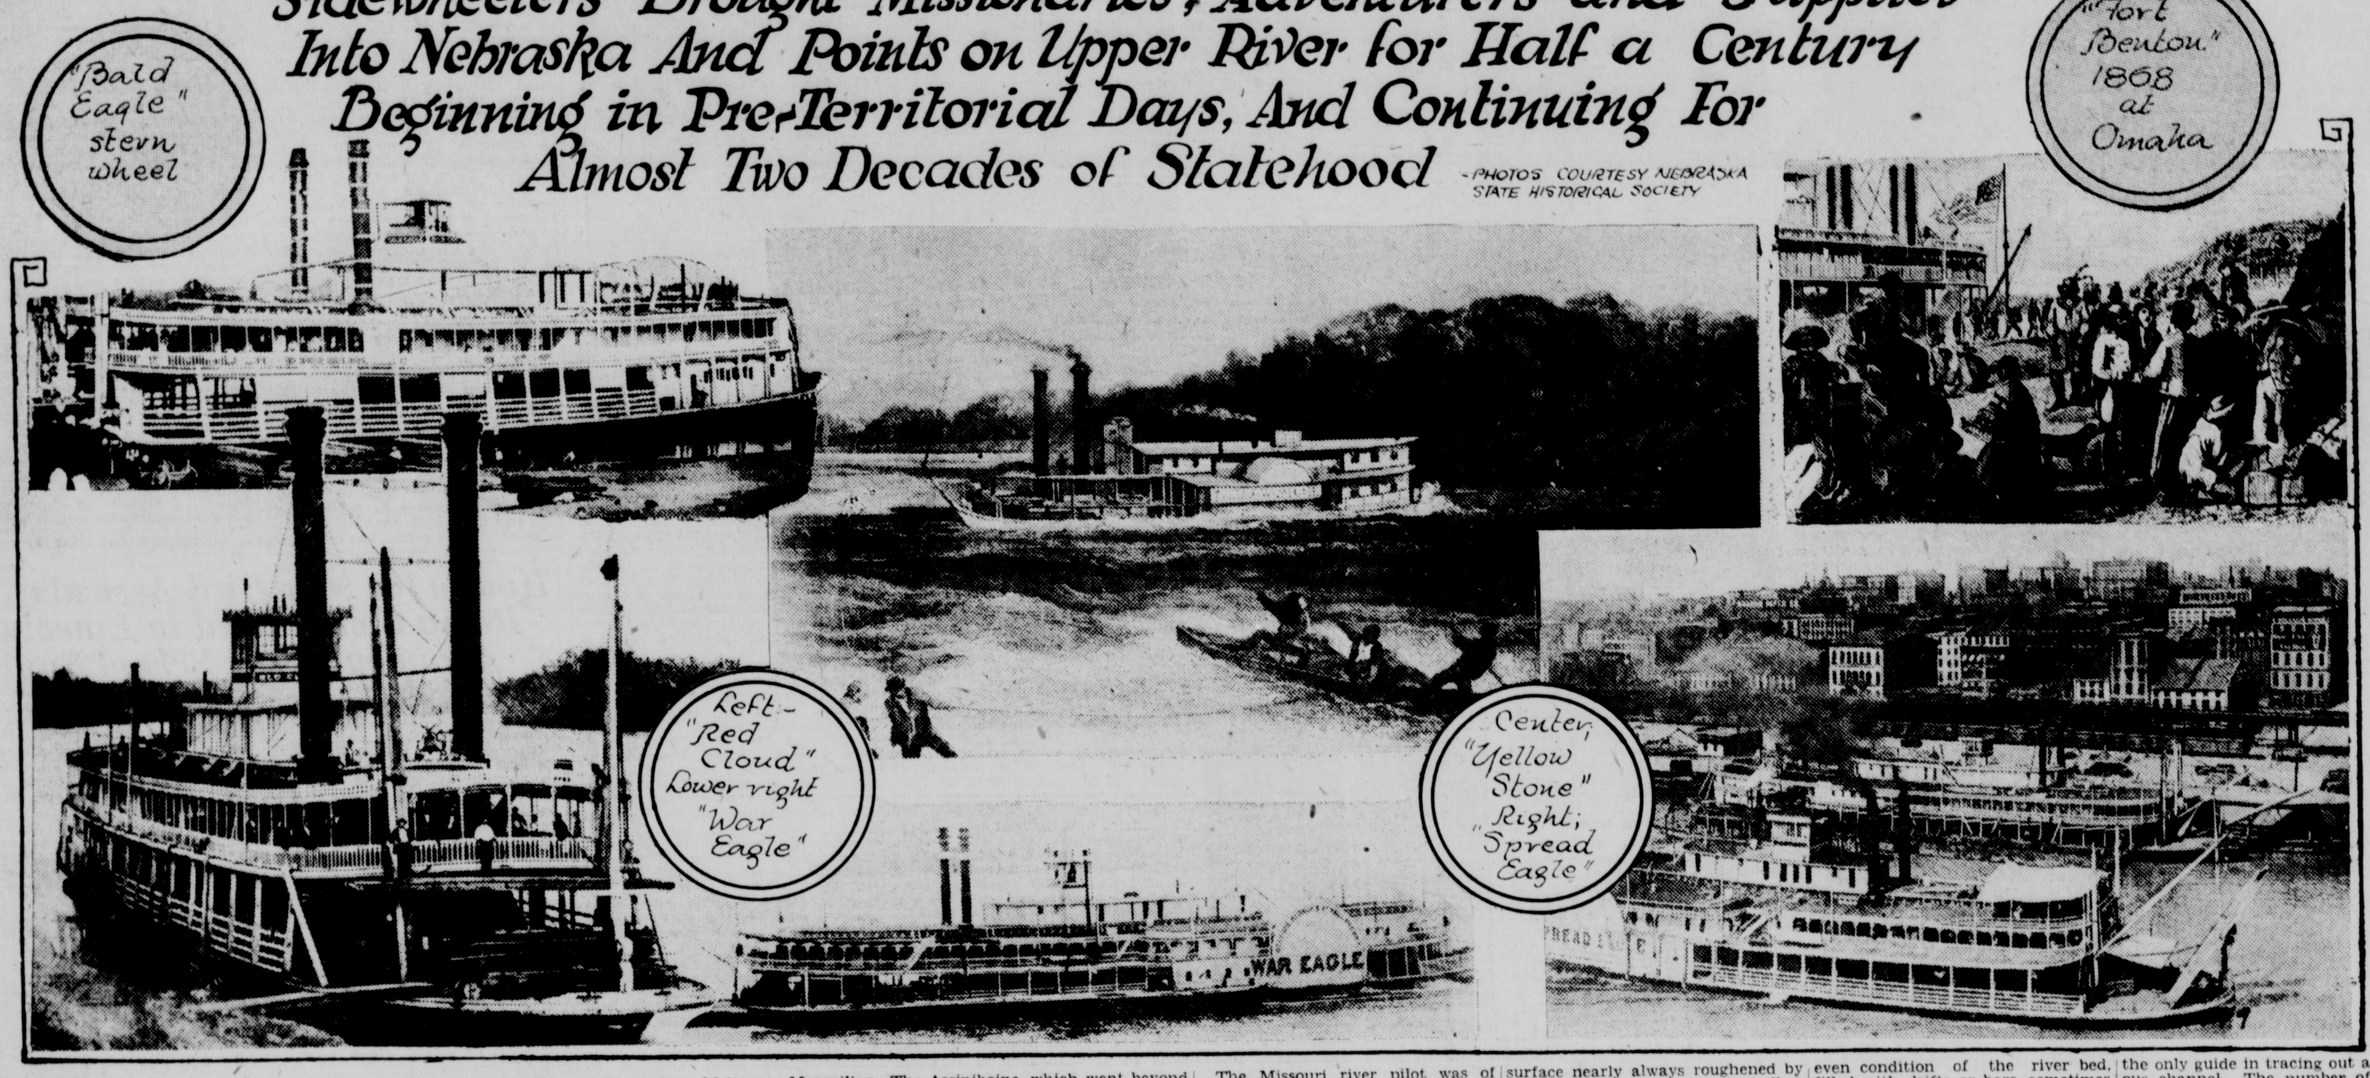
MISSOURI RIVER NAVIGATION IS AN OLD SUBJECT

Sidewheelers Brought Missionaries, Adventurers and Supplies Into Nebraska And Points on Upper River for Half a Century Beginning in Pre-Territorial Days, And Continuing For Almost Two Decades of Statehood



PHOTOS COURTESY NEBRASKA STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

BY LULU MAE COE.

There's much less interest when the Leviathan puts out to sea than when the "Spread Eagle" or "Ben Bolt" or "Forest Rose" churned the Missouri into muddy foam, dropped their line, and nosed out from the dock at St. Louis into the channel, bound for the upper river, and no one knew what adventure.

Women in their wide stiff skirts and tight little bonnets, taking up the space of a couple of modern girls, recruits for various trading companies, hunters, trappers, voyageurs, mountaineers, perhaps a company of soldiers for military service, passengers going out for pleasure or scientific research into the interior, pioneer immigrants in later days, possibly a government exploring party, leaving the fringe of civilization for months, years, perhaps, forever, now and again. They needed the stimulus of the revelry that had gone before and the running roll of musketry of the mountaineers and others as the light river craft set out for the north.

Picturesque Days Gone.

Missouri river navigation is a popular subject, a "restoring to the glory that was Greece" sort of subject. Engineering may be able to dredge the Big Muddy, give it a permanent channel, keep the tempestuous river within its banks, keep it free of snags, sand bars and whirlpools, but it can never bring back the picturesqueness of the days when men and women risked life and fortune to the "Robert Fulton," the "Sonora," or the "Omaha," "there is no better boat at the landing than the steamer Omaha, regular Upper Missouri packet," it was said, to go into the wilderness that was some day to be Nebraska and north Iowa, South Dakota, and Montana.

For a century the history of the Missouri river was the history of the country through which it flowed. It is no longer a great artery of trade or travel, but the temperamental stream was at one time almost the only highway of commerce into the middle west. It ruled this territory, commercial posts and military garrisons being established, expeditions undertaken, and business projects carried out with reference to the Missouri.

Canoes, mackinaws, keelboats, and steamboats form the craft history of the river. Keel boats for the fur trade meant delay in transportation and heavy cost, and because of this the use of steam was determined upon in 1830, and from that time the true history of Missouri river navigation begins. The most important use of early steamboats upon the Missouri was in connection with the fur trade, after an unsuccessful attempt to use steam in 1819.

Steamer Frightened Indians.

The Western Engineer, under the direction of Major Stephen H. Long, and the first steamboat to ascend the Missouri river was 75 feet long, 13 feet beam, and 19 draught. The bow was shaped in to serpent's head, with the boiler and engine masked from view, and smoke escaped through the serpent's mouth, which was supposed to frighten Indians. At a speed of three miles an hour, it reached Council Bluffs.

This venture of 1819, planned to explore the Yellowstone country, "is well armed, but carries an elegant flag, painted by Mr. Peale, representing a white man and an Indian shaking hands, the Calumet of Peace and a Sword." This gentle flag was more diplomatic than realistic, in the light of later days.

In 1831, the American Fur company undertook long voyages, one or two steamboats making extensive trips each year. The first of these was the Yellowstone, which left St. Louis in April, 1831, and returned August 6, which went 600 miles farther than any steamboat had before navigated. Although bound for the Yellowstone mouth, the boat only went as far as Fort Tecumseh, opposite, Pierre, S. D. The Yellowstone brought down a full cargo of buffalo robes, furs, pelts, and 10,000 pounds of buffalo tongues.

Reached Mouth of Yellowstone.

A year later, in July, the Yellowstone arrived again in St. Louis from its second voyage, only this time she reached the mouth of the Yellowstone—700 miles higher than the previous year. This voyage was considered one of the landmarks of early western history. Maxmilian, Prince of Wied, was a passenger on the 130-foot sidewheeler, and he spent some time at Fort McKenzie. The Assiniboine, which went beyond the Yellowstone, was caught by low water, and remained through the winter.

The Missouri river pilot was of necessity the most skilled of his profession. The current was swift, the channel full of snags or sawyers, the surface nearly always roughened by winds, difficult passage of shallow bars made the pilot's position one of minute attendance to duty. An uneven condition of the river bed, filled with drifts or bars, sometimes called reefs, produced an appearance upon the water which was almost the only guide in tracing out a sinuous channel. The number of Missouri river wrecks was astounding, and about 70 per cent were caused by snags, which tore the boat.

The shallow bars, where there was not sufficient water to float the boat, occurred where channels, after following one side of the river bed, crossed to the other, and the channel split into chutes, none of which might have the required depth of water. One promising channel after another was tried, a deck hand making his soundings every five seconds, calling out his depths in a drawling singsong voice, interesting to the passengers seeking amusement. Canadian boatmen prefaced their findings with a native song. One or two days were often consumed in finding a channel, after the entire river in the vicinity had been sounded over a shallow portion.

Indians Were Menace.

Rapids and whirlpools added to the cares of a Missouri river pilot, but Indians added to the difficulties of all. From 1860 to 1876, hostile savages were formidable perils, the Sioux tribes being particularly annoying from the Niobrara to Milk river. They were many attacks, with lives lost, and att imes staterooms and decks were barricaded, and guard kept night and day.

Boats tied up at night, the running hours being from 3 a. m. to 9 p. m., with the crew divided into four watches. The early morning or the late night runs were the best, the wind be ng so low that it formed no serious drawback, and the water comparatively calm, especially in the morning. If the wind increased beyond a certain point, the boat was compelled to make for shore and wait for the gale to subside, because the area of the boat exposed to the wind was so great that in narrow channels it was almost impossible to keep within them, and the boat would lie at the bank for hours.

Fueling was a serious problem, as wood alone was used, and cottonwood, the most plentiful was not first class firewood. In early years, wood was cut by the crews, but wood yards were established with the growth of river traffic. Indians for a time cut all the wood, and refused to let the whites near the wooded areas. Wood cutting became a precarious business during the Indian hostilities, and crews were attacked at the landing. Captain Joseph LaBarge, well known riverman whose life embraced all the years of active boating business, equipped one of his boats with a sawmill and yoke of oxen. When he had to have wood he swung out a large stage, drove the team ashore, dragged logs on board speedily, steamed, away, and the crew cut the wood while en route.

Boats With One Engine.

The early boats were of sidewheel pattern, with only one engine, and an immense flywheel to keep it from stopping on dead center. The men's cabins were in the hold, with the forward part of the boat taken up with machinery. In the river boats, the main deck was first above the water, and the one covering the hold, the boiler deck was second, just over the boilers, and covered by the hurricane roof, and the hurricane deck was the third, and the texas, containing the officers' cabins, and pilot house on it.

A first-class modern river steamboat of later days was about 220 feet long and 35 feet wide, and would carry 500 packs. It was built with a light bottom, so that it would draw about 30 inches light and 50 inches loaded. It was propelled by a stern wheel, in place of the old side paddles, made possible by a balanced rudder, and had two engines, one on each side. The quarters of the crew and steerage passengers were on he boiler deck, and the texas was on top of the hurricane deck, and above the texas the pilot house, high over the river, so that the pilot could observe with more precision. The boats carried light armament, partly to fire salutes and partly to terrify the Indians.

The arrival of a boat was a great day for the lonely trading posts. Salutes were exchanged and the colors displayed when nearing a post. Passengers thronged to the deck to

University of Nebraska Planning to Establish Tradition of Annual Honors Day

BY PEARL COLLETE.

The University of Nebraska, in sponsoring an "Honors day" May 8, has added another new custom to important University events that undoubtedly will in future years become another endeared tradition.

Honors day has been established to emphasize high attainments in scholarship at the university. On that day three classes of undergraduate students will be awarded emblems for attainment in scholarship.

A committee headed by Prof. W. C. Brenke as chairman and including Prof. H. C. Filley, Prof. F. E. Kirshman, Dean T. J. Thompson, and Prof. O. H. Werner presented this plan before the senate and upon its approval this month the same committee was reappointed by the chancellor to make plans for this Honors day.

Honors will be awarded at a special evening convocation on May 8. There will be recognition both to social groups and to the non-social division. The social groups include social sororities and fraternities. The non-social organizations include professional and honorary societies.

Honor Upper 10 Per Cent.

Students of three upper classes whose scholarship average is in the upper 3 per cent will be designated as "Superior in Scholarship" and entitled to wear a suitable emblem selected annually by the Honors day committee. Those whose average places them is the upper 10 per cent will be designated as "High in Scholarship." Students who maintain a superior scholarship during three years will have their names inscribed in a permanent record at the university and be given an emblem permanently adopted for that purpose.

Campus organizations that are officially recognized will be entitled to awards at the convocation also. Students and organizations that are to receive honors will be selected by the university senate upon recommendation of the council of administration.

Students elected to honorary societies are to be announced at the program if the requirements for election conform to a standard of scholarship required by the council of administration. Any officially-recognized group whose scholarship average is 20 per cent above the undergraduate average on the basis of the scholarship ratings made by the office of the dean of students affairs will be announced in the program.

Thirty Greek Honoraries.

There are over thirty Greek letter honorary and professional societies in which membership is based on high scholarship or professional ability or both.

The mother of all Greek letter societies as well as the first honorary is Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic organization, which was founded at the College of William and Mary December 5, 1776. The society at this time was a secret organization and had adopted a Greek motto, thus the first Greek letter society in the United States. The next three oldest chapters of the society were at Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth. At the present there are 107 chapters established in the various colleges of the country.

Secrecy was abandoned in 1830. Originally men alone were eligible to membership but with the growth of co-educational institutions the policy began to be abandoned in 1875, and today practically all chapters admit women upon an equal basis. Total membership today numbers over 55,000, approximately three-fifths being men and the balance women. It has been said that over one-sixth of those persons listed in Who's Who are members of this fraternity. A few of the famous living members are Calvin Coolidge, Charles B. Hughes, Elihu Root, William H. Taft, Richard Byrd, Charles A. Beard and Owen D. Young.

800 Nebraska Members.

The chapter at Nebraska was established in 1896 and has over 800 living members. In general, the requirements are that the candidate be a senior who has met the group requirements of the arts and sciences college, though he need not be a member of that college, and carried successfully not less than 64 credit hours by March 5 of the year in which elected, in the University of Nebraska. The percentage elected out of the eligible group may vary from one-tenth to one-sixth of the whole class at the discretion of the chapter.

Prominent members from Nebraska include Samuel Avery, R. J. Pool, Roscoe Pound, Emory Buckner, Fred M. Hunter, Louise Pound, Laurence Fossler, Sheldon Tefft, and Joy Guilford. Dean J. E. LeRossignol is president for this year.

There are honoraries and professionals organized in commerce, agriculture, business, music, advertising, literature, journalism, geology, fine arts, engineering, and lines of science. These groups bring together students who are interested in the same life work; they encourage valuable discussion; sponsor dinners with prominent speakers in their line of work; offer scholarships and sponsor events at the university in their own field.

Sigma Xi Founded in 1896.

Sigma Xi, scientific fraternity, was founded at Nebraska in 1897. It aims to aid in research in scientific fields by selecting promising candidates to its membership, and by bringing together at its meetings men and women who are devoting their lives to some branch of scientific research or experiment. Essentials for membership are high scholarship, character and promise of advancement in scientific fields. Election to this is one of the highest honors that can be conferred upon students interested in science. There are four types of membership, associate, active, alumni and honorary. Different chapters specialize in various kinds of work, some emphasize research and experimentation, some aid in the interest of science to the general public, others work for the social contacts between science workers. The Nebraska chapter has been endeavoring to combine these functions. Well known Nebraska members are Samuel Avery, E. H. Barbour, W. C. Brenke, E. A. Burnett, A. L. Candy, Charles Fordyce, E. F. Schramm, G. D. Swezey, R. H. Wolcott, C. C. Engberg, Elda R. Walker, Leva B. Walker and many other faculty members.

Phi Sigma, national honorary biological society was founded in 1924 at the University of Nebraska, taking the place of the Zoology club. A bi-monthly meeting is held for members, faculty and students, where papers are given on research work, or on general topics of interest. Membership is limited to those who are juniors or above, and must have had one-fourth of their hours in biological sciences. Every member is required now to be a research worker. George Herzog is president.

Society for Geologists.

Sigma Gamma Epsilon, professional geological and mining fraternity is open only to juniors and seniors who are majoring in geology and who have a high scholarship average. The society sponsors activities of the geology department during Engineers week when the department and the museum is open to the public. Jerry Svoboda is president.

Sigma Delta Epsilon, is for women in all lines of science, doing graduate work. Dr. Eula McEwan is president of the group this year. The graduates must be doing research work.

Iota Sigma Pi, national honorary chemistry fraternity for women, was founded at Nebraska in 1912 and united with a similar group at Washington in 1914. Its purpose is the stimulation of interest and achievement among women in chemistry fields, and the promotion of friendly relationship between the faculty and students by social gatherings and open meetings. Charlotte Barney was president this year.

Phi Lambda Epsilon is honorary chemical fraternity with E. A. Fluevog as president. There is a scholarship requirement of an average grade of 85 or above and leadership is one of the requirements for eligibility. The past year the freshman with the highest scholarship rating has had his name engraved on the scholarship cup and has received a medal. This practice will be continued. Among its alumni are Samuel Avery, Dr. Fred W. Upson, Dean Thompson, Colonel C. V. Frankforter, Dr. D. J. Brown, Dr. C. B. Hendricks, Dr. B. C. Bren, H. W. Harshaw, H. A. Pagel, E. R. Washburn, R. C. Abbott, M. J. Blish, Dr. C. W. Ackerson and Horace C. Deming.

Several Agricultural Societies.

There are several agricultural societies. Alpha Zeta, national honorary fraternity is for men students regularly enrolled in the agriculture college. Eligibility to membership requires three completed semesters of academic work, rank in the upper two-fifths in scholarship, good character and promise of developing a high order of leadership. Announcement of new members is made in the fall of each year, when a medal is presented to the sophomore who attained the highest scholarship during the freshman year. Austin Goss was this year's president.

Gamma Sigma Delta, the honor society of agriculture, had for its president this year, Dr. George Peltier. There are four classes of membership, student, faculty, graduate and alumni. Students are chosen from the upper fourth of the graduating class. The faculty members must have had at least three years of experience in their profession and have shown exceptional ability. The graduates must have shown ability to conduct research work. Alumni must have graduated at least five years before their election and must have rendered signal service to agriculture. Former Secretary of Agriculture Jardine of the Kansas chapter is a member. H. C. Taylor, former chief of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington, D. C., is a member as is E. S. Haskell, agricultural dictation of Persia. Prof. J. O. Rankin of the agricultural college is one of its charter members and is national historian.

Four "Bizad" Fraternities.

There are four commerce and business fraternities. Beta Gamma Sigma, national honorary fraternity for men students regularly enrolled in the college of business administration, chooses for its members those who rank in scholarship in the upper one-tenth of the senior and junior classes and they must show promise of leadership. Graduates and faculty members also are eligible to membership. Its endeavor is to raise the standards of scholarship among business administration students and to create a good fellowship on the campus. Some of its faculty members include Dean J. E. LeRossignol, G. O. Virtue, T. T. Bullock and Oscar R. Martin. Wilbur Meade is president this year.

Gamma Epsilon Pi, honorary commerce sorority for women, was installed at Nebraska in 1923. It is for junior and senior women in the college of business administration who rank high in scholarship. The object is to encourage and reward scholarship among women by recognizing exceptional ability, and to raise the standards in scholarship among women in the college. Eleanor Paul is president.

Delta Sigma Pi was organized at New York university school of commerce in 1907 to foster the study of business in universities, to encourage scholarship and the association of students for their mutual advancement by practice and research, to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and the students of commerce, and to further the high standard of commercial ethics and culture and the civic and commercial welfare of the community. The fraternity awards each year the Delta Sigma Pi key to the senior in the college having the highest scholarship. Some of the faculty members include F. C. Blood, V. Z. Brink and K. M. Arnot. Douglas Timmerman is president this year.

Better Business Ethics.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, fosters scientific research in the field of commerce, accounts and finance, and attempts to build higher standards of business ethics. It is both honorary and professional in character, for the student must have an average of 75 per cent in university work to be eligible. It is also based upon his participation in campus activities, general initiative, and interest in the business college. Among the faculty members are Dean LeRossignol, O. R. Martin, G. O. Virtue, J. E. Kirshman, T. T. Bullock, C. C. Hicks and C. D. Spangler. Burt A. Weber is president this year.

Phi Chi Theta, women's business sorority, ranks with the medical, legal, dramatic and educational sororities and is a charter member of the National Professional Pan-Hellenic association. At the present time a complete employment survey is being made by the national officers of Phi Chi Theta. It is hoped that this survey will bring to light opening and opportunities in the business fields for many who may desire them. It is also planned to have centers throughout the larger cities in the United States, where a Phi Chi Theta member will take charge of employment work in that district. These will be linked together with a central bureau of information in which one of the local members, titled the employment surveyor, will be in charge. She will also work in conjunction with all the Professional Pan-Hellenic association organizations, obtaining through them other employment information. Phi Chi Theta strives to raise the standard of scholarship and further the highest education for business women. Women in business rarely held a degree, and one of the principal objects of this sorority is to have more women secure the degree of bachelor of science in business administration, and to introduce higher ideals of training and business ethics in whatever field they enter. Eleanor Paul is president this year.

Among engineering fraternities there is Sigma Tau, honorary based on scholarship, practicality and sociability. The fraternity not only recognizes ability but aims to promote engineering advancement and to obtain recognition of engineering as a true profession. The organization holds semi-monthly dinners followed by informal talks. During Engineers' week there is the annual presentation of a picture of some prominent engineer for the hall of fame in the mechanical engineering building. A medal also is presented to the sophomore who in his freshman year maintained the highest scholastic average. There is a student loan fund maintained by the local chapter. This year Greer Cowley served as president of the group.

Honoraries In Education.

There are two education Greek letter groups at Nebraska. Pi Lambda Theta for women and Phi Delta Kappa for men. Pi Lambda Theta had for its first president, Ella Victoria Dobbs, head of the department of education at the University of Missouri and a writer of textbooks in kindergarten education. Personality, interest in education, professional promise and scholarships are all requirements. Clara Olson is president for the year of the local chapter. Clara Wilson of the University of Nebraska; Olivia Pound; Alice Hanthorne, who is now supervisor of kindergarten-primary work in Cleveland; Miss Alice Cusack, who holds a like position in Kansas City; Opal Lewton, a supervisor in Lansing, Mich., and Miss Luvicy Hill are members of this group. Miss Hill is national keeper of the records. The organization sponsors a graduate scholarship for women in education, $1,000 being awarded to some woman doing research in educational fields who is working on her doctor's degree. It is called the Ella Victoria Dobbs scholarship in honor of the first national president. The local chapter offers a $25 scholarship to the junior or senior showing the most promise and interest in her work. Over 4,000 members are in this organization. The requirements for membership state that a student must be enrolled in the college of education, and must be of junior standing with 75 hours at least and eight hours in education.

Phi Delta Kappa, men's educational honorary, was started in 1910 as a result of consolidation of educational organizations that had been formed in Columbia university, the universities of Indiana and of Missouri. Its purpose is to foster research, to prepare for leadership and to render service in public education. Active members are limited to students in education of the senior college or of braduate standing who have obtained high academic recognition and who give promise of professional leadership. Members of the faculty are eligible to associate membership and to participate in the organization. Prof. G. C. Minteer is president of the Nebraska group. Among the faculty members are Samuel Avery, Charles Fordyce, M. C. Lefler, O. H. Bimson, E. W. Lantz, R. E. Cochran, Will French, Clark Fulmer and C. Ray Gates.

Two Journalistic Societies.

There are two strictly journalistic societies, one for men and one for women. Sigma Delta Chi, the men's society, requires that a student have proven proficiency in journalism either in school or practice, that he pledge to pursue journalism as a profession, be at least a second semester sophomore in good standing, and have a 75 per cent average or better. This group was originally founded at DePauw university in Indiana. Munro Kezer is president this year. The aim of the organization is to promote better journalism and better standards as a profession. It offers a cup each semester for the best news story published in the Daily Nebraskan and supervises copy editing for the basketball tournament each year. It now sponsors a criticism bureau to aid the state's high school newspapers. Alumni of this chapter include Jack Cejnar of the Indianapolis bureau of International News Service; Philo M. Buck, an honorary member now at Wisconsin, and Gayle C. Walker and Gregg McBride of Lincoln.

Theta Sigma Phi requires that candidates for membership be upperclassmen who are students in the college specializing or majoring in journalism and whose work is of high standing. They must have done work on some publication outside the classroom as a local requirement. Character and personality are considered in addition to professional ability and intentions. A requirement for initiation is work on the Daily Nebraskan, school paper. Frances Elliott is this year's president. Two of the present active members are doing newspaper work. Frances Elliott in Lincoln and Florence Seward as a correspondent for an Omaha paper. Among its important alumnae are Jean Burroughs Reed of the Curtis Publishing company; Ruth Moore Stanley who has won prizes in state press slub contests and is a writer of plays; Bess Streetr Aldrich, novelist, and Sarah Muir. The national organization sponsors the magazine Matrix, a register in Chicago for women seeking journalistic positions

Homes for New Bird Arrivals Being Constructed in Lincoln Again by Public School Pupils

The housing situation for summer visitors from the south is about to be acute.

There are quite a few residences left over from last summer, which are favored by some of the returned sojourners. Many want new dwellings to care for this year's families, and if they aren't supplied the travelers will go elsewhere to establish homes.

Some of the early comers, who arrived betimes to avoid the rush, found snow covered homes waiting. The situation wasn't so good, however, for nice juicy worms hid snugly beneath thick snow layers and many a tail feather got nipped when nature fooled them and withdrew its heating apparatus after a few days of luring appearance. Many of the credulous remained, nevertheless, and the later arrivals will have to scurry about unduly, if help isn't given.

Lincoln's school children have devoted themselves to the building of bird houses for several seasons. Homes for bluebirds and chickadees, apartments for martines have been turned out with amazing rapidity and efficiency, and many a tree is now the site of a bird house, because the children spent some effort in constructing houses.

Special Construction Necessary.

Not all birds need man-made houses. Some of the cleverest prefer to build their own retreats. But those who need them, need them badly, if they are to spend a summer in the city. And it would be a sad summer indeed if the songsters took themselves to kinder environs and there were no trills in the dawn or quiet chirps in a sleepy twilight.

The architecture of bird houses is as definite as that of a dwelling. Birds will come to the trees where Lincoln residents have prepared homes for them, but they won't remain if their rather critical faculties are not satisfied. They like this—and they like that — and they'll pass up what they don't care for—even as you and I.

Suggestions for bird houses have been prepared by the United States government. When you get out your wood and your saw and your nails, you might as well have a house a bird will use instead of merely a pretty ornament in a tree.

Wood is superior to metal or earthenware for a house, and heads of nails, where the birds will come in contact with them, should be covered with putty. Houses should have hinged or removable roofs so that they can be cleaned easily.

Beware of Sparrows.

English sparrows, no friend of birds, enjoy perching annoyingly on a bird house porch—so don't have a platform by the entrance. Sparrows eventually drive away the song birds. A neutral shade of gray or green is suitable for the exterior of the house, but the interior should be unpainted.

A simple and satisfactory means of securing ventilation is to bore a row of small holes in the walls of the house, just beneath the eaves. There should not be a ventilating hole lower than the entrance, and all joints should be made tight—for birds do not like drafts—hard on the throat probably. Ventilation is one of the necessities, however.

Rain may be driven into the house through the door, and a hole bored in the floor will carry off the water. The nest covers the floor, but the water can still run out.

The size of the opening is one of the most important features of a properly built house, and often determines whether or not the house is to be occupied. If it is the right size, the house can be defended by the owners against the many foes, other birds, squirrels, as they can not get in for closer combat.

Red Cedar a Magnet.

For some reason as yet undetermined, birds like a house in which there is a small piece of red cedar. It may be the pungent odor or it may be the color—but birds like it. Vanity may be the prompting motive or it may be used as a periscope, but feathered residents also are attracted to houses which have a bit of glass or bright metal on the outside.

The following table, as prepared by the government, shows details of houses for certain birds. The size of the floor space, the depth of the house, the size of the opening, and the height of the opening from the floor all aid in determining the kind of bird to occupy the house. The detailed table is given below:

Alligators, Monkeys, Parrots and Other Antelope Zoo Inmates Preparing to Leave Winter Shelters

Nellie, the beautiful brown bear in this case, might be greeting the spring, judging from her extended attitude, reaching up toward the sun and the warm breezes, but again she might be hoping for a bite of a thick bun. Whatever Nellie is doing, spring brings the Antelope park zoo animals who have spent the cold months outdoors into th open pens and once again ready to be viewed by eager youngsters—and their parents. The buffalo range during the winter, the bright red foxes wander out on the white deer don't mind wintry blasts, just so there is a shelter with plenty of hay nearby. The only newcomers at the park this year are a bevy of rabbits, very, very white ones, and extremely black ones, which aren't at the moment nearly as long as their name, and which haven't opened their eyes as yet. Mary Grace Maschel is holding a whole pan of bunnies, an octette of them, and with her is her little brother, Charles Maschel, both of Omaha, who are visiting Ray Coffey.

What do the monkeys do
When there isn't any zoo?
Where do the 'gators play
On a cold and snowy day?
Who tells them spring is here—
The birds and bears and deer?

The Antelope park ground hog is supposed to serve as a spring thermometer in the animal kingdom.

But he didn't do his duty this year.

He didn't appear per schedule on February 2. So the alligators stretched and the bruins stuck their heads out and the parrots preened their feathers.

Three days later out he popped, and who could tell February 2 without a ground hog was very good. But a late appearance—was his calendar wrong, and did he come tardily to tell his tale of more winter, or if he didn't come on the proper date, were later appearances powerless to influence the weather man.

So the Antelope zoo returned for a time to winter lethargy. And doesn't think so much of the little brown and furry creature with psychic powers.

Spring Is Announced.

In lieu of this information, Clarence Kittinger, park superintendent, announces spring to the furred and feathered inhabitants of the park.

Winter at the zoo isn't really so different from any other season, except that the denizens don't cavort with such bouncing enthusiasm. They enjoy staying within a shelter, particularly this past winter, which was one of the chilliest seasons some had experienced since coming to Lincoln.

The most of the animals don't move in the winter—except from a barred pen back into a covered retreat. Seasons are seasons to them, especially if the 100 pounds of meat scraps come around daily for the three meals and late evening snack. Even the bears in captivity come out occasionally to see what it's all about. All except Nellie, that is, who is sort of a lazy lady, and does not care much about being bothered.

Monkeys Hate Cold.

Along about October, the monkeys go in, chattering and squabbling among themselves, to spend the winter in the green house annex, flying and climbing about their cages until warm weather comes. The ten don't care for chilly breezes, and the first ones send them huddled and distressed into corners. However, they don't have much time for despair at the Antelope zoo, because they are taken in for safety as soon as cool weather comes.

About the first of May, they are taken to the outdoor cages, and at the same time the two parrots are again able to loose their squawks on the open air. They live above the monkeys in the winter, and the tower of Babel had nothing on the racket when the parrots and the monkeys try a vocal duet.

The fish pond has been cleaned, and most any day now the gold fish will go out to summer quarters, after spending the cold months madly swimming about in the green house. The water for the fish pond moves in a regular circle—coming from the fountain, going into the pool, sliding under the road to the south of the Bear pits, where it serves for a lily pool, and then flowing into Antelope creek.

Alligators Wake Up.

For the last five months, or beginning November 1, the alligator family, consisting of two wicked looking and very long numbers, and four lesser ones, with a young tailed child, have been in a warm spot. They have been taken out now, the potential spring weather not being chilly enough to injure their knobby complexions.

A sudden cold wind chilled them just before they were taken in, and the smaller ones were handled just like cordwood, and unceremoniously dumped into their quarters. The two larger ones were shoved into a pen and taken within.

When spring removal time came, the 'gators were wakening up, and the men treated them with deference. A rod with a rope was put about each neck and front foot, so that the alligator would not choke, one man grabed a tail, another the rod, and they were brought out to their miniature lakes, where they drowse through the long, hot, summer, perhaps dreaming of tropic days and bays.

Alligator Is Ideal.

For a pet, an alligator is ideal. It only eats in June, July and August, and requires nothing more unusual than meat, and sleeps all winter, and, in fact, most of the year. One of the workmen tried to feed the alligators during fair week last year, the weather was warm and he thought his charges might like a little sustenance. But fair week is in September, and no proper alligator would eat in a month with an "r" in it.

If the plans of Mr. Kittinger can

Reporters For Boys and Girls Clubs May Enter News Writing Contest Sponsored by The Star

Plans are complete for the 1929 news writing contest sponsored by the Linucoln Star for the reporters of boys and girls clubs in Nebraska. The contest will continue from now until November 1, 1929.

As in the past three years, the winner of the 1929 contest will attend the next club week at the agricultural college as the guest of The Star. All expenses will be paid for the entire week of fun.

Lucille Templeton of Colon won the 1928 contest and is looking forward eagerly to the coming first week in June when the fourteenth annual club week begins. Helen Riggs of Crawford won in 1927 and Geraldine Russell of Tecumseh won in 1926.

Any reporter of a 4-H club anywhere in the state may enter the contest. Application blanks and rules have been sent to the reporters whose names are on file in the state club office at the agricultural college. As new names come in they will be supplied with the blanks and rules. It is necessary to return the application blank to L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, in order to properly enter the contest. Elton Lux, extension service editor, will handle the deatails of the contest.

There will be no expense connected with the competition. In addition to the chance at the club week trip, those who write will get to see their own stories in print, and will help spread the influence of 4-H club work.

Below is the list of rules:

Who may enter—Regularly elected news reporters of standard 4-H clubs in Nebraska in 1929, who have not won in previous contests in news writing. No reporter may enter more than one contest.

Ten must compete—Ten or more boys and girls must be actually writing and sending in stories in each contest by August 1, 1929, or the state club office will call off that contest.

What the competing reporter is to do? White news stories about what his or her club plans or does during 1929. Send them in promptly after the meetings are held or the events happen, to Elton Lux, extension editor, agricultural college, Lincoln, where they will be edited and sent on promptly to the paper, and where the original stories will be kept on file for the judges at the end of the year. Write and send in at least four stories.

What the extension editor is to do—Prepare and furnish copy paper to othe contestants. Prepare and furnish special news writing lessons each month. Send back constructive criticism of each story as it is edited for the paper. Submit the filed stories to the judging committee at the end of the year.

How each contest will be judged—The original stories of all eligible contestants will be submitted on November 1, 1929, to a committee of three judges, one who is familiar with club work, one instructor in journalism of the University of Nebraska, and one representative newspaper reader. This committee shall pick a winner of each contest, basing its decision upon the news value of the stories ,the style in which they are written, and the neatness of the copy, spelling, and grammar.

Elaborate Program of Expansion Underway at Camp Strader, Lincoln's 'Y' in the Woods

Camp Strader on the Blue, the 'Y' in the Woods, where since 1919 over four thousand boys and young men from Lincoln and Lancaster county have been given the chance to get away from the heat and crowds of the city and live as every boy wants to live, swimming, canoeing, hiking, a camp fire at night—Old Camp Strader that brings up never-fading memories in the minds of many—will enter a program of expansion and improvement which greatly enlarges its capacity and makes it one of the finest boys' camps to be found anywhere.

Chief among the improvements are a large, fully equipped dining hall and kitchen, the gift of Frank H. Woods and a headquarters building to be erected by the Lincoln Optimist club, a civic organization which has as its motto, "Friend of the Boy."

Program Adopted.

With the additions of these two buildings will come a recasting of the camp grounds, a shifting of the tennis courts and a number of other changes. Knox Burnett, a camper of 1913, has made several inspection trips to Camp Strader recently, studying the Blue river and its environs and has outlined the possibilities of the camp site with a view towards the future. In his report, Mr. Burnett declares, "I kept before me boy traditions of sixteen years and find that the site offers unusual possibilities for camping." At a subsequent meting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Burnett's plans were adopted together with a program of development calling for completion of certain projects this year and others at an early date.

Tom Woods, a new member of the camp development committee of the 'Y' and also a 'Y' camper himself, conceived the idea of a dining hall for Camp Strader. He made a trip to New York to put the proposition before his father, Frank Woods, who welcomed the idea as an excellent way to help the Y. M. C. A. in its boy-development program. In a letter to Mr. Luke, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Woods says in part, "I want to thank you for calling this matter to my attention, also for giving me this opportunity to assist in the wonderful work that is being carried on at Camp Strader." Since then, Mr. Woods has placed at the disposal of the 'Y' $3,200 for the construction of Woods hall.

Seats 100 Boys.

Woods hall will be 56x40 feet over all, of brick, concrete and frame construction, located at the extreme north end of the campus in accordance with the plans for the camp development. The whole building will be approximately 60 feet north of the present structure. The dining room proper will be twenty-six by forty feet, capable of seating one hundred boys. On the south, east and west sides will be screened porches eight feet wide, which can be used for auxiliary dining rooms, thus doubling the capacity of the plant. In the north wall of the dining room will be a large open fire place for rainy days.

The kitchen will be at the north end of the building, fourteen by forty feet, built entirely of brick. It will be large enough to care for the camp's needs not only now but for a long time in the future. Clean, sanitary and beautiful, this gift of Mr. Woods is one for which many thousands of Lincoln boy campers will long be grateful.

Optimists Plan Building.

Simultaneous with the gift of Woods hall came the announcement by K. B. Cary, president of the Optimist club, that in keeping with the motto, "Friend of the Boy," the club desired to undertake the project of fianncing and erecting a headquarters building to provide office and staff quarters for camp administration officials.

This structure will provide admirable housing for a number of camp units, which heretofore have been located at different points on the campus. Not only from a utilitarian point of view is this gift most acceptable, but as in the case of Woods hall, it also will fit in well with the development program, located as it will be at the northeast corner of the rectangle.

The headquarters building will be of frame construction 18x31 feet including an open-front porch. In it will be housed the camp store, the first aid dispensary and in the rear sleeping quarters for the administration staff, where eight persons can be comfortably housed. All athletic equipment will be checked out of this building, by means of a service window off the porch. A swinging telephone will be located here, accessible through the service window. Around the porch will be built-in lockers, where athletic equipment can be stored. The cost of the structure together with equipment will be approximately $600.

Camp Area Enlarged.

In planning this gift to Camp Strader, the Optimist club took into consideration future needs of the camp. As another unit in the expansion program, it will contribute much to the success of 'Y' summer activities at the camp on the Blue.

Last year A. L. Johnson, president of the Crete Milling Co., deeded three acres on which Camp Strader is situated to the Y. M. C. A. Since then two and a half acres more have been purchased. The tract is heavily wooded in spots, interspersed with open spaces which are utilized for athletic fields, archery ranges and baseball diamonds. In the development program these fields are to be shifted into better locations and undergo other improvements.

Included in the propect to be undertaken in the near future are a memorial marker, manual arts shop, forest chapel and a lodge. The latter structure will be designed to house camp community activities and will be located at the extreme south end of the campus, opposite Woods hall. The memorial marker is to be erected in the hollow near the bowl, where initiations and other midnight affairs are conducted.

Chapel In Forest.

The forest chapel, as the name suggests, will be built in a wooded area along the river at the extreme southeast tip of the site. The manual arts shop is to be located near the strip of beach just below the dam. An additional cabin will be added immediately to the seven already there, material from the old dining hall being utilized for this purpose. The cabins are on the west side of the campus.

The whole plan of development makes the utmost use of the wonderful assets of the area chief of which is the beauty of the spot. Both above and below the dam fine swimming pools are found together with long stretches of canoeing water, where during each camp, the boys man the Indian war canoes and engage in battle royal.

Established In 1913.

Camp Strader was established in 1913, the first permanent boys' camp in Nebraska. Today, due to the growth of the camping idea, there are well-equipped association camps at Columbus, Beatrice, Fairbury and Hastings. The Boy Scouts maintain three permanent and two temporary camps in the state. Camping facilities are also provided for girls at a number of places.

During the past three years the attendance at Camp Strader has grown from 398 in 1925 to 591 in 1928—an increase of 48 per cent. With the gifts of Frank Woods and of the Optimist club, the pressing needs of the camp will be met, and completion of the projects outlined above will carry the camp well into the future.

The 1929 camping season opens Tuesday June 11. Five regular camps will be held for boys between 12 and 17 years. One junior camp for boys under 12, two county camps and five two-day week end camps for young men complete the schedule, which runs well into the latter part of August. If good weather prevails during the summer, the attendance is expected to be far in excess of six hundred.

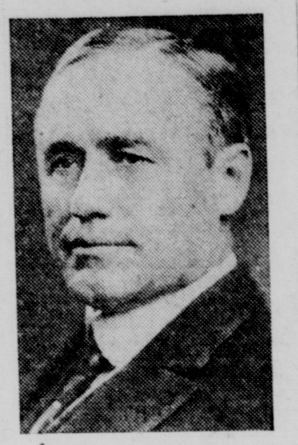
A sketch of the headquarters building to be erected by the Lincoln Optimist club at Camp Strader is reproduced in the upper left as it will appear when finished for the coming camping season.

Woods hall is sketched in the lower left, accompanied by a photo of the donor, Frank H. Woods. Woods hall will be the camp dining room and kitchen. One of the major buildings at Strader, it will be located at the north end of the campus, with the Optimist building to the east of it.



University of Nebraska Is Establishing New Tradition of Honors Day, In Recognition of Its Outstanding Students and a biennial convention. The local chapter sponsors an annual dinner for the school of journalism and round table luncheons and speakers. Some chapters such as that at Butler university in Indianapolis and Gamma chapter at the University of Missouri sponsor a Matrix table, a banquet at which some famous writer is the speaker for the evening. An alumni house is maintained in Chicago. The organization is both honorary and professional. There are nine alumni chapters besides the active groups. Sara Lockwood Williams of Columbia, Mo., is national president.

Advertising Fraternities.

Akin to both business and journalism and yet in a distinct field of its own is the profession of advertising. There are organizations for both men and women studying in this field. Gamma Alpha Chi for women was established at the University of Missouri. It requires that members complete successfully one course in advertising with a grade above 80, and have one year in school, although the members are mainly juniors and seniors. Miss Norma Carpenter, founder of the local chapter, is national treasurer of the organization. The group this year has taken over advertising in Lincoln for several firms. Kendrick Ott is sponsor for the group. Among important members of the national group are Miss Ella Wyatt, society editor of the Tulsa Tribune, Miss Marie Weesner of Lincoln, and Mrs. Ruth Midyette of Mount Vernon, Mo. Mary Dolan was president this year of the local group.

Alpha Delta Sigma, for men, had as its president this year Lyman Cass. Membership is limited to those planning to go into advertising as a profession and ability in the work is a requisite. The group this year handled all advertising in the Cornhusker yearbook.

There is a pair of literary organizations, one for women and one for men. Chi Delta Phi for women, requires literary interest and achievement; matriculation in the college; good standing in scholarship; and the endorsement of some member of the faculty. Alumni include Dr. Louise Pound, Dr. Laura Pfeiffer, Amy Bruner Almy, Ruth Bryan Owen, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Mrs. Keene Abbott, Ruth Moore Stanley, and Eunice Chapin, who is editor of the chapter magazine. Marjorie Stuff is president of the active group this year. Misses Margaret McPhee, Constance Syford, Flora Bullock, Ruth Odell and Zora Schaupp are all alumnae members. The group encourages creative literary work by undergraduates and furnishes the basis of contact for students interested in literary work. Among the prominent alumnae are Mrs. Roy Whitham and Nellie Lee Holtz, who is a faculty member at Stephens college at Columbia, Mo.

Edits Prairie Schooner.

Sigma Upsilon, the national writers fraternity for men, corresponds to Chi Delta Phi. The Wordsmith chapter was founded at Nebraska several years ago. Among its charter members are Volta Torrey, now on the Chicago Tribune staff, Edwin Morrow and Marion E. Stanley on the Omaha World-Herald; Roscoe Schaupp; Jacob Gable, contributor to the Golden Book; V. Royce West; and Robert Lasch, now at Oxford college in England. Lowry C. Wimberly of the University of Nebraska is also a prominent member. The organization edits the Prairie Schooner, Nebraska's literary magazine which was rated as one of the four best publications in the country by Edward O'Brien. Membership requirements are that the student show marked ability to write and have some article accepted by the chapter. Dean Hammond is president of the fraternity this year.

In music there are several societies, some connected with the university and some with the University School of Music. Mu Phi Epsilon, national women's honorary has a score of nationally prominent members. Rosa Ponselle; Ethel Leginske who is conductor of the Boston and Chicago Women's Symphony orchestras; Mabelle Glenn, director of music at Kansas City and president of the Music Supervisor National conference; Countess Helena Morsztn, polish pianist of international fame, are among them. This year members of the Philadelphia alumnae are planning a 66-day tour to the great music shrines in Europe. Julius Diabet, well-known concert manager and American representative of European festivals, will conduct the tour. Alumnae chapters are located at Cleveland, Des Moines, Detroit, Eugene, Ore., Indianapolis Lincoln, Long Beach, Phialdelphia, Portland, biAprWU. rlmwor—ssiollcd-e h hh San Joaquin Seattle, St. Louis and Washington. The object of the organization is the advancement in music in America by locating chapters only on schools of high standing; high scholastic attainments required of its members; the maintenance of a benefit scholarship fund for members in need of assistance in pursuit of their musical education; co-operation with national movements which tend toward advancement of music locally; chapter co-operation in all local civic music ventures, and the maintenance of chapter scholarship funds with the aim of stimulating endeavor in the entire student body. A student must be of conspicuous ability, have an average of 90 or equivalent, must be able to make a creditable public appearance, qualify as to character and ability to co-operate, and must have attained junior rating before initiation. Mrs. M. C. Lefler is president of the Lincoln alumnae and Dorothy Wassum is active president. Among local aumnae are Hazel Kinscella, Edith B. Ross, Lynnelle Greer, Mrs. R. O. Hummell, Ruth Haberly, Mrs. Earnest Harrison, Alice Hussong, Helen Lewis, Mrs. Leslie Cadwallader, Margaret Colby, Vera Ppton, Mrs. Homer Compton, Elizabeth Tierney, Mrs. Don Bell, Mrs. Bess Phillips and Mrs. Anne Leonard Munger.

To Encourage Good Music.

Delta Omicron, national musical sorority, tries to encourage the appreciation and performance of good music among musicians during student days to promote interest in the associated arts. Members are chosen on the basis of character, scholarship and musiianship. Valoreta Callen is president this year. Among the alumnae are Alma Wagner, Lucile Cline, Kathryn Dean, Louise Pound and Harriet Cruise Kemmer.

Sigma Alpha Iota, national musical sorority, has for its national president Miss Hazel Ritchey of the Lincoln chapter. Among the alumnae are Marguerite Klinker, Genevieve Wilson, Mrs. C. C. Emerson, Miss Hazel O'Connor, and Mrs. Max Anderson. The organization is professional mainly. For this year Emma Strangman served as president of the group. The sorority gives one public performance a year, has a national scholarship and a local scholarship of one hundred dollars in addition which is awarded to some one of particular ability and talent, decided upon by the faculty.

Phi Mu Alpha, the only Sinfonia fraternity in America, is also the only Greek letter musical fraternity in existence. It was founded at the New England conservatory at Boston. Each chapter is required to present one or more public programs each year, embracing compositions of American composers. Its ultimate hope and aim is to gain recognition for American performers and composers and in so doing, to help lay the foundation for an American school of music and composition. Aubrey J. Bouck is president. Local members include leading men musicians of Lincoln and students who are studying some branch of applied music and theoretical subjects, such as Howard Kirkpatrick, Carl Steckelberg, Herbert Schmidt, Earnest Harrison, Herbert Gray, Homer Compton, Harry Warfel, Adrian Newens, Don Berry and Sidney Sulber.

Corresponding in a way to Phi Beta Kappa, is the honorary musical organization, Pi Kappa Lambda in the University School of Music, which selects each graduation the upper 4 per cent of those having highest scholarship records. It has for its president, Miss Marguerite Klinker.

Fraternity of Bandmen.

In 1912 band members of the R. O. T. C. united to organize Gamma Lambda. Its plans to foster good fellowship and brotherhood among its members, to promote and further their enterprises of merit, and to strive for the development and betterment of college bands throughout the United States. The membership is chosen annually from incoming members of the R. O. T. C. band, particularly among men whose abilities as musicians and whose interest in band work during the semester previous to initiation have qualified them for membership. Frank Calhoun is president this year.

Kappa Epsilon is the professional sorority in this class for women in the pharmacy profession. It stands for professional fellowship and attempts to foster fraternalism and unite women employed in pharmaceutical pursuits for their mutual encouragement and assistance. This group maintains a loan fund as a means of giving help to deserving members who are in college. Plans are under way to establish a scholarship fund. The national scholarship cup was awarded to Nebraska chapter at the national convention held at Madison, Wis., in 1927. Each year the group sponsors a university mixer. Ethel James is president this year.

In fine arts Sigma Lambda is a professional arts sorority for girls who are fine arts majors. Its purpose is to promote art, maintain high professional standards, secure such professional and social benefits as may be derived from association of students with each other. The group sponsors a tea for all girls of the art department. A carnival given for the fine arts students is sponsored by Sigma Lambda and Pi Sigma Alpha, men's art fraternity. The group also co-operates with the Art club in the observation of fine arts week. Miss Elizabeth Hauser is president. Among alumnae members are Miss Tressa Emerson, drawing and painting instructor at the university, and Miss Elizabeth Dolan, who painted the murals in Morrill hall.

Requirements Are High.

Alpha Rho Tau, honorary scholastic organization in the fine arts college, also corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa of the arts and science college. The specific grade varies each year but only high scholars are admitted and there has never been a lower average than 87.5. Albert Benson is president this year. The organization plans this coming year to take up some particular work as its objective. Among its important alumni are Hermine Steallar, a portrait painter in Chicago now; Maurice Clark an actor in New York; Susan Scott Davies, formerly an actress in New York; Miss Alice Howell, Prof. P. H. Grumann, Miss Viola Loosbrock and Miss Elizabeth Tierney, all of the University of Nebraska.

An honorary pre-medic fraternity is Theta Nu, which was founded here in 1922. It attempts to promote high standards of scholarship among pre-medics, and assists in the extra-curricular activities. It has been instrumental in the publication of Nu Med News the past several years. Election is held by the active chapter twice a year; once at the end of the first semester and again in May. Requirements for membership are based on scholarship, leadership, personality and general ability. The president for this year is Rudolph F. Sievers.

In engineering there are five societies, the Nebraska Engineering society, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the American Society of Mechanical engineers.

Three Law Fraternities.

In the law field there are Phi Delta Phi and Delta Theta Phi, and Phi Delta fraternities. In the medical college there is Kappa Psi, and in the dental college there are Xi Phi and Delta Sigma Delta fraternities. Alpha Chi Sigma is founded in the chemical field.

Delta Sigma Rho is a strictly debating fraternity which admits only debaters who have participated in at least two inter-collegiate debates. They must be junirs or servivors. It is strictly honorary. Members must show special proficiency in public speaking. The group sponsored a freshman extemporaneous speaking contest this year and awarded a cup to the winner. This is to be continued each year. Prof. H. A. White is sponsor of the local chapter alumni include Sheldon Tefft, Emory Buckner, Attorney General Sorensen, Guy Chambers, Hugh Cox, Gayle Walker, Charles Matson and Louis Finklestein.

A fraternity in mathematics is Mu Epsilon, with Theodore Jorgenson, jr., as its director. Membership requirements call for a general average of 80 or more, 85 in mathematics and the candidate must have had calculus or be takin git. This year a $10 scholarship was awarded to the winner of competitive examinations in integral calculus and this next year another prize of $10 is to be offered in analytic geometry. The group was organized last spring.

Home Economics Sororities.

Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu are the two cororities in the home economis department. Omicron Nu has Evelyn Mansfield as president this year. It is composed of juniors and seniors who have qualities of leadership and who show promise of future achievement. Less than 5 per cent o fthe junior class and less than 12 per cent of the senior class is chosen for this group. This past year the work of the organization has been to sponsor essay contests in Lincoln high schools. They also give an annual tea for all home economic girls. Miss Margaret Fedde is national vice president of the organization. Among its alumnae are Mrs. Howard Gramlich, Miss Mary Ellen Brown, Mrs. E. A. Burnett and Mrs. W. W. Burr. Prominent national alumnae are Sarah Louise Arnold, dean of the Simmons school in Boston; Martha Van Renesselar, director of the college of home economics at Cornell; Anna M. Cooley, professor of household arts in the teachers college at Columbia university; Edna White, director of the Merrill Palmer school in Detroit; Dean Margaret Justin, national president, of Manhattan, Kas.

Lois Davies is president of the local chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron this year. The group is an honorary professional society with membership based on schalorship qualities of leadership and good character. Membership is chosen from women who stand in the upper two-fifths o ftheir class. They must have completed three semesters work. One year the group undertook Americanization work in Lincoln and this year it took care of a poor family at Christmas. It also sponsors a tea each year for the home economics department. Among nationally-known alumnae are Bess Rowe, editor of the Farmers Wife at St. Paul, Minn., Mrs. Lucile Rust, editor of the Candle the publication of Phi Upsilon Omicron; and local well known alumnae are Jane Hinkley, Birdie Vorhies, state superintendent of home economics in Nebraska; Anes Saunders, in charge of child division in the University of Nebraska.

Determining Sex

Octogenarian Says She Can Tell Whether Hen's Egg Will Be Pullet or Rooster.

Mrs. Louise Tuthill shown determining the sex of eggs.

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Lincoln Star.)

WASHINGTONVILLE, N. Y.—April 14—Scientists admit they can't tell whether a hen's egg, if fertile, will hatch into a pullet or a rooster, but Mrs. S. Louise Tuthill, 82, who has a poultry farm near this village, says she can. If her experiments prove successful, acclamations of scientists and the world, and lasting fame undoubtedly await her.

Science has its microscopes and its theory about the relation of sex to the minute things called chromosomes in sperm or egg cells. But Mrs. Tuthill doesn't bother with such things. She has a small instrument—and that's her secret.

This instrument reacts, she says, to the male or female determinant in an egg, a reaction by motion which she interprets. She can't explain why it reacts as it does, but believes it demonstrates a certain attracting force between male and female in any living thing.

One Way or the Other.

Translated into terms of magnetism to give a parallel commonly understood, she explains, in substance, that the male may be regarded as positive and the female as negative, or the other way round. The main point is that these positive and negative forces attract each other, whereas two like forces, either two positives or two negatives, repel each other.

Her instrument, therefore, she regards as an indicator of the relation between the magnetic field around her own body and the magnetic field around an egg. Thus since she is a woman, possessing the vibration, magnetic force or whatever it is that is peculiar to the female of any species, she believes that the invisible lines of force around her act in definite ways when a male or female, whether egg, horse or any animal, including human beings, is close enough to her.

Her instrument, she says, gives a visible demonstration of what these lines of force are doing. If, in the case of the egg, the instrument tells of an attraction the egg is male, a future rooster, while if it should tell of a repellance, the egg is female, a future pullet.

What It May Lead To.

The possibilities of the thing, if it can be proved to work correctly, are at once apparent. A poultryman might have his eggs tested and set only those which would hatch into future hens, egg-layers, thus eliminating the necessity of having a lot of roosters on his hands each year.

Mrs. Tuthill says that several hatches on her farm already have satisfied her that the predictions of her invention are correct. She avers that by the use of her indicator she arranged two settinsg, one of male eggs and the other of female, and that they hatched out according to her prediction. She now is waiting for an incubator setting of 160 eggs which she confidently declares will produce all pullets. Ordinarily the average is about 50 per cent roosters.

She says that her invention can be applied to any egg, but makes no claim that it can be used to determine the sex of unborn children, pointing out that the prospective mother would give the characteristic reaction of a female, irrespective of the sex of the unborn child.

Theoretically, if a man used the instrument, he should get reactions opposite from those received by Mrs. Tuthill — that is, the instrument should register attraction when held over a female egg and repellance when over a male. Because of Mrs. Tuthill's disinclination to reveal the intricacies of her contrivance this has not yet been tested.

The aged woman believes, however, that she is particularly sensitive to her reactions and get results where others would fail.

"AMERICA, THE BEAUTIFUL."

In a few weeks, hundreds of thousands of Americans will be taking to the highways.

They will be pressing forward to the lakes, to the woods, to the mountains, and to the seashores, visiting unfamiliar sections in that glorious vacation season, when freed from the burdens of daily grind, they go forth to renew youth, to taste adventure, and to enlarge their knowledge of this country which is theirs.

It was under similar circumstances that the poem, which has in recent years taken its place as a national anthem, was written. Katherine Lee Bates, a beloved instructor at Wellesley university, whose death a few weeks ago brought sharp grief to the hearts of thousands of American women, was the author of "America, The Beautiful." It was written at the conclusion of her first transcontinental trip, a journey which took her from the Atlantic seaboard to the sun-kissed sands of the Pacific beaches. She had gazed for the first time upon those great cities which have grown up in the Ohio valley, she had marveled at that noisy metropolis which is Chicago, she had traveled for hours across the rolling prairies of the central west, she had skirted the foothills of the Rockies and then plunged boldly through and over those great piles of granite rock, with their yawning canyons, their towering walls reaching straight upward toward the heavens for thousands of feet, and she had gloried in the beauties of the Sierras.

In the sanctuary of her home she gave voice to her emotions inspired by a panoramic view of a great nation in these lines:

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties,
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for Pilgrim feet,
Whose stern impassioned stress;
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the Wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law!

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life!
America! America!
May God thy gold refine
Till all success is nobleness,
And every gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream,
That sees beyond the years,
Thine alabaster cities gleam,
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

Much the same thoughts must surge through all of us as we view the wonders of a land richly endowed by Nature.

Europe many centuries older; Asia, dusty with age; Africa, still resisting the call of civilization; South America, home of ancient civilization which produced amazing works of engineering skill and then perished—nowhere do they offer more to excite the mind and delight the eye than this America which is ours.

It took a Katherine Lee Bates, rich in cultural experience, of keen and fertile mind, of kindly, sympathetic, generous nature, of flashing humor, to pay adequate tribute to the unending marvels which unfolded before her. Spacious skies of dazzling brilliance and delicate shadings, awe-inspiring majesties of purple mountains, amber oceans of grain and fruited plains! Alabaster cities, with their parks, their towering buildings, and their miles of beautiful homes! Yet in the face of all these material evidences of greatness, of staggering wealth, there flashed the memory of that beginning in the wilderness—the Pilgrim settlement, warmed with the hope and the dream of freedom and liberty.

Katherine Lee Bates was one of America's noble-women. That is why her poem has endured and gained in popularity with each passing year. She, like her Pilgrim forebears, was passionately devoted to democratic institutions of government. Those who were lonely aroused her interest. It is a tradition of the institution where she labored for so many years that the girl who came there friendless, and with slender purse, had her deepest sympathy. It was Katherine Lee Bates who encouraged these girls, who gave them the companionship they craved, who smoothed their path and helped them to achieve success. She lived a beautiful life exemplifying the finest traditions of America.

Yet the evidence of so much wealth, and so much luxury in America produced a shadow before Katherine Lee Bates' eyes. What could those lines on "Self control" and "liberty in law" refer to but the dangers which lie in the path of a people who have so much at their disposal. Let us add our prayer to her inspired and devout wish. Glories may turn to ashes when and if we should forget that which made it possible. Great civilizations have flourished before and the only evidence of them today lies buried under changing sands in ruined cities. If "America, the beautiful" is to endure it will be because her people have the intelligence to practice self-control and to progress along the orderly processes of law.

GERMAN REPARATIONS.

The work of the World war reparations commission has been completed and Germany's representatives were handed the check Saturday.

The total of the annuities asked by the Allies aggregates 100,000 million marks, which is approximately $24,000,000,000. Payments are spread out over a period of thirty-eight years, so that if she agrees to the terms and complies with their requirements, she will have wiped out her indemnity debt in 1967.

There is no escape from the fact that Germany had hoped for easier terms. The Allied demands are more than three times greater than the offer which the German government made in 1923, and approximately 1,000 million dollars less than the 25,000 million which the Germans offered at the original Versailles peace conference. When the original offer is recalled it would seem that the Allies have been moderate in their claims. Yet the last three years have given Germany much reason to hope that Great Britain and France would scale the indemnities greatly. They were the instigators of the Dawes plan. War passions have been cooling and old sores have been healing.

It is a conspicuous fact that neither Owen Young or J. P. Morgan, who were named by Calvin Coolidge to attend the reparations meeting, had aught to do with formulating the final report. They were not asked to approve it. Had they been so requested, it is doubtful if either one would have availed themselves of the opportunity.

The place of America at the reparations' table became increasingly plain after Mr. Young and Mr. Morgan had reached Paris. The Allies wanted Uncle Sam to in effect underwrite the German indemnity by transferring French and British debts. Both France and Great Britain wanted the United States to collect from Germany and apply those sums to the obligations which those countries incurred in loans from the American people. It was not a role which united America.

PUTTING SINCLAIR TO WORK.

A rule which has been in vogue at the District of Columbia jail for many years may be the means of putting Harry Sinclair to work making bricks.

The department of justice has been asked to approve the transfer of Sinclair from the district jail to Occoquan, a federal prison located about thirty miles from Washington. They have plenty of occupations at Occoquan to get prisoners interested. They manufacture brick and build roads and make automobile license plates. Mr. Sinclair will have his choice of any of these for three months while serving his sentence for contempt of the United States senate. It would be a novel experience for the oil magnate and certainly one that he did not contemplate when his case was before the court.

SANS COCKTAILS.

Mrs. Gann's whooping social triumph obscured public attention from a scarcely less notable victory scored by prohibition.

While the vice president's sister was taking her place at the dinner given by the Chilean embassy Thursday night in the chair traditionally reserved for the wife of the vice president, the spirit of old man Volstead seemed to be hovering over every plate. From the first course to the last, nothing stronger than water was served. It was the first dinner given by foreign representatives at which liquor has not been served.

Ordinarily 116 quarts of red and white wines have been necessary to slake the thirst of a dinner party of 200 guests, with the individual ration computed on this basis:

One twentieth of a bottle of gin and one twentieth of a bottle of Vermouth consumed in highballs.

One eighth of a bottle of white wine—Undurrago or Santa Rita at Chilean dinners.

One eighth of a bottle of red wine—San Carlos, Navedago, Cunaco, Concha T. Tore or Carmen.

One sixth of a bottle of champagne.

One twentieth of a bottle of liquor.

Whatta a life a diplomat must lead! That is more liquor than those of us of the hinterland ever contemplated. Most of us might visualize ourselves as present and conscious through the first two or three courses but we have grave fears that our dessert would go untasted.

The embassy, recalling that it expected to entertain the vice president, Secretary Mellon of the treasury, who is charged with prohibition enforcement, and members of the president's cabinet, departed from its traditions by sparing its guests the necessity of refusing real liquor. Nothing could speak more for Latin-American courtesy. We can well imagine the heartburn of some of those gathered around the banquet board if in line with duty it became necessary to push back those glasses with the contents untouched.

But we are on our way. Prohibition enforcement is making real progress. When Washington voluntarily stops drinking, then it is safe to say that the top of the hill has been reached.

GOOD NEWS FOR WEST NEBRASKA.

Accumulated snowfall in the mountains insures the eastern watershed of the Rockies plenty of water during the summer months, according to reports compiled by the government authorities. Streams which have their sources in the high peaks of the Rockies will carry an increased flow of from 8 to 111 per cent.

The north fork of the Platte river, which supplies a large irrigated section with water, will carry 24 per cent more flow than a year ago, the weather bureau officials say, while the South Platte, which also furnishes many ditches with water will have 19 per cent more flow.

It would seem that under the circumstances there will be no repetition of the trouble involving priority rights. The snows in the mountains are ample to insure sufficient water for all needs during the summer.

MAKING A NAME IN HISTORY.

Indulgence in fisticuffs in the state house Friday reminds one that legislators finding no other means of leaving "footprints on the sands of time" may find it possible to make lasting impressions by engaging in personal violence. This has been done, as witness the case of Preston Brooks, of South Carolina, who beat up Charles Sumner in the senate chamber of the United States and thus became a central figure in one of the most colorful presidential campaigns in the history of this republic.

This affair occurred on May 22, 1856, a few days after Sumner had delivered his famous senate oration on "The Crime Against Kansas." In that address Sumner, who was heartily disliked personally by practically every one of his senate colleagues, went out of his way and departed from the thread of his discourse to attack the state of South Carolina and Senator Butler of that commonwealth, who was not present.

Brooks, who was a congressman from South Carolina, and was also a relative of Senator Butler, bitterly resented these verbal assaults, which he considered insults to his native state and to his relative, and he resolved to chastise the Massachusetts orator. For two days he waited at a place on the capitol ground which Sumner was accustomed to pass on his way to the senate, having with him two congressional companions whom he wished to witness the affair. Sumner failed to appear, however, so Brooks went to the senate chamber.

That body was not in session, the only ones in the chamber being Sumner who sat at his desk writing, and a janitor. Brooks walked down the aisle until in front of Sumner's desk, when he rapped the latter on the head with his cane. This, he said, was to give warning. He told the senator of the insults to South Carolina and his relative, Butler, then he beat Sumner over the head with the cane until that weapon was broken. Sumner fell to the floor and it is said he received injuries to his spine from which he never recovered.

A resolution introduced in the house to expel Brooks failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote, but he resigned and was immediately re-elected by his constituents. No ante-bellum act more thoroughly aroused the north than this and in the Fremont-Buchanan presidential campaign, then approaching, it played a major part. "Bully Brooks" was pictured by the new republican party as a veritable devil, whereas, prior to his assault upon Sumner his reputation had been the highest. He was a member of an old South Carolina family, a graduate of the university of that state, a lawyer and had been a captain in the Mexican war. He was thirty-seven years old and had served in the legislature. His chastisement of Sumner by no means caused him to lose standing in his own state, as shown by his re-election to congress, but he probably never would have been heard tell of after the Civil war had it not been for that incident.

There are various ways of writing one's name on the pages of history. No legislator need despair.

Speaking of Explorers.

She went from Kansas to Africa to make animals looks pleasant.

By WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I can pick up as I try to keep an ear to the ground. Mr. Putman the Publisher had a Dinner party. It was given I think to this man Wilkins, that just been prowling around down near the South Pole. Around the table was just about everybody that we had ever seen in the Sunday supplement with a coonskin Coat on (not for fraternity purposes). There was men there that had eaten more meals with Esquimos than Mr. Stearns has with Mr. Coolidge. This Guy Putnam he kinder messes around on the fringe of the Arctic himself. I reckon he is about the only Book binder that knows the difference between a snowshoe and a La Crosse racket. There was Guys there that had flew over the North Pole, walked over it, jumped over it, and here was this Wilkins announcing that night, (at this very dinner) the fact that he was going to "Dive under it." He was going down in a Submarine and see what the pole was really anchored to underneath.

Sitting right by me was a mild, rather meek-voiced individual, that I kinder wondered how he got in this bread line, he dident look like he had ever been further away from Fourteenth Street and Fourth avenue than a Tammany Leader, and here he had spent more years in the Arctic than any man living. He had spent nine winters and thirteen summers with a floating Iceberg for a putting green. It was this fellow Stefansson. He is the one who have been reading about for years.

Cannibal Like Democrat.

Then right across was Martin Johnston and his wife (the best looking woman that ever had her picture taken with a foot on a dead Lion). Here they had been years in Africa, and the South Seas among the Canibals. A Canibal is a good deal like a Democrat, they are forced to live off each other. Come to find out this Johnston and his wife both come from right up above where I was raised.

One had come from Independance, Kas., and she had come from another little hay barn town right near, Coffeyville. It used to be our Post Office from our old home down in the Nation. It was forty miles away, but then we dident get much mail anyhow. In fact I have know some of us to make the whole trip and never get an oil circular. That just shows you, us down in the old Indian Territory, (now called, IMPEACHERINO.)

We always did know those Kansas people was queer. Imagine two fine young people going and spending their life trying to make a Rhinesosoris look pleasant in the Camera!

Amelia Earhardt, the Girl that flew the Atlantic Ocean to escape Boston Society, well she was there, a very charming young lady, one of the few Aviatrixes whose escapades have been with a Plane and not with unappreciative husbands. Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, a might pleasant little Mother was there by us. I wondered how she got in with all this "Safari." Then I happened to remember being out to their home the Sunday before her Husband and his Brother Ted started for some outlandish place called Thibet, to shoot some specimens of queer things for a Chicago Museum. You would think if Chicago wanted to see some queer things that was shot they would just go to the Morgue.

It begin to look like Mrs. Rogers and I were about the only one who never said, "I smoked your Cigaret and really found it took all the danger out of my entire trip." The furtherest I had eevn been from a Cooks guide was just hollering distance. I had visited some strange places in the world, but it was always so full of Tourists by the time I got to it that the Tourists were stranger than the place. Then I happened to spy Jesse Lasky (the big Close-up and Long shot Guy of the Movies) and I thought well he has never been out of sight of a head Waiter, and here I happened to remember a trip he took floating down the Colorado River away down into the wilds of Mexico. They floated down and dident have energy enough to row back, so they just kept on going. It was a mighty interesting group.

This Stefansson fellow told me he was in the Artic for five and a half years, that they dident know the war was on till it was a year old and dident get home till away after it was over. Think of coming out and asking, "Well what's the news, anything happened since I been away?" "Oh no, the boys had a little argument, and there was some pretty cross words between a few of the countries, but nothing much come of it, outside of a little war."

Plan Submarine Trip.

Then Wilkins and him got to talking about this submarine Gag. Wilkins said he would come up every day for air. If the Ice was over them, they would bore through it with an auger, or with some kind of Chemicals. Chances are the chemical he would use would be some bootleg liquor. That would melt the ice and leave a scar on the Pole. He figured he could go across in 21 days from Spitzbergen to Siberia, or Seattle or some of those northwest towns.

Stefansson suggested they should go the other way on account of the current (those Guys know everything) but Wilkins said it would be too hard to get his Submarine around there to start, have to take it through the canal. The Pole has been flown over three times with a Plane, and twice with a Dirigible. So just being No. 6 dont get you anywhere. Peary made it with a pack of flea hounds, Cook found it twenty miles north of Duluth.

What a scenic trip this will be, 21 days under the water! That will be just like wanting to see something on a train and a bunch of Box Cars in your way. I want him to lay out some place there at the pole, for I want to hold the next Democratic Convention there. Course that wont attract much attention to it. Wall Street wants to take up a collection and send the Federal Reserve bank members up there. They couldent disrupt the Icbergs with any statement. But they were all a mighty nice pleasant bunch of people, and I was glad I went over. Course on account of having to work in the Theatre I dident get there for the dinner, and dident get anything to eat, so thats why I could remember what everybody said and did.

Here and There

Possible Rearrangement.

(The Daily Oklahoman)

More is involved in Mr. Hoover's plan of strengthening his party at the south rather than the creation of a strong southern Republicanism. It may involve important party changes at the north itself. For it is not easy to discriminate against negroes below the line without stirring negro antipathies above the line. The rejection of negro leaders in the black belt may conceivably lead to negro resentment in the northern states.

No plan that Mr. Hoover can present will make southern Republicanism formidable if it includes any effort to enforce the fifteenth amendment generally. Few southern Caucasians will support a crusade for general negro enfranchisement. Never can southern Republicanism command the support of any great number of southern whites until it accepts the southern view of negro suffrage, and when that is done by the president and his lieutenants, there is danger of a negro revolt at the north.

In numerous northern states where negro disfranchisement has never been practiced the negro vote is a powerful factor. Without that vote several northern states now uniformly Republican would not be Republican at all. It therefore would become a serious matter in a national sense for the president to embrace a program that ignores the fifteenth amendment and to accept the southern view of suffrage. In trying to make southern states doubtful the administration might easily make northern states doubtful also.

Primarily the Hoover program seeks better government by the creation of the two party system in the heavily Democratic states. Its first purpose is to develop a healthy minority party under competent leadership and the appointment of better men to federal office. It is more a matter of good government than a matter of partisan tactics. But the partisan element is there, nevertheless, and it possesses many potentialities. An extremely remote potentiality, but a possible one, is the conversion of the Republican party to lily white standards and the movement of northern negroes into the Democratic lines. This result will become strongly probable if Mr. Hoover goes so far as to sanction an ignoring of the fifteenth amendment in the deep south.

Famous Pets Of Famous People

The Old Dog Mitte, for Whom ueen Henrietta of England Risked Her Life.

"I caught her up in my arms and brought her away."

By PRESTON WRIGHT.

Queens as well as laundresses can love dogs, as previous articles in this series have shown. Dogs were the last friends of Mary, Queen of the Scots, and Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, before their executions. Queen Elizabeth of England was devoted to all manner of dogs, with a particular liking for hounds, while Queen Victoria was mistress of a long succession of pets. One of these dogs she would allow no one else to bathe.

Probably, however, none of these royal ladies was as loyal to her pets as was the French wife of Charles I of England, Queen Henrietta, to her old dog Mitte, for whom she risked capture, imprisonment and death.

Though not as unfortunate a sovereign as either Mary Stuart or Marie Antoinette, Henrietta had her full share of troubles. These began to multiply when, in 1637, she began to be active in the interests of the oppressed Catholics of England. She got them to contribute money for the king's army when the Scottish troubles broke out, and ultimately was voted guilty of high treason by parliament.

She went back to France, but in February, 1643, returned to place herself at the head of troops with which she assisted Charles. It was when she landed at Burlington Quay, in Yorkshire, that she had the adventure which has rendered her memory dear to all animal lovers. She related it, some time after, to Mme. de Motteville.

The landing was accomplished under difficult conditions, for the weather was bad, and Admiral Batten, representing parliament, was energetically engaged in an attempt to frustrate her.

Her attendants succeeded in conducting the queen to a certain house. However, thea dmiral located it and gave evidence of the hatred in which she was held by directing a hot cannonade upon it.

"My friends impressed upon me that I must leave the house," she told Mme. de Motteville.

"But where was I to go? Ah, my friend, there was no refuge for me but a ditch outside the town. She who had sat upon a throne, must cower in the shadows of a ditch.

"We set out, secretly. But the fire upon our position had been furious and unceasing. Bullets whistled past us and fell upon us.

"We had gotten well into Burlington street, when I suddenly gasped.

"'Mitte!' I exclaimed, 'Mitte! I have left her behind.'

"I had an old, ugly dog. I called her Mitte and I loved her very much. Was it not that she loved me?

"I do not know why I had forgotten her. It was the excitement of unaccustomed dangers, I suppose. But when I remembered her, I could not bear to leave her to the mercies of Batten, the parliamentary admiral.

"My attendants implored me to hurry on. I did not heed them. Instead, I turned and ran back into the house. Rushing upstairs I found poor Mitte fast asleep on my bed. I caught her up in my arms and brought her away."

A brave deed and a tender one. Mitte shared the ditch refuge of her mistress with perfect equanimity, it seems, and uttered no betraying barks or whines. Queen and dog alike escaped to see happier and more comfortable days, although Henrietta had to bear a fresh burden of sorrow in 1649 when Charles I was executed. She was then safe in France. When the restoration came she returned to England. She died in 1665 while seeking to restore her health on a trip to France.

Capitol Investigation

(The Kearney Hub)

It is not worth while to anticipate the findings of the legislative committee appointed to investigate the alleged defects in the capitol building of the charges of maladministration by the state capitol commission that has had charge of the work. All that we know at present is that reputable architects have pronounced the defects as of minor importance that can be easily corrected when the finishing touches are added to the completed job. Of course the investigating committee may take another view altogether. The most serious charge or series of charges is made by the former state engineer, George E. Johnson, in charge of the work at the beginning, who alleges a conspiracy to defraud the state out of thousands of dollars. The capitol commission is directly implicated by Engineer Johnson in five of the six specific charges that he makes.

The Johnson charges against the members of the commission allege that they did "knowingly and willingly" do thus and so; that they "knowingly accepted" and paid for inferior stone; that they "knowingly and willingly" made improper settlement for marble used in the structure; that they have wilfully proceeded" with plans for certain construction in a state of disintegration; and that they have been guilty of "wilfully squandering" more than one milloin dollars for a certain kind of tile. In conclusion the ex-state engineer charges, in addition to the amove "conspiracies," many agreements to "defraud the state out of money," etc, etc.

The upshot of the whole matter is that the members of the state capitol commission are unconscionable scoundrels who should be put behind prison bars, or former Engineer Johnson is a libeler of the first water who bobs up for a waiting game of revenge for former grievances. More than that, three governors are inferentially involved as having been derelict in their executive duties. That makes a pretty large list, to which must be added unscruplous dealers in material, dishonest contractors, and supervisors of construction who have winked at all kinds of irregularies. This leaves only one honest person who has been at any time interested in the capitol job, George E. Johnson, former state engineer, who makes charges broadcast and in terms that can not be misunderstood.

The part of the Omaha Bee-News has apparently been to play up to the Johnson charges and criticisms, with due regard for sensational effects, rather than to serve the interests of the state or to correct faults or defects that may or may not appear in the work of the builders.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright, 1928, New York Tribune.)

QUESTION

Indianapolis.

"My early life at home with a drunken stepfather was very unfortunate. Now I am a young woman in the early thirties. I have begun to realize that I have missed many of the real things of life, but most of all companionship. I am fond of reading, enjoy my work and the doing of the household tasks and duties, but there is still something lacking. I should like to have a home and conduct that home as mine was not conducted when I was a child, and this is a privilege which only lonely women can appreciate. In my office I do not come in contact with men. Most of the men of my age are married. Those who are not married seem to care for young and frivolous lassies who, in too many instances, attract their swains by permitting them to take liberties which decency prohibits. I am still poor financially, and I think my condition is representative of thousands of single women throughout this country. I am deeply dissatisfied.

Am I a fool to entertain such longings for what possibly can never be? What would you tell a woman in such straits?

ANSWER.

Your desires for a home of your own, a husband you can respect and whose first interest in you was not due to your lack of refined scruples, are perfectly normal. Why should you deem yourself foolish because you are endowed with natural inclinations essential to the perpetuation and health of the rare?

I agree that your early years were not conducive to strong personality. No childhood can be made miserable as yours was by the sins committed against it without their consequences being carried over into adolescence and maturity. I beg you to try forgetfulness about this dark episode. It needs some forgetting, but it ought to have it. Too many nurse the sorrows of youth to the discomfiture of age.

Besides, you stood the test, managed to secure an education and have maintained high standards of character, state and behavior. The credit for having done this is very considerable. Now go forward to other achievements. Banish isolation, cultivate those souls who will share your sins and sympathize with your ideals. They live in Indianapolis and in every other city.

Avoid the doleful side of the day and become with discretion a better mixer. Men look wtih a favorable eye on a cheerful and straightforward woman. But they fight shy of an acidulated spinster who has real or fancied wrongs to right at the expense of the rest of us. Single women are not the grief stricken groups some imagine them to be. Quite otherwise their lot is steadily rising in dignity, importance and contentment, and has become so attractive to many of the best of them that I occasionally wonder who is going to fill the cradles of the near future.

QUESTION

Nashville, Tenn.

Are not the statements of the Bible taken from men of religious experience who had no foundation whatsoever in knowledge or study of scientific laws? Are Christians, therefore, justified in pretending that these ancient men who wrote the Bible had a knowldge of all the wonders which have been revealed since their tim? By what procss do you excuse the exaggerated constructions given to sacred writings which their authors never intended them to possess and which could only be obtained by means of subsequent scientific discoveries?

ANSWER.

Apparently you are confusing two kinds of knowledge. The purpose of science is to ascertain the facts of nature and to demonstrate that there is a system of law and order in the physical universe. The purpose of religion on the other hand, is to understand the values of life and to give us a sense of the reality of God. Science investigates and relates the marvels of visible life, while religion unveils the moral and spiritual verities of human experience.

This experience is expressed most impressively in the Bible as the medium of God's progressive revelation to mankind which comes to its climax in Jesus Christ. It has stood the searching tests of centuries, and no conclusions of science have affected its validity as the supreme authority in religious literature.

The fact that claims have been made for the Bible which are foreign to its genius should not distract you from its main aim, which is to teach men the right way of living. The substance of its message is found in the words of Micah: "To do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with God" (Chapter vi, 8); and in the summary of the Master: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself; (St. Luke x, 27).

Has science ever contradicted these imperative truths? Do you know of anything better in human annals, or which affords more reliable guidance to succeeding generations? oS long as they have not been superseded we had btter abide by and practice these divine precpts.

"Trot downstairs? ....NO SIREE!"

Bill has the midnight chuckles—because Tom apologized for getting him up—and all he had to do was reach for his newly installed bedside telephone. Bill says he'll suggest Tom for membership in the "Undercover" club, whose slogan is "Next to my bed, I like my telephone best."

You can have extension telephones wherever you want them—in your bedroom, in the upstairs hall, in the kitchen or in any other part of your home where they will add convenience for your family and your guests.

A telephone representative will be glad to assist in arranging telephone service in your home to be of greatest convenience to you.

University Radio Program for Week

Radio programs to be broadcast through the university studio of station KFAB for the week beginning Monday, April 15, will be as follows:

Monday, April 15.

9:30, Weather report by Prof. T. A. Blair director of Nebraska section of the U. S. weather bureau, at Lincoln.

9:35, "Questions and answers" by Mrs. True Homemaker.

12, "Crops and Soils Question Box", by P. H. Stewart, state extension agent in agronomy.

12:10, "A Little Pig into a Big Hog did grow", by W. J. Loeffel, associate professor of animal husbandry.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Library half hour, in charge of Gilbert H. Doane, university librarian.

Tuesday, April 16.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Questions and Answers on Poultry problems," by Prof. P. E. Mussehl, chairman of poultry husbandry.

9:50, 4-H club crier.

12, "Insect Pests of the Season", by Prof. M. H. Swenk, chairman of economic entomology.

12:10, "Rabbits and your Fruit Trees", by E. H. Hoppert, state extension agent in horticulture.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Engineers talk, "House Plans" by W. G. Hill, Instructor in architectural engineering.

2:45, "How to Construct and Play the Wooden chimes'", by Dr. C. C. Weidemann teachers college.

Wednesday, April 17.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Cakes and Icings", by Mrs. True Homemaker.

2:30, Sociology talk, "Stumbling Blocks in Case Work", by Miss Ada Barker, secretary, Lincoln Social welfare society.

Thursday, April 18.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, Weekly museum talk, by F. G. Collins, curator.

9:50, "Exercises in Fundamental gymnastics," by Teresa Huesman, department of physical education, women's division.

12, Farm flash.

12:10, "Opportunities in Dairy Manufacturing," by E. L. Reichert, instructor in dairy husbandry.

12:20 "Boys' and Girls' club week" by L. I. Frisble, state extension agent in boys and Girls' clubs.

2:30, Twenty-seventh lesson of the radio course in beginning Spanish, by Dr. J. E. A. Alexis, professor of Romance languages assignment, lesson 27 in the textbook.

Friday, April 19.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, A book review by Mrs. True Home maker.

12, "Remodeling the Old Farm buildings' by I. D. Wood, state extension agent in agricultural engineering.

12:10, "The Agricultural Outlook", by Harold Hedges, assistant professor of rural economics.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Health talk, from college of pharmacy.

2:45, Third of a series of nature talks, by Dr. R. H. Wolcott, chairman of zoology.

Saturday, April 20.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Origin of Place names in Nebraska", by Prof. J. T. Link, of department of conservation and survey.

9:48, "The University of Nebraska Summer session," by Professor R. D. Moritz, director.

It is a crime to operate noisy devices, radio amplifiers in particular, in any public or private place in Detroit, Mich., in such manner that the peace and good order of the neighborhood are disturbed or occupants of nearby property annoyed.

Radio Digest

Worth Remembering.

The hum due to external fields surrounding the power transformers in a power pack even when the position of the parts are correct, can usually be eliminated by connecting the metal cases or cores of the transformers to either the ground lead or the "B-" lead of the receiver or power pack so as to bring the cases and cores of all transformers to the low potential side of the circuit.

Condenser Stops Interference.

The reduction of man-made static or machine-made interference is eliminated or diminished in electrically operated receivers by the use of filter condensers. This device, depending upon a combination of inductance and capacity, should be used. This filter is critical both to potential and load. The capacitative type of filter is applicable to most types of electrical apparatus, but the combination of both inductance and capacity is to be desired.

The Use of Cushioned Sockets.

Microphone noises in the screen grid tubes must be guarded against by the use of cushioned sockets. This is an important point in connection with shielding, too, because unless the shields are heavy enough and mechanically tight in all joints they will tend to vibrate too freely if close to the loud-speaker and cause jarring ofthe tube elements with consequent microphonic howls. The use of heavy shielding, solid construction and cushion sockets will prevent trouble from microphonic disturbances.

Shielding Compartments for Tubes.

Individual shielding "cans" for the tubes are recommended though not absolutely necessary. For best results even the lead which connects the plate from one tube to the coil of the next stage should be shielded by means of a small grounded metal covering. Shielding can be best be attained by the use of suitable completely inter-locking metal cases. For that purpose, copper with soldered corner joint and slip-over tops are best, but where such joints may be used. Very thin shields are practically useless. Aluminum used for the purpose should be at least about .08 inch thick. Copper may be thinner, but should not be less than about .05 inch thick. In a three-stage amplifier it is advisable to also include chokes in the screen-grid leads of each stage, although in a two-stage unit choke coils in the plate leads alone will usually prove adequate.

For the Notebook.

A transmitting set powered up to 1,000 watts, costs from $5,000 to $40,000.

Imperfect contact between two parts of the shielding surfaces will cause noise.

A surprising difference in the tone can often be obtained in electric sets by shifting the tubes in the sockets.

A long lead-in is efficient in picking up the noise from the various kinds of electrical equipment distributed about the house or building.

The first place to look for trouble in a battery operated set is either the "A" or "B" batteries. If it is electric, look for a loose connection or examine the condenser; it may be defective.

Radiograms.

The highest advertising rate charged by an American broadcasting station is $900 an hour with discounts for sustained contracts.

Broadcasting stations in Minnesota are required by law to broadcast information helpful in searches for stolen property and criminals.

It is estimated that sales of radio sets and parts in the United States for 1929 will reach a total of $860,000,000, an increase of $210,000,000 over 1928.

The big wireless plant for sending and receiving to be installed in Vatican City, in Rome, Italy, will enable the Papal Secretary of State to communicate directly with all parts of the world, the secrecy of communication being assured by code.

Michigan and Nevada have enacted laws placing broadcasting under the jurisdiction of their State Public Utilit" commissions, giving them authority to promulgate rules and regulations governing broadcast transmission and reception.

Of the 20,000,000 receiving sets in use throughout the world there are between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 in the United States. Great Britain and Germany have approximately 2,500,000; France, 1,250,000; Japan, 550,000; Argentina, 530,000; Sweden, 371,000; Austria, 325,000, and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy 250,000 each.

The highest powered foreign broadcasting stations are all in Europe. Russia and Finland each maintain a station of 40,000 watts. Sweden has wo stations, one of 30,000, and the second 20,000 watts. France has one of 20,000, and the largest British station is rated at 16,000 watts.

100,000 Seedling Trees Daily Being Sent To Nebraska Farmers

Seedling trees have been going to farmers of the state at the rate of 100,000 per day the past week. Distribution has been from the agricultural college in Lincoln and under the direction of Clayton W. Watkins, extension service forester.

Provisions of the Clarke-McNary Act of Congress furnish the trees and the farmers pay one cent each to cover the cost of counting, packing and shipping them.

Every county of the state was again on the shipping list this year. Farmers seem glad to get the little seedlings and to take part in the campaigns to make Nebraska a real tree planter state.

This is the fourth year that the act has been in force. Nearly two million trees have now been sent out and a fair share of them are growing. Mr. Watkins and an assistant will check up on all the plantings this summer.

The agricultural extension service of the college of agriculture handles the detail of the distribution. Mr. Watkins' work is a part of the extension service program of the state. W. H. Brokaw is the director of the organization.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

MISERY MADE SAM TULLY A PIRATE

He severed the cable with a few blows of the axe.

If Captain Levy hadn't been such a harsh master, Sam Tully undoubtedly would have remained an honest and capable seaman, content to work toward a captaincy by the route of hard work and low pay, familiar to every mariner of the early part of the nineteenth century.

Tully didn't live a long life, but there was more misery crowded into that life than was experienced by Father Noah in his long career, which also included some colorful seafaring and considerable experience with wild animals. Sam was born in New York, and was only five years old when his father marched away in 1776 to fight to make the world safe for democracy. The elder Tully was listed among the fallen heroes of the new republic, and Sam grew up in a hard world, realizing that a dead hero was not a very helpful father for a boy who needed clothes and food.

At sixteen, he went to sea as a foremast hand. Fortune left him stranded in France, made him a seaman aboard a French man-of-war, an impressed American aboard a British man-of-war, a deserter in Italy, a deck hand on an American merchantman, and a sailmaker in Quebec. He served later as a seaman on the Great Lakes, and then he went to sea again. He married a girl named Ruth Willeton in Lincolnshire, England, became part owner of a merchantman, and was impressed into the British navy again, from his own ship.

Aboard a British cruising frigate, he suffered incredible hardships in African waters. He barely escaped being eaten by cannibals. He served aboard ships that were ravaged by bubonic plague and yellow fever. If there was anything he missed, it was something that hadn't been invented as a hardship for a sailor, and his detailed story, before he became a pirate, would not look pale beside Joan Lowell's "Cradle of the Deep" story. And Trader Horn will have to live another lifetime in Africa before he can think up adventures to match those of this adventurer of an earlier day.

But, after years of tossing about in strange waters, he returned to England in a British ship from India. Having two weeks furlough, he hunted up his wife, and the two of them hunted up the American consul. His story, backed up by proofs, brought him a letter from the consul, protecting him from further seizure by British press gangs.

So Sam Tully sailed for New York, and took a boat up the river to Albany.

"Here," he said to his wife, "we will settle down, and I'll never go to sea again."

Alas for the stuff of which human resolutions are made! In a year, Tully was broke, and when he went looking for work he found a good job on an American merchantman. In three or four years he had enough money to settle down ashore again. He started a grocery store in New York, and his wife ran a lodging house for sailors.

In 1811 the grocery business was not going so well, and Sam Tully disliked the situation that arose when he had to call on his wife for funds with which to buy stock. The store was losing money, although the lodging house was showing a nice profit.

"I'll make one more sea trip," said Tully to his wife. "I can forget the store while I'm away, and reopen it when I come back with my savings. Meantime, you'll be all right, with nice profits from the lodging house."

So Tully went to Philadelphia, and there shipped as mate of the schooner George Washington, under Captain Isaac Levy. This Captain Levy had a hard name among seamen, and several mates had had trouble with him. But he offered better wages than Tully could get elsewhere, and the deal was closed.

The George Washington was bound for Teneriffe and other ports in Northern Africa and Europe.

The first misunderstanding between captain and mate occurred four days out, when Captain Levy pulled all the mate's bedclothes and other belongings out of his berth and threw them on the floor, filling the mate's bunk with bread and other stores. Tully was obliged to sleep on the deck, although the captain's berth remained empty, as he had a hammock in which he preferred to sleep. There were several altercations about this state of affairs. Levy always settled every argument by citing the obvious fact that he was captain, and that Tully must obey, whether he liked it or not.

After a week's sailing, Tully approached the captain upon another important subject.

"Is there no liquor aboard?" he asked.

"Yes, there is some. It's mine," answered the captain.

"But I've never before sailed on a ship that allowed no liquor ration. This weather isn't to be endured without liquor. I'll be sick on your hands if you don't give me as much as I can drink."

"All right. I'll tell the cook to give you a glass of rum once a day, at mess," said Levy.

This didn't satisfy Tully, but after a few days the satisfaction nearly passed altogether out of his life when Levy handed him a bottle of rum, saying, "No more liquor at meals, mate. This bottle must last you four days. I can't have it wasted."

Two weeks later the liquor ration was stopped altogether, and Tully was ordered to cut the meat ration for himself and all hands to one pound a day. Then there was a grand quarrel, and Tully made Levy promise to discharge him as soon as the George Washington should make port.

At Teneriffe, Levy refused to carry out his agreement to discharge the mate, and Tully was obliged, under maritime law, to remain in his job. At the Isle of May, in the Cape de Verde group, he again refused. The mate worried and fretted so much about this situation that he began to act a bit crazy.

When Captain Levy departed for a night ashore, he gave Tully these final orders:

"Not a man is to go ashore at this port. We'll be here about a week. And, say, you're to stop the meat ration altogether. These lazy sailors can catch fish when they're not working, and a little fish diet will be good for all hands."

Tully flew into a towering rage at this, and the captain went away laughing. When Levy had got out of sight, Tully began talking things over with two or three dissatisfied members of the crew. It was agreed that they couldn't stand Levy's abuse, Tully rushed about like a crazy man, cursing the absent captain and making wild threats. Finally, when the night was well advanced, he got an axe, and, gesticulating with it, ordered the men to make sail for the open sea. He severed the cable with a few blows of the axe, shouting that there was no time for hoisting the anchor.

It was a month later that three men landed from an open boat at the town of San Lucie, in the West Indies. They were Tully, John Dalton, one of the George Washington's sailors, and John Owen, the black cook.

Tully was suffering from a severe concussion of the brain, and was weak from shock and loss of blood. He was, in fact, very close to death, and had to be carried out of the boat. Dalton also was sick. The cook was well, but in a panic of fear.

The three had plenty of money. They took lodgings, and gave out the story that they were shipwrecked mariners.

They were brought before the governor for questioning, and the cook, begging for protection from the law, offered to tell a tale of piracy and murder against his companions. So they were all arrested and sent to Boston as being under suspicion of piracy.

On October 20, 1812, Tully and Dalton were arraigned before the Circuit court at Boston on indict-

EARLY BOATS ON MISSOURI RIVER

greet those at the dock. Passengers had had a fairly pleasant voyage as a rule. The men often stood on the forecastle or the boiler deck to shoot at geese and ducks, adding to the supplies brought in by employed hunters. The engages or clerks tried out in feats of prowess, pilots told tales of heroic adventures, and the sturdy left the boat at long bends, and rambled across country, rejoining the boat when it came along.

Migration of Mormons.

About 1845, a change came over the river trade, and a new western empire started for the far coast and the interior along the river that had had its chief business with the fur trading posts. River boat stock both passengers, new recruits to the movement, and freight to the Mormons at Omaha and Council Bluffs. The Saluda, which later met a tragic end, was loaded with Mormons on its trip, the St. Ange in 1851 carried up 200, the Sacramento, 400, and many others from 1846 to 1856 took up passengers and freight to the colony.

Discovery of gold in 1848, with Westport, Leavenworth, Ft. Kearney, and Omaha as the starting points, meant that a great deal of the traffic for the emigrants was done by the river boats from St. Louis to these points. Intense government exploration followed, and large exploring parties and bodies of troops went to the coast and the distant interior.

In 1843, 100 passengers, including Audubon, the naturalist, who made a complete journal of the trip, and his party of scientists, reached Fort Pierre May 31 and Fort Union June 12. Returning to St. Louis June 29, the trip had taken forty-nine days from St. Louis to Fort Union, and seventeen days to return. In 1843-44, the "Nimrod," an American Fur company boat, with Comte d'Otrane, son of the famous Fouche of France, and Comte de Peindry as pleasure passengers, went north. In 1853, the "El Paso" outdistanced the far north record of the Assiniboine by 125 miles, and in 1860, the "Chippewa" and "Key West" arrived at Fort Benton in present Montana, "a point farther from the sea by continuous water course than any other boat had ever been," 3,575 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. In 1859, Captain LaBarge, on a fur company boat, went up to the mouth of the Yellowstone and back in twenty-eight days, doing business at the various posts, and made a record in time for the trip.

"Golden Era" of Traffic.

The years from 1855 to 1860 were the golden era of steam boat traffic on the Missouri river. In 1859, the steamboat advertisements in the St. Louis papers showed that more vessels left that port of the Missouri than for both the upper and lower Mississippi. In 1857, there were 28 steamboat arrivals at the new village of Sioux City before July 1, and there were 23 regular boats on that part of the river, with the freight tonnage for the season valued at $1,250,000.

With the boats fitted up more for passengers than for freight, particularly about 1858, when boating on the river was rather overdone, was an era of fast boats and racing. Great danger lay in raising the steam pressure above a safe limit, and the Missouri, out its nearly 170 wrecks, had six from boiler explosions.

The "Pirate" was sunk about twenty-six miles below Council Bluffs, when snagged. She was freighted with flour, bacon, corn for the Otoes and Pottawattamies, and fur company goods for the Indians, valued in all at $12,000. The "Naomi" was descending when she struck a snag, and sunk, but $19,000 in government specie was saved, and there was no loss of life.

Carried Strange Cargoes.

Among the cargoes of the day were 450 packs of buffalo robes, 20 packs of assorted furs, 1,400 buffalo tongues, a young grizzly bear, an elk, and the stuffed skin of a 1,200 pound grizly bear, all on the "General Brook," 1,400 bales of hemp, 100 vasks of bacon, 430 barrels of pork and lard, "and eighty passengers," the list says, 5,000 sacks of corn (the largest shipment of corn ever made from the upper country) and brought down on "The Omaha."

Missouri river steamboat traffic had its bright days before the coming of the railroads, and it was largely closed when the Northern Pacific railroad reached Bismarck in 1873, and was virtually abandoned when other railroads reached the river at Pierre in another seven years and Chamberlain the next year. It is probable that the last through commercial trip was made in 1878, and the last for any purpose from St. Louis to Fort Benton in 1885. For forty years it has been an active agent as the chief medium of communication between the east and the west, and brought in those who made the west much of what it is today.

ANIMALS AT CITY ZOO LEAVE WINTER ABODE

at some time be carried out, he would like to have a winter animal house, so that Lincoln residents can enjoy the animals the year around. As it is now, with the parrots, monkeys, alligators, and gold fish in the green house, it is not convenient to have sightseers viewing them in winter, but at the same time, there is no reason that they shouldn't be on view the entire twelve months.

Were his plans to be carried out, the house would be a glassed roof affair, so that it would have plenty of sunlight. On the main floor, Mr. Kittinger would place the fish at one end, with the alligators at another, on one side the monkeys, and the other the birds. The house would also be used for palms and ferns, which are now rather shoved about from pillar to post for lack of suitable space.

Of the animals which are not winter-housed, the zoo has five red foxes, which stay in their pens all during the cold spell. They were fed with a bottle when they first arrived there, but now they take their meat with the best of them. The number was considerably larger, but some have died, and some have been killed, partly because they do not have adequate room for their restless moving. In the same row with the foxes are a wild hog, a pair of coyotes, a badger, a couple of lynx, which came from a donor in York, who got them from New Mexico, a couple of raccoons, and the ground hog, all of which spend the winter in the open in the regular cages.

Birds Brave Weather.

Nellie, the lazy cinnamon bear, and Bruno, a big black fellow about eighteen months old, and a couple of other black bruins, one of them the 450-pound animal that escaped a couple of weeks ago, and which is now encased in an extra coating of wire, make up the residents of the bear pens.

The three bald eagles and the owls, housed in the same general cages, but separated within, are birds that stay out in all sorts of weather. The pheasants, of which there are three kinds, seek only the nominal shelter, of their pens, and often come out in thir runs in the cold months. Bantam chickens hatch the pheasant eggs, and the little ones are raised in a pen by themselves. They require considerable care, and their water must be sprinkled on the grass, as that is the only way the little ones know to get it.

Completing the zoo are several white fallow deer, a couple of Japanese deer, a buffalo, and a so-called sacred cow. They spend the cold months in the open, but a hay-lined shelter, with southern exposure has been prepared for the deer during the coldest periods. They are out most of the time now.

Wesleyan Debators End Successful Year

Out of fifteen scheduled debates the affirmative team won seven, tied one, and lost four. Three were non-decision debates. The team consists of Donald Swanson of Lincoln, Harold Ried of Kearney, Ford McCoy of Orleans, and William Brown of Lincoln. They debated St. Olof's college at Northfield, Minn., Western Union; Buena Vista, Gustavus Adophus, of St. Peters, Minn.; Yankton of Yankton, S. D.; Morningside; Emporia college, Hastings; Kearney; Doane; Midland; Cotner, Peru, and Washburn.

The women's teams representing Wesleyan won four out of seven debates. The women making up the teams were Thelma Jams of Bloomington, Rose Marie Fellers of Palsade, Eva Kalley of Holdrege, and Bernice Foster of Sidney. They debated Morningside, Doane, Cotner, and South Dakota university.

known as "Dimples" Walker several years ago when I was first big enough to take an interest in the movies? Is she married and if so to whom?

I feel a terrible shove from behind, so I guess some other fan wants to get to the front. Ta, ta, until next time. SO LONG LETTY.

"The Dummy" was not so dumb if he could convey the impression of a deaf mute in real life to the fans. There's nothing the matter with Mickey Bennett off screen, I can assure you. That was his own voice you heard. He is a talented youngster and has been getting good training in the movies for years.

Well, at least Bebe has announced her engagement to Ben. But, Bebe has been engaged before, so we'll just wait until the "I dos" are said.

"The Son of Anak" is about due for general showing George O'Brien is the hero. It's a Fox feature.

Colleen will talk and sing in her next feature, which is a change at least, and may present her in a more diversified role. James Hall is the leading man.

"Queen Kelly" will introduce Gloria Swanson to the fans in a talking picture.

You will locate Laura La Plante at the Universal Studio, Universal City, Calif. Laura was just emerging from the cradle when Lillian Walker, who was known as "Dimples" was in her prime as a motion picture artist. They are not related in any way. Miss La Plante is Mrs. William Seiter in private life.

Dear Movie Editor—Now that the bricks, et cetera, have subsided a little, I'll venture to stick my nose out again. I'm telling you that I was right, but perhaps a little premature, in regard to Clara Bow. You just notice and see that other fans are deciding they don't like her quite so well as they did. She just doesn't wear well. We often meet people like that. Sometimes like them fine upon first acquaintance, but a close up is not so good. However, I've done enough damage, so far as the little "It" girl is concerned, and I didn't come to start another argument concerning her.

I saw "Redskin" after months of waiting and was so disappointed in it. I expected to see another "Vanishing American," but it was nothin gmore than a flat, trite Dix story ,in spite of the color. I admire Richard Dix but he was just "blah" in this picture. Enough said!

I have a brick for Joan Crawford, too. I don't see why the fans pick out somebody like Joan and Clara for favorites. I give them credit for having more intelligence! Joan lookc so empty. But, here I am starting more arguments. Niles Asther is princely enough for any prince. No wonder he causes all of the flapper's hearts to do an "over" and back.

George Bancroft is much too intelligent to be wasted on such cheap stuff as "The Wolf of Wall Street." He did his part well and with conviction, but it seemed to be he rebelled inwardly at playing such a wishy washy hero. Baclanova's voice was pleasing. Let us hope she retains the accent.

Well if I stay around here much longer, I fear I will bring forth as many bombs as the Mexican revolution, so I'll just run and duck while I sign my name, "THE CRITIC."

Dear Movie Editor—Well, here's another old fan back again. I've been out of town for several months and have had no time to write, but of course I took the paper and read all of the fan letters anyhow. And now I am glad to be back with you again.

I saw "The Doctor's Secret" and have a new favorite. Yes, you've guessed it correctly—Ruth Chatterton. She is just charming. Reminds me a great deal of Mary Pickford, or of the way Mary would look with her hair cut. And her voice was magnetic. I seem to hear it in my dreams. Such love scenes, too, and we could hear them bill and coo. Yum, yummy! That was a good picture.

I am glad I have returned in time to find out something from you about Ruth Chatterton. Is she married? If so, to whom? Please tell me all you know about her and give me her address.

Do you think Greta Garbo will ever return to this country again? I hope so, because she is another artist. I admire her languishing ways and mournful eyes. Is she married and if so to whom?

How old is Mary Pickford and how many times has she been married? Who were her other husbands?

How old is Doug Fairbanks, jr.? He seems like such a kid to be engaged to Joan Crawford, but perhaps he is older than he looks. Did he play in "Dream of Love?" Who played opposite Joan in that picture?

Hoping to see my letter soon, I am AN OLD FAN.

This will have to be "Old Home Week," I think, with so many wanderers back to the fold.

Miss Chatterton has been a favorite on the stage for many years, but it was only recently that she was lured to the screen. Emil Jannings is said to be responsible for her discovery. At any rate he suggested her for his feminine lead in "Sins of the Fathers." She has since made "The Doctor's Secret," "The Dummy" and Madame X." She was loaned to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Paramount for "Madame X."

Your new favorite claims New York City as her home. She played in stock with Lowell Sherman, Pauline Lord and Lenore Ulric in the early stage of her career. She was starred when she was only eighteen because of her notable work with Henry Miller in "Daddy Long Legs" and "Come Out of the Kitchen." She came west with "The Green Hat," in which her husband, Ralph Forbes, played opposite her, and has been on the stage in Los Angeles in that and "The Devil's Plum Tree."

Miss Chatterton is five feet three inches tall and has blue eyes and auburn hair. Address her at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

I not only think, I know, Greta Garbo will return to us again, because she already has, and is preparing to start work on a talking picture. She is single.

Miss Pickford was born in 1893 and has just celebrated a birthday. I'll let you do the headwork. Owen Moore was the only husband she had prior to her marriage with Doug Fairbanks.

Douglas, jr., was born in 1910, so he hasn't many years behind him. He was not in the cast of "Dream of Love." Nils Asther was the leading man.

Dear Movie Editor — Several months ago I happened to see a picture that I liked very much. It was called "The Wise Wife." I wonder if you could give me the cast for it. I believe Phyllis Haver was the featured player. It had a pretty good lesson in it.

And do you know who the leading man was in "Open Range?" Betty Bronson was the heroine. What company is Betty with now?

Who was the little black-eyed Spanish girl who played with Doug Fairbanks in "The Gaucho?" She was a regular fire eater.

Who owns Rin Tin Tin? As a rule I don't care for dog pictures, but Rinty is almost human in his intelligence. He must have a wonderful trainer, although I know police dogs are unusually smart anyhow.

I'll appreciate an early reply to my letter. Many thanks.

BLUE EYES.

Here is your cast for "The Wise Wife": "Helen Blaisdell," Phyllis Haver; "John Blaisdell," Tom Moore; "Helen's Father," Fred Walton; "Jenny Lou," Jacqueline Logan; "Carter Fairfax," Joseph Striker; "Jason, the butler," Robert Bolder.

That was Lane Chandler with Betty in "Open Range." It was his first featured part. You no doubt saw him later with Clara Bow in "Red Head." Betty Bronson is under contract to Warner Brothers now.

Lupe Velez was the little "Madcap" in "The Gaucho." Lupe, you know, is one of the most talked of young players in Hollywood since her part in the Fairbanks' picture.

Lee Duncan is the owner and trainer of Rin Tin Tin. He brought him back with him upon his return from the World war.

Making Talkie Debut—Another stage star who has "gone talkie" is Laura Hope Crews. She will make her talking picture debut in "The Marriage Holiday," which is under way at the Paramount Hollywood studios.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I think it is so nice to have a place where one may write and express views on the plays and players we see on the screen. And how time does fly, too. It seems only yesterday that I saw my first motion picture,—the serial "The Trey of Hearts" was the first one I ever saw,—and here we have talking pictures already. I must say I'm not very fond of them, either.

I suppose talking pictures are alright for the young people who can see and hear well, but I have passed that stage and although I know they are a step upward, I feel sort of sad, because they are taking away one of my greatest sources of pleasure.

I do not hear well any more unless I am close to the speaker, and so unless I sit in front at a talking picture I am unable to understand a thing that is said so of course I lose much of the pleasure of the show. On the other hand, if I sit close to the front, the picture is all a blur and I am unable to enjoy it on that account, so you see it's a rather difficult proposition all around. Naturally you will think that I should stay at home since I'm so hard to please, but I do enjoy pictures when I can read the sub-titles and know what it is all about.

I have never been able to travel much and I get so much pleasure out of seeing how the other side lives through the educational films. I love every one of the comedians for the many laughs they have given me. As we pass on through life, it isn't always easy to find the laughs, but when we can sit in a show and see the comedy situations that are presented for our benefit, we lose ourselves and forget the tragedies in our own lives for a few hours.

I always go to a show that sounds like a comedy drama so I can have a good laugh. I really don't care for shows like "The Singing Fool" where everybody cries. I suppose, too, I am the only person in Lincoln who did not attend that picture.

I have no questions to ask today in fact I have never asked you any, although I have written my opinion of shows a number of times. I am not so interested in the private lives of the players as some fans, because I prefer to think of them as the characters in the story in which I see them and not as real flesh and blood people with all the frailties of flesh.

I hope I am welcome and I'll not tire you with any more talk this time. I appreciate your kindness in giving me ear. MRS. M. F. T.

We are always happy to hear from Fans, regardless of whether they need information or not. We enjoy hearing their sentiments on the happenings of the celluloid world.

Perhaps in time it will be possible to run a few subtitles with the dialogue of the picture so that fans such as yourself and the fans of foreign countries who cannot understand our language may be able to get the gist of the story without hearing or understanding the lines given by the players.

I have found that the picture has been less interesting for me on occasions when some unexpected sound in the theater or poor enunciation by the player has prevented me from hearing all of the dialogue. I can readily understand your complaint.

Dear Movie Ediotr—I'd like to know why they have wasted a perfectly ideal leading man like William Powell on villain's roles all of these years. I saw him as the detective in "The Canary Murder Case" and he was simply perfect. In the first place, it was a well told story. I had read the story and wanted to see the picture to see how much they could ruin it, but I was pleasantly surprised.

That poker game where Powell confirmed his suspicions of the murderer was one of the best scenes I have even seen on the screen. It was so realistic and yet did not reveal to the audience who had not read the book, who the murderer really was and thus spoil the balance of the film for them.

I notice that "The Green Murder Case" is to be filmed with Mr. Powell as the detective, too.

Of course, you are not in the dark now as to what my letter is all about. I want all of the information concerning Mr. Powell that you can give me, including the titles of some of the other pictures in which he has worked. Of course I have seen him many times, but don't recall just what the pictures were because he never really appealed to me until I saw him in "The Canary Murder Case." Sincerely, LILLIAN.

And when you did fall, you fell hard! I agree with you. William has kept his light under a bushel long enough. He was fortunate to have had such a lucky "break" in his first starring picture.

Mr. Powell is a graduate of the Arts in New York, so he was well equipped to go on the stage. His first role was in "The Ne'er Do Well." He later played in various stock companies before he won his first screen role in "Sherlock Holmes" with John Barrymore. Among his other pictures are "The Bright Shawl," "Romola" "Too Many Kisses," "Beau Geste," "The Last Command," "Interference," and "Four Feathers."

Mr. Powell was born in Kansas City, but spent most of his childhood in Pittsburgh. He is six feet tall, weighs 162 and has black hair and blue eyes.

Dear Movie Editor—I'm your almost every Sunday visitor. I am always so filled up and running over with questions I just naturally can't stay away from your department. Of course I like to see my letter in print ,and I most certainly do enjoy reading the letters from other fans. I think it's so much nicer to see the whole letter than just the answer as they do in most of the movie magazines.

I expect you are anxious to have me get down to business and ask my questions.

First, I want to know if the little boy in "The Dummy" was really deaf and dumb or not. I heard that he was, or he couldn't have acted the part so well, and that some other boy doubled for him when he did speak. Is that so?

Is is true that Bebe Daniels is going to marry Ben Lyon? I think they would make a nice couple. I just adore Bebe. She is so sweet and clever and pretty. Ben is good looking ,too.

Has "The Son of Anak" been released yet? Do you know who will play the leading role? What company is making the picture? I read the story in The Post and so am very much interested in it.

I wish they would give Colleen Moore some decent stories once in a while. I haven't liked her in either of her last pictures, "Synthetic Sin" and "Why Be Good." Those both seemed to fall flat and were too much like some of her others. I like Colleen and hate to see her ruined by poor stories. Clara Bow seems to have lost out with the fans for the same reason. I'd rather see one good picture than two poor ones, and I believe that's the way all of the fans must feel about their favorites. But for some reason or other they think they have to turn out a picture every few weeks to maintain their joiularity with us. I'm wondering what the other fans think about Colleen.

What is the title of Gloria Swanson's next picture?

Please give me Laura La Plante's address? Is she the girl who was

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The last term for this year will commence tomorrow. The term will continue for eight weeks and will be followed by the summer session of nine weeks.

Earnest Harrison and Charles B. Righter went to Kearney Thursday to act as judges of the district high school music contest.

Harry Warfel of the faculty and several of his students went to Geneva.

Regina Holcomb of the dramatic department will leave on a summer chautauqua tour soon after May 1.

Vera Upton entertained at the Cornhusker for Nola Shephard, whose marriage to Ray Lewis took place Saturday.

WHEATLEY VOCAL STUDIOS

Ethel Woodbridge Mumphrey of Omaha, soprano, will give a group of songs before the Fortnightly club of Omaha at its next meeting.

Mrs. L. E. Hoover, who has been substituting for Miss Katherine Mackechnie at the First Presbyterian church, leaves this week for Cincinnati, O., where she begins a short tour.

Edna Rosenlof, soprano, appeared in a group of songs before the P. E. O. society last Wednesday. She was accompanied by Miss Roberta Mackechnie.

Stella Shane will take the prima donna role in the annual light opera produced by the music department of the Omaha Woman's club next week.

VAN KIRK STUDIOS.

The following students of Lenore Burkett Van Kirk sang at a banquet in Omaha Friday night: Roy Mills, Glen Gardner, Harry Parsons, Melvin Breeden, Henry Kennedy, Harlan Wray, Albert Farmer, and Otis McQuary. Helen Arnold was the accompanist.

A group of girls from the studio will broadcast at Shenandoah, Ia., Sunday evening from 5 to 6 o'clock and will give parts of the same program, beginning at 8 o'clock the same evening. They include Ruth Laird, Virginia Ball, Helen Hulser, Louise Lomax, Fern Nusner, Gene Shrider, Naomi McBride, and Helen Arnold, accompanied by Irene Epler.

Ruth Laird, Virginia Ball, Louis Lomax, Naomi McBride, and Helen Arnold, accompanied by Irene Epler, gave a program in costume Wednesday afternoon at Tabernacle Christian church.

Fern Misner will sing for the Bethany Woman's club Tuesday afternoon.

Sara Caldwell sang two solos in Emerald Friday evening for the community meeting.

The University of Nebraska school of fine arts will present Miss Antoinette Lococo, violinist, in a junior recital at the regular Fine Arts convocation, Tuesday, April 23, at the Temple theater at 11 o'clock. Miss Lococo is a student with August Molzer and will be accompanied by Miss Cornelia Gant. The program follows:

Mozart—Sonata No. 4, Allegro, Tempo di menuetto.
Viotti-Molzer—Concerto No. 22 in A minor, Moderato.
Schubert-Wilhelmy—Am Mer.
Von Weber—Waltz No. 2.
Glazounow—Meditation.

Director Offer To Miss Talley

NEW YORK, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Marion Talley, the 23-year-old opera star, who has announced her decision to retire, has been offered a post as musical director for the new forty-story Barbizon-laza music center, which is to be built here overlooking Central park at a cost of $10,000,000, it was announced tonight.

William H. Silk, president of the Hotel Barbizon, which is interested in the new project, declared in urging Miss Talley to accept the post, that he felt her decision to retire "may possibly have a discouraging effect on countless young American artists striving for success."

LINDY AND ANNE TO WED IN JUNE

Morrows to Leave Mexico City Soon to Buy Her Trousseau.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service).

MEXICO CITY, April 13—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow will be married in the June-time, probably in the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J., International News Service learned today.

Miss Morrow, together with her parents, Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, and other members of the family, are now preparing for a trip to Englewood, to be taken two weeks hence, for the purpose of selecting Miss Morrow's trousseau.

The wedding, International News Service's informant said, is expected to take place early in June. The definite decision whether it shall take place at the Morrow home at Englewood will be made after the Morrow family reaches that place.

Planned to Wed Easter.

The couple had planned to be married during the Easter holidays at the Morrow country home in romantic and picturesque Cuernavaca, near the Mexican capital, but the turmoil accompanying the outbreak of the Mexican revolution compelled a postponement of these plans.

The collapse of the revolution and the outlook for an early pacification of the country now makes it possible for the ambassador to leave his post, it was said. He expects to be absent from Mexico City during all of May and June.

Accompanying the Morrows on their northern trip will be Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Yates of Englewood. Mrs. Yates is a sister of Mrs. Morrow.

Screen Siftings

Charles and Mary Again — The team of Charles Rogers and Mary Brian will be seen together again in the talking version of Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia." Mr. Rogers will take the role of Tom Rumford, created on the stage by Leo Carillo. Walter McGrail is returning to the screen for the role of Major Patterson in support of Mr. Rogers, and Anderson Lawlor will be Joe Patterson. Music, song and dialogue will make this another 100 per cent talking feature.

Nagel Will Sing—Conrad Nagel is a talented singer as well as a player, as fans will learn with the release of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Revue of Revues." Mr. Nagel is to sing in this production. Conrad's father, Dr. Frank Nagel, is nationally famous as an expert on opera.

Auburn Debaters Win District Championship

(Special to The Star.)

AUBURN, Neb., April 13—Auburn high school won the southeastern district debating championship this year by defeating the best teams of the district. The Auburn debaters have an enviable record of six victories in the district as against one loss. In this competition they have had but two votes of the judges cast against them, while twenty-two have been in their favor. They have also engaged in seven non-decision debates.

The Auburn team is made up of one senior and two juniors. Miss Burdette is captain of the team and is debating for the third year. Marshall Howe and Robert Stever are juniors and are debating for the first time this year. The team is coached by L. A. Breternitz, a member of the tsate championship team from North Platte high school in 1922.

This team will take part in the state contest to be held in Lincoln April 25, 26 and 27.

This is the second Auburn team to win the district in the last three years.

ALL UP!

Average Life at the Average College, as Gathered from the Pages of Any College Daily at Any Alma Mater.

Monday, First of the Month. Extracts from the Daily Ding Dong, Alma Mater College.

All up, Boys, for the big basketball game tonight. We want to see every man turn out and root and shout for Alma Mater. Remember, this is the first big game there has been for ten days, and there will be no other for over a week. Every man up! We want every man who has proper college spirit to be right there in the grand stand, rooting. You can buy right on the spot a program that will tell you who the players are, and how the game is played, and how to know which side is which. All up!

But at the same time:—

Don't forget that before the game begins you have time to come and hear the Banjo and Mandolin semi-final tryout in Hoot-It-Up Hall. All free, no charge. Remember that the Banjo club and the Mandolin league need support. These things can't live on mere love of music. They need enthusiasm, they need rooting, they need support. They need $1 dollar a year from eevry student at Alma Mater will buy a banjo for every man in the fourth year.

But, REMEMBER, best of all! Everybody up for the big ALL-ALM-AMATER SORORITY AND FRAT FEED right after the big basket-ball game! Buy your flowers early, as the College Chrysanthemum Shop reports a big run already. We want to see everybody at this feed and dance! It will be the last dance but two before the final three. Don't miss it! All up!

We call your attention also to our advertising columns under the head of WHERE TO GO AFTER THE DANCE. Do you want a cozy feed for a dozen or so at a table and a high-class cabaret show? Drop in at the Student's Alma Mater Union. Cover charge, only two dollars.

So ends Monday.

Tuesday, Second of the Month. The Daily Ding Dong Speaks Again.

We hope that all students will duly turn out at 11:00 A. M. to exercise their privilege of voting for the new members of the Students' Government League. The different faculties have suspended all lectures for the day in order to enable students to vote at eleven o'clock. Get in early. It is the duty of every student to remember that all the activities of college life ought to be his earnest concern. Don't miss any. On page four you can see who the candidates are and what the Government League is. But come anyway. There will be student ushers who will tell you how to vote.

Also—for those who have voted—

FREE EXHIBITION OF CONJURING

All student voters are invited at 11:30 to come into Hoot-It-Up Hall and see a free exhibition of conjuring given for the benefit of the students by the distinguished Italian conjurer now appearing at the Star Theatre. What we need at Alma Mater is all-around culture. Conjuring is just as much a part of a student's work as mathematics or football. All up!

And don't forget—

Later in the day at 3:00 P. M.—STUDENTS' ANNUAL ESQUIMO DOG RACE, followed at four P. M. by GRAND RECEPTION BY THE LOCK AND KEY SOCIETY TO THE VISITING DELEGATE FROM THE OBJIBWAY INDIAN RESERVATION TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

Wednesday, Third of the Month. More Extracts from the Daily Ding Dong.

Fellow students! Tonight is the big night—the one night in the year. Leave aside all books for this one evening and turn out for the ALMA MATER FOLLIES. The performance is staged for 8:00 in the Alma Mater Theatre and runs till 1:00 A. M. Tickets $5.00 a seat and up.

All reports say that the Follies this year will be bigger, brighter, and brainier than in any year before. Special features this year include a buck and wing clog dance by the Trustees of Alma Mater, champion mouth organ solo by the Dean of Research, and a huge ensemble chorus composed of all the girls worth looking at in Alma Mater. All up!

Thursday, Fourth of the Month. The Daily Speaks for the Fourth Time.

We regret that in our yesterday's number we omitted to give adequate publicity to the joint meeting of the Mathematical and Economic Societies to hold a joint debate on "How to Make Money Out of the Stock Exchange." We are glad to learn that the meeting was in any case a crowded one.

Lack of space prevented us from giving more than a passing announcement of the annual meeting of the Students' Rod and Gun Club, of the Students' Deep Sea Travel Association, the Bridge and Poker Club, the Night Off Society, and the Rest from Study Association.

Today the DAILY earnestly hopes that eevry student of Alma Mater will turn out to see the final All-Continent Ping Pong Match between Alma Mater and the University of Tugugigalpa, Honduras. Alma Mater will be represented by Ted Swatgood, who has done more to put Alma Mater over at Ping Pong than any student alive or deserving to live. Tugugigalpa will be championed by the redoubtable Joe Logwood, one of the big figures of the Ping Pong world.

If Alma Mater wins—that is, if Ted beats Logwood—we are tied for the semi-final. Alma Mater has put big work into this; that is to say, Ted has been training under a staff of ten coaches for a year at the expense of the college. It won't do to lose. If this college carries off the Ping Pong pennant, it is a grand thing for everybody connected with Alma Mater; this muscle-building, character-making sport is what is needed to build us up. It is all the greater pity that this year only four out of our four thousand students actually played the game. But we expect the others to make up for this by turning out en masse to help down Logwood.

Friday, Fifth of the Month. The Daily Still Exhorting.

All students attention! A principal feature for this afternoon will be an EXHIBITION OF DANCING GUINA PIGS in Hoot-it-Up Hall. This entertainment, which is being staged by the Department of Anthropology, will run from 2:00 P. M. till 6 P. M. Students are requested to get into their seats sharply on time so as not to keep the pigs waiting. Remember the hour, 2:00 P. M., and the name, Guinea Pigs. All afternoon classes suspended.

We beg to call attention to a letter appearing in another column and forwarded to us by Mr. Hustle Moore of the class. Mr. Moore draws attention to the fact that under present conditions at Alma Mater the students have not enough opportunity to get to know one another. He suggests a new organization to be called the WHO DO YOU KNOW CLUB, with power from the students' council to collect fees and to compel attention. The Daily is entirely in the students of this college to appreciate one another is to levy a suitable fee and fine those who drop out.

SUPPLEMENTAL ITEM SET BY THE DAILY IN BLACK

The DAILY is under the melancholy duty of chronicling the death of one of our fellow students, Mr. J. Smith, under very distressing and baffling circumstances. The doctors who attended our deceased fellow student declare that he died from over-study. This seems inexplicable, but apparently the medical facts warrant no other conclusion. That any student at Alma Mater College could be exposed to a danger of this sort is extremely difficult to believe. It may have been that the mistaken young man was purveying books to his room and making surreptitious use of his room as a place of study. This, of course, would be extremely difficult to prevent.

The sad occurrence teaches us, however, one lesson at Alma Mater, namely, that every effort should be made to brighten and diversify our college life. Our present activities are confined perhaps to too limited a field, and it might be well to call a general meeting to form a WIDER ACTIVITIES LEAGUE. Meanwhile there is one thing that we can do to honor the memory of our misguided fellow student. We want to see every man turn out at his funeral and testify in an unmistakable way to the grief we feel. We suggest a try-out rehearsal for the mourners in Hoot-It-Up Hall and then a big grand rally on the day itself. All up, boys, for Smith's funeral. Don't forget the name, Smith.

Saturday. Last Call. (Poster in the corridors of Alma Mater.)

Owing to the nervous prostration of all the editors, the DAILY will not appear till Monday.

PIRATES AHOY

ments charging piracy, murder and barratry. Owen was granted immunity for his testimony against the others.

The charge of murder related to the death at sea of George Cummings, seaman of the George Washington. Two of the George Washington's men had left ship in a boat when she made sail, under Tully's orders, at Isle of May. There were left aboard then Tully, who took charge as captain, Dalton, Owen and Cummings. The latter seemed demented, although some of the men thought him merely drunk. How he got enough liquor to keep him drunk aboard such a frugal craft, was never explained.

Cummings kept refusing to work, and insisted upon kissing the hands and feet of Tully and Dalton. He was melancholy, cried most of the time, and refused to eat. After two weeks at sea, Cummings rose in the night and stole upon Tully, who was asleep on deck, and gave him a terrible blow on the head with a hammer.

Tully was stunned, but cried out for help, and staggered to his feet to grapple with the apparently insane Cummings. Tully had no weapons. Cummings brandished a knife and a hammer, and Tully was badly cut and bruised.

Dalton came running to his chief's relief, and he and Tully managed to push and carry Cummings to the gunwale, and thence dropped him into the sea.

Upon this incident rested the charge of murder. Next night, land was sighted. The money on board, amounting to less than three thousand dollars, was divided among the three survivors, and the long boat was hoisted out and towed astern. Owen, who was not greatly trusted by the other two, was compelled to get into the boat while the George Washington proceeded on her way.

After some hours, Dalton and Tully abandoned the ship and took their places in the boat. Owen thouht he heard the two talking about having scuttled the vessel, and on this allegation the charge of barratry was based.

Dalton and Tully denied that they had scuttled the vessel. They denied that they had murdered Cummings, but insisted that they had merely drowned him in defense of their lives, after he had nearly killed one of them. They admitted running away with the George Washington, but their lawyer insisted that their action was not piracy, because they had not exercised violence against Captain Levy or any other person in taking possession of the ship.

The two men were convicted, almost wholly upon the testimony of the negro, who, of course, was making out the best possible case for himself and the worst possible one for his shipmates, since he wanted to save his own life and sacrifice theirs.

On December 10, 1812, Tully was hanged at South Boston. Still suffering from his wounds, which probably would have killed him eventually, he had prepared a final statement, which he intended to read from the gallows. The statement gave his side of the story quite fully, and was a fine defense against the charge of murder. As to the piracy, Tully admitted sailing away with a ship that didn't belong to him, approaching the funds aboard her, and abandoning her at sea. His only defense for this action was one that would not hold in law. He said that Captain Levy had goaded him beyond endurance by his stinginess and abuse, but particularly by his refusal of an adequate liquor ration to himself and the crew.

But Tully was unable to read his last statement. He was too sick. In fact, there was much doubt that he was conscious at the time of the hanging. He had to be carried to the gallows, and appeared to be in a coma. The deputy United States marshal read the paper aloud to the assembled multitude, which cheered the defense lustily. The trap was sprung, and in a few minutes Dalton stepped forward to have the rope adjusted about his neck. When the hangman had fixed the knot and the last prayer had been said, Dalton was asked whether he had anything to say.

"No sir," he replied. "Let's get it over with as soon as possible."

The hangman pulled the black cap over the doomed man's face. At that moment another deputy marshal came running and shouting that the hanging should be stopped. He bore a reprieve for both men. Too late for Tully. But Dalton was eventually pardoned.

SHORTHAND IN 30 DAYS

The Modern Way To Better Pay

Why should it be necessary when writing shorthand to use a bewildering hieroglyphic alphabet? It isn't done in writing Dickinson ABC Shorthand, which makes this shorthand the simplest, fastest, most legible, most successful Shorthand known. Dickinson ABC Shorthand takes the "guess" from rapid writing and makes Shorthand possible to everyone.

Individual instruction in typewriting, bookkeeping and filing. Day and evening classes.

A Man You Must Meet
That Is, If You Desire to Get Close to President Hoover, for Chief Secretary Akerson Will See to It.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ackerson.

BY BONITA WITT.
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Lincoln Star.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—If you desire to shake the hand of President Hoover, have your picture taken with him, present him with a bolt of goods or a pet orang-outang, George E. Ackerson, chief secretary of the president, is the man to see.

In a corner of the wing of the White House given over to the executive offices, Akerson, a youngish-looking man with graying hair, occupies a spacious office lined with chairs which seldom are empty. There he meets a constant stream of persons who desire to see the president on missions both important and foolish. It is Akerson's job to see that the merely curious and those with trifling proposals get no opportunity to take up the president's time, while those with legitimate business to transact are admitted as speedily as possible.

Akerson's day begins at nine o'clock, when he arrives at his office and immediately goes into conference with the president. He finds out whom the president desires summoned during the day, which persons he is eager to see and what the general program is to be. Together they go over some of the mail.

The Grind Begins.

Then, at ten o'clock, the engagements begin. If a cabinet officer, senator or representatives arrives he is admitted at once and those who have had engagements for weeks must wait. It is Akerson's job then to keep those who are waiting patient and in good humor. He must learn to know the callers by sight.

During the morning he frequently must call the president to pose with various groups who have come to Washington. Twice daily Akerson holds press conferences, answering such questions as lie within his prvince to answer so that correspondents need not wait until the president's weekly conference. He sits in also on the president's press conference.

In the afternoon, when there are few engagements, he must be available so as to supoly President Hoover with any information he may require. At five o'clock he again meets with him, goes over the day's happenings and lays plans for the morrow.

With President Three Years.

For three years Akerson has been associated with Mr. Hoover. He comes from Minneapolis, Minn., where he obtained a position on The Tribune, some 12 years ago, just after his graduation from Harvard.

When the Tribune's political writer quit young Akerson was given the job because of his enthusiasm for politics, and he soon was known throughout Minnesota for his work. He traversed the borders of the state and began to write of the agrarian movement in North Dakota and Townley's Non-partisan league until he became an acknowledged authority on both subjects.

After writing of things political for years, he took a hand in the election of a mayor in Minneapolis and was given considerable credit for the gentleman's subsequent victory. Finally his love of politics drew him to Washington, where he covered an important conference. Within a short time he became secretary to Mr. Hoover, who then held the commerce portfolio in the Coolidge cabinet.

Since that time he has been with Mr. Hoover constantly, making trip after trip with him. He was a member of the party which accompanied the president to South America.

Doane College Notes

Messrs. Arthur Byler, pianist, Charles V. Kettering, baritone; and C. Burdette Wolfe, violinist, of the Doane college faculty, are scheduled to give a fomal concert in the First Presbytertian church at Tecumseh, this evening, April 14.

Work has already begun on the new Simon athletic field. With favorable weather the rough grading will doubtless be completed before the first of May.

ANNOUNCING—the installation of a
PIPE ORGAN

We have just completed the installation of a Reproduco Pipe Organ, an instrument built for Mortuary services.

Perhaps there is nothing which adds to the beauty and comforting memories of a funeral service so much as appropriate music. There is something of Infinity in the rich swells of pipe organ music, and a quality of hope and promise—an effect suggestive of celestial beauty. The organ service is an exclusive feature of Wadlow's. This being the only pipe organ in a Lincoln Mortuary.

FIRST PRACTICAL TEST FOR HOOVER IS NOW AT HAND

Work of Special Session, Opening Monday, Will Be Limited Strictly to Farm Relief, Tariff Revision and Possibly Congressional Reapportionment, If Administration's Plans Successfully Realized—Robinson, However, Favors Much Broader Program.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(I. N. S.)—A new congress, as dominantly republican as the political wave that washed it into office last November, assembled in Washington tonight for the special session which President Hoover called to make good his campaign pledges of farm relief and tariff revision upward.

The assembly of the new congress signalizes the end of President Hoover's political honeymoon. Thus far, with no congress on its hands, the new administration has sailed smoothly and serenely ahead. Now the shooting begins. The first practical test of President Hoover's leadership will be furnished in the weeks immediately ahead.

If the plans of the administration can be successfully realized, the work of the special session will be limited strictly to farm relief and tariff revision, and possibly congressional reapportionment, which previous congresses have been ducking since 1920 in defiance of the constitution.

The leaders think they can hold the program to that. There are others, however, who are not so sanguine. Congressional machines have been known to get out of hand before. This is particularly true of the senate, where party discipline is not so strong as in the well-policed house.

Robinson Differs.

Already Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, the minority leader, has announced that the democratic program embraces quite a number of things not on the Hoover program, including flood control and attempted regulation of speculative gambling on the New York stock exchange. However strong the republican majority may be, and it is stronger in this seventy-first congress than in any since the advent

FLIERS KILLED IN AIR CIRCUS

Crowd Thrown in Panic As Planes Crash in Air; Two Dead.

DETROIT, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Before a horrified crowd of 3,000 persons, two planes crashed 800 feet in the air at the Ford airport here this afternoon killing A. H. Kreider of Hagerstown, Md., and Captain Bruce of the Royal Air force of Canada and perhaps fatally injuring William Naylor of Akron, O.

Kreider was instantly killed. Captain Bruce died a short time later being admitted to a Detroit hospital.

The crowd which had gathered to see an air circus held in conjunction with the aircraft exhibition here, was thrown into a panic.

Lives of hundreds of persons were endangered when the two crafts hurtled to earth crashing fifty feet apart.

Kreider was flying at about a height f 800 feet in the air when his plane was struck bullet-like by the craft of Captain Bruce who with Naylor had just taken off from the airport for Akron, O.

Kreider's plane toppled, nose downward, and swirled dizzily to the ground followed a fraction of a second later by the plane carrying Captain Bruce and Naylor.

Naylor was not expected to live. His condition was reported at a De-

Crew Plans to Fly Southern Cross Out Of Jungle Clearing

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 14 (Sunday)—(U. P.)—The crew of the marooned trans-Pacific monoplane Southern Cross will attempt to fly the plane from the jungle clearing in which it was forced to land nearly two weeks ago, it was learned today from A. A. West, Australian aviator, who succeeded in landing a light plane in the clearing.

The expert airmanship of Capt. Charles E. Kingsford-Smith, commander of the stranded crew, saved the machine from damage, the Australian aviator said upon his return to Wyndham.

Capt. C. T. P. Ulm, second in command to Kingsford-Smith, sent messages of thanks to Sydney citizens for dispatching a Canberra air line plane with provisions.

The crew will recondition the plane on returning to Sydney for another flight to England.

A California Girl Leaps To Death

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. April 13—(UP)—Leaping from the upper floor of a downtown office building, Carmen Jack, believed to be a University of California student, plunged thirteen stories to her death.

The girl had entered the office of an insurance company on the thirteenth floor during the noon hour and asked for some blank checks. She scribbled a fewnotes on them.

Then she went to a window, hesitated for a moment and then hurled her body into space. Thirteen stories below the body crashed through a skylight and fell to the lobby floor amid hundreds of persons.

A note found asked that Ione be notified at a certain telephone number and continued, "This may seem cowardly but it is the only way."

Another note asked that her body be turned over to the University of California medical school so that they can find out whether I died of cancer or tuberculosis."

DANCER HELD IN FATAL SHOOTING

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Thelma Graham, 23, dancer, formerly of Dallas, Tex., was held today in connection with the fatal shooting of Harold Clark, 29, projection machine operator in the theater where both were employed. Clark was shot through the body in Miss Graham's room early today. He insisted before his death that the shooting was accidental. Letters postmarked Los Angeles and apparently from Clark's mother were found in his pockets.

BOY, 6, CRUSHED BY FREIGHT CARS

Frank Bilka of Crete Is Suffering From Serious Injuries.

His left shoulder almost torn loose from his body Saturday afternoon, Frank Bilka, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bilka of Crete, was in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth's hospital Saturday night. Besides the shoulder injury he was suffering from five broken ribs, hemmorhages caused by the collapse of the left lung, and shock.

The accident happened on a siding near the Crete Mills about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Using a "car puller,' Mr. Bilka started to take two freight cars loaded with wheat to the elevator when he and another employe of the mills heard the boy scream. The boy had been playing in the vicinity but was not known to be near the cars until his call was heard. He was caught between two of the cars.

The accident wrenched his shoulder from the body, leaving it hanging by only a few muscles. Breaking of the ribs on the left side caused the collapse of the left lung. He was attended by Dr. E. J. Stejskal of Crete and rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital where he was put under the care of Dr. C. H. Arnold.

Dr. Arnold said the boy was suffering badly from shock besides serious physical injuries. Hemmorhages in the lungs might necessitate blood transfusion, Dr. Arnold stated.

ASSESSMENT ON BANKS NOW DUE BUT NOT MADE

Passage of Pending Bills Would Make Levy Impossible.

NO MOVE IS MADE BY DEPARTMENT

Failure to Act Means Big Loss to the Guaranty Fund.

While public attention is centered on bills in the legislature whose enactment will materially modify the guaranty fund system in Nebraska, after providing for partial payment of accrued losses to depositors in failed banks, the fact has almost escaped notice that no special assessment on going banks has thus far been made during 1929 for the benefit of the guaranty fund, under the old law still in effect.

The present law authorizes special assessments to be levied not exceeding one-half of 1 per cent in any year. This is in addition to the regular assessments made on January 1 and July 1 each year, which together amount to one-tenth of 1 per cent annually.

Since 1923, when the guaranty fund commission was created, the full special assessments have been levied by the state trade and commerce department every year. All of these assessments were collected except the last one for 1928, made under date of December 26, payment of which was resisted and held up by the banks through an injunction suit. That suit was recently tried in the District court of Lancaster county, before Judge Frost, whose decision is being awaited.

The restraining order which prevented the trade and commerce department from collecting the December special levy on banks applies only to that one assessment. Should the department see fit it could go

DEPOSITORS TO DEMAND RELIEF

Will Insist That Legislators Make Provision To Pay.

Sorensen Says Guaranty Law Should Not Be Repealed.

After an all-day schooling in Lincoln Saturday on the banking situation, more than 500 depositors of failed state banks in all parts of Nebraska were prepared to "shoot both barrels" Monday in their effort to get the sort of legislation they desire.

At the Saturday afternoon meeting in the Cornhusker hotel Attorney General Sorensen and Senator Kenneth Wherry explained the situation to the depositors and expressed their views on what action is needed. Governor Weaver, C. E. Abbott of Fremont and R. T. Jones of Scottsbluff spoke at the morning meeting.

Mr. Jones, lobbyist for the depositors, called for as many as possible to remain in Lincoln over the weekend or return to the city Monday morning in order to make their own views known to the legislators. A number volunteered to do this lobbying work. Others were urged to get in touch with senators and representatives by telephone, telegraph or mail in a last minute drive for legislation favorable to the depositors.

Sentiment for payment of "100 cents for every dollar deposited in the banks" and for retention of the guaranty fund system was strong. Every time either of these stands was taken by a speaker the crowd gave him an ovation by handclapping and stamping on the floors.

"I don't think we should repeal the guaranty fund law at this time," said Attorney General Sorensen. "It ought never to be repealed as long as the state has the bank-monopoly law."

Fund Not Broke.

"They say the guaranty fund is busted," the speaker continued. "This doesn't happen to be true. The guaranty fund is not busted."

It has assets of a book value of $32,000,000 and claims against stockholders for an additional $5,000,000. Admitting that they are not worth the book value, Mr. Sorensen said, "The way the assets are thrown on the market, in an attempt to sell them at any price, of course they get a low price."

Estimates are that assets will shrink to $11,000,000 he said. In addition to these assets the assessments bring in $1,700,000 each year and the revenue from farms and interest on notes brings this to $2,000,000. Although the liabilities may be $26,000,000, the attorney general declared "that any business with assets of $11,000,000 and an annual income of $2,000,000 is not yet broke."

"There is no question but what the state has a moral obligation to pay at once and in full de-

BIG PROBLEMS BEFORE SOLONS IN FINAL WEEK

Showdown to Come Early on Bank Audit and Code Revision.

General Budget Measure May Pass the Senate By Wednesday.

Important problems of state policy, still undermined after three and a half months devoted in the main to trifling matters, are before the two lawmaking bodies of Nebraska for settlement during what may be the closing week of the 1929 legislative session.

Many of the state senators and representatives do not expect to see a satisfactory solution reached on several of the principal questions, which have been put off, to the last while "chickenfeed" bills were given the right of way during the earlier period. Many of them doubt whether the legislature can get through and adjourn by next Saturday, April 20, the date that has been tentatively fixed.

Should it develop that the end cannot be reached at that time, the two chambers can reconsider their action and set the time further ahead, or they can revert to the archaic practice of "stopping the clock" and thenceforth ignoring the calendar. The latter method is somewhat risky, as it might produce a situation endangering the validity of what was done after the actual date for adjournment had passed.

Fight Over Bank Investigation.

There will be a showdown not later than Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning on Governor Weaver's bank audit and investigation bill, H. R. 585, which the senate dressed up in a way that does not please either its introducer, Representative Burke, or the governor.

MOREHEAD NOT HIGHLY HOPEFUL

Congressman Does Not Think Special Session Will Help Much.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 13.—"I am inclined to think this special farm session will merely put the government to considerable expense and will probably not accomplish anything worth while," commented John H. Morehead, First district congressman, just before he and Mrs. Morehead departed for Washington, Saturday night.

The congressman voiced the belief that no plan has yet been outlined acentable to all factions.

"One of the worst features of the country now," he said, "is that credit is made too easy and I shall not be in favor of any farm legislation that would tend to let the bars down still farther, although if a bill with real merit is proposed I shall certainly vote for it."

DEBENTURE PLAN IN AID MEASURE IS TURNED DOWN

Export Bonus System Rejected, 17 to 4, By House Committee.

CONFEREES PLAN TO WORK SUNDAY

Hoover's Suggestions for Minor Changes Delay Completion.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(UP)—A farm relief bill which President Hoover has approved will be introduced Monday at the opening of the special session of the seventy-first congress, Chairman Haugen of the house agriculture committee announced tonight.

A few suggestions for changes made by the president at a white house breakfast to committee members today delayed completion and announcement of all the bill's provisions, scheduled for today, until Sunday or early Monday. Mr. Hoover approved most of the features of the bill as now stands, Haugen said.

The committee today voted down, 17 to 4, a proposal to include the debenture plan, or export bonus system, in the measure and on test vote the old equalization fee proposal was defeated 17 to 3.

Reading of the bill for amendments and minor revisions virtually has been completed. Haugen said eleven pages of the fifteen-page bill had been approved and the remainder of the draft was not relatively important.

Will Be Offered Monday.

"We will meet at 9:30 a. m., tomorrow and hope to have the bill completed before 2 o'clock", Haugen said. "It will be introduced Monday as soon as the house is officially organized for business."

The United Press learned authoritively that the bill will set up a federal farm board of seven members, including the secretary of agriculture.

The board will be given wide power to administer a $500,000,000

LOIS PIERSON IS SPELLING CHAMP

Walter Degenfelder Wins Second in County Contest.

Girl Victor Has Perfect Score in Oral and Written Tests.

Lois Pierson, 12-year-old eighth grade student from District No. 107, won championship laurels against sixty-two contestants Saturday afternoon in the county spelling contest held at the court house.

Together with Walter Degenfelder, 12, of Emerald, Lois will represent Lancaster county schools in the inter-state match at South Sioux City, Neb., April 26, and at the state contest in Omaha soon.

The Degenfelder boy stood second high in the written quiz with a grade of 98 and sixth in the oral contest. Lois stood high in both with a perfect score.

Her victory was not an easy one. For five minutes Merna May, 13, of Walton, daughter of Otto A. F. May, gave her a close race, going down on the word: "flotilla."

Miss Pierson is the daughter of F. A. Pierson, rural route six, Lincoln. Walter, the son of Charles Degenfelder, also lives on rural route six.

Miss Charlotte Alexander, county superintendent of schools, was in charge of the contest. Judges for the oral test were Mrs. Bell Betz, Lincoln Women's club; Logan Mocroft, Waverly; H. H. Leavitt, Walton; Mrs. Fred Claus, county Federation Women's clubs, and Mrs. Mattie Perkins, Parent-Teachers association.

Pronouncers were Lulu Wolford and Mrs. Althea Carver. Mrs. Lou Hurd president of the County Parent Teachers association, and Mrs. Harry Thompson, president of the Crounse association, were the committee on words. In the written contest Mrs. Edith Heilman, Walton, pronounced words, and Lulu Horn, city librarian, O. E. Jerner, and C. W. D. Kinsey, were judges.

Others who aided in direction of the contest were Mrs. Ella Colbert, manager of assistants; Marguerite Hensley and Irma Warta, registrars of contestants; Mrs. Annetta Bute, designator of contestants: Alice Gerbeling and Irene Warta, registrars of guests; Arnold Broz and Victor Chab, ushers.

Detroit Bank Robbed

DETROIT, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Shoving a note through the teller's cage demanding "all the big ones," a lone bandit today held up the Peninsular State bank and escaped with loot estimated at $6,000. In his haste, the bandit dropped $200 as he fled to an automobile parked in an alley at the side of the bank.

In Medical Revolt

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago coroner, resigned from city medical association because it expelled Dr. Louis E. Schmidt for connection with a newspaper advertising public health institute.

LINCOLN GETS RAIN SATURDAY

Light Showers Received Here, And At Milford And Dorchester.

Rain began falling in Lincoln shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night and from that time until after midnight showers fell intermittently.

The precipitation was not heavy, however, and reports received by the Burlington at midnight indicated that the rain was not very general.

A slight downfall was reported by the railroad agents at Dorchester and Milford.

The forecast for Sunday indicated that the weather would remain unsettled with the possibility of showers.

The mercury rose to only 62 degrees Saturday, this temperature being recorded at 2, 3 and 4 p. m. The skies were overcast most of the day.

Robbers Kill A Woman and Son

NEW ORLEANS, April 13—(INS)—Mrs. Annie Flink, 49, and her 14-year-old son were killed today, presumably by robbers.

The heads of the woman and her son were evidently crushed by an axe found near her body.

More than $2,000 were overlooked by the robbers, but the cash box was emptied of a small sum of money.

Suspect Identified As Escaped Convict

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—J. Kaven, under arrest in San Jose on automobile theft charges was today identified as Bruo Kochnyski, a former prisoner at the Ohio State prison, who disappeared during a fire in the prison brick plant in October, 1928.

Identification was made by Clarence Morrill, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal identification, who declared that until today it was never known whether the convict had escaped or had lost his life in the fire.

CAPTAIN ON THE CARRISO DROWNS

HONOLULU, April 13—(U. P.)—The motor ship Carriso today again broke into the day's news.

A radio from the ship, due here next week, received by the local agent, said that Capt. Richard Connell had fallen from the gangplank while the Carriso docked at Samarai, New Guinea, and had drowned.

Several months ago Chinese members of the crew attempted to mutin after they had seen "devils" walkir the decks of the vessel and indulging in startling gymnastic feats.

Connell, at that time, asked the assistance of police when he arrived at this port.

AFGHAN REBELS CAPTURE TURKS

Two Women Killed When Ottoman Plane Shot Down.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Two women passengers were killed today when Afghan rebels shot down a Turkish airplane carrying members of a Turkish military mission over Afghan territory.

All the remaining members of the mission were captured by the rebels and are being held prisoners.

U. S. DESTROYER SAILS

SAN DIEGO, CAL., April 13—(I. N. S.)—The United States Destroyer Hull sailed from here today, bound for an unannounced port on the West Coast of Mexico, apparently to protect American interests in the coastal war zone.

CONFERENCE ON REPARATIONS HAS REACHED CRISIS

Allies Ask $30,000,000,000 From Germany As Total Bill for World War, To Be Paid Over Period of Fifty-Seven Years, Which Causes Consternation In Ranks of Berlin Delegates To Paris Conference—Breakup of Gathering Would Mean Continuation of Payments Under Dawes Plan.

PARIS, April 13—(U. P.)—The allies presented Germany today with a memorandum fixing her total bill for the World war at close to $30,000,000,000.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, April 13—The weather outlook for the period from April 15 to April 20, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys: Temperatures mostly seasonable but may be above normal toward close of week; rather frequent precipitation south portions, probably one or two periods north portions.

Nebraska and Kansas: Mostly unsettled Sunday and Monday, probably local showers; not much change in temperature.

The German delegation to the conference of reparations experts was called before a plenary session of the conference and the memorandum was handed to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief eGrman delegate.

Its contents were kept secret, although it may be published Monday. The United Press was informed, however, that the allies demanded annuities starting at slightly more than $2,000,000,000,000 gold marks ($476,000,000), gradually increasing during fifty-seven years to 2,500,000,000 gold marks ($585,000,000).

No Total Mentioned.

No total was mentioned nor rate of interest fixed, but when Germany finishes paying she would have paid in all 125,000,000,000,000 gold marks, ($29,750,000,000), including interest. It includes of course the sums already paid since the war.

The staggering total met with consternation in German circles.

Thousands Of Rebels Offer To Surrender

MEXICO CITY, Mex., April 13—(U. P.)—The Mexican consulate at Nogales, Ariz., telephoned President Portes Gil tonight that the rebel generals Manzo and Bernal had offered to surrender 5,000 to 6,000 insurgents in Sonora, provided their lives are spared, it was announced at the Presidencia.

The president telephoned the only terms of surrender acceptable to him would be unconditional. He said the leaders would have to submit to the jurisdiction of the militarists.

Portes Gil held the officers and leaders of the revolt must pay the full penalty prescribed by the law. He promised "generous treatment within the limits of the military statutes, especially to those who were dragged into the revolution."

Président Portes Gil told the con-

WOMAN HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Mrs. Mulholland Suffers Injuries in Crash Saturday Night.

Mrs. H. G. Mulholland, 2524 E street, received a deep laceration on her upper lip, three inches long, when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, collided with a machine driven by William T. Albers, 446 D street, at the intersection of Twelfth and E streets at 9:15 Saturday night.

Mrs. Mulholland was suffering some from shock after the accident, Dr. George E. Lewis, who attended her, stated Saturday night. He was called to the scene of the accident and took Mrs. Mulholland to St. Elizabeth's hospital. He took several stitches in the cut on her lip after which she returned to her home.

None of the others riding in the machines which collided was injured. The right side of the Mulholland car was damaged in the accident and the right rear wheel broken. The front end of the Albers' machine was wrecked.

REED DENOUNCES JONES DRY LAW

Says Act Most Prolific Source of Blackmail Ever Devised.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 13—(I. N. S.) — With Thomas Jefferson, apostle of individual liberty, as his theme, former Senator James A. Reed, in a speech before the Women's Jefferson Democratic club this afternoon assailed what he termed present day drifts toward autocracy, namely the Jones law, government spies and regulators, federal bureaus and political preachers.

Declaring he is now a private citizen and not answerable to the democratic party or any one else for his utterances, Senator Reed spoke his mind freely on various questions. He ridiculed Volstead, Jones and the late Wayne B. Wheeler. He took verbal shots at the "ancient dames" and other propagandists who go to Washington to lobby, and he flayed political preachers and religious bigots.

Sees Blackmail Plot.

The Jones law will prove the "most prolific source of blackmail ever devised by man," Senator Reed predicted. "That is because a government agent now can say to a man or woman, I've got the goods on you. It is five years in the penitentiary. How much money for silence?"

Senator Reed said there were more women today in the United States who would drink whisky than ever before in the nation's history.

"That is because there is no more whisky," he remarked sarcastically. "We abolished it by law. In the old days men and women were taught to control themselves, to build up a resistance to the use of liquor, but that isn't necessary now that the state is taking care of the matter.

The "fighting senator" wound up his speech with the remark:

"The things we tamely submit to today would have caused a revolution 100 years ago."

Gene Howe, Once Lindy's Critic, Urges Him To Follow Example Of World Figures Who Tasted Fame

AMARILLO, Tex., April 13.—(U. P.)—Few men have withstood constant adulation, but the press may save Col. Charles A. Lindbergh "from degenerating into a perfect ass," Gene Howe, Amarillo editor and perhaps the first public critic of the colonel, said today.

Commenting on an editorial in the Washington Daily News, which took the colonel to task, Editor Howe congratulated The News on its outspokenness and added:

"Few men in history have been able to withstand constant and extreme adulation, and a truthful presentation from the press of Colonel Lindbergh's conduct toward the public and its representatives may save him from degenerating into a perfect ass."

Howe said he had long been expecting an explosion because of Lindbergh's attitude toward the public and press. But, he added:

"Lindbergh, as yet, is no less of a hero or an ideal than he has been and the Washington News is doing him the biggest possible favor because of its friendly and intelligent criticism.

Must Preserve Ideal.

"Lindbergh's duty to his country is to preserve the ideal which he has created. He typifies, or is regarded as typifying, the best and the highest there is in the young manhood of our country, and if he does not live up to this trust, it will be a loss to the nation.

"All that is necessary is for him to be as mindful of the rights of the public and the press as are Hoover, Coolidge, Taft, Mussolini,

CHANGES IN CITY AMAZE REALTOR

John Alexander Finds Remarkable Progress Made Since 1906.

Wonderful Buildings in Lincoln Delight Visitor.

It is refreshing and encouraging to note the progress being made by Lincoln, according to John M. Alexander, following a drive he made recently, accompanied by Mrs. Alexander and a friend from Tecoma, Wash., and his wife, who have just moved to Lincoln. Usually he has driven into the country, Mr. Alexander says, but on this trip he drove into all sections of the city pointing out the places of interest to the new arrivals. "They were agreeably surprised at the wonderful buildings and the activity of the city," he declares, adding that they remarked that Lincoln is known everywhere as "a peppy town."

"This was all very interesting to me, but more so to my father," Mr. Alexander stated. "We came here on the sixth day of the sixth month of 1906. Father had come ahead to try to get work, and succeeded in doing so, in the old Jake Lichtensteiger grocery and market on South Tenth street. Mother and the two boys came after graduation at the little high school at Sigourney, Ia.

"Instead of coming east from the Burlington depot to come up town, we went north and walked through the Burlington freight yards. Finally we were directed toward the business district, and arrived at Tenth and O streets. Well do I remember looking east on O street, lined with houses and buggies tied to hitching posts. The street cars clanged and banged around the corner of the street going north. It was a wonderful sight. This was the first time any of us had ever seen a street car.

"Father had rented a house near Twentieth and J streets, but this distance seemed so far away that I insisted we were living in a suburb. Each morning we walked to work. Jake gave me a place as clerk in his store, but the job did not last long as I put vinegar in a kerosene jug and spoiled a salad being served at a high up dinner. The next best job that could be found was at J. Grainger & Co., trucking freight, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday was a half holiday, with two cars of bananas to unload before going home. This job lasted all summer, when with $100 saved I went to the university.

"Twenty-two years have come and gone since then. Mostly happy hard working years of gain and loss, achievement and disappointments.

"But what a wonderful contrast in the city of Lincoln in that time.

"The man from Tacoma remarked we had plenty of room to expand, as we drove along the road where the new veterans hospital is to be built. We saw the possibilities of a greater Lincoln, as we looked over toward Bethany, University Place, College View and Havelock. Far in the distance we could visualize the new Pioneers park, and homes in the now open spaces between Lincoln proper and these places.

"We drove out to the Shrine Country club and its new building. Few perhaps realize what a big building this is, and what a wonderful addition it is to Lincoln's many wonderful buildings. A wonderful building in Spanish architecture set on a high place overlooking the gently rolling Nebraska hills.

"We came past the many newly developing home districts in the east part of Lincoln: Piedmont, the acres along South street, the new Cotner boulevard, then through the Sheridan boulevard district—a corn field ten years ago—out through Sunset Hill, the Country Club district, and Woodsdale.

"It's a real treat to compare Lincoln, the new and up to date modern Lincoln, with the Lincoln of twenty-two years ago. And it is a pleasure to sell Lincoln to newcomers.

"Our future seems to me to be brighter for the next twenty years than it was in the last. We are on a better footing. Our values are more secure. More buildings and investments. A bigger community. We have men here inspired with the urge to build. A handful of men can build a wonderful business district, but a lot of men can build a great city and a great community. And I believe there are men here to do it."

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

Carl Larson, contractor, purchased a lot in Sunset Hill addition, the past week from Harvey Rathbone, and is contemplating erecting a home soon. A lot has been bought by Otto Skold on Rathbone road. He expects to build soon.

VERMONT PARTY HERE WEDNESDAY

Chamber Completes Plans For Entertainment of 125 Visitors.

Arrangements were completed by the chamber of commerce Saturday for the entertainment of 125 Vermonters who will arrive here at 7 o'clock Wednesday on a special train carrying a display of Vermont products and pictures of the state's scenery. The train will be at the Burlington station and the party will remain until 1:30.

Upon arrival of the visitors they will be met by buses and automobiles and taken for a tour of the city. From the depot they will go to the university campus and from thence to the agricultural college. At the university they will be greeted by Chancellor Burnett, and at the college by Dean Burr.

The inspection of the campuses will include a trip through the stadium, field house and Morrill hall. At the college they will inspect the entire plant.

From the college the party will be shown the veterans bureau hospital site, the Country clubs, Wesleyan, Cotner and Union colleges, and the residential sections of the city enroute to the capitol. There they will meet Governor Weaver and visit the legislative halls.

The trip is planned to have the Vermonters at the chamber of commerce by 12 o'clock, where they will be guests at a luncheon.

Included in the party will be some of Vermont's most notable citizens. Heading the group are Governor John E. Weeks, and Mrs. Weeks of Middlebury. Herbert T. Johnson, adjutant general of the state guard also is in the party as are a number of the editors of the leading newspapers, and some of the Boston publications. There are also a number of other state officials, leaders in agriculture and livestock, and industry as well as a number of government officials.

DR. HEDBLOM TO GIVE ADDRESS

Former Nebraskan Will Talk to Medical Society Tuesday.

Dr. Carl Hedblom, professor of surgery at the University of Illinois college of medicine, will speak to the Lancaster County Medical society at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Sharp building. His subject wil be "Diagnosis of Acute Abdominal Conditions."

Dr. Hedblom, who is recognized internationally as an authority in the field of surgical research and practice is a former Nebraskan who was born near Aurora. He was formerly on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin and has been head of the European hospital at Shanghai. For the past several years he has been head of University of Illinois.

Preceding the regular meeting in the medical society quarters, a dinner in honor of Dr. Hedblom will be held at the University club the department of surgery in the to which all members of the society and visiting physicians are invited.

LINCOLN MAKES RAPID ADVANCE

Present Day City is Nothing Like That of Ten Years Ago.

Next Decade Gives Promise of Still Greater Development.

People who have lived in Lincoln ten years or more need to readjust their ideas of the city, if they already have not done so, in the opinion of J. W. Turner, president of the Lincoln Real Estate board. The Lincoln of today, he says, is an entirely different city than that of a decade ago. The population has increased nearly 40,000, business has gained correspondingly, as has the trade area with the development of better roads allowing automobiles, trucks and bus lines to run through the city.

Not only has there been an increase in these respects. There also has been an extension in the area of the city itself, both within and without the territorial limits, and the person who is now thinking of the city in terms of ten or twelve years ago is entirely out of harmony with the real situation, he says.

Sees Still Greater Gain.

Declaring Lincoln's population will increase more rapidly in the next ten years than it has in the past, Mr. Turner declares hundreds of people are turning their faces in this direction because the city's many attractions have become known from one end of the country to the other. People who do not realize this and fail to adjust themselves to these conditions are making a serious mistake as "this growth is just ahead of us and we should prepare for it.

"Even though we have a population of 90,000 it is hard for some people to realize that Lincoln has just started to grow. Most of us are here because we think this is the finest place on earth in which to live, and in which to educate our children. Thousands elsewhere are beginning to believe as we do and nothing is going to stop them from coming here to live. If we are wise we will give them a hearty welcome, first taking precautions that they will be cared for after their arrival. These folks should not be talked to in terms of the past. Talk with them only in terms of the present and future!

311 New Home Owners.

"It is interesting to know that since 1920 there have been 3,361 new homes built in Lincoln. Of these 311 were built and are being occupied by the owners. Remodelled houses are the ones that are for rent, and the record shows that last year alone these numbered 172 worked over at a cost of $81,195. Remodeling is in line with the modernizing program of the board and more of it should be done.

"There are many old homes in Lincoln and the owners should show a greater interest in bringing them on a par with those of more modern design. It should be done from the standpoint of difference in appearance and also to make them sell or rent easier. Then, too, they improve the community and increase the value of the land they stand on; and this is more important than all the other reasons.

"Most of these houses are on property that is close-in; what is considered the more valuable land. Any way it is looked at it is far too valuable to be used in connection with a rundown house that is being rented.

"The 311 houses built last year cost their owners more than a half million dollars, in addition to the $81,195 spent for modernizing. Nine apartments cost $310,000 more and remodelling two others, $12,000. Include in this 499 new garages at a cost of $296,000 and the aggregate reaches $5,221,606. The number of permits was 1,070.

"It will be time well spent to 'Know Your Lincoln'."

Sunday Denounces Dry Law Breakers

DENVER, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—"Billy" Sunday, the fighting evangelist, uttering sparkling denunciations of violators of the Volstead law, spent a few hours in Denver today, enroute to Sterling, where he will open a tabernacle revival tomorrow.

"Give 'em the jack screws," and "Hand the bums the cold flash and snare 'em with the rope," were a couple of "Billy's" ejaculations in referring to those who vote dry and drink wet.

"Ma" Sunday acompanied the evangelist.

BANK INCREASES CAPITAL $40,000

First State of Lincoln Now Has Total Stock of $50,000.

An increase of $40,000 in the capital stock of the First State bank of Lincoln, bringing the total to $50,000 was announced Saturday by Henry Heiliger, president.

The bank, which was formerly located at Bethany moved to quarters in the Sharp building in November, 1928. Its capitalization at that time was $10,000.

A stockholders meeting and election of new directors will take place soon, Mr. Heiliger stated.

CHAMBER ASKS A LARGER FUND

Officials Say Is Needed To Keep Pace With Growing City.

In a letter sent to the entire membership last week the chamber of commerce stressed the need of a larger sustaining membership fund" to keep pace with the growing demands of a growing city." The fund now totals slightly more than $20,000.

"We must have $17,000 within the next few days," the letter says, "to pay the obligation which the chamber found necessary to assume in connection with bringing the veterans bureau hospital to Lincoln. We are told the institution will bring at least 200 families to the city as members of the staff and attendants at the hospital.

"There is the growing importance of Lincoln as a convention center. Add to this the good roads program which is costing the chamber $1,200 a year, and a new directory for the jobbing and manufacturing district.

"Money should be available to make Lincoln the center of aviation activities, including the manufacture of planes, establishment of schools of flying and to teach aviation to say nothing of the funds that are needed to establish new air lanes. These would embrace mail, passenger and express between Lincoln and the most important cities of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys.

"One of the most potent population catchers Lincoln has ever had is its fine system of schools, and institutions of higher education, especially the University of Nebraska and the creditable denominational colleges."

The letter also stresses the need of signs along the highway, and "Funds are needed to promote a campaign to make Lincoln the largest cattle feeding in transit point in the western territory. We believe 20,000 head of cattle can be brought to Lincoln annually for feeding from the western ranges and finished here for market to better advantage than anywhere else in the country."

"Funds also are needed to advance the importance of Lincoln as an insurance center." it is brought out. There are in the city thirty-three home insurance companies with general headquarters here, and as many more state agencies of outside companies.

The letter says these conditions must be met "because they are obligations the chamber cannot disregard without disaster to the interests of the city. The manner in which the membership of the chamber measures up to this responsibility is going to determine in a great measure the future development of the city."

The letters are signed by F. D. Eager, president; Stanley Maly, George L. Towne and John Agee, vice presidents, and Howard S. Wilson, treasurer. A folder outlining the program contemplated, is enclosed with the letter.

SPANISH FLIERS FETED

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Capt. Francisco Jimenez and Capt. Ignacio Iglesias, Spanish trans-Atlantic fliers who, flew here from Buenos Aires, were feted and acclaimed today. The airmen landed at 4:40 o'clock Friday afternoon, minus their mechanic who was left at Buenos Aires under arrest. He is alleged to have tampered with the mechanism of the plane, delaying the scheduled hop-off of the aviators from Thursday until Friday.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver 999—1292- E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Advertisement.

STOCKS ENJOY A BRISK RALLY

Active Issues Regain Most of Ground Lost in Early April.

Business Reviews for the Past Week Comment on Bright Outlook.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Recovery was the order in all financial markets this week. Released from the restraint of high money rates and persistent calling of loans by the banking institutions, the stock market enjoyed a brisk rally, which for most of the active stocks restored the bulk of the ground lost in early April. Bond prices moved upward, not only in the listed markets, but in the outside investment markets where the better grade of municipal and utility securities are sold. Business surveys showed an excellent operating record in the steel, copper and other industries and the outlook for American business as a whole is very bright.

Reports of first quarter operations show that the steel and automobile industries established new high records in daily output, as well as for weekly and monthly sales. The cotton goods industry equalled the best expectations and the three branches of retail trade, the chain stores, the mail order and the department stores, set up new high totals of sales for the period under review.

The third consecutive weekly shrinkage in brokers' loans, as reported on Thursday, brings the total $366,000,000 under that of the March peak, and this despite the fact that there has been a considerable volume of new financing through the stock and bond markets. Whether this meets the requirements and expectations of the reserve board is problematical, though it is generally believed that the board will be satisfied if speculative loans, so-called, do not reach a higher total than the one already recorded. The loaning rates for call and time money ruled at 9 per cent or fractionally less, which shows conclusively that there is no large supply of funds for stock market purposes.

Copper Price Drops.

The "readjustment" in copper prices, not unexpected in view of the recent sharp advances in the market for the red metal, brought copper back to 19½ cents a pound against the recent peak at 24 cents. This was no great hardship to the copper producers, who are in a position to make good profits at 17 cents a pound, which is more than 2 cents below this week's quotation.

The government's report on winter wheat for April shows condition as 82.7 per cent of normal, compared with 68.8 per cent last year, 84.5 per cent in 1927 and a ten-year April average of 80.9. This condition promises a crop of 581,000,000 bushels, against 579,000,000 bushels last year. The report shows less abandonment than usual with little loss in the Ohio valley, except in Illinois. Conditions on the Pacific coast are generally under the average. The rye crop is estimated at 44,000,000 bushels, against 41,788,000 harvested last year.

Of the eighty lines of business in New York City reporting to Bradstreet's this week, eight were better than last year, sixty-three were equal and nine below the record of a year ago. Two lines reported collections better than a year ago, while forty-nine were equal to a year ago and twenty-nine below a year ago. Commodity prices were firm.

Bradstreet's food index number for the week (the sum total, per pound, of thirty-one articles of food) is $3.43, against $3.44 last week and $3.31 for the corresponding week of 1928.

Bank clearings for the current week aggregated $12,098,648,000, an increase of 16.9 per cent over the corresponding week of 1928.

Wheat News Bullish.

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Wheat sold ½ to ¾c higher today, with active buying on bullish news from Washington regarding farm relief. Corn was ½c higher to ⅝c off with a mixed trade and oats ⅜c higher to ¼c lower.

For the week wheat was 5⅛ to 5⅝c higher, corn 3⅝ to 4c higher and oats 1⅜ to 2½c up.

Bearish news had little effect on wheat prices in the past week. Generally favorable weather conditions both in this country, Canada and abroad, along with a poor export demand, was more than offset by general buying on prospects of farm relief legislation. Reports from Washington indicating probable establishment of a $500,000,000 revolving fund for the purpose of handling the surplus crop also had its effect.

The wheat market displayed easiness at times with scattered selling, but oversold conditions quickly prevailed and short coverings as well as good support from strong commission houses prompted a rally.

The government placed the condition of winter wheat at 82.7 per cent, which is well above the ten year average and about 14 points above last year's condition.

Active buying featured trade in corn. The market showed more resistance to selling pressure than did wheat. The promise of farm relief legislation, smaller receipts and fairly active cash trade figured in the strong undertone of the market.

Livestock Trade Uneven.

CHICAGO, Apr. 13—(I. N. S.)—Unevenness featured trade in livestock this week. Hogs finished 15 to 25c lower for the week, good steers 25 to 40 higher, cows and heifrs 25s highr. Lambs droppd 25c.

Hog rceipts for the week were 105,000 against 118,000 last week and 108,000 a year ago. n spte of lighter receipts here and at eleven principal markets the trade was inclined to go slow. Dressed pork at eastern centers continued to sag and local snipments declined. The best hogs available sold at $11.65 late, with most of the 175-225 lb., butcher at $11.40 to $11.60. Heavy hogs cleared at $11.25 to $1.510.

The steer market was lower early, but losses were recovered in line with an active demand. Top during the week was $14.85, with more steers this season. Medium to good classes at $14 to $14.76 than at any time cashed at $13 to $14. Week's receipts numbered $39,000 against $35,500 last week and 40,500 a year ago.

Cows and heifers soared with steers. Cows sold at $7 to $10.50 and heifers ranged from $9 to $14.50. Week's receipts of calves were 23,000, largest of the year. Prices subsided $1 to $1.50, with sales late in the week at $12 to $15.50.

Sheep receipts were 68,000 against 67,000 last week and 50,000 a year ago. Trade was fairly active. Good to choice lambs closed at $17 to $17.75, with a few to yard trades at $17.75. Plain to medium lambs sold at packers at $16 to $17.

Chicago Cotton Advances.

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—After ruling uneven during the week's trade, cotton prices finished 12 to 20 points higher. Trading was limited. The run of news was mixed.

The Liverpool cotton market was consumption report for March was construed as bullish. Domestic mill consumer 632,808 ruinning bales of lint cotton during March, the report said, against 598,098 bales in February and 581,325 bales in March last year. Heekly government crop deport was favorable.

Today's final prices were unchanged to 5 points higher. May at $19.95; July, $20.00; Oct., $19.88; Dec., 19.95, and January, $19.94.

AIR TRAVEL POPULAR.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 13—(U. P.)—Increasing popularity of air travel from the Mexican border to Mexico City is seen in the announcement made here today by the Missouri Pacific lines of a new and faster passenger train schedule, effective April 21. The new schedule will make it possible to leave Houston, Tex., at 10:30 p. m., and eat lunch the following day in Mexico City.

Prof. Trager received his bachelor of literature degree from Rutgers in 1926 and will receive his master of arts degree from Columbia university this summer. His successor on the Midland faculty has not been named.

PIGMY HIPPO SAILS.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Among the prominent passengers sailing for Europe today aboard the Atlantic transport liner Minnewaska was "Libby," a pigmy hippopotamus, bound for the London zoological garden as a gift from the New York zoological society.

Rheumatism Overcome By Walking

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rids the wearer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 279 Lee St., McKenzie, Tenn., is so anxious to prove their statement that they are willing to send any suffer their liberal trial offer. Write them today.—Advertisement.

AUTO CLUB DRIVE TO BEGIN MONDAY

Annual Campaign For New Members Open To Everyone.

The Lincoln Auto club annual membership campaign will open Monday under direction of W. J. Kirkbride and W. A. Robbins. The campaign this year, will be on a little different basis than other years, for the reason that everyone is eligible to enter the mileage race, securing members for the club, and being rewarded for same.

The campaign will last until June 30, unless otherwise terminated or extended by the judges of the contest.

The Auto club is constantly extending its services for the motorists of the community and state. Members may receive A. A. A. service, over the entire state of Nebraska now. The Nebraska Motor club, with which the Lincoln Automobile club is affiliated, has over 200 service stations in Nebraska.

Hundreds of people daily are routed through the touring bureau of the Lincoln Automobile club. After rains, storms, snows, and bad road conditions, as high as 2,500 phone calls have been answered in a single day.

ITALIAN SEAPLANE DESTROYED

NAPLES, Italy, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Fire completely destroyed an Italian four-motored superwal seaplane today while anchored in the Bay of Naples. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The plane, similar in design to that which Com. Francisco de Pinedo made his four continent flight two years ago, was being used in air mail service in conjunction with the English-Indian air mail route, recently inaugurated.

Hawaii Urges Whipping Post to Control Crime

Women Foster Bill With Sever Penalty to tSamp Out Attacks on Minor Girls.

HONOLULU, April 13—(U. P.)—A bill providing that men guilty of rape or assault on minor girls shall be whipped in addition to imprisonment was introduced today in the lower house of the territorial legislature.

The bill was purely a woman-inspired measure. It was drafted and prepared for presentation by a committee of local women after a series of meetings held at the local Y. W. C. A.

Coming in the wake of a wave of indignation after a series of local sex crimes, it is generally conceded that the bill has more than an even chance of passage.

The bill, as drafted does not do away with any penalty now demanded by territorial law. The whipping would be in addition to all other punishment determined by the courts.

It is proposed under the terms of the measure, to mete out whippings in a definite schedule of a certain number of lashes for crimes of varying seriouness.

BORDER GUARDED BY LARGE ARMY AS FIGHT NEARS

Largest Mobilization of Troops Since Before World War.

Wyoming Regiment Ordered to Report Sunday at Bisbee, Ariz.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 13—(U. P.)—Parts of virtually every fighting branch of the United States army were encamped tonight along the Mexican border adjacent to Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, or were moving there to protect American lives and property from Mexican revolutionary activity.

Air corps, infantry, cavalry and artillery all were operating under "war" orders issued by Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, commander of the Eighth corps area, with headquarters at San Antonio.

The chemical warfare service and tank service are the only fighting branches not included in troop movement orders of the past ten days, but as they are services attached to the infantry they can technically be included in the nation's latest war gesture.

Troops now concentrated on the southern border represent the largest regular army troop movements since the period directly before the United States entered the World war.

Troops that were ordered to move Saturday to Bisbee, Ariz., a central point from which they can be hurled against any section of the southern frontier, were sent out from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, Friday, a day ahead of their schedule. This rush order was issued, General Lassiter said, because of a disturbing situation in the state of Sonora. The troops included the Twentieth infantry, and number approximately 2,500 or 3,000 men. The regiment was ordered to be at Bisbee by Sunday.

Concurrently with the order affecting the Twentieth infantry, General Lassiter instructed Brigadier General Moseley, a commander at Fort Bliss, Texas, to order one battery of the Eighty-second field artillery, which has been directed to Hachita, N. M., to proceed past that point to Don Luis, Ariz., a point half way between Naco, Ariz., and Hachita. The artillery battery, armed with four 75 millimeter guns, is expected to be ordered on to Naco to supplement infantry, cavalry and air corps forces already operating there, with Fort Huachuca, Ariz., as their base.

The entire Seventh cavalry stationed at Fort Bliss is now marching to Hachita, with the exception of one squadron which is already at Fort Huachuca and Naco. A part of the regular infantry and cavalry forces stationed at Fort Huachuca have been at Naco for the past several weeks, representing the first troop movement since that place became the center of the Mexican war theater.

The artillery and cavalry sent out of Fort Bliss number approximately 600 men. At Columbus, N. M., made famous by the raid of Pancho Villa, is the temporary station of Troop A of the Seventh cavalry under the command of Capt. A. J. Wynn of Fort Bliss. These troops are under orders to patrol sixty miles of the New Mexico border between Columbus and the Culbertson ranch, Hachita, N. M., is the central point for all the Seventh cavalry.

Only two points on the Texas border have so far been the destination for recent troop movements, St. Helena, Tex., and Presidio, Tex., both in the Big Bend country, are patrol headquarters for cavalry detachments sent from Camp Marfa, Tex. The first platoon of the first cavalry with two machine guns is at St. Helena, and Troop A of the same regiment has taken up station at Presidio.

PIPE ORGAN IS INSTALLED AT THE WADLOW MORTUARY

A Reproduco pipe organ designed particularly for mortuary service, has been installed at the Cecil E. Wadlow mortuary, 323 South Twelfth street.

Leading mortuaries in the larger cities of the country have taken this step to offer the beauty of organ music at funeral services, according to Mr. Wadlow. The organ possesses a tone of exceptional quality, due to added perfection in voicing the pipes. The Wadlow chapel is the first in Lincoln to be equipped with a pipe organ.

New Switchboard Cut In at Auburn Saturday Night

Telephone service over a new seven-position switchboard at Auburn was "cut in" at 1 o'clock Saturday night by the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company.

"Cutting in" of the service for local and long distance over the new board marks the final step in opening the new telephone company building at Auburn, recently completed.

The mayor of Auburn made the first call over long distance on the new system to J. H. Agee, general manager of Lincoln, to extend congratulations on behalf of citizens of Auburn.

The following officials of the company were on hand to superintend the opening of the new board: M. T. Caster, plant superintendent; J. Pugsley, installation foreman; F. E. Behm, assistant plant superintendent; C. C. Donley, traffic engineer, all of Lincoln; and R. H. Ojers, distribution manager, Nebraska City.

Says Adolescent Problem Greatest Facing Educators

"The greatest problem confronting educators is the reaching of a proper understanding with growing people during the ages of adolescence," declared E. W. Lantz, assistant professor of secondary education at the teachers college in a talk on "The Psychology of Adolescence" at the Saturday morning session of the scout seminary of representatives from Nebraska and western Iowa held at the Temple.

"Between the age of twelve and the time full maturity is reached the boy undergoes great changes," he said. As long as he is still a child and after he has become an adult other people show a readiness to understand him, but he loses contact with others during the adolescent period. "Parents cannot try too hard to bridge the gap with efforts for an understanding," he declared.

W. H. Morton, principal of the Teachers college high school, spoke on "The Home, Community and Scouting." He told how students who were one-sided in their interests would be brought to a balance better through a continuation of their strong interest than by abandoning it in favor of something else. A student enthusiastic about music can be made interested in other fields by showing him the necessity of being well rounded to succeed in anything, he said.

Following a noon luncheon at the Cornhusker hotel, Dr. J. E. M. Thomson, president of the Cornhusker area, made a short talk. F. C. Woolworth talked on "Committees That Function," showed some research reports and led a group discussion.

H. C. Koch, professor of secondary education at the Teachers college, spoke on "How to Prepare a Thesis" in the concluding talk of the afternoon. A round table discussion followed and the seminar adjourned.

Escape From Jail at Holdrege

HARRY DUNN.

Former inmates of the state reformatory who escaped Friday night from the Phelps county jail at Holdrege where they were being held for trial on a charge of robbery with firearms. It is believed that someone smashed a window and stole the cell key from the place where it had been hidden by Sheriff Hanson and released the pair. The men's wives are thought to have fled with them in an automobile according to State Sheriff Condit. The men served time in the reformatory after being convicted and sentenced to a term of two years in Gosper county on a breaking and entering charge.

SOLONS TO HEAR AIMEE PREACH A SUNDAY SERMON

Plans Service While Waiting to Testify for Judge Hardy.

Legislators in Quarrel Over Whether to Put Her on Stand.

STATE CAPITOL, Sacramento, Cal., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Aimee Semple McPherson will make her first public appearance since coming here as a witness in the Hardy impeachment trial Sunday afternoon, but not in the role for which she has been cast by the state of California.

Kept from her pulpit in Los Angeles by her required daily attendance here while waiting her turn to take the witness stand, Mrs. McPherson decided to make the best of it by preaching to the senators who are trying her friend, Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy.

Members of both houses of the legislature were, along with the rest of the public, invited to hear the evangelist, who promised that no mention of the Hardy trial would be made in her sermon.

Judge Hardy, who, in years gone by was a familiar figure both in the pews and on the rostrum of Angelus temple, indicated he and his son, Rex Hardy, would go to hear the evangelist preach tomorrow.

Anticipating a good sized attendance, Mrs. McPherson has obtained permission to hold her services in the city auditorium, with seats for 8,000 persons.

City ordinances forbid the charging of admission where free use of the auditorium is granted, but there is nothing to prevent the evangelist from taking a "love offering."

"I have never missed preaching on Sunday in years," Mrs. McPherson explained as she hurried arrangements for the revival, "so, on the spur of the moment I decided on this meeting tomorrow."

Anticipate Huge Crowd.

Hearing about this, City Manager K. A. Klugel immediately ordered a special police detail on duty at the auditorium Sunday afternoon to prevent a possible stampede of spectators who have vainly been trying to crash the gates of the senate chamber in hopes of seeing the comely evangelist.

Dissension in the assembly board of managers, prosecutors of the Judge Hardy impeachment case, blazed into the open here today, with the members frankly at loggerheads on the question of whether Mrs. McPherson shall be placed on the stand as a state witness.

The long-smouldering row over "Aimee's testimony," considered vital by one faction and futile by the other, broke wide open today when Assemblyman William Hornblower, one of the San Francisco prosecutors, announced he was vigorously opposed to calling the evangelist as a witness.

"I am absolutely opposed to putting Mrs. McPherson on the stand," Hornblower said today. "We don't need her testimony and in my opinion it would be a serious mistake if we took up the court's time by a new recital of her much-told kidnaping story.

"Mrs. McPherson, when she takes the stand, remembers nothing about the entries in the Angelus temple books. She remembers nothing of the financial affairs of the temple.

"All she does remember is that she gave Judge Hardy a $2,500 'love offering' out of the kindness of her heart and purely as a gesture of friendship.

Says Trial Not a Show.

"And I don't propose to have her on the witness chair merely for the sake of the spectacle. This is a court trial and not a show dramatizing Aimee's personality."

Assemblyman Walter Little of Los Angeles, on the other hand, is declared to be strongly in favor of calling the woman evangelist and examining her closely as to the type of services that Judge Hardy performed for Angelus temple.

The senate court of impeachment was in adjournment today over the week-end. Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seilaff, mystery woman in the "Miss X" episode of the McPherson disappearance, who told a sensational story yesterday of her connection with the case, was to be rigidly cross-examined next week by counsel for Judge Hardy.

CRETE EDITOR HAS OPERATION HERE

(Special to the Star.)

Uldrich Convicted In Trial at Wilber

First Criminal Case Tried in New Saline County Court House Ends Saturday.

(Special to the Star.)

Wilber, Neb., April 13—The first case tried in the new Saline county court house ended Saturday in the conviction of Albert Uldrich on a charge of adultery. The case went given to the jury at 11 o'clock Sato trial Friday morning and was urday morning. The jurors deliberated but two hours.

The complaint was brought by Minnie Brunkow, wife of Erich Brunkow and the mother of three children. The Brunkows and Uldrichs live on farms about a mile and a half apart near Tobias. The alleged offense occurred September 24, 1928. Uldrich denied guilt and offered an alibi as his principal defense.

District Judge Proudfit will sentence Uldrich Tuesday. County Attorney T. J. Dredla prosecuted the case and the defendant was represented by John Hartigan of Fairbur-

MARCH MERCURY ABOVE NORMAL

Crops in "Fairly Good" Condition Despite Lack of Moisture.

March, 1929, averaged warmer than normal, with deficient precipitation, wind movement, relative humidity, and cloudiness, and practically normal sunshine, according to the monthly report of the Lincoln weather bureau.

"At the beginning of the month the condition of winter wheat was uncertain in many localities, due to cold weather and insufficient snow cover during February. As the month advanced, however, the crop was found to be in fairly good condition, except in some south central counties, where many fields were abandoned. In this territory considerable alfalfa and sweet clover were also winter killed. Both winter wheat and fall sown rye began growth during the last week and generally appeared in fairly good to very good condition. The ground was frozen to a greater depth than usual during the winter but by the end of the second decade frost was well out of the ground and during the last decade considerable plowing and disking were accomplished with soil in excellent condition, except in the south, where moisture was needed. Seeding of spring wheat and oats and potato planting made a good start in the south and were starting locally in other parts of the state. Stock came through the winter in good condition. Ice in rivers began moving mostly between the twelfth and fourteenth, and due to unusual thickness, gorges were numerous and there was considerable local flooding and a number of bridges were damaged.

"The monthly mean temperature averaged 40.5 degrees or 4.9 degrees above normal, all parts of the state being warmer than normal. The daily mean temperature since January 1 this year averaged 2.49 degrees and for the same period last year averaged 33.6 degrees, the normal being 27.5 degrees. The first and third decades averaged more than 4 degrees above normal and the second decade was still warmer, averaging about 9 degrees above. Except for short periods daily temperatures were persistently above normal maximum temperatures for the month ranging from 64 degrees to 83 degrees and were recorded on the 10th, 20th, 27th, or 29th. Monthly minimum temperatures were between 2 degrees and 21 degrees and were recorded generally on the first and ninth.

"The total precipitation for the month was .80 inch, or 73 per cent of normal. The snowfall was 5.4 ly one-half the monthly precipitainches, and constituted approximation. Light scattered rain or snow fell at widely scattered points during the first five days and general storm prevailed on the 11-15th, 21st-24th, and 30th-31st. During the remainder of the month no precipitation of consequence was recorded. Monthly totals ranged from no measurable amount in areas along the southern border to more than two inches fell over northern counties west of Holt county, while less than one-quarter inch was recorded over about a third of the state, comprising central and southcentral counties. The total precipitation since January 1 this year is 2.18 inches, and for the same three months last year was 2.07 inches. The normal precipitation for this period is 2.37 inches."

THREE PROMINENT SPEAKERS SECURED

Will Address Meetings When Social Science Groups and Academy of Science Convene In May.

State organizations of the social sciences, history and geography will meet at the same time as the Nebraska Academy of Science in Lincoln, May 3 and 4. Several general sessions have been arranged in addition to the special group meetings.

Three prominent speakers from outside of the state have been obtained. These meetings, and the group sessions, will be attended by professors from all colleges in the state and by high school teachers. The speakers will be Dr. W. T. Root, head of the history department, University of Iowa; Dr. Dayton C. Miller, head of the department of physics, Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio; and Dr. W. Elmer Ekblaw, professor of geography at Clark university, Worcester, Mass.

Dr. Ekblaw is ranked as one of the foremost authorities on polar geography and has published extensively in that field, according to Dr. N. A. Bengston of the University of Nebraska, who is in charge of arrangements for the combined social sciences meetings. He was in charge of the scientific work of the Crocker Land expedition of 1913-17, spending four years living among the people farthest north and conducting geographic explorations in that area.

Dr. Ekblaw will give two talks to the general meetings, "The Land and Life of the Polar Eskimo," and "The Arctic Sledge Trail Beyond the Northern Lights."

ANNOUNCING

A new 8-cylinder V-type car at medium price . . .

The VIKING

THIS WEEK General Motors presents an entirely new automobile.

It is the Viking.

It is an 8-cylinder car, of 125-inch wheel base, with Bodies by Fisher.

Its price is $1,595 at the factory.

It is built in the Oldsmobile factories and sold through Oldsmobile dealers.

* * * * *

Details will be given in the coming advertisements of the Viking. The purpose of this message is to tell briefly why and how General Motors has produced this new car.

There has been a public demand for an 8-cylinder car of General Motors quality in the medium price field. As far back as three years ago the first steps were taken to fill it.

The Oldsmobile organization was selected to create the new car. At its disposal were placed the Research Laboratories, the Proving Ground, Fisher Body, the Art and Color Section—every resource for development and test.

The Oldsmobile staff approached the task with an Open Mind. Its engineers literally started from scratch; they were not committed to any design. By the most grueling of tests, every phase of performance was checked and compared—General Motors requiring only that the ultimate result meet its standard of quality and maximum value—and the 90-degree V-type 8-cylinder engine won its place under the Viking's hood.

The bodies of the Viking were designed by Fisher, whose craftsmen sought distinction along the most difficult path: the achievement of beauty and elegance through simple lines.

General Motors is proud of the Viking and acknowledges the generous public patronage which has made it possible to offer a new car of such quality at medium price.

* * * * *

The General Motors lines now include 90 passenger car models, ranging in price-at-factory from $525 to $7000. They are as diversified as to types of mechanical design and body styles as human tastes and pocketbooks. But all are of General Motors quality; all have Bodies by Fisher; all give maximum value for your automobile dollar, whether you buy for cash, or on time, or use your present car as part payment.

The Viking is now on display in the showrooms of Oldsmobile dealers

ESCOBAR SEEKS MEXICAN PORT

Rebel Commander Says Mexican Revolution Just Starting.

Insurgents Believed Hastening to Guaymas By Motor Trucks.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 13—(I. N. S.)—A race for the important Sonora port of Guaymas was believed on today.

Under a screen of massing his forces for an attack on Naco, Sonora, Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, supreme commander of the Mexican revolution was believed hastening the pick of his forces from Chihuahua and eastern Sonora to Guaymas by motor trucks.

And federals were reported making every effort to press north from Sinaloa to Guaymas. It was reported that finding rails and bridges torn up north of Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, where Gen. Plutarco Calles now has his headquarters, the federals have commanded ships at Mazatlan to transport their forces to Guaymas.

With two of the leading figures in the revolution already across the border, observers here would not be surprised to see others seek refuge in the United States. Gilberto Valenzuela, presidential candidate and said to have been one of the prime movers in the revolutionary movement, and Gen. Francisco Manzo who commanded the futile rebel campaign in Sinaloa ending in failure to capture Mazatlan, were the two leaders who sought refuge here. Mano, in all health, was expected to leave as soon as possible for Rochester, Minn., while Venezuela was said to plan to make his home in Los Angeles.

Revolt Just Starting.

Indicating that struggle will be waged, however, before the revolution is over, General Escobar told International News Service in Nogales, Sonora, that the "revolution is just starting, not ending."

Revolutionary leaders were considerably cheered by a report that a German munition ship has reached Guaymas. Escobar blamed failure of his Chihuahua campaign on lack of ammunition.

It is believed here that the rebel forces outside the concentrations at Agua Prieta and Minaroa in the Guaymas in southern Sonora will vicinity of Naco and Navajoa and be broken up into small guerrilla bands.

positors who placed their money in banks after they had been taken over by the state," said Mr. Sorensen. "I'm sure that the legislature will appropriate for this purpose and such depositors will be paid before the first of July."

A League Question.

There is a legal question as to whether the state as a whole can be taxed to pay depositors who placed their money in institutions before they were closed, he stated. Lawyers are about equally divided as to whether the court would sustain such appropriations, Mr. Sorensen thinks. An assuredly legitimate appropriation, however, he thinks, is for the state to pay the expenses of the guaranty fund commission. This would return about $3,000,000 which has been taken out of the fund.

The proposition for a constitutional amendment to permit the state to appropriate for the remainder of the deficit will do two things Mr. Sorensen thinks. It will tell whether the people want the state to pay and it will remove the legal objections to making such appropriations.

A few of the state bankers have exaggerated the facts about the condition of the banks, Mr. Sorensen declared, in order to help win their lawsuit combating the assessments and to help convince the legislature they need relief.

"The state banks at the present time are in better condition than at any time during the past seven or eight years," he stated. "They are making more money now than they have for several years. The reserves have gone up from 6 per cent to 35 per cent. In general the state banks are sound and getting out of trouble."

Guaranty Good Thing.

Retention of the guaranty fund law will be the best possible thing for the banks themselves as well as for the depositors, he maintained. The assessments could be carried without difficulty, he declared, and added that it was a mistake to judge the operation of the system over just a few years but that instead a period of 25 or 50 years must be cisidered.

Since bankers got concessions from the legislature and advertised that deposits were guaranteed, Mr. Sorensen declared that the few banks which are agitating for repeal are not good sports.

Senator Wherry devoted his talk largely to discussing the legislation now being considered.

"If every depositor got nothing else from this meeting it was worth the price of the visit for him to hear Governor Weaver say, 'You may be sure if we don't get anything better out of the legislature we'll keep what we have now,'" stated Wherry.

Underhanded indirect repeal of the guaranty law is the worst danger said the senator. He pointed out that to repeal or weaken the law means to violate pledges of both parties and declared that this action will harm bankers and businessmen as well as bank depositors.

"The people must insist that the deficit is paid first," stated Mr. Wherry, "Then, if they must, they can repeal the guaranty law. But to change the act now may mean releasing bankers from their obligations."

Strangles Husband To Death With His Tie During Qurarel

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Grasping her 50-year-old husband's necktie, during a domestic argument, Mrs. Clara Fischer tonight strangled him to death, according to her confession to Town Hall police.

The couple had been alienated for some time and reunited only recently, Mrs. Fischer told police.

"He made as though he was going to hit me," she sobbed to police.

"I grabbed at his neck, got hold of his tie and started to twist it. Before I realized what was happening he was dead."

In Liquor Scandal

committees on this bill nearly two weeks ago, Mr. Burke was given two associates from the house who declined to back him up in the demand that several of the senate's amendments be rejected. The other two house conferees, Messrs. Baily and Spencer, lined up with the three senators by signing a report which recommends acceptance of virtually all senate amendments.

Burke does not purpose to let this anti-Weaver contingent walk over him in this fashion, and he will fight the report when it comes back to the house. Since the membership of the lower chamber is generally favorable to the governor's program, an interesting time is looked for when the question comes to a head.

The particular things the senate did that Burke objects to, which are also displeasing to Governor Weaver are these:

1. Elimination of advisory legislative committee, comprising three house members and two senators, to assist the governor and the attorney general in the investigation.

2. Striking out the provision for legislative confirmation of the governor's appointee as chief examiner to conduct the investigation.

3. Striking out the provision for keeping secret the names of persons giving confidential information or "tips" regarding bank matters, who are not themselves involved in irregularities and would not be subject to prosecution therefor.

Code Reform in the Offing.

The next two or three days will also reveal how far the "battalion of death" in the state senate is ready to go in its opposition to Governor Weaver's main code repeal and reorganization bill, H. R. 425. At th's time, the measure is in the hands of a committee headed by Senator Jim Rodman of Omaha, who is hostile to it, with Senator Perry Reed, the head and front of the code brigade, as his chief lieutenant. Unless other members of the committee take matters into their own hands, little old 425 may have a hard time getting out to a place on general file.

And even if the committee votes to put it out, the bill must still run the gauntlet of the senate itself, where the old guard of the death battalion will be lined up to resist its passage.

Two other bills of the governor's series, H. R. 466 and 476, consolidating the administration of fish and game, state parks, and forestation in the hands of a special commission appointed by the governor, have good chances of passage in the senate, thanks to a lot of work done in their behalf by officials of the Izaak Walton league.

In the house, the Warner senate bill, S. F. 78, transferring gasoline tax collection to the state treasurer, is on general file and will be reached in its regular turn within two or three days, if not moved ahead as a special order. The opposition delayed its progress as long as possible, but could not prevent its coming to a vote. The outlook is good for this bill to become a law.

Appropriations eGt Attention

The finance committee of the senate spent Saturday going over H. R. 280, the general budget bill for the next fiscal biennium, and hearing spokesmen from different departments, institutions, and activities. tI may do some more work Sunday. The chairman, Senator Reed, thinks the committee will be able to turn the bill back to the senate reasonably early in the week. In that case it may pass the upper chamber by Wednesday, after which conference committees will be appointed by both chambers to look it over together and compromise points on which the two chambers differed.

A report was heard Saturday that the senate finance group might cut down some of the large items in the bill as it came from the house; but no confirmation of this was obtainable from the members.

Monday will be the 77th day in the house and the 70th in the senate. At least six more days are to be added before the windup, since both branches will reconvene Monday and work through to and including Saturday. The house will meet at 9 a. m. and the senate at 10 a. m. Monday.

FLIERS KILLED IN AIR CIRCUS

troit hospital this evening to be extremely critical.

Kreider's body was almost unrecognizable when it was taken from the tangled mass of wreckage.

Charles S. "Speed" Holman, president of the Northwestern airways was stunting in the air at the time of the crash and the attention of the greater part of the crowd of 8,000 spectators was focused on him. It was not until the sharp crack of the impact of the two planes that the crowd became aware of the accident.

Mrs. Lindbergh Unperturbed.

DETROIT, Mich., April 13—(U. P.)—The air crash in which one man was killed and two seriously injured did not prevent Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, from taking off in a twenty-passenger plane for a pleasure flight. She showed no nervousness desiite great excitement at the field after two planes collided and fell to the ground.

DEBENTURE PLAN IN AID MEASURE IS TURNED DOWN

revolving fund to operate stabilization corporations and aid farmers in marketing their crops.

President Hoover will be authorized to appoint the board members, who will be confirmed by the senate.

Authority to loan co-operative organizations money in advance of their crop harvest probably will be given the board by the legislation. Stabilization corporations also will be able to borrow funds direct from the board.

An Insurance Provision.

A new insurance provision, empowering the board to sell insurance to co-operatives against loss of their crops from the revolving fund is included in the bill.

Other features of the long awaited measure include power for the board to designate commodities to come under the provisions of the farm relief bill, authority to make the board's ruling final in all matters under its consideration, and authority to establish advisory councils to advise the board on various commodities.

The committee took stens to protect the American consumers, however, by inserting a clause in the bill prohibiting stabilizations corporations to withhold commodities from the market if prices have become so high the public is unduly burdened.

Committee members said an appropriation of about $1,000,000 would be made available by the special session for starting the work of the board and that the remainder would be made available as soon as needed.

ADVICE OFFERED LINDY BY HOWE

Pershing, Lloyd George and other outstanding personalities of modern times.

"Surely this is not asking too much of this remarkable young man, who has achieved so extraordinarily. If Lindbergh will follow the examples of those of his elders, who also have tasted fame, the present incident will be speedily and completely forgotten."

Howe said that regardless of what Lindbergh may say or think, if he were to be ignored by the press, he would become the unhappiest man in the world.

Called Lindy "Swell Head."

It was Howe, as editor of the Amarillo News-Globe, who several months ago publicly accused the famous flier of having the "swell head," but later healed that over with an explanation from the colonel.

"Since I accused Lindbergh of having the swell head about a year ago, I have received hundreds of letters from newspaper men who complained of the treatment they had received at his hands.

"They declared they were prohibited from expressing their opinions because of the business offices of the newspapers which employed them.

"I received no later than last week a letter from one of the most prominent editors in the east and he stated that Lindbergh was the most unpopular celebrity with whom the reporters and cameramen have to deal.

"I must say that personally I have no reason for complaint. I gave Lindbergh both barrels because of his actions when he visited Amarillo for the first time. He was rude and sullen to small boys who rushed up to see him at Clovis, which is near Amarillo.

"Twenty thousand people waited all day hoping to see him, as his manager had announced he would stop at Clovis.

"Lindbergh later returned to Amarillo and in a statement said that he 'probably was to blame,' and that he held no hard feelings toward me or anyone in Amarillo.

"He said he did not know that he was supposed to stop at Clovis and expressed regret. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to apologize fully and completely.

"I did not apologize because of the storm of criticism with which I was deluged from all parts of the country."

Claim Mud Was Thrown.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(U. P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was advised today in an editorial in the Washington Daily News to bear bravely the cross of being heroworshipped by millions of people.

The newspaper pledged itself "that we will never join the mob that appears to be forming to tear him from his pedestal."

"The 'phone has been ringing fairly constantly since yesterday afternoon and our readers want to know whether or not we intend to tell that young smart aleck where he gets off," The Daily News editorial said.

"The inquiries relate to a thing Lindbergh did yesterday afternoon at Bolling field. It seems he expressed his steadily growing disdain for the crowds that wait to worship him by manipulating his machine to throw mud. He splashed reporters, photographers and women tourists impartially, so it is told, in what seemed to be an unbridled expression of impatience.

"Well, we'd like to tell the boy where he gets off, but we doubt that it would serve any good purpose," the paper said.

THOUSANDS OF REBELS OFFER TO SURRENDER

sul to warn General Rabatte that if the rebels continued to resist the federal advance they would be punished relentlessly until complete peace and order was restored in the state of Sonora. Genefal Rabatte is head of the troops at Nogales.

The report of the surrender offer was regarded here as the virtual end of the revolution. Extra editions containing accounts of Porte. Gil's telephone communication were rushed to the streets and great excitement prevailed.

Agua Prieta Bombed.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Three federal airplanes dropped six bombs on Agua Prieta, opposite this city in Mexico, at 7 o'clock tonight, according to reports here. Agua Prieta is held by rebel forces. No serious damages or casualties were reported.

COUNT GOTO DEAD

TOKYO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Count Goto, former foreign minister of Japan, died today at Kyoto, aged 73. He had a long public career and national honors will be paid at his funeral.

Farm Relief—Liquor—Hoover On Grid For Press Roasting

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—"Hoover efficiency" and the policies of the new administration were taken down, brushed up and dissected at the dinner of the Gridiron club tonight while the president, members of his cabinet and many other distinguished guests looked on.

In song and skit, the famous dining club of Washington correspondents satired and burlesqued everything from prohibition to farm relief, from southern patronage squabbles to international affairs.

In addition to the president and the cabinet, the guest list included many members of the diplomatic corps, Chief Justice William Howard Taft, Governor Roosevelt of New York, Governor Byrd of Virginia, Governor-elect Kohler of Wisconsin, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, senators, representatives and others.

The dinner opened with a tremendous crash off stage.

"Great heavens, what was that?" inquired President Roberts, to which a member replied:

"Mr. President, you may think that was just the usual crash to open a gridiron dinner, but it wasn't. That was just Mr. Hoover conserving another Coolidge policy."

Solon "Drops Baggage."

Almost immediately there was a second crash, which turned out to have been caused "by a congressman dropping his baggage getting off a boat."

The machine-like precision of the new administration and its domination by the first engineer since George Washington was revealed when a large and complicated machine was trundled on stage, surrounded by members posing as cabinet members. The cabinet officers dropped their recommendations into the hopper and the Hoover policies came out below after the machine had whirred noisily for a few minutes.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon dropped in a recommendation against publicity for tax refunds. The answer came out below that there would be full publicity for income tax refunds. Senator Borah tried his luck at formulating a policy against going into the World court, but the machine whirred against him.

President Hoover's predilection for fishing was satirized in another skit wherein the music committee appeared dressed as fishermen. It was explained that this was "a fisherman's administration."

1932 Is Mentioned.

"He (Hoover) fished for the nomination for eight years and got it. He fished for the election for five months and he got it. Give him two more months in the white house and you'll see him throw out a hook baited for a fish called 1932," explained one member.

"But think of a fisherman banning the most famous of all fishing expressions," interjected one member.

"What is that?"

"Please pass the flask."

The "Gridiron Theater guild," presented an up-to-the-minute version of "Strange Interlude." The action revolved around a tragic episode of companionate marriage between "Pa McNary" and "Ma Haugen," with "Aggie, the beautiful farm relief girl." A hired girl and Dr. Hubert Work, completed the cast.

Pa McNary and Ma Haugen split over the question of having Aggie's equalization fee cut out.

Ma Haugen refused to let Dr. Work proceed with the operation and Pa McNary cast her off.

Can't Bear the Name.

"It's just a matter of scientific birth control, Madam," said Dr. Work. "Aggie's going to have a little sister and her name ain't going to be McNary-Haugen. Uncle Herbert just can't bear that name."

After Ma Haugen had taken her offspring and departed, Dr. Work jointed Pa McNary in companionate union with the hired girl, who turned out to be Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey. They were cautioned to have no little equalization fee.

A group of California "Forty-niners" was shown whooping things up in Washington in celebration of a Californian being in the white house. They declared their intention of backing Hoover at every turn, but at that point the "Twenty-niners," club members dressed in gingham dresses, rushed on the stage and told the "Forty-niners" to be on their way because the women were now running things in Washington.

After the "Forty-niners" had been told there was to be "no likker" no gambling, no shooting, and no vice," and that the women were even planning a law against golf, the "Forty-niners" wouldn't wait for a train to get out, but started back west my "airyplane," to the tune of "California, Here We Come."

Curtis in Spotlight.

Vice President Curtis' Indian ancestry was the vehicle of a musical number presenting "The Private Life of Curtis of Kansas, the Kaw Man." It was explained that, although a former jockey, the vice president never bet on the races. His connection with the tracy was "all in the spirit of the great outdoors and the Boy Scouts."

A club member impersonated Col. W. J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general, who said he had received a new decoration "The Order of the Boot."

Another skit pictured the extra session of congress dragging along in August, with members in linen suits. Everybody objected so much to everything that was proposed that finally "Senator Watson," the republican leader, having learned that a load of diplomatic liquor had been seized in front of the capitol, proposed a recess and it was carried with a whoop.

An old time bar was set up on the stage to provide the background for a humorous soliloquy on the Jones law and prohibition in general.

Speeches were made at the dinner by President Hoover, Chief Justice Taft and Governor Roosevelt. Following custom they were not reported.

HOOVER FACES HIS FIRST TEST

of the Harding administration, the democrats can make things exceedingly unpleasant for the administration if they choose to do so.

The new congress assembles to find most of the ground work already laid in farm relief and tariff revision. The hearings have all been held, and the subject matter reduced to writing.

There are two farm bills, senate and house, differing somewhat in detail and application, but both following the broad outlines of the republican platform and the Hoover campaign speeches on the subject. The adjustment of differences will take long and tedious debate and conference.

There is but one tariff bill. It has not yet been completed, but is expected to be in fairly complete form by the last of next week. The extent of the revision to be attempted has not been divulged as yet. Mr. Hoover wants it limited to benefiting those industries which, like textiles, have not shared equitably in the distribution of prosperity.

May Upset Apple Cart.

It has been the experience of recent tariff bills, however, that once congress gets started tinkering with the tariff no one knows where it may end. The you-scratch-my-back-and I'll scratch your's feeling that pervades the floor when it comes to voting on specific schedules has upset the apple cart before. It may do it again.

Congress assembles Monday, but it won't really get down to work until the last of the week. With characteristic lassitude, they will convene at noon Monday and adjourn immediately after informing President Hoover that they are in session. Tuesday they will meet again at noon, hear President Hoover's message and adjourn so that everybody can go to the opening ball game of the season. Wednesday they'll meet again and it is probable the farm bills will be introduced, with adjournment immediately following to give members a chance to study them.

There will be many new faces in the new congress—the result of last November's whirlwind—and new leadership. In the senate, the veteran Watson of Indiana makes his bow as republican leader. In the house the pugnacious Garner of Texas becomes the democratic leader.

Women's Influence Grows.

The growing influence of women in politics is exemplified in the house, which will have eight feminine members—Mrs. Kahn, republican, California; Mrs. Rogers, republican, Massachusetts; Mrs. Norton, democrat, New Jersey; Mrs. Oldsfield, republican, Arkansas; Mrs. Langley, republican, Kentucky, and the "three Ruths," Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican, Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, democrat, Florida, and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, republican, New York.

A negro, Oscar De Priest, of Illinois, takes his seat in the house, marking the first time in more than a quarter of a century that one of his race has been seen there.

The duration of the session is a matter of pure speculation. The leaders are optimistic enough to think they can get away by mid-June or July 1 at the latest, but a good many veteran observers believe that the dog days of August may find congress in its shirt sleeves and berating Washington heat.

Editor's Note: On the eve of the special session of congress, republican and democratic leaders were in disagreement over the program. Administration spokesman insisted the program should be limited to farm relief and tariff revision. Democratic spokesman declared the congress would have to consider other legislation. In the accompanying articles, International News Service presents the views of the republican and democratic leaders of the senate:

BY SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON, (IND.)
(Republican Leader of the Senate)

WASHINGTON, April 13—In his campaign for election Mr. Hoover promised to call a special session of congress for the purpose of considering farm legislation, particularly, unless the short session which began last December gave favorable consideration to that subject. This did not occur and, in order to keep his promise to the people, the president has called congress in special session.

The senate is a continuing body, its committees already are in existence, and there is no way to prevent the introduction and reference of bills for consideration by those committees; and yet it is both hoped and desired that but few bills will be given consideration in the senate aside from those having reference to farm relief and tariff revision.

It may be considered desirable to pass a reapportionment bill, also one providing for the taking of the census of 1930, but, following the wish of the president, it will be the general policy of the majority party in the senate to refrain from pressing other measures for consideration.

It is not believed that the farm bill will occupy the attention of the senate for any great length of time and, because of the present friendly attitude of a majority of democratic senators toward a protective tariff, that measure is not likely to require as much time for consideration in that body as hitherto.

The regular session of congress will begin in December and it is not now believed that there is any other legislation of an emergent character that will require action at the extraordinary session.

By SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON, (Arkansas).
(Democratic Leader of the Senate)

WASHINGTON, April 13—The constitution authorizes no limitation on subjects which may be considered by either or both houses of the congress during an extraordinary session. Action on farm relief legislation and tariff revision, bills relating to flood control on tributaries o fthe Mississippi, census, reapportionment and the policy of the federal reserve board toward transactions on the stock exchange are certain to receive consideration.

Any tariff revision likely to occur at this time will probably prove more harmful than beneficial to farmers. Protective tariffs as a general rule are oppressive to the growers of agricultural products. All the evidence points toward general revision upward, which will augment the burden now borne by farmers in the United States. The effort to make "privilege" or "special favors" under tariff laws applicable to business and citizens will fail.

It would be interesting and it might be helpful if the president would state his views respecting the details of the administration measure for farm relief, and perhaps this will be done in his message to the congress.

If general tariff revision is undertaken the session cannot terminate before late summer. It is absurd to anticipate a quick consummation of such a prodigious task.

BUTTE ENJOYS A BOOM.

BUTTE, Mont., April 13.—(U. P.)—With fourteen individual mining companies in full operation in the Butte district, this mining camp s witnessing the most active business it has seen since the war. This is the largest number of mines ever operated in Butte, including the period previous to the amalgamation of the "Hill" mines and Heinze properties by the Anaconda Copper Mining Co.

ASSESSMENT ON BANKS NOW DUE BUT NOT MADE

ahead with another special assessment now, for the year 1929, unless enjoined a second time by a new legal proceeding on the part of the banks. Up to this time, however, State Commerce Secretary Bliss, in charge of the state banking administration, has made no move in that direction or indicated whether he purposes to do so.

Only Short Time Left.

If anything is going to be done about making a special assessment under the present law it must be done soon or not at all—that is, if the legislature should enact and the governor sign the senate substitute bills for H. R. 299 and H. R. 382. These bills now carry the emergency clause, so that if passed and signed they will go into effect at once.

The minute they are put into force the old guaranty law will be superseded, and no further special assessments can be made under its provisions. The two measures now pending do away with all special assessments.

It has been customary heretofore to divide the yearly special assessment of one-half of 1 per cent into two equal parts, collecting the first half installment about April 1 and the other about October 1. There is no legal impediment in the way of making the entire special levy at one time, however.

Omitting a special assessment for 1929, at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on approximately $250,000,000 of deposits in solvent state banks, would deprive the guaranty fund of $1,250,000 that they would otherwise have to pay into the fund, assuming of course that the guaranty law is held constitutional and valid by the courts.

Under the terms of H. R. 299 and H. R. 382, regular assessments only are to be collected in future, each January 1 and July 1. Together, these assessments will amount to one-half of 1 per cent each year, or one-fourth of 1 per cent as the proceeds of each semi-annual period.

Would Curtail 1929 Revenue.

Should they become effective before any special assessment were made under the old guaranty law, there could be no other assessments during the remainder of 1929 except those for the date of July 1—three-twentieths of 1 per cent to apply on the existing deficit and two-twentieths to meet current losses of this year.

The total income for the rest of 1929 would thereby be reduced to a total of $625,000 for both purposes, compared with $1,250,000 which would be realized from a special assessment right now—a difference of $625,000 in favor of the special assessment, if made and sustained by the courts.

Another point not to be overlooked is that some state banks may nationalize in the near future, and no assessments could thereafter be collected from them. However, they would be liable under a special assessment made while they are still operating under state charters.

The pending bills which have just been passed by the senate will come before the house Monday on the question of obtaining its concurrence in the senate's amendments. Conference committees will doubtless be named to consider their new features. As soon as the two branches agree on the form of the legislation, if they can and do agree, it will be sent to Governor Weaver.

A permanent reduction of $250,000 a year in assessments on the banks will result from these enactments, since the combined total is lowered from six-tenths of 1 per cent in the old law to five-tenths of 1 per cent in the new measures.

GERMANS ARE STAGGERED BY DEBT OFFER

The Germans had wanted to start the annuities to about $300,000,000 and have them run for only thirty-seven years.

Members of the various delegations made no effort to hide the fact that the conference had reached its crisis and will certainly break up next week unless the Germans show a disposition to reconcile their offer with the vastly greater demands of the allies.

Dawes Plan Would Continue.

In that case the Dawes plan, under which the Germans are now paying $625,000,000 a year for an unspecified number of years, would be continued.

Germany asked for the present conference, but really has never made an official offer, although a German offer is standing "under the table," by which Germany would pay annuities varying from 1,200,000,000 gold marks, ($285,600,000) to 2 billion marks ($476,000,000) over thirty-seven years.

The French press was critical today of the experts' action, pointing out that despite the repeated statement that the allies intended forcing Germany to make an offer, they have really made an offer themselves, putting Germany in the more favorable position of accepting, refusing or countering with a greatly reduced total.

Frisco Judge Sets Lenient Precedent For New Jones Law

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Granting to San Francisco's first bootlegger sentenced under the drastic new Jones act, Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, dean of government jurists here, issued a statement in which he recommends paroles for first offenders and the use of discretion in enforcing the rigid penalties of the new federal statute.

George A. Williams, "telephone bootlegger" who delivered a quantity of liquor to federal prohibition agents, was granted parole for three years.

Faces Liquor Charge—Charges of liquor to be filed against Alvin Garrett, 114 West Twelfth street, College View, who was brought to the police station at 12:30 Sunday morning. He was arrested by State Sheriff Condit. Deputies Gates and Weygint, Lieutenant Rymer and Detectives Goodwin and Schrup. Two pints of liquor were purchased from Garrett with marked money, according to the officers. A flask also was taken at his home, the officials claimed.

DEMAND FOR GREAT HERBAL REMEDY KNOWN AS HERB JUICE GROWING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS

Lincoln People and Druggists Were at First Dubious and Doubtful About its Unusual Merits, Repeating Qualities and the Unheard of Demand Which Very Shortly Followed its Introduction Here.

The test of time and real genuine merits show better than theory what can be expected of a good medicine. The continued growth in the ever increasing sales of nature's greatest tonic-laxative is a foregone conclusion of what the people in Lincoln and adjacent territory think of the actual results they have experienced from the use of the great herbal remedy known as Herb Juice. They now have the satisfaction of knowing beyond a question of a doubt that they can rely on this wonderful medicine to relieve them of that dreaded malady, constipation and all the aggravating ailments arising therefrom, and restore them to good health and happiness. "The enthusiastic words of praise which hundreds of good reliable people of Lincoln and the surrounding country are now bestowing upon this wonderful herb-laxative every day," said the local representative of the Herb Juice Medicine Co., "is indeed very gratifying to all of us."

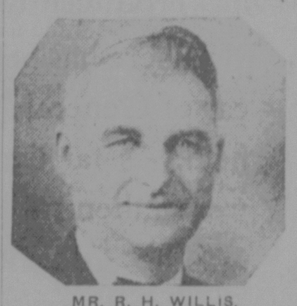
Through the amazing discovery that constipation is responsible for most all ailments of today, such as headaches, backaches, nervousness, dizzinesss and that despondent and distressing feeling, we are able to give the people a real medicine with powers not probably possessed by any other medicine on the market today. That is the ability to correct constipation and build up and strengthen the entire system. This great herbal laxative assists nature in keeping the food which we eat moving, thereby stimulating and encouraging the natural functioning of all the organs of the body.

If you have not as yet tried this wonderful remedy, go at once to Harley Drug Co., 11th & O Sts., and have the local representative of this great system purifier and body builder explain the merits of this remedy to you. No matter if you are sick or not. It is now springtime and everyone, regardless of how well you may feel, needs a good spring tonic to help you withstand the hot summer days which are soon to follow. Everyone cleans house in the spring. That is an old established custom. So why not clean your system. It will add years to your life. Try a bottle of this great medicine today.

"I HAVE A PERFECT RIGHT TO PRAISE IT"

Famous Medicine Stands on Its Merit; Phenomenal Sales Record of Miller's Herb Extract is Due Solely to the Fact That it Gives Satisfaction.

"Yes, I have a perfect right to praise Miller's Herb Extract, the one medicine to do more for me than any preparation I ever used in all my life. I had blinding headaches for days, lost time from work on account of my deranged system. I felt dreadfully bad, discouraged to the point of desperation—no relief in sight, I struggled on as best I could until the great Herb medicine was strongly recommended for my trouble. It was wonderful relief this great medicine brought me when other remedies failed to give satisfaction in my case. I'm glad of the opportunity to tell my friends and other sufferers of a medicine that gives the desired results—it did this for me," said Mr. R. H. Willis who resides at 1931 U St., Lincoln, Neb., as he joins the vast throng of satisfied users of Miller's Herb Extract, for years called "Herb Juice."



MR. R. H. WILLIS.

"My health had been failing me for years. I tried most of the remedies and treatments that promised relief and with my failure to find the right one suited for my trouble I got worse instead of regaining my health. I spent hundreds of dollars for medicines that failed to overcome those terrible ailments. I needed a good system cleanser and regulator, something to get at the source of my troubles and free my system of the poison which had accumulated during the years I was chronically constipated. I took strong purgatives that never regulated my bowels, my appetite was poor, no food I ate had the right taste, I lost in weight and strength until I was only a shadow of my former self. I frequently had bilious attacks, headaches too severe to fully describe. In addition to all this misery, I was bothered with weak kidneys, rheumatic pains in my hip so bad that I could hardly walk. Yes, I felt like my whole system was full of medicine, due to improper elimination. Bowels wouldn't act for days unless I used a strong purgative and the medicines I used upset my stomach so bad that I would get deathly sick at times. But I found a different medicine—Millers' Herb Extract. This wonderful Herb medicine did for me what other remedies had failed to do for years. Now I am praising it like so many other people whose cases were similar to mine. Instead of poor health, aches and pains every day, I have something to be thankful for—Good Health. Of course, my purpose in giving this signed statement for publication is to induce some other sufferer to start using the Herb Extract remedy, and I wouldn't ask this of anyone had I failed to get satisfaction through the use of Miller's Herb Extract. The fact is, I'm perfectly satisfied with results in my own case, I have a perfect right to praise a medicine which accomplishes so much for me, when hundreds of dollars were wasted on medicines that did me no special good. I heartily recommend its use to everybody in need of a medicine that will do the work."

SOUR STOMACH AND CONSTIPATION BANISHED

After 6 to 8 Years Intense Suffering, Says Well Known Hospital Attendant. Gives All Credit to Famous New Herb Medicine Called Herb Juice.

"In my opinion you just can't beat Miller's Herb Extract known as Herb Juice for quick and satisfactory results. It has relieved me of a case of chronic constipation and general stomach disorders of years standing, and too after all else had failed. I am glad that there is such a medicine on the market today for all sufferers who really need a medicine that will stop their suffering and misery," said Mr. Ed Knight, well known and efficient attendant at the State Hospital, Lincoln, Neb., in a recent statement to the special representative.

"I believe wholeheartedly that Miller's Herb Extract is the greatest medicine on the market for constipation and general stomach disorders. I know that it is the most satisfactory remedy I have ever used, the only medicine to relieve and banish all my ailments and restore me to good health. I think it takes a real medicine to do that much." Mr. Knight in praising the famous new Herb Extract remedy joins thousands of others who have been greatly benefited and are now once more enjoying good health after taking a course of this great herbal remedy. "I want you to know," continued Mr. Knight, "I never fail to tell my friends and others about this great medicine and what it has done for me. I conscienciously believe it will do as much for other like sufferers. I suffered from chronic constipation for years, stomach all upset most of the time; liver inactive, bowels very irregular and I frequently had sick headaches and dizzy spells, felt tired and wornout all the time, lacked energy and pep, was nervous and restless, couldn't get my rest and sleep at night. I was in misery most of the time. But a few bottles of Miller's Herb Extract put me on my feet and in a much shorter time than I ever expected. I am now feeling fine and dandy, enjoy a good appetite and fine digestion, no longer troubled with a sour, gassy stomach, headaches or dizzy spells, bowels act freely and regularly, get good restful sleep, have gained 20 pounds in weight and have a greater amount of energy than for a long time. I think it the greatest medicine ever offered to suffering humanity. I have learned by test and experience and am glad to recommend it to other like sufferers."

You don't need any pills with this medicine. It's a real medicine within itself, and guaranteed to give results. A medicine you can take three or four bottles without seeing any results is not much medicine.

Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Medicine Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Harley Drug Store, 11th & "O" Sts., to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many Lincoln citizens.

Prices $1.00 per bottle, 3 bottles $2.75, 6 bottles $5.25; add 10c per bottle for postage and packing when ordering by mail.—Advertisement.

INSIST PAYMENT BANK DEPOSITS

Mass Meeting at Superior Adopts Strong Resolutions.

Says Efforts of Legislature Have Appeared Feeble.

(Special to The Star.)

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 13.—A mass meeting held here Friday was attended by representatives of approximately 4,000 depositors in two closed Superior state banks. The meeting adopted a preamble and resolutions calling upon the members of the legislature to "execute their pre-campaign pledges" by securing to all depositors the full amount of their deposits. The preamble and resolutions in full follow:

Whereas the Nebraska state legislature has met and is now nearly ready for adjournment, having made but apparent feeble and futile efforts to execute their pre-campaign pledges to preserve the integrity of the Nebraska state bank guaranty law, and to secure for every depositor in the banks heretofore closed the full amounts of their respective deposits, and,

Whereas we believe that a crisis exists in the financial circles of the state, demanding speedy and effective action;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That it is the sense of this meeting that it is the moral obligation of the state of Nebraska, and an obligation which the state is estopped from denying legally, that it shall pay to the depositors in the banks already closed every dollar of the deposits which they were led to believe were guaranteed by the strength and assets of the said state and not merely by the strength and assets of the banks of the state.

We call upon the members of the Nebraska state legislature, the governor, the attorney general and the other officers of the state to forget politics and political affiliations and to bend their mutual and co-operative efforts to the consideration of ways and means by which to accomplish this end of repayment, setting forth these ways and means in appropriate legislation, securing its immediate passage.

We endorse the plan of the state assuming and paying back into the guaranty fund the approximately three millions of dollars of administration costs of the guaranty fund commission.

We do not presume to dictate to our governor, our representatives in the legislature and the other state officers the nature of the legislation they should adopt or the course of the action they should take in alleviating the present crisis. They have doubtless given it more thought and are in a more favorable position than are we to decide the proper course to take. But we do demand, as we believe we have a right to demand, that this situation shall not go by the present legislative term without some earnest, honest efforts being made to correct it.

State to Observe Child Health Day

Nebraska will observe its third annual May Day as child health day, stressing a program of pageantry and outdoor sports as the culmination of a year round program for healthy boys and girls. Dr. Miles J. Breuer of Lincoln is state chariman of May Day, Miss Louise Murphy of the division of child hygiene of the state bureau of health is secretary, and Mrs. May Morley is chairman of the Lancaster county health council.

President Hoover's proclamation of March 27 designated May day as Child Health day, and many Nebraska communities are planning celebrations to stress the significance of healthy childhood. The plans are sponsored by the American Child Health association and city and rural communities are to observe the day with community gatherings and with play festivals.

During the week, teachers are urged to check pupils' vision, undernourished, listless children, and posture. Mrs. Morley, who is organizin gthe county child health council, spoke to the Lancaster county teachers Saturday afternoon on "Celebration of May Day" in place of Dr. Breuer.

A Red Cross camp will be held July 5 to August 30 to encourage and increase child health.

BERNICE BOLLER, SOPHIA JOBMAN HIGH IN SPELLING

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 13— Bernice Boller, 11, and Sophia Jobman, 13, are the oral and written spelling champions, respectively of Gage county's grade and rural schools. Winning over a field of fifty contestants at the court house Miss Boller returned the 1929 honors to district 54, a rural school west of Cortland, where she is a seventh grade pupil. Miss Jobman, an eighth grade pupil, represented Rockford. Second to Miss Boller in the oral contest was Nora Tyner of Barneston, while William Hajek, the only boy to place in the ranking groups, won second in the written contest.

First and second place winners in both division will be leigible to represent Gage county in their respective divisions throughout the present year. Among the contests they are expected to attend are: The interstate spelling contest, April 26, at Sioux City, Ia.; the World-Herald at Omaha, the state contest during the 1929 state fair at Lincoln and the Gage county district No. 1 invitation contest here April 18.

DEDICATE NEW RAILWAY DEPOT

Passenger Station at Marysville Attractive Structure.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., April 13—Formal dedication of the new St. Joseph & Grand Island railway passenger station at Marysville, Kas., was attended Thursday afternoon and evening by an appropriate program, including speeches by high officials of the railway, a response by the mayor and an official opening and showing of the edifice, at which a great crowd attended, not only from Marysville, but from all the countryside and surrounding towns.

C. E. Hedrix, resident superintendent for the division at Marysville was master of ceremonies. Several official cars from St. Joseph, Kansas City and other terminals were parked in the yards. Boy Scouts assisted in ushering and directing the crowds and concerts were given inside and outside the station by a band composed of shop workers from St. Joseph. Ice cream, wafers and coffee were served by the railway to all visitors who passed in line through the building. In the evening a public dance was planned in the spacious waiting room of the station, the benches being removed from the center, but the crowd was so dense that the young couples had to forego that pleasure and listen to the band play, while standing packed into the space.

The station was started about nine months ago and only recently completed at a cost of nearly $140,000. The new station is located just east of the old one and the latter is now to be used for freight service only. The structure is of brick, tile and stucco, highly decorated with pleasing color schemes, waxed tile floors, red tile roof, huge fireplace, and contains a neat dining and lunch room, ticket offices and all other necessities of a depot. The station grounds are parked, sown to blue grass and fringed with shrubbery.

PARTIES GIVEN PIONEER WOMAN

Mrs. Jennie Tynan Celebrates Her Eighty-third Birthday.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., April 13— Mrs. Jennie Tynan returned Saturday to her home in Lincoln, after spending a week in Stella, during which she celebrated her eighty-third birthday. She is the mother of four children, two of whom continue to reside in Stella, where their parents were pioneers. These two are Robert A. Tynan, president of the State bank of Stella, and Mrs. A. R. McMullen, prominent farm woman. The other two children are Mrs. William C. Parriott, Lincoln, and Mrs. Dr. D. A. Hewitt of Spokane, Wash.

In honor of Mrs. Tynan two social events took place at the McMullen home. The first was a family dinner, followed a few days later by a luncheon, at which was entertained a company of ladies who had been friends of Mrs. Tynan since early days. Mrs. R. A. Tynan assisted Mrs. McMullen at the luncheon, which was served in three courses at small tables, which were decorated with birthday candles, with streamers to each plate. The place cards were quaint Japanese hearts from Honolulu. The afternoon was spent in visiting.

Mrs. Tynan is a native of New York and came to Nebraska when a young girl. She attended Peru teachers college when that institution was known as Mount Vernon seminary and was a private Methodist school. Later she taught and "boarded around" at the homes of pupils, the custom in these days. She was married to Andrew Tynan at Peru in 1869, he being a freighter and also a merchant at Peru. As early as 1857 he began improvements on a farm near where Stella now stands, and a year or two after their marriage he and Mrs. Tynan came to this farm to reside. He died in 1912 and the last few years Mrs. Tynan has lived in Lincoln.

They come to SEE— They stay to BUY . . .

THOUSANDS come to see De Soto Six because any automobile sponsored by Walter P. Chrysler is a magnet to those who look for the latest and finest in fine cars.

They stay—and many of them buy—because the De Soto Six exceeds their expectations of what even a Chrysler-built car gives for so moderate a price.

They find a roomy, comfortable car with long, low lines and attractive color combinations—a stylish and distinguished motor car.

They drive, and find a speedy and vigorous car—with ample power, a remarkably fast get-away, rapid yet smooth acceleration—a car that holds the road securely at all speeds and with alert response to brakes and clutch and wheel.

They discover in the De Soto Six amazingly restful riding qualities and the smoothest engine encountered in a low-priced six. They see evidences of Chrysler craftsmanship which assure long life, easy maintenance, low running cost and a satisfactory re-sale value.

And they find all these distinctive attributes of Chrysler Motors quality at a price well below $1000.

Is it any wonder that since the first day of its introduction, De Soto Six has outclassed in popular favor any other first-year car?

See De Soto Six and drive it. There is no obligation. Come in today.

MYRON HERRICK IS HONORED BY GOTHAM THRONG

Return of Body of Beloved Ambassador is Impressive Event.

Statesman Begins Last Journey to Native City of Cleveland.

NEW YORK, April 13—Draped in an American flag, the casket containing the body of Myron T. Herrick, America's beloved ambassador to France, was being speeded aboard a New York Central train tonight toward his home in Cleveland, where he will be buried on Monday. The train departed at 5:30 p. m., after great throngs in New York City had paid reverent tribute to the memory of the noted statesman.

Mr. Herrick's body was returned from France, where he died a week ago Sunday, aboard the French cruiser Tourville which docked at its pier here shortly before noon. Many thousands of people had been waiting at the pier despite the heavy clouds and threat of rain.

Dignitaries, representing the nation, state and city, boarded the French warship as it anchored and stood with bows bowed on the aft deck of the ship where the casket lay under the frowning guns of the Tourville.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to whom Mr. Herrick had been sort of a "father," was one of those who went aboard the ship. Visibly affected he viewed in silence the flag-draped coffin in which the body of the ambassador reposed. Then he left the cruiser to join the procession in honor of the man who was his adviser during those great days following Lindbergh's epic non-stop flight to Paris.

The pier was decorated with American and French flags and strung with black and purple. Shields of both were prominently placed. When the Tourville tied up at the pier there was a general blast of whistles from craft in the harbor, followed by silence.

A hushed silence was maintained as the casket was borne ashore. And at 12:15 it was placed onto the caisson of a field piece by French sailors. The caisson was drawn by six bay horses.

Crowded Streets Bow.

Then followed an hour's journey, at a foot pace, through silent streets packed with mourners numbering between 50,000 and 75,000. Traffic in Fifth avenue and other thoroughfares was stopped as the funeral cortege passed.

As the body started from the pier to the railroad station wireless informed the batteries at Fort Jay that the procession was starting and a nineteen-gun salute at intervals of one minute was fired.

Men stood bareheaded in the streets as the gun caisson containing the body passed. Every street through which the procession passed was dense with people—men, women and children; many of whom had been waiting for hours. Thousands of heads were poked out of the windows of skyscrapers.

In the line of march were battalions of soldiers and marines, a company of French sailors, a clattering regiment of mounted policemen, gold-braided admirals, frock-coated ex-ambassadors and be-medalled generals.

Dignitaries representing the federal government, the state and the city were in the procession. President Hoover was represented by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. French Ambassador Paul Claudel was there. So was Mayor James J. Walker. High army and navy officials and representatives of many organizations were on hand.

The president had ordered that full military honors be accorded for "a distinguished American." Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt had issued a proclamation in which he set aside the noon hour for tribute of the state to Mr. Herrick's memory.

Lindbergh in Cortege.

The procession from the pier was headed by the caisson, followed closely by the ambassador's son, Parmeley Herrick and his wife, the latter in full mourning. They were followed by Colonel Lindbergh, Mayor Walker and Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen. Then came the army and navy officers, state department officials and the officers of the Tourville.

Funeral music was played along the line of march, as well as patriotic airs, including "The Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseilles."

Flags on the public buildings all over the city were at half mast, by order of the governor.

The Tourville, gray against the gray water, steamed into the harbor during the forenoon, escorted by two United States cruisers, the Marblehead and the Cincinnati. The municipal steamer Macom steamed out into the bay, with dignitaries aboard, and met the incoming French warship.

As the warship containing Mr. Herricks body slowly moved toward its pier, the French crew lined the rail. Two sailors with fixed bayonets stood statue-like beside the coffin which was resting on the aft deck. Over the casket lay a flag. At the feet of the ambassador was a black velvet pillow, and pinned to it was the decorations he had won for nearly twenty years of diplomatic service.

The procession through the streets lasted for more than an hour, and then the gun caisson turned into the baggage entrance of the Grand Central depot. As marines lifted the casket to an elevator the infantry band played, "Nearer My God to Thee."

The ambassador's body was held until 5:30 p. m. when it left aboard the train for his home in Cleveland.

FIRE PREVENTION RECORD OF CITY DRAWS APPROVAL

Lincoln's fire prevention record for 1928 drew words of commendation in a letter from President Butterworth of the United States chamber of commerce received by Secretary W. S. Whitten of the Lincoln chamber.

Mr. Butterworth thanked the Lincoln chamber for its assistance in making the 1928 inter-chamber fire prevention contest the most successful in history. He further said Lincoln finished in the first division below the winner and honor cities of its class and possessed a record to make an impression on its citizens.

Copies of the letter were sent to Merle Rathburn, chairman of the fire prevention committee; Harriet E. Towne, junior civic league, Louis C. Hansen, chief of the fire department and W. J. Kent, boy scout executive. Officers and directors of the chamber of commerce congratulated the fire department and thanked the junior civic league and boy scouts for co-operation.

"TORCH SLAYER" RETRACES RIDE

Campbell Stoical as Scene of Woman Murder is Revisited.

Had Been Discharged for Feminine Fascinations in Omaha.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 13—(U. P.)—The curious intellectual-infantile mind of Henry Colin Campbell failed to react today when prosecutors took him over the route he followed on the morning that he killed and destroyed by fire his bigamous bride, Mrs. Mildred Mowry.

The 60-year-old engineer, whose weakness led him to murder, sat unflinching in the rear seat of a police motor car today as he was taken to Cranford, N. J., where Mrs. Mowry's burning body was found.

The route he had described in his confession was followed. At one point he said:

"That's where I shot her."

Then he sat back and said no more, even when his motor car was taken to a spot where a facsimile of a woman's body had been rudely drawn on a staked out plot of ground. tI was the spot where Mrs. Mowry's body was found in the snow February 23. He disdained to look and was more worried about newspaper photographers than the gruesome sketch.

Threats by Crowds.

At points along the road which Campbell traversed this afternoon there were demonstrations which showed the angry feeling of the populace. Cries of "lynch him," were heard at several places from groups which had congregated when they heard Campbell was coming by. There were no actual attempts at violence, however.

He was brought back to jail and prosecutors continued to be amazed by the intellectuality that could be so warped as to permit this man to have a childish passion for dolls and also to plan so thoroughly a murder.

His pretty wife, 25 years his junior, blames morphine for the downfall of Campbell.

"That's the only thing I can think of," she told reporters. "I still can hardly believe it."

Known in Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., April 13.—(U. P.)—The "torch slayer" of Elizabeth, N. J., was known here as a versatile worker, it was revealed here today. Coming here as an editor of the educational bureau of information of the Union Pacific railroad in 1911, Henry Colin Campbell, admitted murderer, directed his activities toward medicine, civil engineering, photographing and wrting technical textbooks.

Meanwhile he was discovered to have played with the affections of five women, all employed in the information bureau. This brought about his discharge.

He left Omaha in 1914 with Rosalea McCready, his present wife, leaving stranded Emma Bullock Campbell, who claimed she was never divorced.

Campbell was one of the best amateur photographers he had ever seen, D. C. Buell, his chief in the information department, said today.

NATIONAL OFFICERS OF FRAT RETRACT A LIQUOR CHARGE

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Charges that liquor was manufactured in the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house here and that drinking in the house was "general" were retracted by the national organization of the fraternity after an all day meeting today.

In a report signed by Norman MacLeod, national president, F. D. Moore, president of the eastern division of the organization, and Frank S. Hemmick, executive secretary, the arch or national chapter of the fraternity admitted its assertions, made public after a travelling secretary had visited the University of Virginia chapter, were unfounded, and declared "the chapter has made earnest efforts to discourage and lessen student drinking with substantial success."

INMAN DIVORCE TO HIGH COURT

Appeal Expected Unless Judge Reverses His Alimony Ruling.

RENO, Nev., April 13—(I. N. S.)—It appeared certain tonight that the Inman divorce case will go to the Nevada Supreme court.

Legal forces representing Walker P. Inman, wealthy Duke tobacco fortune heir, who won a sweeping victory in his effort to divorce his wife, Helene Garnett Parton Inman, and attorneys for Mrs. Inman spent the week end preparing for arguments Monday before Judge George Bartlett over the latter's action in disregarding a recommendation of the jury that heard the Inman case on the question of alimony.

This was one of the big issues of the trial. Inman sought a divorce and insisted that an agreement entered into November 27, 1927, in which he agreed to pay Mrs. Inman $15,000 a year for not more than five years should stand.

Wife Files Cross Suit.

Mrs. Inman filed a cross suit for divorce and asked that this agreement be set aside and she be granted $250,000 in its stead.

The jury in finding for Inman apparently desired to soften the blow for the pretty defendant and recommended to Judge Bartlett that she be allowed $1,500 a month alimony from Inman until such time as she remarried.

The court refused to be bound by this recommendation, holding that in finding for the plaintiff the jury should have approved the 1927 agreement.

He agreed, however, to hear arguments Monday on this point.

If he fails to change his ruling and recognize the alimony award of the jury it is regarded as certain that the defense will take the case to the Supreme court and on the other hand if he should set aside the agreement it is expected Inman will take an appeal.

Bandits Get $15,500

CHICAGO, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Three bandits this afternoon raided the headquarters of the roofers' union and escaped with loot totaling $15,500.

Fifteen persons, in the place when the bandits entered, were lined up against a wall and their pockets were searched. The bandits escaped.

A COAST RAIN PROPHET DYING

California Will Miss "Padre of Rains" Forecasts.

Father Ricard Won International Renown as Astronomer.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Fighting a brave but seemingly losing battle, Father Jerome S. Ricard, 79, "Padre of the Rains," was near death here tonight.

The aged priest and noted astronomer was stricken with a severe cold this week which aggravated an affliction of the heart.

Already the last sacrament of the Catholic church has been administered to the Jesuit father, who then said: "I am ready if God wills it."

Mourning throughout California was general because of the serious illness of the man who is both a priest and a great scientist.

For years agriculturists of the far west have taken Father Ricard's weather advice, having implicit faith in the "sun spot" method of forecasting weather which won for him the title of the "Padre of the Rain."

Forecasted Month Ahead.

They'll miss those monthly bulletins, telling in detail what sort of weather California may expect for the next thirty days. One was issued April 1, and it probably will be the last.

Born in France, Father Ricard came to the United States as a young man. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1871 and came to Santa Clara university a few years later. Since 1879 he has taught higher mathematics and astronomy at Santa Clara, inning international recognition in the latted field. He is a member of all important astronomy societies in the world.

But it was as a weather forecaster that California knew its "Padre of the Rains." Back in 1900 he started development of a theory that "sun spots" indicated the trend of weather.

Ignoring ridicule, Father Ricard continued his studies and it wasn't long before farmers noticed that the weather turned out as the "sun spot" theorist said it would.

Taking two weeks at first, Father Ricard issued regular weather bulletins. Then he used a month as a unit and forecast the weather for thirty days in advance and on occasion he would foretell weather for the entire season.

Farmers' "Rain Bible."

For a long time now the monthly weather bulletin issued by Father Ricard has been a "rain Bible" for California farmers. No succesful newspaper would dream of failing to publish it.

But now the "Father Ricard weather forecast" must fade into history for physicians agree that even if he should recover, which is doubtful, he will not have sufficient strength to continue his scientific research.

Only the remarkable condition of the kindly and learned priest has sustained him thus far in his illness.

LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

We have taken this method of broadcasting to the people of Lincoln that our Storage Price on Jewel Coal for April is $12.00 per ton, Cash on delivery. This offer is for a limited tonnage and in keeping with our policy of selling "Jewel" at as low a margin as is possible.

"Jewel" stores perfectly and is just the same a year after you have put it in your basement as when you first receive it. The new April storage price in effect this year makes "Jewel" an extraordinarily good purchase.

By special arrangement with the mine owners, we are the sole agents for "Jewel" and are enabled to make this very low cash price of $12.00 per ton for a limited tonnage for April storage. We do not hesitate to recommend to our customers that they order now and get the very lowest price.

Ask your neighbor about "Jewel" and get your storage coal in before the spring house cleaning is done.

Very truly yours,

AUTOS IN U. S. SHOW INCREASE

Total Registration is 24,493,124; Gain of 5.9 Percent.

Comparison With Total Population Shows Car Per Family.

Total registration of motor vehicles in the United States during 1928 was 24,493,124, a gain of 1,359,883, or 5.9 per cent over the number registered in 1927, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, and state registration authorities. The figures include passenger automobiles, taxis, busses, motor trucks and road tractors. In addition 148,169 trailers and 117,946 motorcycles were registered.

New York heads the list for 1928 with 2,083,942 vehicles registered. California is second with 1,799,890; Ohio is third with 1,649,699; Pennsylvania is fourth with 1,642,207; Illinois is fifth with 1,504,359; Michigan sixth with 1,249,221; Texas seventh with 1,214,297; Indiana eighth with 823,806; New Jersey ninth with 758,430; and Wisconsin tenth with 742,135.

In percentage gain, Arizona ranks first with 16 per cent. The District of Columbia is second with 13 per cent. Missippi and South Dakota each report a gain of 12 per cent; New Mexico, Alabama and Connecticut report 10 per cent; Tennessee and Texas report 9 per cent; and South Carolina, Vermont, Wyoming, North Dakota, Michigan and Delaware report 8 per cent.

One Car per Family.

Comparison of the registration total with the 1928 estimated population of 120,013,000 indicates that there is now one motor vehicle for every 5 persons in the United States; or one for every family.

From the owners of the 24,493,124 motor vehicles, the states and the District of Columbia collected in license fees, registration fees, permit charges, fines, etc., the sum of $322,630,025. This is $21,568,893 more than was collected in 1927 and an increase of more than 7 per cent.

After deducting $21,524,733 for collection and miscellaneous purposes, the balance of $301,105,292 was applied to state highway funds ($208,880,272), local road funds ($60,393,109), and to state and county bond funds ($31,825,911).

The registration totals and fees collected for all states are as follows:

The position of the feet should be on the floor when driving a car and not on the clutch or brake pedals.

If the engine can be cranked by hand, easily, and the starting motor works sluggishly, that is an indication of a discharged battery, worn brushes, or burnt commutator.

PRESIDENT EIGHT SALES INCREASE

Studebaker Dealer Says Popularity Reflection of Value.

Five - Passenger Sedan One of Outstanding Models of Year.

The sensational increase in the sales of Studebaker's new President eight since its introduction early this year is a direct reflection of its outstanding value in the fine car field, according to Frank DeBrown, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here.

"Championship performance combined with remarkable distinction of line and color have carried the President eight to new sales heights thus far this year," said Mr. DeBrown. "Added to these factors is a completeness of appointment which ranks the President with many cars several hundred dollars higher in price.

"The President five-passenger sedan is one of the best examples of the President's outstanding position. Its 115 horsepower straight eight motor sets an entirely new standard of effortless performance. No other car in automotive history has ever established such a record of enduring, brilliant performance as the President's achievement in traveling 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

"Supplementing this performance is an ease of handling assured by a host of engineering features all contributing to Studebaker engineers' ideal of a 'well mannered' car—sure footed on the road at any speed, and responding to the lightest touch on steering wheel and pedals.

"The grace of unusually low body lines, made possible by Studebaker's new double drop frame construction, is accented by two spare wire wheels carried in front fender wells. Additional emphasis on the beauty of the well proportioned body is afforded by a new treatment of bit panel, body moulding, and window reveals. Curved windshield pillars and a smart new visor design frame the non-shatterable safety glass windshield.

"Two choices of color and upholstery are offered. One provides fine mohair upholstery and an exterior finish of Manchuria blue with fine ivory striping. The other choice is a smooth broadcloth interior with sable lacquer, Burgundy fenders, and black wire wheels.

"The enthusiasm being shown for the President eight indicates that it will continue to dominate the eight cylinder field as it did last year. At its price of $1,895 at the factory the five passenger state sedan represents a new achievement in motor car value."

Tires Require Correct Air Pressure.

The chief factor in the life of any pneuatic tire, either balloon or high pressure type, is the air contained in it. The air cushion within the tire supports the load, while the tire itself is simply a container for the air. The amount of air should always be sufficient to carry all the weight of the loaded vehicle, leaving the tire free to perform its natural functions without requiring it to bear any more of the burden than necessary.

HUDSON STARTING LINE OF TRUCKS

Makers of Hudson-Essex Cars Prepare Launch Into New Field.

Vehicles Will Be of Light Commercial Type on Essex Chassis.

Hudson Motor Car Co., maker of Hudson and Essex cars, has completed plans to launch a line of light delivery commercial vehicles, with bodies specially designed to meet the requirements of the chief users of a carrier of this type. Bodies will be mounted on Essex chasses adapted and designed for this service.

It is announced that the line will be introduced about July, and will be marketed through the present Hudson and Essex distributor and dealer organization. Hudson's dealer family, it is said, has been expanding with noteworthy rapidity since the first of the year and covers the country more intensively than at any previous time in the company's history. The Hudson management felt in selling organization would appreciate the added sales opportunity offered by the new product.

Sales Executive in Charge.

Sam C. Mitchell, for several years a sales executive for the Hudson Motor Car Co., has been appointed commercial vehicle manager and will handle the distribution of this entirely new product through the Hudson-Essex distributor and dealer organization. Establishment of a commercial vehicle department marks a decidedly new and important development in the progress of the company.

Emphasis will be laid by the company on smartness, quick acceleration and economy of operation. These are features of Hudson-Essex activity which already have been brought to a high point of development in the manufacture of passenger cars.

Set-up for the manufacture of the new line is already well under way at the Hudson-Essex plant in Detroit, where the new activity will be housed.

DODGE BROTHERS MADE PRECISELY

Thousandth of an Inch is Wide Margin in Automobile Building.

Accuracy of Tooling Adds to Power and Quiet Operation.

The corner jeweler who sits in his window all day long performing minute and mysterious operations on tiny objects would probably gasp in amazement if he were asked to shave a scale from a butterfly's wing down to one-third of its original thickness. A scale from a butterfly's wing is only fifteen ten-thousandths of an inch thick, and to cut it down to five ten-thousandths (one-half of a thousandth of an inch) calls for tools almost too fine for the mind to conceive.

Yet this one-half of a thousandth of an inch represents the limit of tolerance allowed in fitting pistons of engines used in Dodge Brothers new six. They must fit into the cylinder bore with a clearance varying not more than one-third the thickness of the scale on a butterfly's wing. Such precision insures full delivery of power and eliminates noise and wear.

Accurate Gear Mesh.

Carrying out the reduced butterfly wing scale still farther by dividing it into five equal parts, represents the limit of tolerance allowed in the contour of gear teeth used in the Dodge Brothers new six. Holding gear teeth to such minute limits mean smooth meshing and quiet operation.

By taking two and one-half of the five equal parts into which the butterfly wing scale is now divided, the result is greater than the inaccuracy allowed in the alignment of the main bearings of the new six engine.

Combustion chambers of the new six cylinder heads are machined to within five thousandths of an inch of a specified size, this costly operation requiring the frequent replacement of cutting tools, yet this machining is of vital importance to obtain compression equality and smooth engine performance.

So closely is the assembly of the Dodge Brothers new six checked that there are thousands of inspections, many of which must be accurate to a thousandth of an inch. These inspections start from the source of supply of raw materials, and continue through every operation until the car is finally checked for shipment.

NASH BREAKS SALES RECORD

Ten Marketing Centers Report Increase of 52.95 Per Cent.

KENOSHA, Wis., April 13—When final reports were received by Nash sales department officials from marketing centers in the United States, it was found today that Nash "400" Series car sales in the ten highest sales points during the week ending March 30 were greater than those in any previous week on the records of the Nash Motors Co.

The total number of "400" cars bought in these ten motoring centers rolled up an increase of 52.95 per cent over the sales made at the same points in the corresponding week of 1928.

This significant buying record for Nash was not limited alone to the ten metropolitan markets where sales were largest and which are considered an American merchandising barometer. A further check revealed that the sales of these increasingly popular cars in all distributing centers during the closing week in March equalled the peak figures of the first week in July last year, when the Nash "400" demand had reached its height following announcement and nationwide introductions of the new type cars.

New York Leads in Total.

New York led the Nash sales procession through the banner week in total car sales and marked up a 25 per cent increase over its records for the week last year. Chicago people bought more than 53 per cent more Nashes than they did in the week a year ago. Boston, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, San Francisco and Detroit—the other leading Nash markets for the week—showed substantial gains to bring the total increase in Nash cars sold in the ten cities to 52.95 per cent.

"No more conclusive evidence is needed to show that Nash in 1929 may expect the greatest volume of business in the experience of the company," declared C. H. Bliss, general sales manager in commenting on the brilliant sales record. "The entire Nash organization is prepared to do bigger things this year than ever before."

DR. B. A. JENKINS TO SPEAK HERE

Will Address Nebraska School Heads at Banquet Friday.

School executives from all parts of the state will convene in Lincoln April 19 for the annual spring meeting of the Nebraska Superintendents' and Principals' association. Dr. Burris A. Jenkins of Kansas City, Mo., formerly editor of the Kansas City Post, will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be held in the evening at the University club.

Nebraska educators will conduct the morning and afternoon sessions, dealing with problems of school administration. The value of a school survey to the community, child accounting, and economy in school administration are among the subjects to be considered.

Present officers of the association are J. A. Doremus, Aurora, president; J. A. Jimmerson, Auburn, vice-president; and C. H. Velte, Crete, secretary.

Auto Notes

Cleaning a Disk Clutch.

To clean the disk clutch, drain off the oil or grease, by unscrewing the plug at ehe bottom of the housing, replace the plug and then pour a gallon or two of kerosene into the housing and run the engine. When the engine is running, hold down the clutch pedal for a minute or so, then let it in and hold down again. Do this for from 10 to 15 minutes.

The average horn will blow 150,000 times before wearing out.

Poor steering causes more skidding than faulty brakes or careless use of them.

Apply brakes gently when driving through water if they are the exposed external type.

Never permit any passenger to stand on the running board of a moving automobile.

The appearance of a car can be greatly improved by painting the top with a good dressing.

Any light bulb that is allowed to get dirty is ore likely eo burn out than one kept clean. It is because the dirt prevents the radiation of heat as rapidly as necessary for long life.

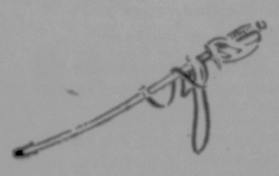
MARMON-BUILT

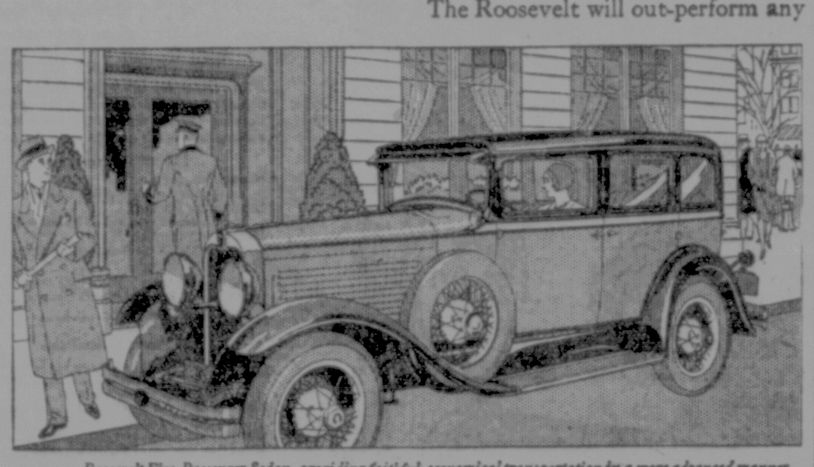
The world's first Straight-Eight under $1000 . . . Now on display



THE long awaited is here . . . The year's most impressive achievement of America's fastest moving industry is brought to public view . . . The move so freely predicted has now actually happened—Marmon has built a straight-eight to sell (at the factory) for less than $1000.

There have been any number of four cylinder cars at this price . . . Today there are many sixes at this figure . . . But there is only one straight-eight—the Roosevelt.

And it is but natural that this first low-priced straight-eight should come from Marmon. Marmon for more than three years has devoted its central efforts toward simplifying and making the straight-eight a practical, economical and long-lived car for all to own.



Roosevelt Five-Passenger Sedan, providing faithful, economical transportation in a more advanced manner

Consider First Its Beauty

The first time you see the Roosevelt you are sure to recognize it as a new achievement in smart, yet thrifty, transportation. It's low and in the modern manner. No conflicting lines—but from radiator to back end one graceful line follows straight through. Marmon has taken the attitude that a $1000 car can be just as stylish in appearance, just as modern in appointment as a car costing twice this amount.

Furthermore, Marmon has made sure that the Roosevelt should measure up to the time-famed standards of Marmon performance.

The Roosevelt Motor

The Roosevelt motor is a straight-eight, built completely in Marmon plants. It develops 70 horsepower—far more power than any other car in its price field. There are no waits while the motor is picking up the load—few hills that require a gear shift—no place any car of the price can go that the Roosevelt can't go in even less time and far more comfortably. The Roosevelt will out-perform any car in the world at or anywhere near its price.

The Roosevelt follows in all fundamental points Marmon proved features of design. Furthermore, Marmon had plenty of time. The Roosevelt was thoroughly proved out months before the first car was manufactured.

A STRAIGHT-EIGHT FOR EVERY PURSE

Roosevelt, $995; Marmon 68, $1465; Marmon 78, $1965. Prices at factory. Group equipment extra. Inquire about our attractive income purchase plan.

LINCOLN WOMAN NOW PRESIDENT

Mrs. J. R. Carnahan Made Head Pawnee Presbyterial.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., April 13—At the closing session of the two-day convention of the Pawnee Presbyterial, held at Mission Creek church this week, Pawnee City was chosen for next year's convention of the women's society of the United Presbyterian churches in southern and western Nebraska.

Attendance at the convention was cut by bad weather, but most of the towns of the district were represented. Societies included in the reports were Summerfield, Minden, Lone Grove, Burchard, Superior, Benkelman, Pawnee City, Lincoln and Mission Creek. The men's Presbytery from the same churches also held its convention in concurrent sessions with the ladies.

Officers chosen by the Presbyterial are: Mrs. J. R. Carnahan, Lincoln, president; Mrs. J. H. Hart, Burchard, first vice president; Mrs. J. H. Morrison, Pawnee City, second vice president; Miss Stella Baird, Lincoln, secretary; Mrs. George M. Miller, Pawnee City, treasurer; Mrs. Alfred Eastwood, Mission Creek, junior secretary; Mrs. J. H. Etzelmiller, Minden, young women's secretary; Mrs. Paul Dinsmore, Burchard, literature secretary; Mrs. Chas. Glasgow, Mission Creek, thank offering secretary; Mrs. C. C. Thomas, Superior, temperance secretary. Rev. Glass of Minden was chosen moderator of the men's Presbytery.

Among visiting speakers on the two-day program were Mrs. J. C. Alter, Lincoln, former home missionary worker in Tennessee mountains, and Mrs. A. M. Reed, Manhattan, Kas., for two years a teacher in Egypt, who gave a missionary address.

Seward Declaimers

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., April 13—In the Seward high school declamatory contest here last Monday night first place in the oratorical division was won by Arthur Schultz, eighteen year old son of Mrs. W. F. Schultz. He is a junior and is taking the vocational and commercial course.

In the dramatic class first place went to Marjorie Stubbs, a junior, fifteen years old and daughter of Col. and Mrs. P. F. Stubbs of near Garland. She is in the normal training department of Seward high.

Better Homes Week Receiving Attention

Many Organizations to Participate in Observance Throughout Webster County.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., April 13—Better homes week, inaugurated seven years ago as an educational and civic movement, national wide in its its scope, and operating through local committee, will be fittingly observed in Red Cloud and vicinity April 21 to 27. The local committee working through the various civic educational, social and religious organization, is making definite and interesting plans which promise to make this event an outstanding one in the community. The children of the local school will have a large part in the coming campaign, displaying posters and art work on home life and home improvement in the windows of local firms during the week, as well as writing essays on the home, which tend to provoke thought and discussion of home improvement. Other organizations taking an active part in the campaign include the local ministerial union, Business Women's club and the local farm bureau.

FRANK DIETRICH AND WIFE WEDDED FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 13—In exceptionally good health and voicing the prediction that they would enjoy many similar affairs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dietrich Thursday observed their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary by attending a surprise dinner in their honor.

Mr. Dietrich, 88 years of age, was born in Berks county, Penn., and has resided in this county 60 years. Mrs. Dietrich, 11 years her husband's junior, was born at Baltimore, Md., and has lived here 71 years. They were married on a farm near Falls City, April 11, 1872.

APPLES NOT DAMAGED.

(Special to The Star.)

PERU, Neb., April 13.—Fruit is not thought to have been damaged materially by the heavy frost which covered this vicinity Friday morning, as buds were not far enough advanced. Winds a week to ten days ago whipped the bearing twigs and possibly caused a small percent of damage. Considerable acreage is in fruit around here. Apples are not damaged so far in the Peru and Shubert vicinities.

MASONIC INSTRUCTION.

(Special to The Star.)

WASHINGTON, Kas., April 13.—A district school of instructions for Masonic lodges was held at Washington Thursday afternoon and evening with a large membership in attendance. Charles Wells of Topeka was instructor. J. E. Gillett, of Washington, former master here, but now a disirict deputy, Elmer Strain, grand secretary, and Forest Ayers, grand junor warden of Kansas, were also in attendance.

BENEDICT WINNER TWO FIRST PLACES IN DECLAMATION

(Special to The Star.)

BENEDICT, Neb., April 13—Benedict high school won two firsts in the sectional declamatory contest held here Thursday night. Marian Cross wining in dramatic and Sara Louise Lytel in humorous. William Gambel of York placed first in oratorical, while Norris Getty of Waco won the extemporaneous. Second places were won by Wilma Langenheim of Utica in the oratorical, William Hice of York in the dramatic, Erma Villig of Seward in the humorous and Orville Moore of York in the extemporaneous. The wineirs of first place will be entered in the district contest, which will be held in about two weeks. Schools besides Benedict competing were: Seward, York, Waco and Utica. Supt. William Parkinson of Polk was judge of the contest. Supt T. F. Tyler of Benedict was manager. There are forty-two member schools in the district this year.

WHEAT OUTLOOK CONSIDERED BAD

Many Fields in Webster County Being Plowed Up.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., April 13—With many farmers in this locality plowing up their wheat fields preparatory to planting the ground to corn or other grain, the wheat to be grown in Webster county this year promises to fall far short of the annual average, in the opinion of many.

Fully 25 per cent less acreage than usual was planted to wheat last fall, which, along with the wheat winter killed and that damaged by the recent high winds, leaves much to be desired in the outlook for this particular farm product. Damage from wind appears to have hit hardest the fields seeded late in the fall, the wheat not having had time to make a good growth and become well matted before winter set it. As a result of the exceedingly high wind of a week ago many fields are drifted in places with dust, which has completely covered the wheat, while in other fields the soil has been blown from the roots of the plants, leaving them exposed and in such condition that a material reduction in the yield is predicted.

AUSTIN FUNERAL BEATRICE SUNDAY

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 13—The funeral of Charles N. Austin, pioneer who passed away at his home here Friday, will be held Sunday at 1:30 o'clock with Rev. Ross McCown in charge. The Odd Fellows will conduct the services at the grave.

As a small child Mr. Austin came here seventy years ago with his parents. He was a son of H. B. Austin, who with E. C. Austin, operated the first sawmill here and provided the building material for the first prominent buildings in Beatrice.

He had been employed at the Dempster plant for thirty-one years, was one of the city's veteran firemen and charter member of the Beatrice lodge of Odd Fellows.

LEGION BOOSTS PARK.

(Special to The Star.)

SIDNEY, Neb., April 13.—Members of the American Legion post of this place have just contributed $200 more toward securing trees and shrubs for the American legion park that has been established here. This makes a total of $1,000 that the legion has paid out for improving the park.

BIG RAIL BUSINESS.

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 13.—Work of the Burlington railroad at this station has increased so rapidly the past week that all crews are now employed and no men are on the extra board. Three work trains have started for the season on this division, and an extra yard crew was put on Thursday to do switching to clear the local yards.

FRUIT DAMAGE INSIGNIFICANT

Reports Indicate Frost Did Little Or No Harm.

(Special to The Star.)

BROWNVILLE, Neb., April 13—While there was a heavy frost over this part of the fruit belt. Friday morning, and it cannot be ascertained for sure for a couple more days, it is felt that there was no series damage to budding fruit here.

The weather has been cool enough to retard blossoming time sufficiently few of the trees are thought to have budded enough to receive a killing nip by the frost, except for apricots, and the acreage of this fruit here is insignificant.

Strawberries and all berry and vineyard fruits are safe. New orchars have been put out in recent years in this vicinity, and the acreage of all fruits this year is greater than ever.

High cold winds generally damage fruit buds considerably more than frosts, but the winds of a week ago are not thought to have been as severe as usual on tree buds.

WILL INVESTIGATE PUMP IRRIGATION

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 13—There wil be a conference of members of the city council, the Lions club, the county agent and interested farmers, here Monday to consider location for three test wells to be sunk on farms in the Pumpkin creek valley, to experiment with pump irrigation. Officers of the Western Public Service company will meet with this group and will be prepared to start at once on construction of an electric line into the valley to provide power for the pumps, as soon as the wells are completed.

A parked car with headlights full on is not only an annoyance to the drivers of oncoming cars but is an unnecessary drain on the battery.

Big Leagues Face Barrier In Pennant Flights of 1929

Majors On Their Marks to Tilt the Lid Off Baseball

Dope In American Circuit Points to Yanks as Likely Repeaters; A's, Browns, Senators Given Rating as Strongest Opposition; Cubs and Giants Touted Fight It Out for Flag Laurels In National; Rajah Hornsby's Temperament Makes the Bruins' Chances In Flag Race Triflè Doubtful.

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, April 13—(UP)—Another baseball season will be under way in eight major league cities Tuesday afternoon with a quarter of a million fans watching the teams in action and millions more from coast to coast eagerly awaiting the first returns. Many familiar figures will be missing and in their places will be highly touted, ambitious youngsters who hope to win their way into the hearts of the American baseball populace.

Ty and Tris Missing.

Ty Cobb will be absent from the American league for the first time in 25 seasons and Tris Speaker will be missing for the first time in 22 years. Other veterans will ride the bench and watch younger talent perform in their places.

Besides the enormous interest in the two pennant races the two questions of paramount importance to baseball fans are:

Will Rogers Hornsby help or hurt the Chicago Cubs?

Is Babe Ruth through?

The answer to those two questions also may solve the outcome of the two pennant races.

What About the Rajah.

If Hornsby's powerful bat offsets the loss of defensive strength in the Cubs' infield and the temperamental star sticks to his knitting and does not cause the same trouble he did with the Braves, Giants and Cards, the National league pennant may fly from William Wrigley's flagpole ni Chicago.

If Babe Ruth has another good year, the New York Yankees may break the three-year jinx which halted the Detroit Tigers in 1910 and the Yanks in 1924. No American league club has ever won four straight pennants.

That Law of Averages.

The Yanks have won three pennants in a row and six out of the last eight. The law of averages may catch up with the Yankees this season and bring them back to earth—earth being any spot below first place.

Baseball experts predict that the Yanks, Athletics, Browns and Senators will make the running in the American league and the Cubs, Giants, Pirates and Cards in the National league.

Although many experts are afraid to predict a new American league champion, they feel the Yanks are in for a rougher season than was the case last year, when the Athletics furnished the only position and that not until September.

Mackmen Crippled.

Connie Mack is starting the season under a big handicap, with three of his stars laid up. Lefty Grove, who turned in 24 victories last season, has an infected finger on his pitching hand. Al Simmons, who batted .351, is out of the game with bad ankles. Joe Boley, brilliant shortstop, has a "dead" arm.

The Yanks' machine seems fairly well knit, with a great deal depending on Babe Ruth, the new infield arrangement and Herb Pennock. It seems safe to say the veterans of the Yanks have gone back some. How far they've gone probably will determine whether the Yanks win again.

Senators Worth Watching.

The two clubs getting a lot of support are the Senators and the Browns. Walter Johnson has developed a dangerous looking club in his first season at Washington. Goslin's recovery, an improved infield with Bluege at short and Myer at third, and a steady pitching staff are the factors which may keep the Senators high in the race.

Dan Howley turned out the surprise club of the 1928 season and

Phil Aitken and Bill Folsom, prominent in Lincoln golf circles added handball to their list of athletic trophies Saturday when the pair copped the Nebraska state Y. M. C. A. doubles title. The Aitken-Folsom combination beat O. H. Worth and R. Wurgler of Omaha in the finals, 21-16, 21-9, and eliminated L. Foster and L. Watt of York in the first round, 21-8, 21-10.

Wurgler won the singles championship without the loss of a game. He beat A. Eichberg of Lincoln, 21-13, 21-16, and trimmed Watt of York in the finals, 21-8, 21-8.

Pugilist Accused Reckless Driving

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Jimmy Slattery, light-heavyweight boxer, will go on trial before a jury in city court on May 14 on the charge of reckless driving and injuring one person. Jury trial was granted Slattery today by Judge Frank Standart.

GLOVE KNIGHTS ON MONDAY BILL IN LOCAL ARENA

Matthews and Garcia Go Ten Rounds in Windup Bout of N. N. G. Card; Garcia Due Enter Ring With Margin 6 Pounds; Six Battles On Book.

MONDAY NIGHT'S CARD.

Four rounds—Sammy Crouse, Lincoln vs. Spider Risney, Council Bluffs, 124 pounds.

Four rounds—Oklahoma Vanderveert, Lincoln, vs. Plum White, Lincoln; 135 pounds.

Four rounds—Tony Gagliano, Omaha, vs. Joe Vienna, Ft. Crook; 132 pounds.

Five rounds—Freddie Penn, Omaha, vs. Ronnie Stewart, Council Bluffs; 118 pounds.

Six rounds—Pep Jennings, Des Moines, vs. Flash Random, Kansas City; 118 pounds.

Ten rounds—Harold Matthews, Lincoln, ay. Frankie Garcia, St. Joseph; 118 pounds.

Referee—Herman Joyce, Omaha.

By "CY" SHERMAN.

Harold Matthews' toughest boxing assignment of the present season is the one which will confront him Monday night in a 10-round main event battle in the Liberty theatre ring. The Lincoln mite, who has yet to meet a reverse in an even year of professional fisticuffing, will be tearing into Frankie Garcia, Mexican glove-whirler from St. Joseph, and taking the short end of the weights to the extent of six pounds.

The articles require Garcia to scale no more than 118 at 2 p. m. Monday, but several hours will elapse before the gong clangs, which means that the St. Joe boy probably will climb between the hemp strands weighing at least 120.

Neat Chunk of Pounds.

As Harold's best battling poundage is 112 to 114, it is inevitable that the local mite will be conceding a neat chunk of pounds—and weight easily counts in a heap in a mitten fracas involving the flyweights or the bantams.

Information from St. Joseph, rated as reliable in the Matthews camp, that Garcia is the hard-hit-

BIG BAM MAULS PAIR OF HOMERS

Ruth Swings Lusty Stick While Yanks Put It Over Dodgers.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 13—(U. P.)—Babe Ruth hit two home runs today as the New York Yanks beat the Brooklyn Robins, 10 to 5. Ruth's first homer in the first inning was one of the longest ever made at Ebbets field, the ball soaring high over the right field fence. His second homer in the eighth inning came with Koenig on base. By innings:

PHILADELPHIA, April 13—(U. P.)—A seven-run rally in the fifth inning enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to defeat the Phillies today and gain an even break in the spring series. Each team won two games. Today's score was 11 to 6. By innings:

Athletics	2	1	0	1	7	0	0	0	0—	11	14	1
Phillies	0	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	3—	6	10	3

Batteries: Grove, Rommel, Walberg and Cochrane; McGraw, Collins, Sweetland, Ferguson and Davis.

Red Scalp Indians.

CINCINNATI, O., April 13—(U. P.)—Red Lucas looked the best of three pitchers used by Manager Hendricks today and earned the opening day assignment for the Reds. Hughie Critz' double over Bib Falk's head won the game for the Reds in the tenth inning, 7 to 6. By innings:

Cleve	0	0	1	1	2	0	0	0	2—	6	9	1
Cinci.	0	1	0	5	0	0	0	0	1—	7	16	2

Batteries—Holloway, Zinn, Ferrell and L. Sewell, Myatt; Lucas, Luque, Donohue and Sukeforth.

Making Good as "Big Time" Coach.

MR. AND MRS. FRED C. THOMSEN.

Another Nebraska boy made good in "big time" coaching circles when Fred C. "Teribie" Thomsen, former Cornhusker football and baseball athlete, was promoted to the position of director of athletics at the University of Arkansas. Thomsen follows Francis Schmidt, another ex-Huseker, who moved to Texas Christian university.

Thomsen enrolled at the University of Nebraska from Minden and during his varsity days played an end and halfback position on the football team and was catcher and outfielder during the baseball season. Thomsen maried a Lincoln girl., Sunbeam Burton, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Turton, 3227 Starr street.

Brass Tacks by Cy Sherman

A. A. U. Czars Weaken. Chip On His Shoulder. Is Stagg Consistent? Cinders for the Ashcan.

SPORT directors of American colleges evidently are getting somewhere in the war they have been waging to smash the control of athletics usurped by the Amateur Athletic Union. The first sign that the czars of the A. A. U. were weakening was manifested when Avery Brundage, a western man and former Big Ten conference athlete, was elected to the presidency of the so-called "amateur" union.

In office long enough to take a survey of the national situation, during which period he has become convinced that the union has some fences that badly need fixing, Mr. Brundage recently issued a statement in which he invited constructive criticism of the union's policies and asked the college men to meet with him and his associates for a general discussion and get-together movement designed to clean the union's house.

As spokesman for the colleges of the middlewest region, particularly the Big Ten conference, of which latter body he is commissioner of athletics, Major John L. Griffith has replied to President Brundage, giving notice, in effect, that college sport never will consent to wear the A. A. U. yoke. In a formal statement, Major Griffith says in part:

"MR. AVERY BRUNDAGE, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, and Mr. Gustavus T. Kirby, past president of this organization, have recently issued statements to the effect that the A. A. U. has not kept up with the growth of the country and have suggested that it should be reorganized. Mr. Brundage, in his statement released to the press, is quoted as saying that 'There is ground for criticism and need for complete rejuvenation of the A. A. U.' Mr. Kirby, in a pamphlet containing a discussion of amateur athletics, states 'That the A. A. U. has at last come to realize the deplorable situation in which it finds itself.'

"For 40 years, the A. A. U. has been attempting to serve as the Links' Manager Predicts Pitcher Will Line Up For 1929 Season.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Return of Pitcher Ernie Krenk to the fold, an event forecast for an early date, will forge the final link and complete the chain of preparations by the Lincoln club for participation in the Nebraska State league pennant chase. Krenk has been at his home in Dwight since he was sent back by the Milwaukee Brewers, minus a fair test of his ability to make the grade, but Manager Bob Browne of the

NEBRASKA HIGH CINDER SQUADS FACE CAMPAIGN

Relays at Hastings Fired First Gun; Track Fest At Callaway Friday and York Invitation Dated For Saturday Features Of This Week's Card.

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE.

Tuesday—Banacroft, Lyons, Scribner triangular meet.

Wednesday — Fairbury dual at Wymore. Scribner, Lyons, Oakland triangular at Oakland.

Friday—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway. Relay carnival at Grant. Red Willow county meet at McCook. Plattsmouth dual at Asland. Humboldt, Dawson, Table Rock triangular at Humboldt. Oshkosh dual at Lisco. Hildreth dual at Minden. Tobias dual at Dewitt.

Saturday—York college invitation meet. Clay county meet at Clay Center. Harlan county meet at Alma. Crete, Wilber, Dewitt triangular meet at Wilber. Bancroft, Rosalie, Pender triangular meet.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The track curtain having been lifted with the Hastings relays yesterday the cinder season in Nebraska interscholastic circles will be on full force this week, with the Seven Valleys meet at Callaway next Friday as the first major event on the sport card.

The Seven Valleys compet, with Supt. W. A. Rosene in charge, is always one of the red letter events on the interscholastic card. This season should prove no exception, with 37 schools already signifying their intention to enter the competition and the prospect that this number will top the 40 mark by the time of the meet.

Three Classifications.

The Callaway trackfest includes three classes—senior, junior and girls. Gothenburg copped the senior division last season and is in the running this year, with North Platte and Cozad figured to give close argument. Mullen, second to Overton in the junior event last year, is touted as the junior favorite this season. Callaway won the girls class last season and expects plenty of competition from a field which includes Elm Creek and Sargent.

Southwest Nebraska track fans will have their interest divided between the Red Willow county meet at McCook and the relay carnival at Grant.

County meets of interest in the south section include the Clay county meet at Clay Center and the

Classic Looms When Bobby and Horton Clash In Open

Jones Due to Emerge From Temporary Retirement When Nation's Wizards of Links Strive for Mastery On New York Course; Smith, Farrell, Hagen and Elite of Scotch Game Booked to Make Their Bid for High Honors In National Compet Dated For Final Week In Month of June.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The advance billing for golfdom's biggest show, featuring a couple of gentlemen by the name of Jones and Smith, was out today with a whoop and a bang. The show will go on at the Winged Foot golf club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 27, 28 and 29, in the guise of the thirty-third competition for the national open championship and, what with this fellow Jones, the well known Robert T., and that fellow Smith, alias Horton, no title event in the history of golf in America has had quite the sparkle and appeal of this one.

Mr. Jones Also Present.

Jones, of course, always is Jones and will be until such time as age and the demands of his profession rob him of his own. In this championship, he will be making the first of two public appearances he has allotted himself during the tournament year. In this championship, he will attempt to add lustre to a record that includes two titles and two ties in the last five years, to say nothing of four amateur championships and two victories in the British open.

One could ask no more than to see this golfer of the ages come out of the semi-retirement for a supreme effort, which possibly might be his last. There have been dark hints that Robert soon may withdraw himself from circulation altogether.

Most Everybody Else.

So much for what one could ask. What one will get is something considerably better. Not only will the starters include Farrell, who beat Jones in a title play-off last year; Hagen, 1928 British open champion, and all the good ones who have been around for years, but also the reigning sensation of the winter season, Horton Smith, a man seemingly capable of matching consistent brilliance with Jones himself.

Many a good man has tried that before and failed. But that fellow Smith, winner of seven or eight big money tournaments, seems to have proved that there can be no monopoly on sensationalism. Judged on his record, Smith is the first golfer of recent years who is qualified to take a permanent issue with the greatest of them all.

The Official Details.

The details of the affair, announced today by the championship committee of the United States Golf association, are of peculiar interest, therefore the championship proper will be governed by the customary schedule, calling for two rounds of 18 holes each on June 27 and 28 and the reduction of the field overnight to the first 60 low scores and ties for the 36 holes that will wind up the business on June 29.

The 72 holes thus contested will determine the order of the finish, provided there is no tie for the big money. If there is, it will be played off the following day on the basis of 36 holes, morning and afternoon.

Prizes for the Good Ones.

In the event that Mr. Jones or some other amateur is the winner, he will get a gold medal, custody of the championship cup for a year and the usual chamber of commerce greeting. If a pro gets away with it, he will get the medal, the cup, the greeting and $1,000 "in money," as the committee is careful to phrase it. The rest of the prize money, totalling $5,000 in all, will be scaled down from $750 for second place to $50 each for those finishing from sixteenth to twentieth inclusive.

A total of 150 players will be eligible for the championship rounds at Winged Foot and quite a number of them won't have to

WEEPING WATER DEFEATS AVOCA

AVOCA, Neb., April 13—Weeping Water high defeated Avoca in an exciting 11-inning game here yesterday, 10-9.

The eleventh inning was the real thriller of the afternoon. Snipes of Weeping Water in the eleventh hit a home run with a runner on the sacks. Pitcher Benicke of Avoca hit for the circuit in the last of the eleventh, but the bases were empty.

Weeping Water plays at Lincoln high next Tuesday.

Batteries—Bickford and Snipes for Weeping Water; Benicke and Carver for Avoca.

Nebraska Cage Teams Top Big 6 Conference In Getting the Money

Cornhusker football already is setting the pace for the Missouri Valley region, from the standpoint of attendance records, and University of Nebraska basketball is coming into its own. The 1928-29 Cornhusker quintet played to the largest crowds in Nebraska cage history, according to figures announced Saturday by John K. Selleck, business manager of athletics.

Crowd Totals for Season.

Crowd totals for the 16 games of the past season's schedule shows that 38,500 witnessed the Cornhusker cagers in action. The home attendance was 23,180, while the crowds away from home totalled 15,320. Estimates are made of attendance at the Drake, Colorado and South Dakota games. Other figures are actual "gate count."

The largest crowd of the season was 5,874 spectators at the Missouri game in Lincoln, the opener of the Big Six conference season. The Tigers drew $650 as their share of the gate. Other Big Six schools that received more than the "guarantee" were Oklahoma and Kansas, attendance at these games each topping 3,000 figure.

Coliseum Did It.

Basketball interest and the fine University of Nebraska coliseum made possible the Nebraska record attendance, according to those in charge of athletics at the Cornhusker institution.

While Nebraska paid visiting teams more than their guarantee on three occasions, the Cornhuskers collected a bonus but once, that being on the crowd of 3,768 at Oklahoma.

According to Business Manager of Athletics John K. Selleck, basketball showed a surplus for the first time during the 1928-'29 season.

Books Show Profit.

The balance on the credit side was $2,912.95, whereas during the 1927-28 schedule the cagesters failed to break even.

However, the above figures do not include coaches' salary, medical attendance, floor cost and advertis-

Bunionists Accused Doing Their Running On Soft Auto Seats

CAMBRIDGE, O., April 13—(I. N. S.)—That some of C. C. Pyle's cross country bunioneers are riding in automobiles was the charge hurled here today by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Gracy and C. C. Bird. Bird and Gracy, who were assigned the task of patroling the road between Wheeling, W. Va., and this city, declared that at different times during yesterday's run they saw a least a dozen of the runners in automobiles.

They stated that they could substantiate their statement, if need be, by the tesimony of several individuals, who also saw some of the racers in automobiles.

Dissension In Ranks.

Dissension exists within the ranks of the runners, the deputies of Guernsey county continued. They related an incident at the close of the race yesterday, when one runner, who had just arrived, flung an oath at the official timekeeper and pointed to another runner indignantly asking "How did that—— get here ahead of me? He never passed me on the road."

The town as a whole is also indignant, according to the sheriffs, because of alleged "fakes" by followers of the "show" or carnival which is accompanying the derby participants.

Gavuzzi Goes Ahead.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 13—(I. N. S.)—Peter Gavuzzi, England, was leading Ed Garner, Seattle, Wash., negro, by 29 minutes at the end of the fourteenth lap of C. C. Pyle's trans-continental bunion derby here this afternoon. The official elapsed times are: Gavuzzi, 89:39:52; Gardner, 90:03:55. Salo, Passaic, N. J., still was in the money at the end of today's 24 miles run from Cambridge. His elapsed time is 94:44:52.

Pennant Odds Fluctuate With Moods of Finicky Stars

Ball Clubs Once Rated As Having Chance Cop Flags Tumble In Dope

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, April 13—(I. N. S.)—As the big league pennant races get underway, the odds on several of the 16 contenders have fluctuated because of various late developments, including injuries in exhibition games, and bad feeling aroused between players and their managers.

Tigers Tumble In Dope.

In most of the hot stove league forecasts, the Detroit Tigers were picked to finish ahead of Washington in the American league scramble. Due to the squabble between Manager Bucky Harris and a small clique on the Detroit club, headed by Harry Heilmann, the Tigers are now rated as second division material. Most of the experts figure that the motor city crew will suffer from internal dissension, although to all intents and purposes Bucky and Handsome Harry have kissed and made up, with Harry promising to stay on his good behaviour in the future.

Senators Working.

The splendid showing made by the Senators in their exhibition games, coupled with the eagerness of the players to do or die for dear old Walter Johnson, have led the experts to concede the Nats a good chance of landing a first division berth.

At first it had been thought that some of the Washington players would take advantage of Old Barney's amiability and loaf through their training, but apparently every member of the team has been working his head off for the former pitching ace. The Nats captured 10 of their first 10 starts against National league teams.

Row In Mack Camp.

Bad blood among the Philadelphia Athletics became apparent when Susce, fiery young catcher of the Phillies, started a fist fight with a certain member of the A's during an exhibition game. Instead of going to the rescue of their team mate in the time-honored manner, several members of the Athletics were heard to offer the belligerent backstop vocal encouragement.

Connie Mack's public announcement that he was "thoroughly disgusted" with his team did nothing to ease the situation.

Bush On Warpath.

Donie Bush went on the warpath soon after the Pittsburgh squad reached training camp, and informed the Pirates that they would not be allowed to play poker for keeps. Uncle Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers issued a similar ultimatum to his nephews.

Pirates Hard Hit.

These mild excitements were as nothing, however, to the epidemic of injuries which hit both Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. All the Robins except Herman and Bissonette were laid up at one time or another. Pie Traynor, crack Pirate infielder, has been handicapped by a hip injury and Ray Kremer, star right-hand pitcher, is suffering from leg trouble again. Bush has been shuffling Traynor, Adams, Bartell, Grantham, Stroner and others around in the infield in an effort to find the right combination.

Paul Waner's Holdout.

And Paul Waner's persistence in holding out was Bush's crowning grief.

The St. Louis infield also has been shifted around like a New York policeman but the Cardinals are now being picked by many observers to finish higher than the Bucs.

Some of the experts are also forecasting that the St. Louis Browns will grab the pennant in the American League. They figure that the uncertainty surrounding Pitchers Pennock and Moore and the light hitting of Durocher and Lary will hurt the Yankees, and that injuries and apathy will hold the Athletics back.

Sox Going Nowhere.

The Shires-Cissell "insurrection" upset the White Sox quite a bit, but the Sox were going nowhere in the first place and the dissension on the club will only help them to get there sooner.

The Phillies were all set for a big drive to finish sixth in the senior circuit, but the loss of Thevenow probably will just about ruin them.

While the pennant prospects of the above-mentioned clubs have changed more or less due to late developments, the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants look every bit as strong as they did on paper two months ago. They are still hot tips to grab the first places in the National league race.

CHOPPY'S SQUAD AWAY TO SOUTH

Nebraska U. Baseballers Hit the Road to Play Sooners, Tigers.

Harvey Grace, hard-hitting outfielder and first-sacker, will be a member of the Cornhusker baseball squad which pulls away Sunday afternoon for games with Oklahoma and Missouri. Grace's place on the squad was doubtful because the Mascot pastimer has just been released from the hospital.

Grace's presence on the team roster removed Jake Maser, who has been nursing an injured digit which has kept him on the sidelines during a number of practice workouts. Members of the party, in addition to Coach "Choppy" Rhodes and Student Manager Ray Hall, are:

Pitchers—Theodore Pickett, Clair Sloan, Henry Armatis, Joe Pochop, Williard Urban.

Catchers—Meredith Williams, Harold Halbeisen, Russell Snygg.

Infielders—Lloyd Betts, Marshall Keyes, Glen Ullstrom, Laverne Williams.

Outfielders—Harvey Grace, Willard Witte, Gilmore Decker, James Row.

Tuesday and Wednesday games are scheduled with Oklahoma at Norman. The two games with the Missouri Tigers at Columbia are scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

WOODMEN CLUB AT HAVELOCK SUNDAY

The Modern Woodmen No. 969 will play a practice baseball game at Havelock today at 2 o'clock.

High School Track.

ZORN HAS TRIO OF VETERANS.

BURWELL, Neb., April 13.—Coach Wilbert Zorn has three lettermen on his Burwell high school track squad. The veterins are J. Gaukel, sprints and broad jump; M. Thompsen, 440-yard and pole vault, and O. Hoyt, hurdles and jumps.

New men of promise include J. Cronk, javelin; J. Rouse and S. Finas, distances; L. Webb, hurdles; A. Anderson, sprints. The schedule:

April 19—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway.

April 26—Wranglers relays at Burwell.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

DEWITT HAS FOUR VETERANS.

DEWITT, Neb., April 13.—Dewitt high has good prospects this year with fourteen candidates, including four lettermen, reporting to Coach Noerrlinger.

Brier in his first try at the broad jump leaped 20 feet 5 inches. Schaff runs the furlong in 23 seconds and heaves the shot close to 42 feet. Presnell also heaves the iron ball around 42 feet. The other veteran is Norton in the discus and vault.

Promising candidates include Delay and Lake, distances; McEntarffer and Petersen, half-mile; Weibel, sprints and hurdles; Shumard, hurdles. The schedule.

April 16—Wilber at Dewitt.

April 19—Tobias at Dewitt.

May 3—Southeastern meet at Beatrice.

May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

BEAVER CITY INVITATION MEET.

BEAVER CITY, Neb., April 13.—Beaver City high will sponsor an invitation meet to be held here Saturday, April 27. Fifteen teams from southwest Nebraska and northern Kansas have enrolled.

Track lettermen reporting to Coach S. A. Woodbury include Captain Larsen, all-around athlete in the distances, high jump and quarter-mile; Babcock, distances; Campbell, half-mile and 440-yard dash; Coffey, javelin and discus. Promising new mterial includes Longsine, sprints; Brunning, distance, Borngroves, pole vault, and Davis, heights.

FALLS CITY MEET LISTED.

FALLS CITY, April 13.—Invitations have been extended 20 southeast Nebraska and northeastern Kansas schools to participate in the Falls City Journal fifth annual track and field championships to be staged here Wednesday, April 15.

Tecumseh has won class A for the pass three years. The classification of teams.

Class A—Tecumseh, Auburn, Pawnee City and Falls City in Nebraska; Sabetha and Hiawatha in Kansas.

Class B—Honey Creek, Verdon, Salem, Dubois, Humboldt, Dawson, Stella, Shubert, Sacred Heart (Falls City) and Rulo of Nebraska; Highland, Hamlin, Morrill and Reserve of Kansas.

NEW MEN ON CRETE SQUAD.

CRETE, Neb., April 13.—Although over 40 candidates are reporting for track at Crete high school this season, the only veterans are Captain Shepherd, dashes; Ervin Ewegen, discus; and Theodore Fahrnbruch, javelin.

The big point winners of the past three seasons were graduated last spring, the outfit including Hokuf, Aller, Parker, Stedman and Mitchell. Hokuf, Parker and Stedman were members of the 1928 championship high school pentathlon team.

Robert Gibb, former North Loup athlete, showing promise of being a good sprinter, while Glen Jessup, former Wymore athlete, is showing good form in the hurdles. Noyce is clearing 10 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and getting good results with the javelin. Delwin Dunlap and Harold Robb look good in the middle distances and Howard Stedman, Norman Smith, Otto Kublicek and oJe Shebl give promise in the distances. John Parlick, Brick Muff, Ed Kenney and Heyhoe are working in the short sprints.

Warnke, Rietfors and Robb are the jumpers; Shepherd and Gibb have been getting around 40 feet with the shot, and Rietfors, Taylor and Fahrnbruch are working on the pole vault.

Other members of the squad showing promise include Freeouf and Rhea, weights. Baker, Kobes and Yant, jumps; Henning, Vesatka, Schmitt, Roland, Sigmon and Stromer, mile; Norton, Connelly, Peeken, 880-yard run; Wagner, Hicks and Atteberry, quarter-mile. The schedule:

April 20—Triangular meet at Crete.

April 26—Wesleyan invitation meet at Lincoln.

May 3—Southeast Nebraska meet at Beatrice.

May 4—Hastings college invitation meet.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

TRACK INTEREST AT HUMBOLDT.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., April 13.—Track interest is enjoying a big boom at Humboldt high school this season. It is the second year of track here, but Coach M. C. Huff has forty men in suit, and increase of 30 over last year.

Frank Jenkins, hurdler is the only letterman on the squad. Others showing up well include Earl Fergus, Owen Rist, Leonard Proctor, Wilbur Bourne, Dale Reid, and Earl Schuler in the field events and Willard Randolph, George Doriand, Austin Glathar, Merriwell Hodapp, Otto Kotouc, Harold Hudson and Robert Montgomery on the cinders. The schedule:

April 16—Pawnee City dual at Humboldt.

April 19—Humboldt, Dawson, Table Rock triangular at Humboldt.

May 3—Little Ten of Richardson county meet at Humboldt.

May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.

HILDRETH SQUAD IMPROVES.

HILDRETH, Neb., April 13.—Hildreth finished in a tie for second place in a quadrangular meet at Franklin last Wednesday. Minden won the meet with 56 points. Franklin and Hildreth each scored 42 3-5 points and Bloomington finished fourth with six points.

Lettermen reporting to Coach R. E. Arehart include Eugene Mars, weights and jumps; Ford Neubauer, sprints, hurdles and vault; Irvin Schwartz, jumps and the hurdles; Earl Gitt, hurdles and broad jump. Promising new material include Otto Lenser, Randolph Soker, Wilbur Carpenter, Edward Braams and Burdett Smith. The schedule:

April 19—Dual at Minden.

April 26—Dual at Franklin.

April 27—Beaver City invitation meet.

Three Games This Week In Playgrounds Loop

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Monday—Jackson high vs. Bethany at University Place.

Friday—Lincoln vs. Bethany at Bethany; Jackson high vs. Teachers College high at Teachers field.

Three contests o fthe Greater Lincoln league playgrounds baseball schedule are slated to be played this week, bringing into action Lincoln, Jackson high, Bethany and Teachers College high, the four competing teams of the loop circuit. Lincoln high defeated Teachers College high last week, 8-3, in the initial contest of the schedule.

The Bethany-Jackson high game, carded for Monday on the Jackson high diamond, originally was scheduled for last Friday. The change in the date was made because of a school dramatic production at Bethany.

Lawrence Soiman, president of the Toronto club of the International league, went south to his training camp on a honeymoon.

HI YOUTHS BOW TO OLD-TIMERS

Brownies Downed, 13 to 6, In Spring Combat With Alumni.

Former football stars of the Lincoln high gridiron returned to action Saturday and defeated a picked high school outfit in the capital city oval, 13-6, as the feature exhibition of the Red and Black spring practice season. The alumni team was composed largely of members of the 1927 all-victorious state championship team, a large percentage of the group being represented on the present grid roll of the University of Nebraska.

Lack of practice prohibited any dazzling offensive play from the hands of the alumni, but the "old-timers" held sway throughout the game and succeeded in teaching the 1929 prospective gridsters many of the finer points of football.

Intercepted Pass.

John Stone, '27 quarterback, intercepted a forward pass early in the second quarter and raced 60 yards for the first alumni touchdown. Stone had replaced Boulter in the alumni backfield, the latter having injured his leg in the skirmish. A series of line bucks and end runs carried the alumni within the high school's one-yard line shortly afterward, but Bill Weir, diminutive Lincoln end and brother of Ed Weir, recovered a fumble that stopped the procession. Another unsuccessful attempt to score followed when Packer's forward pass to Folger was incomplete over the Lincoln goal.

Fowles Also Scores.

Fowles, Lincoln halfback, intercepted a Packer pass late in the first half and ran 40 yards to a touchdown, knotting the count at 6-all at half-time. A Schmitt-to-Masterson pass for the extra point failed.

When Coach W. H. Browne substituted freely into the Red and Black ranks in the last two minutes of play, alumni gridsters ripped through the revamped Lincoln defense and scored, a Packer-to-Perry forward pass for 25 yards registering the tally. Packer's pass to Poore on a fake kick play garnered the extra point.

Masterson Intercepts.

Masterson intercepted an alumni forward pass on the 30-yard line in the fourth period, which represented the high school squad's only scoring opportunity of the second half. Four ensuing attempted forward passes, however, were incomplete.

Harvey Bauer and Claude Austin, captains of the '26 and '27 elevens, respectively, and Perry, Packer, Koster, Boulter and Kiesselbach, all members of the Cornhusker grid squad, starred for the alumni. Raugh of the 1926 team and Tindall of the '27 outfit also did some dazzling for the alumni. Masterson, Sauer and Bauer were the chief strength of the Lincoln offense, while Sauer was the main cog in the defensive play. Prestegaard, Schmitt and Kneeland starred on the line.

AMATEUR GOLF

Edited by GREGG McBRIDE

STATE MEETING TUESDAY.

Directors of the Nebraska State Golf association are expected to gather in Omaha next Tuesday to formulate plans for the coming season on the links.

Foremost of importance will be the selection of a site for the 1929 tournament and emissaries from the Lincoln Country club plan to be on the scene to renew their invitation to stage the annual state classic.

Reports from Omaha indicate that the Lincoln Country club and the Omaha Country club are in the running for the tourney location. The capital city golfers presented the first bid and will renew this invitation at the Tuesday meeting.

CHAMP LIKES NEW COURSE.

Foye Porter of the Happy Hollow club, Omaha, was a Monday visitor in Lincoln. While in the city he inspected the Lincoln Country club course and declared it ideal for a tourney site.

Porter's okay on the L. C. C. site carries considerable weight, as the Happy Hollow player is the state champion as well as president of the state association.

COURSES BUSY SATURDAY.

The fine weather Saturday had the golf courses crowded, with big turnouts at each club. Antelope club proved the most popular, with a waiting list at the first tee most of the day.

A bumper turnout is anticipated today, weather permitting. A blind bogey contest at Antelope park will enliven the day for the muny golfers.

WOMEN IN TOURNAMENT.

Golf is a part of the athletic program mapped out by the women's department of physical education at the Univeristy of Nebraska. A tourney for women will open at Antelope next week.

BIG DAY FOR DEKLOTZ.

Paul Deklotz, Antelope club golfer, enjoyed a big day Saturday. He won the blind bogey contest and in addition shot a hole-in-one. Deklotz pitched over the creek to sink his tee shot on the 90-yard No. 8. His net of 78 plus a 10-stroke handicap gave him the bogey winning number of 88.

PROS TO MEET MONDAY.

Lincoln golf professionals will journey to Omaha Monday for the first annual meeting of the Nebraska Golf Professionals association. Election of officers and a round of golf over Happy Hollow course is on the books.

Reigh Count Lugs Plenty of Weight

NEWBURY, Eng., April 13—Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 Kentucky derby, failed again in his second start in England when he finished far back in the Newbury Spring Cup today.

The handicap was won by William Barnett's Athford, which ran second in the Lincolnshire. Mrs. G. H. Drummond's Gang Warily was second and B. Warner's Residue third.

The American champion was asked to carry 126 pounds and may have found the burden troublesome. The winner carried only 103 pounds.

Twenty horses started in the mile race, valued at $7,500.

Soon Fell Behind.

Jockey Chick Lang got Reigh Count away to a good start and on even terms with the rest of the field, but after the first few strides the American horse weakened and began to fall behind. From that time on he was not a serious contender. He edged over toward the rail and raced in the second group of laggards the entire distance.

When Reigh Count was led from his stable, wearing a flowing yellow robe, one of the foremost paddock experts of Great Britain commented on the haughty carriage of the American horse, as contrasted with the more humble bearing of some of the other horses.

The American horse was the center of an admiring crowd while being stripped of his blanket and being mounted by Jockey Lang.

Athford, the winner, ran second to Elton in the Lincolnshire handicap.

The betting odds today were 11 to one against Reigh Count. Five other horses were favored by shorter odds.

Snow Storm Blocks Beantown Ball Game

BOSTON, Mass., April 13—(U. P.)—Snow prevented the Boston Red Sox and the Braves from meeting in a city series baseball game today.

NEW MARKS AT HASTINGS MEET

Eleven Records Broken In Annual Carnival On Cinders.

HASTINGS, Neb., April 13—The breaking of 11 meet records featured the third annual Hastings relays Saturday afternoon, 400 college and high school athletes being represented in the competition.

Hastings college athletes carried off the major share of the college trophies, by scoring in nearly all the events. Hertz of Peru Teachers set new records in the shot and discus, heaving the iron ball 45 feet 10 inches and hurdling the platter 128 feet 1 inch. Mendel of Yankton college set a new mark of 23 feet in the broad jump and won the 100-yard dash in 10 1-10 seconds.

Friend high, coached by Avard Mandery, former University of Nebraska athlete, won the medley and 40-yard relays in the high school section.

Ray Alf, former Doane college athlete, was clocked in 30 8-10 seconds in a special 300-yard race.

High School Relays.

440 yards—Won by Friend (Baier, Nesbitt, Froelich, Stewart); second, Gothenburg; third, Nelson. Time, 46 3-10 seconds. (New record).

Javelin throw—Won by Andrews, Wayne; second, Bassett, Hastings; third, McCrady, Hastings. Distance, 160 feet 4 inches.

STANFORD CLEANS UP IN TRACK MEET

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Stanford track stars, scoring clean sweeps in seven events and getting eight out of nine points in three more, walked through a meet with the Southern California conference all-stars here today. The score was Stanford 106 3-4 to 33 1-4 for the all-stars.

The third of the Waner boys, Travia, is getting a tryout with Des Moines.

ACROSS THE NET

BUMPER TENNIS SEASON.

What promises to be the greatest season in the history of Lincoln tennis is already under way. A string of seven clay courts, rated among the best in the middlewest, makes possible the optimistic outlook for the net sport in the capital city.

The Lincoln Tennis club plant at Antelope park was not completed until late spring and the 1928 season was slow in getting started. Favorable weather condition this year have permitted an early start and the club courts have been the scene of constant play.

PLENTY OF COMPETITION.

With the courts in first-class trim, the racquet-swingers have not been slow in settling down to business. J. D. Lau, Charles Warren, B. E. McProud, Earl Fullbrook and Joe Stanton are among the old standbys making an early appearance.

Lau is close to a daily customer on the courts, unfavorable weather being the only element that will keep "J. D." off the clay surface. His game has improved over last season, much to the discomfort of several youngsters who have taken him on in friendly tilts.

MAGEE REJOINS SQUAD.

Harold Magee again is swinging a racquet. After several seasons of absence from the court, he has returned to serve early notice on the Lincoln players that he will be in the running when the tournament spoils are divided this summer.

When he forsook the racquet sport, Magee was rated as one of the most promising players in the capital city circle. From the showing made in the first few sets of the season, he evidently has lost little of his cleverness.

VARSITY TEAM GETS READY.

Members of the University of Nebraska squad will make use of the Lincoln Tennis club courts for practice and matches. Big Six teams to appead in Lincoln this spring include Oklahoma, Iowa State and Missouri. Nebraska will play at Kansas and Kansas Aggies in addition to compeling in the Big Six conference championships at Ames, Ia.

While Cornhusker racquet-wielders are warming up, the tennis squads of Wesleyan and Cotner also are getting into action. The Methodists opened the season with a victory over York college.

BASEBALL, TENNIS AT RISING CITY

RISING CITY, Neb., April 13—Rising City high does not have a track team this spring, but is spending its time on baseball and tennis. The tennis prospects are not bright with Longacre as the only letterman in school.

A squad of twenty-five baseball candidates is reporting to Coach H. B. Manners. A series of interclass games started the season with the juniors holding a big edge. The regular team is coming along fast and is fortunate to have a pair of good pitchers in Bemis and Smith. The schedule:

April 19—Gresham at Gresham.

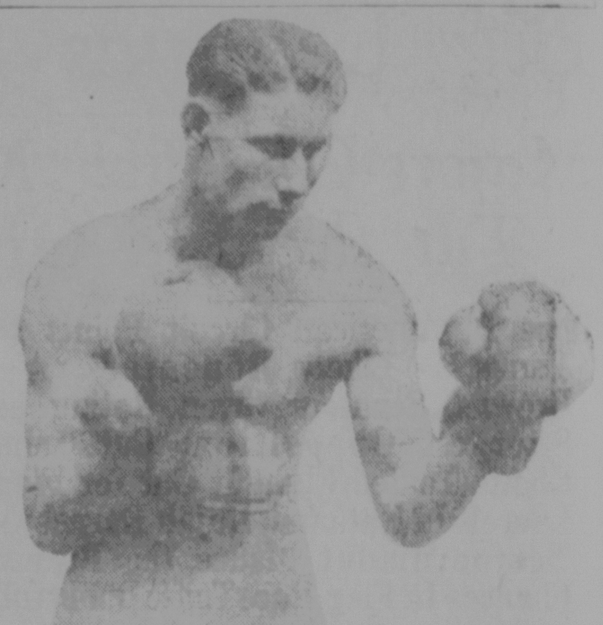
April 26—Octavia at Rising City.

May 3—Gresham at Rising City.

May 17—Bellwood at Bellwood.

Lee Head, catcher with the Jersey City club, is another graduate of University of Alabama baseball.

Omaha Boy On Lincoln Card.



Omaha's fighting Italian, Tony Gagliano, is booked to battle Vienna, Fort Crook soldier, in a four-round mitten rumpus on the National Guard Monday night card at the Liberty. Tony displayed his goods early in the season in Lincoln, taking the decision from Oklahoma Vanderveert and winning the plaudits of fight fans.

WINNING NINE AT DORCHESTER HIGH

DORCHESTER, Neb., April 13.—Baseball prospects are good at Dorchester high this season with a squad of 25 candidates, including seven lettermen, reporting to Coach Hungate.

The lettermen are Kennard Powell, pitcher; Robert Simmons, first base; Edward Nelson, second base; Gerald Willis, shortstop; Lester Horan, third base; Dale Simpson, outfield; and Kenneth Nicholson, outfield.

During the fall season Dorchester defeated Beaver Crossing, 21 to 0 and 9 to 2; and this spring beat Milligan, 5 to 0, and trimmed Milford, 10 to 8. The schedule:

April 19—Concordia Academy at Seward.

April 24—Milligan at Milligan.

May 3—Milford at Dorchester.

May 10—Concordia Academy at Dorchester.

May 17—Lincoln at Lincoln.

SUPERIOR SEEKS FOOTBALL GAME

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 13.—Superior high is in the market for a football game to be played at home Sept. 27. Prospects are fairly bright for next fall with six veterans and a majority of the reserves expected to return. The grid slate:

Sept. 27—Open.

Oct. 4—Aurora at Aurora.

Oct. 11—Hebron at Superior.

Oct. 18—Red Cloud at Red Cloud.

Oct. 25—Fairbury at Superior.

Nov. 11—Nelson at Superior.

Nov. 15—Nastings at Superior.

Nov. 22—Burr Oak at Burr Oak, Kas.

Nov. 28—Geneva at Geneva.

High School Track.

THIRTY OUT AT HOLDREGE.

HOLDREGE, Neb., April 13.—Holdrege high has thirty men out for track this spring, Coach Delbert Leffler being in charge of the squad.

Outstanding early season marks are Matson, 5 feet 6¼ inches in high jump; Logedon, 5 feet 5 inches in high jump; Brewster, over 40 feet with shot; Nelson, 180 feet with javelin; Harmon, 2 minutes 10 seconds in half mile; Aten, 56 seconds in 440-yard dash.

Coach Leffler is devoting considerable time with junior high athletes, working the youngsters toward winning junior high numerals. The senior high schedule.

April 26—Southwest Nebraska meet at Gothenburg.

May 4.—Hastings invitation meet.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

O'NEILL SHY VET MATERIAL.

O'NEILL, Neb., April 13.—Lack of veteran material makes the track outlook rather dark at O'Neill high school this season. Veterans reporting to Coach F. J. Brokenicky include Charles Graham, Hughes, Richard Tomlinson, discus and quarter-mile. A squad of sixteen is in suit.

The schedule which includes the Elkhorn meet also lists:

April 26—North Nebraska meet at Atkinson.

May 3.—Holt county meet at O'Neill.

May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

Hi Track Numerals.

Track numeral awards were granted the following Nebraska high school athletes Saturday by the University of Nebraska athletic department.

Full blue—Alonzo Miller, Imperial; Temple Egbert and Gordon Wickland, Valley; Clarke Adams, Merna; Ralph Eldrige and Dick Cockburn, Norfolk.

Half blue—Walter Pflum, Stanley Pribbins of Imperial; Mag Egbert, Valley.

Boy Wonder From Joplin Rated as Greatest In Golf

Tommy Armour Places Phenom of Ozarks In Class Above Bob Jones

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, April 13—Even while the golfing peers are still draping Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen with the garlands of link superlatives, there is a growing army which looks in the direction of a youth, not yet 21, and proclaiming with vehemence:

"This boy is the greatest golfer that ever lived."

Out of the Ozarks.

They are referring to Horton Smith, an unassuming, unsophisticated boy, just recently graduated from the Ozarks of Missouri. Horton Smith of Joplin, an unknown two years ago, rated as an "obscure golfer' last season and now demonstrating such amazing skill, such superb technique, such poise and calmness that Tommy Armour, former open champion, declares:

"Horton Smith can take the measure of any living golfer—and that includes Jones and Hagen. If there is any one who has ideas to the contrary, I'll bet them to the limit of my bankroll."

Learned On Nine-Hole Course

Smith learned the game on an unbunkered, flat, nine-hole course in Springfield, Mo. The first set of clubs he had were discarded wooden implements. As soon as he was able, he bought clubs of his own—and selected those with iron shafts. He has used none other since and insists that the standard of his play would jump from 5 to 10 strokes with wooden clubs.

The youthful Horton Smith never knew what a golf trap looked like until 1927, at the age of 18, he entered the national open tournament at Oakmont. He had some difficulty mastering them and finished up as No. 54 on the list that year.

Given Little Notice.

In 1928, he again took a crack at the championship. Of all the contestants, he attracted the least attention. For he was a boy, unheralded and unknown; "just some kid that fell off one of the Ozark mountains and never stopped rolling until he got here," as some caustic observer described him.

Little notice was taken of Smith, until he landed twenty-seventh on the list. That wasn't so good, but still it was high enough to make a few folks curious.

His Winter Campaign.

The experience the Joplin boy gained in those 1927 and 1928 tournaments, plus the tricks he learned playing around during those summers, decided Smith that he might have a fair chance in some of the contests played in the southland during the recent winter. So "the Boy from the Ozarks" packed his steel shafts and went into battle with the starriest pros in all of America.

In almost his first real competition—playing on the Oklahoma open—he gathered in his first championship with 288. That victory gave him the confidence that was needed. Having beaten stars, many of whom were twinkling before he was born, Smith swept through the ranks like a cyclone.

Unbelievable Figures.

He whipped Walter Hagen in the Catalina and California open. In so doing, he scored 245 for 72 holes—an average of less than 62 for 18 and a batch of figures that sound like crazy fiction, not solid fact.

Smith climaxed his brilliant work by winning the $15,000 La Gorce open, played in Florida, which earnings ran his winter total to a mark beyond $20,000 and which tops all winter season pickings in American golfing annals.

Confidence Personified.

Smith is a terrible driver, but so are many others who have been forced to bow to his prowess. He is brilliant in his work on the green. But in that he has plenty of company. He is calm and cool, confidence personified, with beautiful coordination of eye, mind and muscles. But hundreds of other golfers are that way and never have scaled to the Smithian heights.

"What then is the secret? What makes Smith greater than the others?" a man was asked who had been beaten by the Joplin wizard.

"It's the chip shot—that half-stroke of golf," was the answer "Even the greatest living golfers have difficulty in chipping; they either fall short of the pin or roll beyond it. But Smith is practically perfection itself in his chip shots, for he seems able with monotonous regularity, to drop his ball dead in front of the pin."

"And when a man can do that, and also can drive and putt, and have the poise of Smith, he is a world's champion."

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

One of the most interesting phases of golf is the large number of devices employed to correct errors or faults. Many of these carry certain powers of suggestion that frequently do a lot of good. I watched a well known instructor working over a certain golfer who was hooking the ball out of the county. The instructor at first suggested the correct swing that if followed would bring about a permanent cure. But as the player wanted swifter results, the teacher then suggested that he should hit the ball with the heel of the driver and brassie—to have that feeling of hitting with the heel. A golf ball struck off the toe of the club is usually hooked. One struck off the heel is usually sliced. By attempting to swing the heel of the club into the ball the player soon corrected most of the hooking fault. He at least was no longer swinging the club in a circle with the right hand entirely in control. To hit with the heel there must be much more use of the left hand. The two hands should hit together with the same force, but most golfers refuse to give the left hand and the left arm their chance to work. The idea of attempting to hit with the heel, thinking along these lines, will bring the left hand and left arms into more play, and will also have a tendency to reduce or eliminate any hooking fit.

There is another mental suggestion offered by both Vardon and J. H. Taylor. Both have suggested that the player pick out a spot directly in front of the ball for iron play and hit through that spot. If this advice is followed the club head isn't checked so quickly and there is a feeling of hitting "through" the ball, and not so much hitting "at" the ball. As a rule the power of the golf swing is applied much too soon—too far ahead of the impact. In place of swinging the club at increasing speed, the effort is usually a lunge or a wallop, and most of the force has been used up before the club head ever gets to its target. Picking out a spot just in front of the ball as the target will often bring about the needed delay in hitting—what is called "waiting on the blow."

What suggestion or cure is there for slicing? Slicing is nearly always caused by faulty pivoting or turning where the left side is checked or stopped too quickly. If the body is only partially turned on the back swing, or insufficiently turned, when the down swing starts the body is then quite naturally too far ahead of the hands, and the hands in turn are too far ahead of the clubhead. Slicing is one of the natural products of tension, of stopping the body before the weight is allowed to flow on the right foot, with the left shoulder and left hip correctly pivoted. George Duncan calls this fault "leaving the left shoulder behind." Let it take the full and unhampered trip.

Jock Hutchison says that the big difference between good golfers and poor golfers is that the good golfers keep back of the ball as they swing. This is true. And to keep back of the ball they must first get back of the ball, which simply means that they must let the weight get back of the ball on the right foot. If the weight is forward on the left leg at the top of the swing there is no possible chance to get back of the ball or to be there as the down swing starts.

What about missing those three and four foot putts? The best thing to remember when this rash breaks out is to get a more comfortable stance and to lighten the grip. This will help to reduce the tension which causes most of the trouble.

RED BIRDS WIN FROM BROWNIES

Cardinals Capture First Game of City Series By 2-1 Score.

ST. LOUIS, April 13—(U. P.)—Twelve thousands fans saw the St. Louis Cards trim the Browns, 2 to 1, in the first major league exhibition game of the season at Sportsman park here today. By innings:

Browns .....000000100—1 6 1
Cardinals ....00001001x—2 7 0

Batteries: Crowder, Coffman and Ferrell; Alexander, Sherdel, Haines and Jonnard, Wilson.

Rally Wins for Tigers.

DETROIT, April 13—(U. P.)—Tying the score with a three-run rally in the eighth inning, the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto International league club in the tenth today, 6 to 5. By innings:

Toronto ....0040001000—5 10 2
Detroit ....0000002301—6 13 0

Batteries: Cantrell, Martin, Naylor and Hulinger; Whitehill, Uhle, Burns, Vangilder and Shea, Phillips.

New York Postponement.

NEW YORK, April 13 — The Giants and the Washington Senators postponed their exhibition game today, the team managers refusing to risk pitching arms in the chilly weather. A Sunday game will round out the series, which now stands three to one in favor of the Senators.

Hookie Hits Three Homers.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13—(U. P.)—Pat Crawford, rookie infielder, hit three home runs today as the New York Giants second team defeated the Baltimore International league club, 10 to 6.

Pirates Trim Memphis.

MEMPHIS, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates came out on top today in their game with Memphis by the close margin of 2-1. The Pirates pulled ahead in the seventh when they picked up their two runs.

Cubs Shut Out Blues.

KANSAS CITY, April 13—(I. N. S.)—The Cubs again defeated the local team here when they whitewashed Kansas City by a score of 5-0 today. Carlson pitched for the Chicago nationals.

White Sox Drub Hoosiers.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13—(I. N. S.)—Tie games seem to be favorites with the White Sox and Indianapolis. Today the game went into 12 innings before the White Sox could come out ahead, 7-5. Lyons, Walsh and Conally were put on the mound today for the White Sox.

LEGION BACKING BASEBALL PLAN

Service Men Get Behind Summer Campaign For Lincoln Boys.

Organization plans for junior baseball teams to be promoted by the Lincoln post of the American Legion were announced Saturday by Bert Anderson, chairman of the committee in charge of the play.

The Lincoln Legionnaires plan a busy season of baseball for the youngsters, teams being made up of boys 16 years or under, regulations stating that boys born prior to Sept. 14, 1912, will be ineligible for junior play.

Thirty Lincoln Teams.

Organization plans call for at least 30 teams in Lincoln, competing in an elimination round, and a county tournament booked for June 27, 28 and 29. Winners will have an opportunity to qualify up through district, state, regional and national tournament play.

As an added incentive to boys to turn out for the junior squads, arrangements have been made to provide all members of junior teams with week day passes to Nebraska State league games at Landis field.

Baseball Meeting Monday.

Chairman Bert Anderson has called a meeting of team managers and sponsors for Monday, 7:30 p. m., at the American Legion hall, 1516 N street. He also announces that boys may call any member of the following committee to list their names as available for junior team play: Henry W. Andrews, B4422; Herman Yost, MO41; Werner Lehman, MO201W; H. E. Roland, F4541; Floyd Atkins, F6583; Al O'Dell, B4000; Herbert D. Gish, B6891; Bert Anderson, B1045.

In Front Rank of Derby Favorites

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 13—(U. P.)—Roguish Eye has again forged into the front rank of candidates for the Kentucky derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs. The son of Flittergold-Sly Wink was among the favorites during the winter, but did not show impressively in his early spring work.

During the past week, however, the big, strapping colt, owned by J. J. Coughlan has come along fast and is highly fancied by many shrewd horsemen. Rougish Eye is heavily bodied and requires a strong hand.

Jockey R. Jones, who still rides him in the derby arrived a week ago and seems to be able to handle him better than any previous jockey.

Trainer Highly Pleased.

Although Roguish Eye still seems to carry excess weight his trainer, Tiny Scofield, is pleased with the colt's present condition.

Roguish Eye was unquestionably one of the best juveniles of last year. He was beaten by a head by High Strung in the Futurity at Belmont park. That was Roguish Eye's last race. In his previous start in the American National Futurity at Arlington park, he came from fourteenth place to finish third to Double Heart and Clyde Van Dusen.

Reports from the east indicate that Harry Payne Whitney's Beacon Hill is a "dark horse" which will bear watching. The son of Broomstick-Yankee Maid is said to have shown brilliant form in his early trials.

Golden Bear Crew In Hollow Victory

OAKLAND, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Rowing with a magnificent and powerful stroke, the University of California varsity crew today defeated the University of Washington varsity by seven lengths over the three-mile estuary course here.

At no time after the first quarter-mile was the result of the race in doubt. Despite the gallant efforts of the Husky oarsmen, they could not cut down the lead of the Golden Bears, even when the latter reduced their stroke.

The two universities divided the other two races of the regatta—the twenty-sixth annual contest—with California winning the freshman race by a quarter of a length and the powerful Washington junior varsity defeating the California jayvees by three and one-half lengths.

California's time for the course was 15:14 4-5, which failed by less than six seconds to break the course record set by a California crew in 1923.

The Washington jayvees established a record for their class when they rowed the three-mile distance in 15:45. The old record was 16:26 2-5, established by Washington.

California's freshmen came to the end of their two-mile course in 10.37. The record for freshmen is 10:23, and was set by California.

Huskies Win On Cinders.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 13—(U. P.)—Led by Rufus Kiser and Steve Anderson, their national distance and hurdling champions, the University of Washington Huskies defeated the California Golden Bear trackmen, 75½ to 55½, here today.

Kiser, long legged, lean Husky runner, opened up the day's fireworks by running the four laps in four minutes and 21 seconds, the best time for the mile yet made on the coast this year.

Harry Carter of the Bears was a scant three yards behind the flying Kiser and was trailed by Cram of Washington.

High School Track.

FOUR PLATTSMOUTH VETERANS.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., April 13.—Four lettermen are reporting to Coach P. A. Rothert of Plattsmouth high school this track season. The veterans are H. Spangler, mile and shot; H. Meisinger, sprints and hurdles; H. Dew, hurdles, and Wiles quarter mile.

New men showing up well include Teepell, discus; J. Galloway, distances; Hennings and Lutz, sprints; McCleary, jumps; Yelick, mile and high jump; Herald Javelin; McCrary, hurdles; R. Warren and F. Warren, weights. The schedule:

April 19—Dual at Ashland.
April 26—Wesleyan invitation meet at Lincoln.
May 1—Dual at Nebraska City.
May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

SPRIN GWORK AT BANCROFT.

BANCROFT, Neb., April 13.—Spring athletics at Bancroft high school, under the supervision of Coach Romig Krause, are divided between track and baseball.

Lettermen out for track are O. Preuss, R. Bucklin, T. Tighe, H. Graff, P. Rembe and G. Novacek. Outstanding marks made include 10 feet 8 inch in the pole vault and 116 feet with the discus by Preuss; 5 feet 6 inches in the high jump and 40 feet 5 inches with the shot by Tighe; 19 feet in the broad jump and 5 feet 6 inches in the high jump by Bucklin. Graff and Novacek have been doing around 5 minutes in the mile. The schedule:

April 16.—Bancroft-Lyons-Scribner triangular.
April 20.—Bancroft-Rosalie-Pender triangular.
May 3.—N. E. C. A. meet at Oakland.

WEYANT BUSY AT GOTHENBURG.

GOTHENBURG, Neb., April 13.—Coach Harlan Weyant has a squad of 40 candidates out for track at Gothenburg high school this season. The squad includes five lettermen.

Veterans include Harold Barnes, all-around athlete, hurdles, sprints, discus, broad jump and shot; Glen Hampton, vault, broad jump and 100-yard dash; Barnes, hurdles, 220-yard dash; Lee Raetz, 440-yard ad 880-yard.

Rex Addie, freshman, looks like one of the "finds" of this section. He has been running second to aBrnes in the low hurdles and broad jump and has done 5 feet 7 inches in the high jump and 10 feet 9 inches in the pole vault.

Other good prospects include B. Atkinson, distances; C. Carlson, weights; O. Jenkins, hurdles; H. Caswell, jumps. The schedule:

April 19.—Seven Valleys meet at Callaway.
April 26.—Southwest Nebraska league meet at oOthenburg.
May 4.—Hastings invitation meet.
May 10-11.—State championships at Lincoln.
May 17.—Dawson county meet at Lexington.

DARK OUTLOOK AT WILBER.

WILBER, Neb., April 13.—Prospects for a winning track team are rather dark at Wilber high this season due to the small number of candidates out for the team. The squad includes Gaylord Littrell, Henry Prescott, Elmer Aksamit, Milo Smith, John Zwonechek, Robert Chase, Albert Janouch, Norman Prucha and Arthur Aksamit.

Prescot and Littrell are the outstanding candidates Prescot heaved the shot 44 feet 9 inches in practice, has hurled the javelin 152 feet 10 inches, the discus 105 feet and high jumped 5 feet 4 inches. Littrell is making good time in the sprints, having had two season experience. The schedule:

April 16—Dewitt at Dewitt.
April 20—Crete-Friend-Wilber at Crete.
April 26—Wesleyan invitation at Lincoln.
May 3—Southeast championships at Beatrice.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.
May 17—Saline county meet at Crete.

TABLE ROCK TRACK PROSPECTS.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., April 13.—The three lettermen reporting to J. W. Jones, Table Rock track coach, are Roy Shepherd, weights; Louis Jasa, weights and sprints; and Frank Smith, middle distance.

Promising new material includes Bain, sprints, Hubka, weights; Herrick, Stehlik, Morton, Harris and Townsend, distances; Tomek, high jump and weights. The schedule:

April 19—Humboldt-Dawsen-Table Rock at Humboldt.
April 26—DuBois, Burchard, Table Rock at DuBois.
April 30—Mudecas meet at Dunbar.
May 3—Southeast Nebraska meet at Beatrice.
May 4—M-I-N-K meet at Peru.
May 7—County meet at Pawnee City.
May 10-11 — State championships at Lincoln.

AURORA OPENS WITH VICTORY.

AURORA, Neb., April 13.—Coach Del Danker has three veterans on his Aurora high track squad. The lettermen are Captain Maurice Stenson, Max Hogg and Vic Jinson.

Stenson, running for the third season under Aurora colors, ranks among the best high school milers in the state. Hogg is showing good form in the dashes and Vic Johnson in the weights, jumps and hurdles.

New men of promise include Norbert Meismer, Charles Benson, Maurice Toof, Melvin Spray, Glen Cogil and Irvine Francis. The schedule opened with a 76⅓-71⅓ victory over Central City. The slate:

April 26-27—Wesleyan or Grand Island meet.
May 4—Hastings invitation meet.
May 10-11—State championships at Lincoln.

Rear-Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, played on the baseball team in the late eighties.

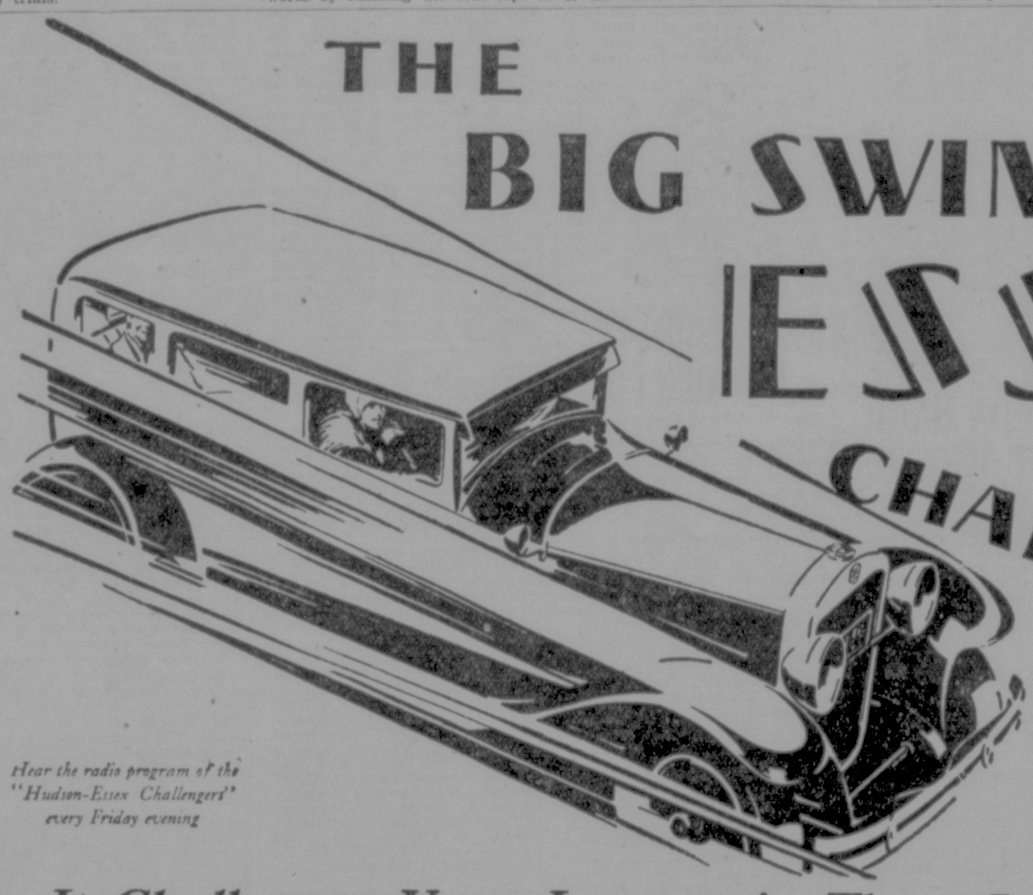
THE BIG SWING is to ESSEX THE CHALLENGER



Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening

It Challenges Your Interest in These Important Ways

EASY TO BUY

For Instance, the Coach $270 Down, and monthly Payments of $39.54

Your present car will probably cover the entire first Payment.

The H. M. C. Purchase Plan Offers the lowest available finance terms on the balance.

EASY TO OWN

On our own streets, here in Lincoln, Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 20½ mils per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Hundreds of records all over the country during "Challenger Week" prove Essex economy. Commercial users operating large flets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car they ever tested.

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in. That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their present cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives.

Max Chatters Much Like Heir to Kaiser Wilhelm's Job

Success of "Fritz" In Gotham Ring Inflates Berlin Boxer's Cranium

NEW YORK, April 13—If Max Schmeling is nothing else, he certainly is a youth who holds himself in rather extraordinary esteem.

Victory over the "all-in" Risko and the hysteria with which Schmeling's triumph was greeted, apparently has had the effect of giving Max an elaborately enlarged head, as the more gentle of the fancy might phrase it.

Forgetful of Knockouts.

Forgetful of the fact that he was knocked out by Gypsy Daniels, a terrible palooka, and also kayoed by Larry Gaines, who is ditto, and unmindful of the knowledge that he never beat a real good man in his life, Schmeling suddenly puts on airs, assumes almost a Prussian military pose, and all but "goose-steps" as he tells the folks in this part of the world what they are to do with reference to him.

Makes Piker of Sharkey.

Compared with Schmeling, this Jack Sharkey from up Boston way, always rated as the great "I" man of ringdom, is but a wispy little violet.

Schmeling can praise himself higher and show more disdain for old John Dominick Public and all his neighbors in two sentences than Sharkey could do in a year of press agent coaching!

And, beyond all that, Schmeling suddenly looks up as a young man who careth little about contracts, written or verbal, and who conducts himself as his temperamental moods dictate.

When Schmeling came to these parts, a pal of his earlier German days, one Buelow, was his manager. The contract was bona fide. But some time after reaching the United States, Schmeling and Buelow quarrelled.

Then Max announced that he had "fired" Manager Buelow and that henceforth the firm of Jacobs and McCarney would do his business.

After Schmeling beat Risko, the German sailed for his fatherland. Prior thereto, he accorded to the Jacobs-McCarney combination the right to make matches for him in the U. S. A.

Repudiation No. 2.

So the boys promptly signed Max to mix it with Paolino in June, the winner to meet Jack Sharkey for the whoop-la championship in September.

And now what do you think Maxie has done?

Nothing, except to cable over to these shores and make the attempt to repudiate the Paolino contract by taking the attitude:

"Let Paolino and Sharkey fight it out in June and I, who have established myself, will meet the winner for the championship. It is not necessary for me to fight anybody in June to prove my right to make my next fight for the title."

Mere Scraps of Paper.

Quaint situation, isn't it? Schmeling first repudiates Buelow, whose contract is regarded as absolutely binding by the New York State hooks up with Jacobs and McCarney and gives them full power to do his business. They sign him to fight Paolino and then Schmeling cables what is equivalent to a repudiation of their action. Contracts with Max? He seems to consider such as mere "scraps of paper!"

If you want to get a slant concerning Schmeling's idea of himself and his thoughts of his own greatness, it is easily possible through the medium of an exchange of cablegrams between Jack Dempsey and the lad from Germany who may prove to be one of the most overrated fighters of the past 10 seasons.

Dempsey Sends Cable.

When Dempsey took a plunge into the promotional ocean, he decided to sign up Schmeling to fight under his auspices via the simple process of getting Buelow, the duly authorized manager, to sign up in Schmeling's behalf. When Buelow had signed the articles, Dempsey sent this cable to Schmeling:

"I am signing you through your manager, Mr. Buelow, three matches, first for world's heavyweight championship, July 2, at Detroit. Put-ship belt, with diamonds, up for winner of championship. National and New York boxing commissions recognize Buelow as only manager. Building arena with seating capacity of approximately 100,000. Wire me when you leave for America, for me to prepare publicity. Max, this is your big chance. Best personal regards.

"JACK DEMPSEY."

That Haughty Reply.

Schmeling replied that he would refuse to box under any contracts which Buelow made, stated that Jacobs, partnered with McCarney, was his only manager and then, dipping his pen into his "personality perfume," sprayed himself as follows:

"If necessary, I will stay here until Buelow's contract expires. I can make plenty of money here now. I am as big here today as you were in the United States. Everywhere I go crowds follow me. I have been offered large sums to make movies. As for boxing, I can do that here. Joe Jacobs can promote and send for boxers in America. I will draw tremendous gates here.

"MAX SCHMELING."

Announcement of Schmeling's candidacy for the presidency of Germany is expected hourly! Or will Max prefer to restore—and grab for himself—Wilhelm's kaiser-ing job?

CAT PREPARED CLAW BIG BOY

which failed to materialize two years ago.

Emanuel will enter the ring at 177 pounds and Hudkins will weigh about 166, giving the San Franciscan a decided advantage in weight.

Odds Favor Emanuel.

Betting odds on the fight have fluctuated for several days, but now favor Emanuel at 10 to 8.

The swing of public fancy to Emanuel came when his trainers sent out the word that the fighter's injured right hand had mended and would be ready for hard service.

Emanuel made his final test of the supposedly ailing fist today, hammering away at two sparring partners. At the end of the sparring, he announced that everything was all right and that he felt he would enter the ring at top condition.

Cat All Set to Claw.

Hudkins' camp made no secret of the fact that the Nebraska "Wildcat" planned to use his famous driving and rushing tactics against Emanuel. The Ace predicted his aggressive style will wear down his opponent.

Most Los Angeles fight experts, however, side with Emanuel, despite Hudkins' threats and promises of annihilation. The weight and reach advantages of Emanuel, combined with superior boxing skill, will offset whatever edge Ace may pile up in forcing the fighting, it is thought.

Referee Not Yet Named.

The question of a referee may not be settled until a few minutes before the fight, according to an announcement today.

George Blake, manager of Fidel Labarba, and Jack Kennedy, naval officer, are considered the leading possibilities for the job.

MAJORS ON MARK TO TILT THE LID

many experts believe the Browns will show more strength this season. Others, however, believe the Browns played over their heads last year and will sink to fourth or fifth. The Browns have a strong pitching staff and have picked up two good rookies in Tut Jenkins, a hard hitting outfielder, and Rick Ferrell, a great catcher.

Giants and Cubs.

The Giants and Cubs are getting all the play in the National league. John J. McGraw's club is not much different from the one which chased the Cards to the wire last season.

The Giants will start the season with four pitchers they did not have at the opening of last season—Joe Genewich, Carl Hubbell, Carl Mays and Jack Scott. Bill Walker, who was ill most of last season, and Dutch Henry, who was suspended a larger part of the year, also are ready for duty.

Fred Leach has been added to the outfield and Ed Roush seems to have recovered from an injury which hampered his play last season.

Cubs Have Husky Attack.

With Cuyler, Stephenson, Wilson, Hornsby, Hartnett and Grimm in the lineup, the Cubs have one of the most powerful offensive teams in baseball. If Joe McCarthy can keep his pitchers working smoothly down through September, instead of burning them up during the summer drive, the Cubs are quite likely to finish one-two.

The Pirates have a strong offensive team, but the pitching is uncertain and the defense is not too stable. The Waners, however, make the Pirates dangerous.

Cardinals Not So Good.

The St. Louis Cardinals apparently have lost strength, but they have the pitching to stay in the first division and may possibly figure in the pennant race.

The Cleveland Indians, entirely rebuilt, and the Cincinnati Reds, strong defensively and in the box, are the dark horses in their respective leagues.

Kosky Runs Quarter Under 49 Seconds

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 13—(U. P.)—The University of Missouri defeated Washington university of St. Louis, 82 to 49, in a dual track meet here today in which Bill Kosky, veteran quarter-miler, established a new Missouri record of 48.8 in the 440-yard dash.

Jayhawks Down Aggies.

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 13—(U. P.)—The Kansas university baseball team won the second game of the series with the Kansas Aggies here today, 7 to 6, to even the count with the last year's champions of the Big Six conference.

Occidental college will play three football games by night in the Rose bowl at Pasadena, Cal.

STATE HI BOARD SANCTIONS MEETS

Official sanction was granted three more high school track and field meets Saturday by Secretary Walter I. Black of the Nebraska High School Athletic association. This brought the total of authorized meets for the season to 46 contests. The additions:

April 19—Quadrangular meet at Ulysses.

April 26—Deshler invitation meet.

April 27—Little Western Four conference meet at Lisco.

Voigt Wins Final Pinehurst Links

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13—(U. P.)—George Voigt, New York, successfully defended his north and south amateur golf title today, mastering William C. Fownes, jr., Pittsburgh, in the 36-hole finals, nine up and eight to play.

Voigt was four-up at the end of the first 18, after having a medal of 72, and easily disposed of his opponent in the afternoon round.

Van Ryn Conquers Japanese.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13—(U. P.)—John Van Ryn, sixth ranking American tennis star, proved his superiority over Sadadazu Onda, Japanese Davis cup player, today and won the men's singles of the north and south tennis tournament, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

GLOVE KNIGHTS ON MONDAY BILL IN LOCAL ARENA

ting, mixing type, has wrought no scare in the local boy's training quarters, but the fact is significant that Harold has prepared with more industry and zeal for his go with Garcia than in advance of any other combat of his fist-swinging career.

That Dusty Trail.

Harold has been hiking over dusty roads and hard pavements in a series of daily runs, building up his endurance, and working out at the local "Y" gym in a string of glove workouts designed to improve his boxing and add to his rare punching power.

The Lincoln boy tapered off Saturday in a short exchange with his sparring partners and was pronounced in the pink for the Garcia bout. Harold will devote both Sunday and Monday to a "going easy" program and expects to step into the ring at the Liberty in perfect physical fettle.

The business of giving away so much weight has provoked no worries in the Matthews camp and the Lincoln mite figures on superior condition and punching power to decide the Monday battle in his favor. Herman Joyce, an Omaha referee, has been nominated by State Boxing Commissioner Ira Vorhies to serve as third man in the ring.

Six Bouts; 33 Rounds.

The full card of six bouts and 33 rounds, arranged by Matchmaker Moon for the National Guard program, will feature extreme speed. That's the high note of the ballyhoo spreaders, at any rate, and a glance at the cast of supreme governing body controlling all amateur athletics in this country. The A. A. U. officials today admit that they have failed. Several reasons are advanced for their failure. The main reason is that the powers of government which they assumed to exercise were not delegated to them by those over whom they claimed jurisdiction.

"The colleges have no right to assume to govern those who are not under the jurisdiction of the colleges any more than the A. A. U. has the right to assume jurisdiction over non-members. If Mr. Brundage's proposal means that the organizations that have behind them an athletic history and that are now promoting amateur athletics are to be asked to attend a meeting and are to be allowed to decide for themselves matters pertaining to their own athletic affairs, then much good will be accomplished.

"The American people believe in the principle of self government. The amateur sports promotional bodies will administer their own activities. If they federate and work co-operatively, they will accomplish more than they will if they function as independent units. It is to be hoped that they will work more or less unitedly. They, however, will decide for themselves how they will function."

MAJOR GRIFFITH'S statement, the logic and fairness of which cannot be successfully controverted, makes it clear that college sport and the A. A. U. usurpers cannot harmonize. The athletic union has too long stood for methods which smack of ward politics, leather-shovers serves to verify that particular claim. Harold Matthews is the only legitimate flyweight on the bill, but the form sheet also includes five bantams, two featherweights, a pair of junior lightweights and a brace of lightweights.

A novel feature of the program is the assured presence of three bantams—Freddie Penn, Pep Jennings and Flash Random—all of whom are bidding for glove engagements with Matthews. Penn and Jennings are the most experienced of the trio and Penn perhaps is the most spectacular. Victorious in a string of nine battles, his opponent every time going down via the kayo route, Freddie is hot on the trail of a whirl at the winner of the Monday night main event.

KRENK SOON IN LINCOLN FOLD

Links figures that the local club's ace of last year right soon will be in line to sign a 1929 contract. With Krenk it is a case of play the game with the Links or run the risk of suspension, the latter sometimes being none too easy to lift.

"Krenk likes the game too well to be quitting," Manager Bob suggested Saturday night, "so I am figuring he will be with us when the opening bell rings May 14."

Browne announced Saturday that Yohe, southpaw pitcher, and Gradoville, second baseman, had filed formal requests that they be permitted to enroll their names as voluntary retirements and the local manager indicated that he was willing to give consent.

To fill the shoes of Gradoville, Manager Bob has signed two second sackers—Thomas of Chicago and Gabler of Jefferson City, Mo. Thomas was with the 1928 Links during the workout season and practically had the keystone bag job cinched, when an acute attack of homesickness, perhaps a longing for that girl friend, pulled him back to the Windy City. Browne anticipates that Thomas, who has had himself reinstated by Judge Landis, will easily make the grade, although Gabler will be given a careful going over during the practice workouts, beginning May 8.

Yohe's place on the Link's pitching staff will be taken by Mike Janesko, a House of David pitcher from Orchard Farm, Mo. Janesko is a six-foot right-hander and his record with the House of David aggregation, in competition with numerous professional outfits last summer, impresses Brownie with the belief that he has hooked a high-class flinger.

James Menzie, a House of David outfielder, who slugged the ball at a .360 clip in over a hundred games last year is to come with Pitcher Janesko to the Lincoln camp.

League President Beltzer announces that every one of the eight clubs on the circuit has been busy for weeks acquiring desirable young talent and that every manager in the league predicts he will start the pennant campaign with a club materially stronger than last year.

ing heavyweight rasslers and then cries for more, so where's the harm in an occasional baseball spoof?

JOHN BULL, that fat old rascal with the mutton-chops, is conceding nothing to Uncle Sam in the battle of the brassies between the golf pros of the two nations dated for late this month on an English course. As a conceder in anything, John is a howling bust. What he wants he takes, and the other fellow may cheerfully help himself to the leavings.

After the late Walt Travis upset the dope bucket and won the British amateur years ago, John decided that Walt's Schenectady putter should be tossed in the rough. Result: A special rule barring the Travis style of putter. Similar happenings with reference to America's slotted clubs. Ditto for Uncle Sam's steel-shafted implements. John didn't invent them, so John simply won't have them.

In consequence, the Yankee professionals, striving this year to retain the Ryder cup, which they won last year on an American course, will be bearing up under the handicap of using wooden clubs—a disadvantage which may be a material factor in the result of the match.

But John is nothing unless obstinate. The fact that slotted clubs and steel shafts typify improvement in golf, making for lower scores, is so much cinders for the British ashcan. Nevertheless, the Hagens, the Smiths and others of the Yank party aren't licked yet and, until the final count is in, the suspicion amounts to a well defined hunch that they won't be licked at all.

Harlan county meet at Alma. Each meet should produce some good records.

Invitation at York.

The first of a series of invitation meets will open at York with the holding of the annual York college invitation affair Saturday afternoon.

Several Nebraska high schools will compete in the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Coach H. M. Garrett's Beatrice boys apparently having the best chance of delivering the goods.

While main interest, of course, will center on the county and invitation meets, the athletes will also devote considerable time to the annual interscholastic selective pentathlon which starts this week and finishes April 24. Grand championship and division banners will be awarded the winners, along with medals for the outstanding athletes.

Lincoln vs. Tech On Book This Week

Lincoln high school track and field artists will open their 1929 season next Saturday when they journey to Omaha and clash with Omaha Tech high in a duel meet. No announcement has been made by Coach Sed Hartman as to the outcome of the team try-outs, but five lettermen and a squad of promising new comers will be included in the team personnel.

Captain Fulcher, Davey, Rea and Masterson are the foremost dash men, while Fulcher, and McGeachin are outstanding 440-yard contestants. Half-milers include Holcomb and Johns, while Ayres, Stump and Butcher are the likeliest milers. The last two are lettermen, but Ayres having made a mark of 4 minutes and 50 seconds in the inter-class mile event, is considered a favorite.

Minor and Weir are promising in the high jump, the former being a letterman. Bauer and Minor are outstanding pole vaulters. Fowles, who jumped 19 feet 10 inches in the inter-class meet Friday, and Weir and King, are broad jump prospects. Meyer, a letterman, will be available in the weigh events, as will George Sauer, with high marks in the discus, shot put and javelin. Schmitt also is candidate for shot put honors.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

CHICAGO GRAIN.

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 13

WHEAT—Closed ½ to ¾c higher today. Corn was ¾c lower to ¾c advance and oats ⅛@ lower to ¾c higher.

Grains were steady and without material price change in the early trading. Commission houses were on both sides of the market with some buying credited to foreigners. May corn again showed firmness on buying by commission houses. Locals were the principal sellers.

Trade in wheat was moderately active but mixed. Commission houses and local professionals were buyers on news from Washington indicating probably establishment of a $500,000,000 revolving fund for the purpose of handling the surplus crops. On the bulge, however, the market met with selling by other commission houses. Liverpool closed ⅝ to ¾d better.

Weather conditions over the winter wheat belt generally favorable with rains in some parts. Farm relief legislation seems to be about the sole topic of conversation surrounding the grain markets. Estimated receipts were 21 cars. Stocks of wheat at Minneapolis for one day decreased 60,000 bushel. Shipments for one day were 73 cars of wheat and 94,504 bar. of flour.

Corn started steady to ¾c lower with the December future showing the weakness. Commission houses were fair buyers while locals supplied the offerings. Trade was just fair. Estimated receipts were 72 cars.

Oats opened unchanged to ⅛c lower. Trade was moderate. Estimated receipts were 19 cars.

Provisions ruled easier.

Grains opened irregular today. Wheat was ¼c down to ⅛c up; corn unchanged to ⅛c lower and oats unchanged to ⅛c down.

Conference schedules would make its program too heavy was the reason given.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 13

A belated rally in the oil stocks, at the end of a dull and heavy week-end session, turned the trend of prices moderately upward today.

Industrial stocks as a whole were under the effects of profit-taking and professional selling, and were unable to gain very much ground in the half session.

The spurt in oils accompanied reports of a practical agreement among producers on a new plan for reducing crude production. Pan-American B led the upward move, with a 2¼ point jump to 89⅝, and new gains of a point or so were scored by the Standard Oils, Marland, Sinclair and other well known independents. The steel, copper and motor stocks were dull and irregular from start to finish.

There was very little enthusiasm among the bulls in the stock market at the week-end session, and after an irregular opening, most of the active industrial stocks sagged to a slightly lower level of prices just before noon. Exceptions to that rule were found in the newcomer specialties to the active list, most of which were held strongly in position by the pools and professionals.

The week-end business reviews were mainly favorable, though a slight falling off in production was reported in a number of the important industries. Manufacturers of motor trucks, motor car accessories, airplane and other products issued very favorable surveys of conditions in their respective lines, which have recently been features by the formation of large new corporations to carry on their business.

Speculative interest centered in the first hour on United States Steel, in view of the forthcoming stockholders meeting and the announcement of the new stock offering next week. Estimates of the price to be asked for the stock ranged from $100 to $150 a share, but it is generally admitted that stockholders will have valuable "rights" in connection with the recapitalization of the big corporation. Steel common moved up fractionally to above 190 in the first period, but a flood of selling orders swept in, preventing any further upward move.

The same was true of American Can, General Motors and other leaders in yesterday's closing rally. Losses of 1 to 2½ points in these stocks represented little more than profit taking and professional short selling, as the underlying orders was too strong to permit of anything like a rally in any section of the list.

Buying of the principal amusement stocks motor accessories, utilities and high-priced specialties featured the second hour.

Yellow Truck and Briggs Manufacturing, the old favorites in the motor accessory group, received good support slightly below Friday's final prices, but were unable to gather momentum for a new upward move. Officials of the Yellow Truck Company reported the best week in its history for that corporation this year.

There was also a better tone in the oil stocks, due to the belief that the producers will find a basis of co-operation through the state authorities rather than through federal regulations, or the amendment of the anti-trust laws. The Standard Oil of New York, New Jersey and California held their ground, and good buying was in progress in Mid-Continent, Sinclair and Marland.

Coppers sold off with the softening of the market for copper metal, but stocks in this group have had a tremendous rise in recent weeks and a moderate reaction has been somewhat over-due. Rails were steady with stocks of the Van Sweringen Nickel Palte group in the lead of a slow and featureless move.

The market was steady at the opening today, with extremely narrow price changes in the active issues. A block of 8,000 shares of Yellow Truck sold at 47⅝, up ⅛ from Fridays' close. General Motors sold up ⅛ at 86 for 2,200 shares. Nupp, Packard and Brigs sold fgractionally hiher.

The steel stocks were active and strong, with Bethlehem up a point at 110⅝; United States Steel up ⅛ at 190; Crucible up ⅛ at 89¾, and Vanadium down ⅛ at 94¼. Little change was noted in the coppers, Anaconda advancing ⅛ to 142⅜; Kennecott up ⅛ at 84⅛ and Inspiration Consolidated down a point at 51¼.

The market specialties moved within a narrow price range. American Can reacted ⅛ to 118. Nummer was up ¼ at 90¾; General Electric up ¼ at 234⅝; Montgomery Ward down ⅛ at 117¼; Sears Roebuck up ⅝ at 146⅝; Westinghouse up ⅛ at 149.

Most of the rails sold fractionally. Erie was up a remant of 71⅝, up nearly a point. New Haven was up ⅛ at 91⅝; New York Central up ¼ at 184 and Union Pacific up ⅛ at 216¼.

Oil prices were mixed. Marland sold up ¼ at 41⅞; Pan-American B unchanged at 57. Sinclair down ¼ at 38⅝; Standard of California down ⅝ at 79⅛; Standard of New York up ⅛ at 41⅝; Atlantic Refining down ¼ at 57½.

Consolidated Gas led the utilities and sold up ⅝ at 104⅝.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspapers Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders. Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisements.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisement should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents.

Cash rate per line per day:

1 Time	.13
3 Times	.10
7 Times	.09

These offices are open to receive advertisements from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. daily. All advertisements received up until 12:30 p. m. will appear in all city editions the same day. All ads received between 12:30 p. m. and 10:00 p. m. will appear in all editions the following day.

The Only New Cars are in the Salesroom; Those on the Road are Used

EVERYBODY IS DRIVING A USED CAR, the employer and the employe — the millionaire and the clerk — those with independent fortunes and those with comfortable incomes from modest positions.

EVERY CAR THAT PASSED YOUR HOME TODAY is a Used Car and the only difference between them is that some are second-hand and others are first-hand.

"SECOND-HAND" REFERS ONLY TO changes in ownership and implies nothing as to condition. The man with a "second-hand" car may have the better car of the two.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER POINT, TOO. New cars carry a nationally advertised selling price, set by the manufacturer to know a profit for himself—the distributor—and the local dealer.

BUT RIGHT HERE, LET US SAY THAT motor cars are sold on a narrower percentage than other like class of merchandise.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE USED CAR PRICE is determined by a dealer after the car has had a big chance to prove what it is actually worth on the road.

AND THE BUYER, REALIZING THAT, TOO, may be assured that there is no reason why he should not buy a good USED CAR — we said good — while there are many logical reasons why he should.

IF YOU ONLY KNEW HOW CAUTIOUS the dealer is himself, you would banish all doubt when dealing with a legitimate house—but on the other hand, my goodness, what a chance you are taking the other way.

A LEGITIMATE AUTOMOBILE DEALER HAS JUST ONE thing to guard—that's his Reputation. This is the one business that depends on no degree on transient trade. We have to live among those we do business with.

THAT'S WHY THE OTHER CLASS OF dealers don't stay long in business—at all—or in any one town for any great length of time. They can't.

SO WHEN YOU TRY TO SETTLE THE QUESTION of New Car vs. Used Car, let nothing but your pocketbook be your guide but guide your pocketbook to a reliable dealer. You can be safe in either case.

THE DIFFERENCE IN USED CAR PRICES is clearly a difference in intrinsic worth, i. e., market value. No other line of merchandise is priced so closely to intrinsic values.

THERE IS NO MONOPOLY ON USED CARS.

USED CAR COMPETITION IS KEEN, wherein lies the buyer's security. Buy NOW. Bargains are numerous.

SAFETY IS AIM OF DESOTO SIX

Engineers Stress Efficient Brakes and Rapid Acceleration.

Cooperate With Safety Bureau and Police to Reduce Accidents.

While safety bureaus and police departments throughout the nation are directing their efforts to prevention of accidents, the engineering brains of the country, in automotive laboratories behind the scenes, are co-operating in a silent but equally effective campaign towards the same end.

"Leaving aside the human equation and the tendency of drivers to be careless, the margin of safety from a mechanical point of view depends almost entirely on the principles of quick acceleration and perfect braking power," according to P. T. McGerr local dealer for the De Soto Motor corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors.

"Spring and early summer again bring the perils of the congested suburban highway to drivers with cars that are not equipped with the best braking devices and engines that will not pick up quickly in an emergency. The perfect brake is the first essential of safety—flashing acceleration, where the engine immediately responds to the touch of foot on accelerator, being of almost equal importance.

Each Get Same Pressure.

"The brakes must operate, however with 100 per cent equalization. The same pressure must be applied to the brake shoes simultaneously. Otherwise sideswaying, with its often disastrous results, is virtually unavoidable.

"The De Soto six is equipped with internal expanding, hydraulic four-wheel brakes which are self equalizing, depending upon the principle of hydraulics for their operation and equalization—brake equipment which is the best that engineering skill can produce. They stop the car quickly, operate smoothly and safely, and give the driver perfect mastery over speed.

"The automobile is subjected to innumerable sudden and violent accelerations and decelerations in a day's driving, so brakes must be dependable and simple in operation. Those used by the De Soto six have both qualities. The braking pressure reaches all four wheels at the same time and in equal degrees, making the operation instantly effective.

"Safety in operation, too, demands a quick get-away in traffic. The engine that picks up instantly when the foot forces the accelerator down, minimizes the possibility of accidents. Cars that appear suddenly from side streets and alleys can be avoided—the driver can often slip into spaces directly ahead in the long lines of traffic on narrow roads. These are examples of how quick acceleration helps to cut down the number of accidents that occur every year, in crowded city traffic and on congested highways in the country."

PRICE REDUCTION ON HUPP MODELS

Motor Company Effects Sweeping Changes For Spring.

DETROIT, Mich., April 13—Price reductions affecting all models of the Hupp Motor Co. in the New Century eight and six-cylinder lines which went into effect April 6, furnished sweeping price decreases ranging from $55 to $260.

The price reduction is the most complete ever made by Hupmobile and comes, according to the announcement, as part of the company's extensive program for this year which will more than double its production capacity. On the straight eight series the price reductions range from $80 to $260. On the Country six series, the reductions range from $55 to $160. Following are the prices on the straight eight custom-equipped models.

Carbriolet, $1,845; roadster, $1,815; four-passenger coupe, $1,860; two-door sedan, $1,845, and four-door sedan $1,905. The new prices on the standard equipment cars are cabriolets, $1,755; roadster, $1,725; four-passenger coupe, $1,770; two-door sedan, $1,775, and four-door sedan, $1,815.

New prices on the custom-equipped Century sixes are: Two-door sedan, $1,335; cabriolet, $1,475; four-door sedan, $1,440; roadster, $1,840, and four-passenger coupe, $1,450. For the standard equipped sixes, the new prices are: Two-door sedan, $1,245; cabriolet, $1,385; four-door sedan, $1,350; roadster, $1,390, and four-passenger coupe, $1,360.

The tremendous manufacturing program, which includes a marked increase of production and sales activities of the company, is the basis for the general price reductions. But a few months ago, the Hupp Motor Car corporation purchased the huge and modern plants in Cleveland, O., which have more than a million square feet of manufacturing space available. The revamping and retooling of these plants as a virile part of the production division of the greater Hupmobile organization is now in progress. Approximately $2,000,000 is being spent in these plants alone to make them the most efficient in the industry. In addition, Hupmobile recently acquired control of and has increased the equipment and production capacity of several smaller and subsidiary concerns as part of this far-reaching expansion for this year.

VIKING SHOWS NEW FEATURES

Car Is Asset to Medium Priced Field; Has Fisher Body.

The new Viking motor car, which is now on display in the showrooms of the Lincoln Motor Co., 1820 O street local dealers, introduces distinctly new and desirable principles of engineering design to the medium-price field. This new car now makes available at a medium price, the definite superiorities of the ninety-degree V-type eight-cylinder engine. It embodies new beauty and tailored smartness—the latest creations of Fisher artist-engineers.

The new Viking is particularly outstanding in performance. Its ninety-degree V-type eight-cylinder engine delivers eighty-one horsepower with exceptional smoothness throughout the entire speed range. Its response to the throttle is remarkable, both in getaway from a standing start and in acceleration at the higher speeds.

Its top speed is greater than the average motorist will use. And it provides a mighty power reserve for steep hills, long grades and hard pulling.

These desirable and exclusive new characteristics of performance are provided by the ninety-degree V-type principle of eight-cylinder engine design, brought to a new high stage of development by the many individual advancements combined in the new Viking engine.

The natural compactness of the Viking engine, combined with the added strength obtained through [illegible] and trussing the crankcase, provides exceptional rigidity—an important contributing factor in smoothness, quietness and long life.

The short, rigid crankshaft is counter-weighted for maximum balance and is supported by large oversize bearings.

Cooling is exceptionally thorough in the new Viking engine. Cylinder walls, valves, valve stem guides and combustion chambers are water-jacketed. Equal manifold distribution of the water in the twin blocks, with graduated outlets direct to points of greatest heat, assures uniform, efficient cooling of the entire engine. The water space extends far down the crankcase wall and assists in cooling the lubricating oil. The engine thermo-gauge, which is located on the dash shows the actual temperature of the water circulating in the engine. And the Viking engine is further protected by thermostatically-controlled, automatic radiator shutters.

The Viking chassis also contributes much to the performance, comfort, dependability and long life of this great new eight. Remarkable strength and endurance are evident throughout its construction. Its low center of gravity and properly balanced weight are important factors in riding comfort and roadability.

MARMON OFFERS NEW STRAIGHT 8

Machine Will Sell For Less Than $1,000 at Factory.

"Sweeping aside precedent, the newest and one of the greatest accomplishments in automotive history is disclosed in the announcement by Marmon of the world's first straight-eight to sell for less than $1,000 at the factory," states C. M. Long, local manager of the Hartsough Motor Co. "That car is the new Roosevelt."

"Characteristic of the purpose of the car and the ideals of its manufacturer is the name which has been selected—Roosevelt. In the full spirit of this great name, the new car has been designated by Marmon, simply, yet significantly, "A car for all," Mr. Long added.

"A detailed, or even casual, inspection of the new Roosevelt eight is certain to bring forth the question, 'How can Marmon build this car—a straight eight—at the price?' The answer is in a single word—concentration.

"For more than two years, Marmon has centered its attention on straight-eight development. Its engineering department has devoted its resources to the perfection of the eight-in-line type of car. Its manufacturing department has centered its activities on equipment and methods especially designed to produce eights.

"Straight-eight cars, moreover, are not complicated affairs as was the case a few years ago. Design has been simplified—the number of parts reduced—with the result that the Roosevelt can be built by Marmon to be sold at the price of the average six.

"The Roosevelt is now on display in the establishments of Marmon distributors and dealers throughout the country, giving American motordom from coast to coast its first opportunity of inspecting the car that is representative of a development predicted for years and now an actuality. Not "just another automobile" is presented but a car that affords straight-eight performance, flexibility and speed at a price that is well within the reach of practically every buyer.

"Coming at the climax of the most successful period of Marmon's long experience in the automotive industry, the Roosevelt establishes a new and higher standard of motor car value."

DEALERS UNABLE SUPPLY DEMAND FOR CHEVROLETS

Public demand the country over for the new Chevrolet six has far exceeded the supply. Dealers everywhere are crying for new models and in many cases they are losing deals daily because they cannot get the cars fast enough to take care of their orders.

Over 300,000 have already chosen the new Chevrolet six. This is because of the smooth six cylinder performance and because they are able to buy a six cylinder car in the price range of a four. It is because they get better than twenty miles to a gallon of gasoline which is a big talking point in Nebraska since the tax on gasoline has gone up. It is because the public likes the distinctive bodies by Fisher. They like their longer, lower and roomier features. The public has purchased this car because it has every modern driving convenience and comfort.

The First Aid Kit.

Every motor vehicle should be equipped with a small first aid kit containing an antiseptic liquid, a sterile salve for burns, two triangular bandages, and similar materials which will make it possible to administer first aid for the slight, as well as serious, injuries which may be encountered while out on the road. With such a kit the treatment of cuts is so easy that it will be used, the application of the sterile salve will relieve the pain from burns, and the easily applied bandages will keep out dirt and protect the injury. The bandages can also be used to stop bleeding and thus prevent fatal hemorrhages resulting from accidents. Then when the doctor comes he will find the "emergency cared for and direct such other treatment as may be necessary

Mr. Long is the manager of the Hartsough Motor Co., 1844 N street, distributors of the Marmon and Roosevelt cars. He has been associated with the automobile business for nine years, coming to Lincoln ten months ago from Kansas City, Mo. 'GRANDDADDY' OF PONTIAC 6 FOUND

Modern Automobile Firm Unearths Old Car of Same Name.

Built About 1907 and Sold With "Don't" Instruction Book.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 13.—The story of the unknown relative who suddenly crops up at a family gathering had a counterpart here when a Pontiac car built years ago bobbed into the limelight at the home of W. J. Frazer, whose father had purchased it about 1904.

When A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor aCr Co., introduced the present line of Pontiac cars in 1925, they were believed to be the first automobiles so named, until the uncovering of the old-timer here.

A tricky and dilapidated one-seater, with a two cylinder engine, a dash board, steel rimmed wheels and all the other accoutrements demanded by the gay blades of the early nineteen hundreds, the car bears a plate distinctly emblazoned with the name Pontiac and revealing the manufacturer as the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Co.

Firm Organized in 1907.

Subsequent investigation at Pontiac, Mich., home of the Oakland company, discloses that such a firm had been organized to build passenger cars but that it had no connection with the Pontiac Buggy Co. which in 1907 evolved into the Oakland Motor Car Co.

From official documents and the memories of old residents at Pontiac, it has been learned that the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Co. had a transitory existence around 1904 or 1905 and then fell by the wayside, like many a similar venture at that early date, leaving Mr. Frazer's car an orphan until it came out of storage to claim name-relationship with the present line of Pontiacs.

Along with the Pontiac's "grandfather," Mr. Frazer also produced a book of instructions issued with the car. This asserts that "there is absolutely nothing of a complicated nature in connection with the operation of the Pontiac, and with a little perseverance anyone of ordinary intelligence can easily become an expert."

From this point on the treatise presents a subtle argument seeking to justify gasoline locomotion as against steam and other forms of transportation of that early date. After asserting that there is nothing complicated in operating the car, the book proceeds to list a forbidding series of "don'ts" that have caused modern sales experts to marvel that any cars ever were sold.

Warns Against Stunts.

It warns against fractured arms in cranking, about the difficulty of climbing hills, and states that "pride means getting chesty, and because you can drive up a lane without tearing down the fences don't start hunting for hard stunts."

It advises grinding the valves with dust from a grindstone mixed with oil, and applying tallow to the drive chain to reduce wear and insure silent operation.

A re-echo of that fast wise crack of early days, "Go get a horse'" is seen in this sage observation near the end of the book: "The exercise of good common sense on the part of drivers and owners of automobiles has done and will do much to remove the odium that has been bestowed upon the much scandalized mobile. With proper care and intelligent use of an automobile you may have as reliable and trustworthy a means of transit as any in existence, but neglected and abused you may become the subject of the humorous friend and harping critics who despise the thing until you invite them to ride with you."

Auto Notes

Changing Oil in Crankcase.

It is always the best plan to change oil in the crankcase when returning from a trip instead of before starting on one. Not only does the old oil flow rather slowly when cold, but the impurities in the oil have settled on the bottom of the crankcase over night and the sluggish flow of the oil is not strong enough to carry them off. After a run, however, when the oil has been properly heated up and has been pumped through the engine innumerable times, the sludge and dirt has been well shaken up and is easily carried off with the oil.

Frequent Cleaning Keeps Engine Right.

Faulty operation of an automobile engine is very often the result of allowing a coating of grease to accumulate on the parts of this mechanism. Dust soon settles where oil sweats or is spilled, and a gummy mass finds its way among the delicate parts of the engine, preventing proper running. It takes so little extra time to wipe off spilled oil or grit and the advantages are so great from this little matter of care that it seems almost unbelievable. It is surprising how quickly the cylinders will become coated with a gummy substance, composed of oil, grease and mud, if they are not wiped off occasionally. The careless driver will some day find that his gummy and dirty magneto will not work; his curburetor may become clogged, or his oil line get stopped up. Better make good use of old rags or waste on the mechcanism than to wait until something goes wrong through dirt and grease.

Protection to Pedestrians.

One of the best protective signals for pedestrians to carry on highways at night is a white handkerchief held with the arm full length at the side. In this position the handkerchief is caught and reflected in the top of the bright light beams. If it happens to flare open it becomes momentarily a true beacon.

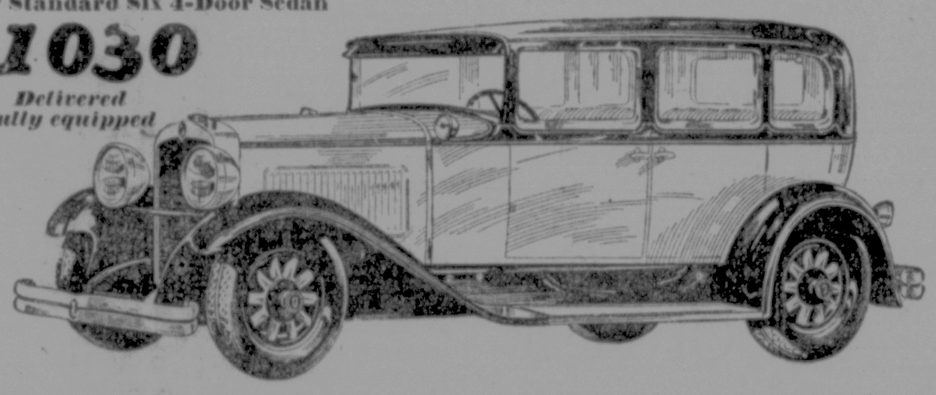
THE RECORD BREAKING NEW NASH "400"

"400" Standard Six 4-Door Sedan

$1030

Delivered fully equipped



Ask the Salesman this Question:

EVERY prospective motor car purchaser should ask every salesman he talks to, this question: "What is the price of this car, delivered to me, fully equipped with all the equipment?"

You should also ask what the difference is between the factory (f. o. b.) price and the delivered price—and then ask what that difference buys.

Heretofore it has been customary for factory prices to cover only the bare car. This permits the dealer to sell you your bumpers and the other accessories, at retail prices.

Nash, in introducing the new "400" Series, pioneered a new practice, by installing this extra equipment at the factory, at no extra cost to you.

When you ask the suggested question you'll find most salesmen (not Nash salesmen) reluctant to answer. They would rather not say how much more there is to pay, or what the extra money buys.

And you'll also find that by reason of the Nash policy, Nash "400" delivered, fully-equipped prices are much lower than those of many other cars with the same factory (f. o. b.) prices, and lower than some cars with even lower factory (f. o. b.) prices.

They got behind the wheel . . got the facts . . and bought BUICKS!

"Starting with the brand new car," continues this owner, "I achieved the remarkable record of driving 3500 miles through the most hilly sections of Pennsylvania and West Virginia without having to make a single gear shift because of lack of power. . . .

"I have tried to climb those same hills with other cars on previous trips but have never turned the trick without shifting gears. My powerful 1929 Buick pulled every hill in high!"

There, in a nutshell, you have one reason why more than twice as many people purchase Buicks as any other automobile priced above $1200—why thousands of glowing tributes are pouring into the Buick factories, as more and more motorists "get behind the wheel and get the facts" about Buick performance.

Come, take the wheel! Drive this epic car. Prove its superiority, not only in hill-climbing, but in getaway, swiftness, smoothness and reliability as well. And then assure yourself the most glorious motoring you have ever had. Buy a Buick!

SOCIETY PEOPLE In The PICTURES

THOSE who come and those who go, to say nothing of lovely brides and attractive brides-to-be, always are of interest.

Two very popular guests who have shared honors at several social functions the past week, are Mrs. Emory Stanley of Philadelphia, who has been the house guest of Mrs. Edna DePutron, and Mrs. Ralph Drain of Washington, D. C., who is a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thorpe.

Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Louise Ludden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ludden, to Kenneth Lowell Nelsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nelsen of Lincoln. The wedding will take place early in June.

Mrs. Herman R. James will leave at the end of the school year for Vermillion, S. D., to make her home. Dean James recently accepted the presidency of the University of South Dakota. Mrs. James has been very active in social and faculty circles in Lincoln.

Miss Ethel Landreth of Alto Pass, Ill., is the house guest of Mrs. Herbert Knudsen, formerly Miss Helen Holtgrewe. Miss Landreth and Mrs. Knudsen were classmates at Lindenwood college, and are sorority sisters in Phi Mu at the University of Nebraska.

The marriage of Miss Gladys Downey to Ellis Mockett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mockett of Des Moines, took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downey. Miss Helen Walt was the only attendant.

Two Country Clubs Plan Opening Spring Affairs

First Dinner Dance of Season at Lincoln Country Club Will Be Held Saturday, May 4; Eastridge's Initial Party Also Will Be Held Sometime During Next Month.

The two major events of the spring season are in the offing, the opening dinner dance of the two country clubs. The Lincoln Country club, as has already been announced, is to have its first dinner dance of the season, Saturday, May 4. Eastridge Country club has made no definite arrangements other than that the party will be sometime in May.

This year, Eastridge is to have mid-week dinner dances instead of the usual weekend affair, and the chosen evening for the frolic is to be Wednesday, according to present plans.

With so many people coming and going, society is more or less at a stand still, with no definite routine of activities as yet. However several parties have been arranged at the Country club for the remainder of the month.

Mrs. Munger to Preside.

Monday, Mrs. T. C. Munger will be hostess at a 1 o'clock bridge luncheon at the Country club. Suggestions of spring will be featured in all of the table appointments, and the afternoon will be spent with bridge at the club.

On Thursday, Judge and Mrs. T. C. Munger will preside at a 7 o'clock dinner at the Country club. Spring flowers will make the tables attractive. Following the dinner, the evening will be devoted to bridge.

Mrs. O. A. Barber has issued invitations for a 1 o'clock luncheon to be given at the Country club April 24. Luncheon covers will be arranged for twenty-four guests, and spring flowers will be featured in the appointments. The guests will remain at the club for bridge following the luncheon.

On May 1, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeBrown will preside at a dinner dance at the club.

Burnham's Birthday Observed.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Yates entertained twelve guests at dinner last Friday evening honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Yates' father, S. H. Burnham. The table was centered with spring flowers, and suggestions of the spring season

Large Receptions Mark Marriages of the Week

Ceremony for Miss Gettys Will be One of More Elaborate Affairs and Is to be Preceded by Musicale—Miss Nola Shepherd Married Saturday and Martha McGinley Will Wed Tuesday.

Extreme simplicity will mark the lovely weddings to be solemnized this week. In most cases, only families will be present at the ceremony, with a larger number of guests at the more elaborate receptions to follow.

When Miss Margaret Gettys, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Gettys becomes the bride of B. A. Hall at 7:30 o'clock on Saturday at the Gettys home, 5242 Madison avenue, there will be about thirty members of the families and immediate relatives present. Rev. Gettys who will read the service will be assisted by Rev. Walter Aitkin.

A musicale will precede the ceremony from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. A trio composed of Miss Lillian Eiche, violin; Mrs. August Molzer, cello; and Mrs. Edith Burlingim Ross will

Mrs. Foster Home From Visit East

Lincoln People Come and Go As Usual During the Past Week.

Back in the days when buggies were fringed and be-tasseled affairs and a good two feet and a half off the ground, when linen dusters were built on the straight and draping lines, people thought they really were traveling when they went on twenty and thirty mile jaunts.

But today there is not even the raising of an eyebrow when they nonchalantly dash off to Kansas City, California or New York City for a "few days, you know." It is all very much fun, this idea of being able to breakfast in one city, lunch in another, and dine in a third. And so Lincoln has had people coming and going as usual the past week.

Mrs. J. Earle Foster returned Thursday from New York City where she spent the past ten days with her two daughters, the Misses Virginia and Jane Foster, who met their mother in New York during the spring recess from Mary Lyons school which they are attending at Swarthmore, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Baylor and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Korsmeyer motored to Omaha Saturday afternoon to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Moorhead at a Country club dinner there Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Robers and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holtz motored to Omaha Saturday to be guests in the evening of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Watkins at a dinner. They will return today.

John Rosborough went to Omaha Friday to serve as a judge in a state music contest. He returnto to Lincoln Sunday morning.

Dean and Mrs. Herman R. James left Saturday for Vermillion, S. D., where they will be until Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Collins of Fort Dodge, Ia., arrived in Lincoln Saturday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. H. Channing Collins.

The Misses Dorothy Jackson and Vera Waters spent the Easter vacation with Miss Josephine Buol at her home at Randolph, Neb.

Mrs. C. L. Fahnestock returned to Lincoln Sunday morning after spending the past week with her daughter, Margaret, at Sioux Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow Lieurance of Wichita, Kas., left Saturday for Omaha after spending several days in Lincoln. Mr. Lieurance will appear in a concert Monday night at Crete.

Mrs. John M. Miles and Mrs. Richard Rogers, who have been in Kansas City since Wednesday, returned to Lincoln Saturday evening.

Mrs. Charles Hoss left Saturday morning for Leavenworth, Kas., to be gone until Tuesday.

J. A. Melville of Broken Bow, will arrive Monday to join his wife, and visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Apperson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Letton and daughter Nancy Lee of Denver, will arrive by motor Monday morning to visit Mr. Letton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Letton, and his brother, H. P. Letton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Graham Campbell left Sunday to spend a few weeks visiting at Seattle, Sacramento and San Francisco.

Personals.

Miss Agnes Schmidt and Miss Margaret Schmidt have returned from a ten day trip to Chicago where they attended the Mid-West Trade show of beauty culture. Miss Agnes Schmidt also went to New York City for a short visit.

Mrs. D. C. Stivers, formerly of Lincoln and now of Salt Lake City arrived in Lincoln Thursday to be the guest of Mrs. Rogers Scribner for eight or ten days.

Mrs. J. K. Kerr, sr., of Central City arrived last Sunday to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Kerr. She returned home Friday.

Mrs. J. E. Doerck, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lyman Bray, and by Mrs. Ellis Evans left by motor Friday for St. Peter and St. Paul, Minn.

Alida Fassett Engaged

A very attractive June bride-to-be is Miss Alida Fassett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Fassett, whose engagement to Lloyd Whitaker of Lincoln, is announced today. Mr. Whitaker is a student in the college of engineering, University of Nebraska.

were featured in all of the appointments. An informal evening followed the dinner.

Mrs. Arnold Grimm, who leaves the fore part of May for Reading, Pa., was the honored guest at a 1 o'clock bridge luncheon at the University club Saturday, for which Mrs. Rex Davies of Utica, and Mrs. Lloyd Shearer were hostesses. Forty-two guests were invited including from out of town Mrs. Donald Pettis, Mrs. Lyle Rushton, Mrs. Voyle Rector, and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, all of Omaha. Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon.

Sports Board Entertaining.

The Intra-Mural sports board is entertaining at tea from 3 to 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at the University club. Two representatives and the chaperone from each sorority and dormitory have been invited. About eighty guests are expected. Betty Wahlquist, president of the board, is in charge of the affair. Those to preside at the tea table are Miss Mabel Lee and Miss Mary Olson. Those serving are the members of the board and will include the Misses Betty Wahlquist, Dorothy McKinley, Margaret Ames, Margaret Ward and Dorothy Weaver. Spring flowers will decorate the tea table and a color note of green will be introduced in the ices and mints. There will be music during the calling hours.

Several Women's Clubs Out-state in Meetings

New President at Homer Announces Committees For the Coming Year; Annual Banquet Is Held at Valparaiso Thursday, and Officers Elected at Hubbell.

The Homer Woman's club met April 9 at the home of Mrs. Allaway, jr. Nineteen responded to roll call after the club creed was read.

Mrs. Evans gave an interesting report of the district meeting at Plainview last week.

Parliamentary drill was conducted by Mrs. Voss. Mrs. Fillman read a paper on "Refinishing Old Furniture." Mrs. Nannie Allaway read a paper on "Landscaping," and Mrs. Lena Wagner read a paper and demonstration on "Table Service." The theme for the program, "Home Day," was brought out in the papers and value was gained from points brought out in the papers.

The following committees were appointed by the new president, Mrs. Clayton, and Mrs. Mary Allaway; Social: Mrs. Alice Stidworthy, Mrs. Iola Leamer, Mrs. Lena Wagner, and Mrs. Virena Byers; Civic, Mrs. Rebecca Voss, Mrs. Julia Ryan, and Mrs. Maude Holsworth. Sick: Mrs. Bess Fillman, Mrs. Elmedo Barber, Mrs. Ella Owens, and Mrs. Catherine Ashford.

Valparaiso Club.

The annual banquet of the Woman's club of Valparaiso was held at the school house Thursday evening, April 4. Husbands of the members, ministers and teachers in the town were guests.

A three course dinner was served at 7:30, the tables being attractively decorated with flowers and yellow candles in crystal holders. Covers were laid for sixty.

The club president, Mrs. Jul Petermichel, acted as toastmistress. She introduced Mrs. C. F. Ettleman who gave the address of welcome. Responses were made by Mrs. C. A. Part for the ministers, M. E. Boren for the teachers and Dr. F. L. Spradling for the husbands. Mrs. Petermichel then introduced members of the club with four line rhymes. The remainder of the evening was devoted to playing games.

Hubbell Woman's Club.

The Hubbell Woman's club held the annual luncheon, business meeting and installation of officers Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alma Irwin. There were twenty-two present, Mrs. E. E. Correll of Hebron, vice-president of the fourth district, and Mrs. Holktham, being out of town guests.

The covers were beautifully decorated, the center pieces being pink. Orchid sweet peas and dolls dressed in similar colors held the place cards. This some color scheme was carried out in the menu. A quartet, consisting of Alice Brown, Ethel Horner, Lelia Cleveland and Bessie Miller gave a group of songs. Much credit for the success of this luncheon is due Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Mina Conklin, Mrs. George Horner, Mrs. O. D. Gooden, Mrs. Chester Clark and Mrs. E. Cresswell who formed the committee in charge of arrangements.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Correll spoke, urging the members to attend the county convention at Wymore. She also told about the Woman's club scholarship fund.

Reports of officers and committees were read and the following officers installed: President, Alma Irwin; vice-president, Victoria Schell; secretary, Alice Brown; treasurer, Vera Fisher; directors, Mina Conklin, Emma Cresswell, Gertrude Redline.

Nebraska Club Women Aid Worthy Students

University School Of Music Generously Assists With Scholarship Awards. May Exhibit North Dakota Pottery In Every Group In Union. Say Children Should Be Urged To Make Gardens.

Nebraska clubs have for some time devoted funds and interest to securing scholarships in Nebraska schools for worthy young people wanting an education. The generosity of the University School of Music in aiding this cause is a source of gratitude to the club women.

At the fourth district convention at Wymore, April 16-18, Adrian Newens, head of this school will be one of the principal speakers. He will speak Tuesday evening on the subject "Music Education."

The music part of the program has been carefully prepared for the three days of the convention and Wymore's best talent will appear in orchestra, piano numbers and vocal offerings.

The lighter part of club life, which women thoroughly enjoy after the strenuous work of the convention, has been provided for in a reception Tuesday evening following the program; a dinner for state and the district officers preceding the evening program; an auto ride Tuesday afternoon and a supper party Wednesday evening complimentary from Wymore Woman's club to delegates and visitors, at noon Wednesday there will be a luncheon at which the home finance department will be in charge.

Clay Exhibit.

Miss Margaret Cable, chairman of the industrial arts division of the General Federation of Women's clubs, and head of the ceramics department of the University of North Dakota, has devised a plan whereby an exhibit of North Dakota pottery may be sent to every club in the union.

To accompany the exhibit, Miss Cable plans to write a paper which will include the story of clay deposits of North Dakota. Her plain is not to show the finished products as much as the method of manufacture. The pieces to be shown in the exhibit will be those manufactured and finished at the school of mines at Grand Forks. Historic facts of the development of the clay industry in Dakota will be dealt with.

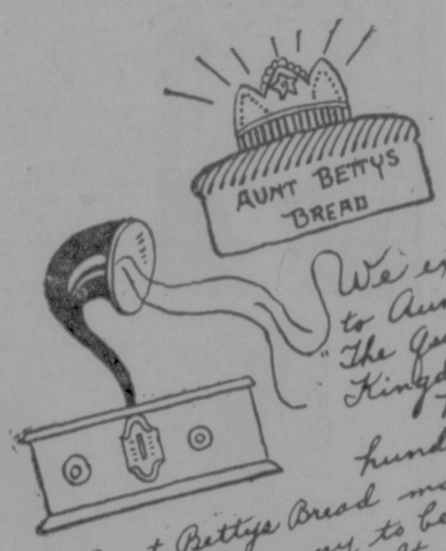
Aunt Betty's Bread

This Letter Won First Prize in Our Radio Letter Contest.



"Aunt Bettys Bread made by the Wendelin Baking Company to be absolute perfection in bread baking. It is bread you can depend upon to be always light and fine in texture with a crunchy brown crust that is simply delicious. A rival to any other food which may grace your table.

And Now: for the most amazing feature of all: These fine grained white slices of Aunt Bettys bread Satisfy. And what an all-important thing that is when growing children and working men depend upon the food placed before them to contain the proper food qualities. Satisfying Flavor, a feature seldom found only in home baked bread. "To use it is to choose it" is a slogan which runs thru my mind when I think of Aunt Bettys Bread. We take off our hats to "Aunt Bettys Bread. THE CITY'S FINEST! May the Wendelin Baking Company always produce it.

Mother-Daughter Dinners Held By Camp Fire Girls

Groups Center Activities on Honors With View to Large Number Qualifying for Gold and Silver Kiwanis Medals This Year. Outdoor Activities Being Stressed.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet of the Camp Fire girls of Lincoln is to be held at the chamber of commerce April 25. It is expected 250 girls and their mothers will attend, and Camp Fire girls will try to show in an outward way what the mothers mean in their life. A program will be given, with responses by mothers, and mothers who are also guardians of Camp Fire girls. Reservations are being made at the Camp Fire office.

The final examination for posture requirements is to be given at the Y. W. C. A., Saturday, April 20. Girls who were examined in December were given exercises to improve their posture, and this examination will show if they have improved and are entitled to the health honor.

Lists of girls who have earned their Kiwanis medals through this year's contest are coming into the office rapidly. Many girls have earned the medal this year the first time, while others will have their names engraved on the back of their medal if they have completed requirements for the second year. Third year girls are given gold medals, while the fourth year girls have their names engraved on the gold medals. Local honors will also b awarded at the homecoming, May 1, and there will be hundreds of others who get one or more of these local leather honors, to wear on their ceremonial gowns.

Mother-Daughter Party.

Merrie Gold Camp Fire met to write nature articles for the Pine. The group is identifying trees by their blossoms.

The Akiuvuhopi Camp Fire held a ceremonial Monday when honor beads were awarded. Three girls took their first rank of Woodeatherer. The yare Carolyn Davis, Gladys Swift and Evelyn Hopkins. A weiner roast was given for Miss Langdon the former guardian, who is leaving to go into chautauqua work this summer.

Member of the Idaka Camp Fire met at their guardian's home Tuesday. After a short business meeting the time was spent at hand craft work.

Watermo Camp Fire girls gave a party for their mothers at the home of their guardian, Mrs. O. E. Edison, April 5. They presented a play, "The Mysteroous Music," written by Kathryn Werner. The members of the cast were Frances Fish, Kathryn Werner, Betty Andrews and Helenmae Flieger. Elizabeth Edison was the announcer. Between acts Betty Andrews gave readings and Mildred Curd a dance.

The Loaki Camp Fire met at the home of the guardian, Friday. The group earned the honor of knowing and identifying fifteen trees. After short business meeting a hike was planned.

Plans for a Mother-Daughter party were completed by the Ecaowasin Camp Fire. Points on the contest were also checked and completed.

Sew For Guild.

Ayatala Camp Fire spent meet to sew on garments for the Needlework guild. Requirements for the local honors to be awarded May 1, were checked.

The Ivega Camp Fire studied parliamentary law. The money-making project of the group was discussed an dthe program completed.

Kiniks Camp Fire is preparing a constitution. The chairman of the committee read it at the last meeting.

Heseco Camp Fire met Wednesday for business. The president made the announcements for the month and the coming Camp Fire Mother-Daughter Banquet was wiscussed.

The La-do-burd Camp met at the home of Miss Price, Friday. Plans were completed for an overnight hike to earn camp craft and nature honors.

A covered dish supper for the next meeting of the Wenagivata Camp Fire was planned at the last meeting. The girls checked their requirements for Kiwanis medals and local honors.

The outdoor meeting planned by the members of Timega Camp Fire was changed to a rustic indoor supper. The guardian, Mrs. Grace Young, took pictures of the group, and a short business meeting followed.

Unilliyi Camp completed the check on their requirements for Kiwanis medals. Each member will receive her first or silver medal, this years.

The Ehawee Camp met at Trinity church, Thursday. A short business meeting was held and the announcements for the month given. A program of readings and piano selections was given at the end of the meeting.

Mrs. Davis Will Go to Washington

Is State Delegate to National Conclave League of Women Voters.

Mrs. W. LeRoy Davis, director of the first congressional district of the Nebraska League of Women Voters, will attend the general council of the National League of Women Voters, at Washington, April 22 to 26, as delegate from Nebraska.

The need for reorganization of the federal government is likely to become the subject of intensive study by the league. The Nebraska unit, at its March board meeting, voted to incorporate this in its study and a kit for study has been prepared by the state chairman, Mrs. John P. Senning. The proposal has been submitted to state leagues, and the council, composed of the national board, state presidents, and one state delegate is expected to ratify state and local league approval.

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser of Girard, O., head of the efficiency in government department says that "it is believed the league, by including such an item in the study will be in a position to follow any proposals that may be made."

The four-day council sessions, under the direction of the president, Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, single out for discussion measures which the league will support in the 71st congress, including a federal program for maternity and infancy welfare ,a constitutional amendment to eliminate "lame duck" sessions and the pending Pan-American treaty. Consideration will also be given to the regulation of public utilities, the study of which has been on the league program for a year. On this subject, two books have been prepared. One is on "Muscle Shoals and the Public Welfare," by Marguerite Owen, national legislative secretary. The

Mrs. Alma M. Higgins, Butte, Montana chairman of gardens in the General Federation of Women's clubs calls attention of club women to the date of National Garden Week, April 14-20. One of her suggestions is that a special edition of the local paper be issued. Club women should furnish reading matter and dealers in seeds, garden tools, nursery stock furnish advertising. There should be talks on planting trees and shrubs, bird sanctuaries, displays of films of parks and gardens. This is the time for clubs to plant memorial trees.

Schools should observe one day as Garden day and when Arbor day is observed children should be urged to have gardens. Libraries should feature pictures of bird houses and gardens. University Club Ladies Day Popular

Attract Intimate Foursomes and Larger Groups for Luncheons and Afternoons.

The University club is proving an exceptionally popular rendezvous and quite a number of luncheons and dinners are to be held there this week. Ladies' days always attract intimate foursomes and larger groups for luncheon and an afternoon of bridge.

Mrs. L. B. Lyman will be hostess at the Ladies' day on Tuesday for which foursomes have been reserved for Miss Anne Stuart, Mrs. Frank Eager, Mrs. W. C. Beachly. Miss Betty Pringle has reserved places for ten.

Tuesday evening thirty members of the Lancaster County Medical society will meet for the bi-monthly dinner and meeting. Dr. Carl Hedbloom of Chicago will be guest of honor and speak. He is a professor of surgery at the University of Illinois.

The hostess at the Ladies' day Wednesday will be Mrs. F. D. Williams.

Mrs. George E. Johnson will give a 1 o'clock luncheon for twelve Thursday. She plans to use garden flowers on the table and to play bridge at the club following the luncheon. Reservations for eighty of the university faculty have been made for Thursday evening by Dr. R. H. Wolcott.

The Lincoln School Forum will meet for dinner Thursday evening. Arrangements for sixty are being made by Earl Johnson, chairman of the social committee.

Mrs. Harry Everett will be hostess for Ladies' day Friday. Miss Sara Apperson has made reservations for a foursome.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hertzler will give a dinner for twelve guests at 7 o'clock. Spring flowers with pink tapers will form the table decorations. After dinner there will be bridge at the Hertzler home, 1650 South Twentieth street.

Alpha Omicron Pi alumnae will gather at the club for luncheon, Saturday. There will be thirty present for the monthly meeting. Reservations for twelve have been made for Saturday evening by F. M. Fling.

Miss Madge Evans was hostess to sixteen guests at a bridge dinner Saturday evening. A centerpiece of yellow spring flowers was used on the table. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson entertained six guests at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Saturday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fryman of Omaha who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Trev E. Gillaspie. They spent the evening informally.

Reservations for one hundred and fifty have been made for the Superintendents association dinner Friday evening. E. M. Hosman, secretary of the Nebraska State Teachers association, is in charge.

Kappa Sigma will hold an alumni luncheon at the club Monday.

Large Buildings Dwarfed When Viewed From Capitol Tower

The two above views of Lincoln, one of the business district and the other of the south residential section, were taken from the top of the state capitol tower. From them Nebraska people may obtain an when the tower is completed and idea of what is in store for them visitors are permitted to go to the top of the tower.

The towering height of the structure can only be realized by comparing the Sharp and Stuart buildings as they appear from the ground and from the capitol tower. That comparison is most surprising when one is looking down.

In the foreground of the picture at the left may bee seen the cathedral at Fourteenth and K streets. The Sharp occupies the center of the photo. At the extreme left may be seen the Terminal building, while in the haze of the background are the hills some ten miles northwest of the city.

The other view, south on Fifteenth street, is one of roofs and tree tops, especially beautiful at this time of year when the bursting buds are just seen from above. This conglomeration of green and brown is contrasted with the regular white squares of the streets and sidewalks.

More attractive still, are the hazy green hills and fields in the distance, stretching as far as the eye can see but beyond the reach of the camera.

When the building is completed, it will be possible for visitors to look out over the city from the fourteenth floor which is more than 250 feet above the ground. Those who care to climb a flight of stairs may go up another 75 feet to the tank room floor.

Spring Idea Decorations Carried Out

Farewells and Parties Honoring Visitors High Spots In Week.

Dance Clubs Plan Final Gatherings

Namid and Hokomok Are Both Giving Parties Monday Evening.

Even more attractive than the winter dances are the spring dancing club parties, many of them the last affairs of the club for the season, which appear on this week's calendar. Guest night will be held at one function and most of them will introduce spring flowers and pastel shades in favors and decorations.

At the last dance of the Namid club to be held on Monday evening at the Avalon party house, there will be thirty-five couples. Officers of the club who will be in charge are Mr. and Mrs. Chris Beck, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stonesifer, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed. Pink and white appointments and decorations will be used, and during the evening there will be one novelty dance and one favor dance. A two-course supper will be served at the close of the evening.

Hokomok Plans Party.

Hokomok dancing club members will give a spring party at the Lincoln hotel on Monday evening. The affair, the last of the season, will be attended by thirty-five couples. Spring colors will appear in the favors and decorations. A supper will be served following the dancing. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Tyler and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Miller are making all arrangements. There will be two favor dances.

Fifty-seventh street. There will be eight guests and the afternoon will be spent socially.

Ten guests will attend a luncheon to be given on Wednesday, April 24, at 1:30 o'clock by Miss Bess Hinson and Miss Ruth Kates at the home of Miss Hinson, 4926 Madison avenue, in honor of Miss Alabaster. Yellow will predominate in the color scheme. An informal afternoon will follow.

In courtesy to Miss Alabaster, Mrs. John Hver Miller entertained fourteen guests at a miscellaneous shower yesterday afternoon at her home, 1721 Prospect avenue. The gifts were wrapped to resemble a vegetable and carried into the party late in the afternoon by Dick and Perry Miller, dressed as farmer boys. Yellow daisies and pink roses were used throughout the rooms.

No Matter What

TYPE of floor covering you're in need of you'll find the very latest at Griswold-Comstock Co., directly across from the Lincoln hotel. Long years of experience enables these men to help you decide and to lay coverings to complement the most luxurious homes. From rich orientals to printed linoleums their range is complete.

Champe Says:

CHAMPE'S have made it possible for every woman to have a perfect wave at a price any woman can afford to pay. The right price for a permanent wave today is $5 . . . We could not give a better permanent wave if we charged you $25. To pay more than Champe's price of $5 is extravagant and unnecessary. The success of your wave depends upon the skill, experience and knowledge of the operator—not upon the price you pay nor the method used. Champe's operators have gained experience, skill and knowledge through the large volume of waves given and this large volume has made a low price possible. You shop for your coats, your hats, your shoes, why not come up to our shop at any time and see a dozen or more permanent waves being given . . . see the wrapping . . . the steaming . . . the waves after they are finished. Get your permanent now and be ready for the rainy days and hot days of summer. Shops located at Sioux City, Ia., St. Joseph, Mo., Omaha and 1229 N street, (upstairs), Lincoln.

IN footwear, there is a tendency to emphasize the combination of reptile and kidskin, in self color, both in opera pump and strapped styles. One exception is an ivory reptile pump with black patent leather encrustations on the outside-quarter only.

Novelties are contributed in sports costumes where printed fabrics are a highlight of the costume-exhibits, by producing all the prints in the shoe fabrics.

Eggshell glace kid gloves are noted in several cases, with striped stitchings of a darker tone. A refreshing novelty offered in the delft blue suede pull-ons worn with a light blue cotton sleeveless frock.

Inasmuch as so much attention is given the sunburnt complexion, as acquired by make-up, the bare-legged vogue came in for a large share of attention, extending beyond bathing and other sports styles.

Champe Says:

"HAIR will be cut short . . . or shorter than last year. Nothing could be smarter or more practical for summer than the sleek, close-to-the-head haircut that leads the hairdressing mode of 1929 . . . and we can give you this chic haircut in our new, exclusive haircutting and fingerwaving shop . . . first, your hair is thinned by stripping . . . then, a diagonal part and fingerwave gives individuality to your hairdress and that sleek, chic effect the mode demands. The Raggedy Ann is very good again this year. Lee Todd, Lincoln's best known haircutter, can give you this new bob and Miss Judy, your favorite fingerwaver, can give you any type of hairdress . . . Shampoo and fingerwave, $1.00; fingerwave (alone) 75 cents; haircut, 50 cents. Call B5173 for appointment — Champe's Fingerwaving Shop, 1227 N (ground floor)."

Scarfs—Scarfs are everywhere — separate to go with sports clothes or forming part of dresses. Thick ones, thin ones, others like capes, large square ones that are tied around the waist with one point reaching hem and others bloused under arm. Much passing of scarfs and scarf ends through loops or buttonholes, on coats and day and evening dresses.

When the Only Car

IS driven off to work with hubby at the wheel and fond wife has time to reflect that she, too, should have a car of her own, she should avail herself of a nice slightly used model from the Lord Auto Co. I discovered the cleverest 1927 Hudson roadster with special built body. This model is colored grey and upholstered in red leather and has an adorable roomy rumble seat. They told me the perfect condition of the engine is guaranteed, and the car can be bought for $850. Phone for free demonstration.

Women Who Are Wise

ARE having their apparel cleaned at the Apex, where, for only $1, they will clean plain wool dresses and ladies' suits. Also hubby's coat and trousers may be expertly cleaned and pressed for the same price. Call B3331 for very prompt service.

Mrs. Champe Says:

IT'S time for your spring permanent. Your hair will look better with a new wave in . . . Have it done where the machines are the finest, and newest, and the operators are famous for creating the most natural and becoming of permanents. There's no need to have your old wave cut off—no need to wait till it grows out—we can wave over your old permanent with the utmost success. The price for the complete permanent is always $5. The Wider the Brim

THE more classy the Babau hat. I found adorable ones of natural and colored straws at Magee's. There is endless individuality in the carefully moulded shapes designed to flatter, some with pearl button trim and some neatly banded and bound in contrasting tones. No type hat is more popular this season than Bakau.

They Are Wearing

ENSEMBLES—dress, coat and hat of complementary tones. They are selecting these individually at Harris-Goar's, and when combined the entire suit is much less than one usually pays for a complete ensemble. Solicit Mrs. Fox on your selection. She knows just what is good. Always at Harris-Goar's you may pay for apparel while you wear it.

Be It Ever So Smart

YOUR costume is simply ruined if your feet are not properly shod. You may indulge yourself in a variety of beautiful shoes if you shop at Gold's. Their spring line of smart models have arrived and the many new types of footwear shown are particularly attractive as well as inexpensive. Czechoslovia has contributed some striking models for dress and golf in a modernistic tan leather. Smart soft patents made with slenderizing heel and arch are a necessity for the street ensemble. Then, too, I found some of colored kid which are very smart to be worn with filmy georgettes for spring's many gay festivieties. The price range of $5.95 to $9.95 is synamynous. See these at Gold's, where the slogan is "The best For Less."

* * *

DAYTIME shoes: For informal town wear, the shoe in opera, one and two strap or Oxford form with a solid leather heel is most correct.

* * *

Heels for active street wear show a tendency to become slightly lower and more solid in appearance. This type is known as the "continental" heel.

* * *

The opera pump is unusually important this season, in both tailored and more formal versions. A new slightly triangular cut to the vamp ensures a better fit.

* * *

Brown shoes, in dark chocolate and sun-brown tones, come to the fore for early spring wear, lightening into sunburn-beiges later in the season.

* * *

The navy-blue shoe, this season in a slightly brighter tone, is still smartest with an all-blue ensemble. It is usually darker than the costume with which it is worn.

* * *

The dark green shoe, while not shown in any quantity, seems correct for spring wear with a costume in which green predominates. Then, it is very chic.

* * *

"Royal-bisque" kid, meaning a light, creamy beige, is very smart for formal afternoon shoes to wear with the lovely printed chiffons and pastels.

* * *

Reptilian leathers, especially lizard and water-snake, are very popular this spring.

* * *

The long-sleeved chiffon or lace dinner-dress is very often shown.

Fifty Young Men and Women of State University Win Phi Beta Kappa Award

Anderson, Bolin, Hughes, Mead, Morton, Noh, Pence, Roerden, Rogers, Stuff, Van Sickle, Lydia and Fredricka Wagner, Weaver, and Yabroff. Photos by Townsend.

Beekmann, Benedict, Black, Collins, Cunningham, Davis, Engel, Fellman, Olmsted, Race, Schmitz, Sestak, Smedley, Walter, and Worden. Photos by Hauck Sioglund.

Charles Pirie, Bucklin reproduction.

An even half-hundred University of Nebraska seniors, including graduates of the 1928 summer session, midyear, and June were elected to Nebraska Alpha of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, last Tuesday. Lawrence Brockway of Wichita, Kas., with an average of 94.87, ranked first in the list. The fifty included thirty-five women and fifteen men, out of a class of nearly 1,000.

A number of interesting stories center about the election this year, and several of the most prominent seniors are included in the list. Mr. Brockway is a son of Paul Brockway, formerly of Humboldt, who received Sigma Xi honors from the university. He has majored in chemistry, and has been awarded a scholarship in chemistry, in which he has an exceptional future, according to Dr. Fred W. Upson, professor of chemistry. Mr. Brockway, who is partially self-supporting, will return to the university next year to work on his master's degree in chemistry. He received a final semester average of 100 in trigonometry, under Dr. A. L. Candy, the only such average he ever gave, and also received a semester average of 100 in college algebra.

David Fellman is a university debater, having been a member of the teams that met the Cambridge and Sydney, Australia, teams, and is president of Delta Sigma Rho. He has been writing a column on current events in the Daily Nebraskan. Dean Hammond is editor of the Daily Nebraskan this semester, is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity, and of Sigma Upsilon, literary organization, and is president of his social fraternity, Tau Kappa Epsilon. He was awarded the Sigma Delta Chi scholarship key, with the highest average of the four Nebraska students honored. The list numbers two musicians, William Paul Pence, baritone, and Harlan G. Smedley, organist at the First Baptist church.

Munro Kezer, reporter on the Lincoln Star, was president of Sigma Delta Chi first semester, and has been president of his social fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha. Mr. Kezer's mother received Phi Beta Kappa honors and his father was elected to Sigma Xi at the University of Nebraska twenty-five years ago, and Lawrence Brockway's father was in classes with Mr. Kezer's father. He is also a member of Innocents, honorary senior fraternity. Lester Schoene is a debater, and John Charles Pirie received an appointment to West Point. Wilbur Mead has been president of his fraternity, Phi Kappa Psi, and David Yabroff has been president of Zeta Beta Tau.

Catherine Beekmann is a member of Mortar Board, senior honorary society for women, the A. W. S. board, and Vestals of the Lamp, Arts and science college honorary sorority, and she has been director of the Y. W. C. A. vesper choir and of the Big Sister board. Marjorie Ann Stuff is president of Chi Delta Phi, honorary literary organization, and Ida Lustgarten graduated in music from the fine arts school, and is a member of Alpha Rho Tau, honorary scholastic fine arts organization. The Phi Beta Kappa list also has two sisters, Fredricka and Lydia Wagner. Janet Schmitz is president of her social sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, is prominent in Intramural sports.

The list of Phi Beta Kappa members for this year includes, upper row, left to right, Elva Gene Anderson, Minden; Catherine Beekmann, Franklin; Margaret Kathleen Black, Lincoln; Mrs. Lois Hartman Boggs, Lincoln; Inez Evangeline Bolin, Lincoln; Lawrence Olin Brockway, Wichita, Kas.; Evelyn Collins, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Lucille Katherine Cunningham, Lincoln; Verne Fae Davies, Aurora; Hazel Davis, Woodbine, Ia.; Robert Diller, Diller; Lillian Viola Engel, Lincoln; Evelyn Mae Fate, Clay Center; David Fellman, Sigma Alpha Mu, Omaha; Dean Hammond, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Holdrege; second row, George Robert Hughes, Wymore; Jen Elizabeth Jenkins, Blue Springs; Munro Kezer, Lambda Chi Alpha, Lincoln; Garnet Ireva Larsen, Minden; Marie Katherine Lau, Lincoln; Mrs. Francel Murphy Lauritsen, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Ida Lustgarten, Omaha; Wilbur Lincoln Mead, Phi Kappa Psi, Ashland; Perry William Morton, Acacia, Lincoln; Elinor Josephine Noh, Alpha Phi, Clarkson; Charles Edward Olmsted, Roca; William Paul Pence, Lincoln; John Charles Pirie, Alpha Tau Omega, Lincoln; Mary Alice Race, Omaha; Frieda Josephine Roerden, Seward; Harriet Alice Rogers, Fremont; third row, Mary Janet Schmitz, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Hastings; Lester Philip Schoene, Syracuse; Sylvia Sestak, Lincoln; Harlan Gipson Smedley, Lincoln; Marjorie Ann Stuff, Alpha Chi Omega, Lincoln; Louise Van Sickle, Sigma Kappa, Lincoln; Lydia Elizabeth Wagner, Seward; Fredricka Esther Wagner, Seward; Clara Edith Walter, Alpha Delta Pi, Lincoln; Martha Catherine Weaver, Falls City; Wilma Grace Worden, Alpha Delta Theta, Superior; David Louis Yabroff, Zeta Beta Tau, Oxford, Kas.; Hazel Mikulas, Wilbur. Photographs of Mrs. Ethel Neil Bassett, Lincoln; Gerhardt Jersild, Chicago, Ill.; Elenore Mary Kudrna, Clarkson; Maude Amanda Stewart, Auburn, are not shown.

Officers of Jokers Aid Are Elected

Mrs. Howard May Selected As New President of Social Club.

The Jokers Aid held election of officers at the meeting Thursday afternoon held with Mrs. John Brehm at her home, 2400 St. Mary's avenue. Mrs. Howard May was elected president; Mrs. Paul Blinde, vice president; Mrs. Fred Jansen, secretary; Mrs. Spencer Rouse, treasurer; Mrs. W. D. Brownson, sick committee chairman; Mrs. C. C. Tubbs, editor. After the meeting five hundred was played and Mrs. Paul Blinde received first prize. Mrs. Virgil Foreman received low score. Mrs. J. Brehm served a two course luncheon concluding the card game. The club will meet with Mrs. G. Roder at her home, 412 East Fourteenth street, College View, April 25.

Auxiliary Group Meets.

Miss Freda Curtis entertained the Alpha Sigma Phi auxiliary at the chapter house Saturday afternoon when eighteen members attended. The time was enjoyed socially and luncheon was served. The second Saturday in May Mrs. J. E. Bailey will be hostess at the chapter house.

• • •

Mrs. Turley Is Hostess.

Mrs. Paul Weeden was the only guest of the Ace High club members when they met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. G. M. Turley at her home, Fortieth and Sheridan. Of the two tables of bridge high score went to Mrs. Paul Hunter and second to Mrs. James Kuhner. Luncheon was served. In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. Hunter at her home in College View in the afternoon.

• • •

R. C. Club Entertained.

Games were enjoyed by the members of the R. C. club when they spent Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. D. White, 2048 L street, with Mrs. G. W. Thorngate assisting. Of the nine members Mrs. Ed Ward received the first prize and luncheon was served at the close of the entertainment. The second Friday in May, Mrs. C. W. Kime will entertain at her home, 1529 South Twenty-first street, in the afternoon. Mrs. Daisy Brumbaugh is to assist.

• • •

Mrs. Barnes Presides.

Vases of calendula were used in the living room for floral attractiveness when Mrs. F. M. Barnes gave a luncheon Friday noon for the Imperial bridge club at her home, 1003 South Thirtieth street. At bridge there were three tables, Mrs. Curtis Hoke making high score and Mrs. William Vidlock second. In two weeks Mrs. W. O. Villott will entertain at her home, 833 South Twenty-ninth street, with a 1 o'clock luncheon.

Fifteen Attend Meeting.

The meeting of the W. T. M. club Thursday held at the home of Mrs. Charles Wilson at her home, 2840 R street, was attended by fourteen members and one guest, Mrs. Parrish of Elmwood. The hostess served a 1 o'clock covered dish luncheon and the guests spent the remainder of the afternoon informally. In two weeks Mrs. C. H. Rheuport will entertain at her home, 436 South Thirtieth street.

• • •

Final Meeting of Club.

The last meeting of the year was held by the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Mothers' club Thursday at the home of Mrs. Mary Deahm, 1725 Washington street. There were seven present for the regular monthly business meeting and refreshments were served following the session.

Personals

Lee Treadwell, 1423 Q street celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday on Friday with an informal evening at home. He was born on April 12, 1874, in Lawrence, Kan. He has lived in Lincoln for twenty-six years and for eleven years has been connected with the Western Newspaper Union.

P.T.A. Groups Stressing Dramatic Entetainment

Everett Plans Election of Officers, Saratoga Has Visiting Day and Roundtable Feature At Randolph Where Plans Being Made for Nutrition Classes for Mothers.

Dramatic offerings appear to be extremely popular with Parent-Teacher associations, a majority of them having given plays during the year. Many more are to be presented this week.

College View Parent-Teacher association will give the Zander-Gump wedding at the Orthopedic hospital Tuesday at 7:30. Mrs. Loretta Walker, president requests the cast to meet at the high school at 7 o'clock.

Members of the cast were guests of Mrs. Loretta Walker Monday evening at her home at Fortieth street and Sheridan boulevard. The time was spent playing games. First prize was won by Mrs. George Ridgeway and consolation by Mrs. Harry Williams. The cast presented both Mrs. Carlos Hotchkiss and Mrs. Walker with a vase of sweet peas. Mrs. Clarence Wilson made the presentation. Refreshments served by the hostess closed the evening.

Will Give Play.

Mothers of Elliott association will present a play entitled, "Hiring a Maid" Friday at the school. Kindergarten children will sing "Spring Rhythm" and "See Saw Rhythm" under the direction of Miss Jessie Wilson. There will also be community singing and election of officers. Kindergarten mothers will be hostesses during the social hour.

Will Elect Officers.

Parent-Teacher members of Everett school will be guests at an assembly at the school, at 2:25 Tuesday. Entertainment will consist of a demonstration by the violin class, under the direction of Miss Blanche Larabee, a group of songs by Lloyd Robinson, cello solo by Miss Helen Ludham, and readings by Mrs. Ada Malcolm.

An instrumental trio including Miss Dorothy Wassum, piano; Loraine Watt, violin; and Marvel McCormick, flute, will play. Dismissal of the assembly will be followed by an election of officers. Mrs. George Ostermiller is chairman of the social hour which will conclude the meeting.

Saratoga Visiting Day.

Visiting day will be held at Saratoga school on Tuesday. Patrons are invited to visit the rooms in which they are most interested. At 2:30 there will be a business session and reports of the district Parent-Teacher convention will be given by Mrs. F. M. Staats and Mrs. E. R. Sellmeyer.

Classes At Randolph.

A class in nutrition, and another for mothers, will feature the work at Randolph school this week. They are organized under the Smith-Hughes act. The nutrition class will be on Wednesday and has to do with balanced meals and the value of foods. There are but three more lessons in the course.

The class for mothers is for those whose children are entering kindergarten next year. It will meet Thursday at 9:30 a. m.

The first of five pre-school clinics those to enter kindergarten next year was held April 5. Those that are to come are scheduled for Friday. A nutrition class for children also is being featured at Randolph school. A few more can be accepted, any child 7 per cent under weight being eligible, a note first being sent to the teacher.

• • •

Roundtable A Feature.

A round table on "Truth and Falsehood" will be led by Mrs. L. W. Hiles at the Randolph meeting at the school Tuesday. Children from the afternoon kindergarten room, will oppear on the program.

Miss Fassett's Betrothal Announced.

At a prettily arranged dinner Wednesday evening at their home, 1820 M street, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Fassett announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Alida, to Lloyd Whitaker of Lincoln. The twenty guests included a group who for the last eight years have dined together once each year, and who are all members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The evening also marked the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Inez Brinkworth, and during the dinner she was presented with a past presidents' pin of the V. F. W. auxiliary. The guests were seated at two tables, on which a motif of pink and blue was carried out in the tall pink tapers in blue holders and in the place cards. The pink cards marking the places had a silver bell on one side, beneath which were the names "Alida" and "Floyd," and on the other side was Mrs. Brinkworth's name and age. The other rooms were decorated in purple and gold, colors of the V. F. W. The after dinner hours were spent with cards. Twelve girls of the ready-to-wear department of Herpolsheimer's entertained at a surprise miscellaneous shower Friday evening, in honor of Miss Fassett at her home. The guests spent the evening sewing quilt blocks, each guest embroidering her name on a block. Refreshments were served late in the evening.

TYPICAL AMERICAN COLONIAL

This beautiful six room home is located at 2900 South 17th Street and owned by R. F. Schalkopf. It was built by Pauley Lumber Co. The roof is of Red Slate and the exterior is re-inforced Portland Cement Stucco. The gabled front on main roof and vestibule, with the dormer window at the valley line of roof, gives this home the lines that we call AMERICAN COLONIAL. It really is an adaptation of the Colonial plan. A convenient coat closet opens from the tiled vestibule through a mirror door. Effective arched doorways from the central hall give access to all rooms. The living room is finished in Red Gumwood. A fireplace adds to the home-like atmosphere. The kitchen has a broom closet, plenty of cupboard space, large windows and convenient arrangement of fixtures. The second floor has three large bed rooms and ample closet room.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Just to Go Faster and Faster Is the Aim of the Average Modern and, As a Result, Nervous Breakdowns Are Quite In Fashion.

Have You Had Yours?

Nervous breakdowns are quite the vogue.

Almost everyone has had at least one. Or is pridefully looking forward to one.

They are not an idle boast. They really exist.

Yet people keep on their mad pace, heading for one breakdown while recovering from the last, and thinking it is clever and smart to continue a wild, mad pace and neglecting the abuse they are giving the delicate organs of their body.

It is quite in the class with pouring poisonous bootleg beverages down into a tender stomach, fighting to recover mental and physical equilibrium for several days, then starting in all over again.

It's just plain silly.

I know oodles and scads of people who are on this and that prescribed diet because they have bolted their meals for years. And why? So they could hustle madly to get some more meals to bolt. Or so they could corner their share of the excitement modern life offers in their corner of the world. Or to keep up with the Joneses. Or some other equally unimportant reason.

Most Americans get the fidgets about ten seconds after they are born and from that time are just rarin' to go.

Go where? I don't know. They don't know. Just go. Faster and faster. Make a record of some sort. Keep up with someone who is trying to keep up with them. Outsmart their nervous system and alimentary tract. Burn up the road and their own insides.

The wise man is the one who can go into low on the hills and stop to enjoy the scenery as he travels along.

The woman in the following letter has been one of the unwise speed maniacs and is still racing along.

Dear Minerva: I am a woman thirty-three years old, too young to feel old, yet I suddenly find myself overwhelmed with the general rush of life. I have always been active and after marriage was afraid to get into a rut so I have always kept my life filled to the brim with obligations, engagements, clubs, parties, this and that. I have two children and give a great deal of time to them, making their special clothes for little dancing exhibitions, recitals, supervising their practice hours in music and dancing, attending mother's clubs and all the up-to-date complexities of raising children. I hold offices in two other clubs, very interesting, worth-while institutions. I attend gymnasium and daning classes to keep my figure lithe. I am on the go from morning until night. Sometimes I think I work twice as hard as my husband does. And suddenly I am tired of it all. But I am afraid to stop. I am afraid it is an admission of getting old. And that if I do stop that I will fall out of the whirl of things and never be able to get in again.

Do other women ever feel as I do?

A few months ago I thought I had a happy, near-perfect existence. Now it all seems so futile and useless. Is this a harbinger of old age? MIRIAM.

A. One sign that spring is here, perhaps. But a sign you should heed with serious meditation. You have been going on high too long. It isn't a matter of age but a matter of overworked nerves and organs. Heed the warnings and slow down before you stage a nervous breakdown from which you will not emerge with your youthful vigor and verve.

The only way to stop is to place a period after some of the activities you are indulging in. Most of them are useless enough, perhaps. Take a Sabbatical year and see how you can enjoy leisure.

Must Be A Reason.

Dear Minerva: This is the first time I have written to you but you have been giving such good advice that I thought I would bring my problem to you. I have been going with a girl living about ten miles from here. But her folks do not like me, though I do not know why, and so when the girl goes with me she must make an excuse of some sort.

I got tired of her having to deceive her parents all the time and stopped going with her. I went with another girl two or three times, but I did not like her. I kept thinking about this other girl and wanting to be with her. When this first girl found out that I had been going with the second girl it rather peeved her, but I think I can fix that up all right. What I want to know is how to make her parents like me. The girl is eighteen and I am just past twenty-one and have a fairly good job.—L. H. C.

A. I certainly like your spirit in wanting to have the parents of the girl like you. It happens too often nowadays that the young man going with a girl does not care much about what the parents think just so he can be with the girl. And I think you are right in deciding that nothing can be gained in the way of lasting happiness when the girl must deceive her parents every time she goes with you.

You say you do not know why her parents object to you. But surely the girl knows or at least she can find out. The thing to do is for you to find out why they do not care for you and then shape your campaign accordingly. The chances are, if it is true that they are opposed to you, that they have some mistaken idea regarding you. From the tone of your letter, I would judge that you have many admirable qualities. Find out why the parents object to you, then write me again and we will see what we can do about it.

A Mother's Testimony.

Dear Minerva: I am an interested reader of your column and I wish to add a good word for our high school boys and girls. I have given them a number of party dances and I have an intimate acquaintance with them. This crowd of twenty-two to thirty (their ages are from 17 to 19) do not smoke or drink as some people seem to think, and they study every evening except Saturday evening, which is their big night. No crowd could possibly have more fun than they do. Their parties break up at midnight and they go straight home. How do I know? I have a son who in one of them and he is always home a few minutes after the parties break up. I feel like I know those boys and girls as if they were my own children. Some of them come to my house frequently for meals or to listen to the radio for a while. Some of the boys are football players and there is not a "sissy" in the crowd. We were not allowed to dance when we were young, but frankly, I can't see any harm in these house party dances and I think our crowd of young folks are "just fine."—I. A. U.

Love of Children.

Dear Minerva: I have been married six years and during that time my husband slowly but surely killed all my love for him, until all because he refused to love me or to show me any kind of affection at all. A few months ago he took steps to get a divorce and it was just shortly after that that I met a very fine man and whom I have come to love very much. Now my husband comes to me and wants me to halt the divorce and let him come back to me. I have two small children and my husband says they need him and he needs them. However, the man I am in love with has plenty of money and is willing to support the children. What do you think I should do, give up all my chances for happiness in the future, or marry this man when I get my divorce and know what real love is? —MRS. T. L.

A. My dear woman, you now have the most beautiful and genuine love there is if you would only see it, and by that I mean, the love of your childen. Nowhere is there anything so wonderful or so abiding as a mother's love for her child. You speak about giving up your chances for happiness in the future, as though the opportunity to shape and develop the characters and bodies of your two little children meant nothing whatsoever to you.

Of course, the perfect love would be a loving husband and loved children, but unless your husband is much worse than your letter indicates, no step-father can ever take his place in the hearts of your children. Circumstances do sometimes alter cases and because of the meager information which I have, I can answer only in generalities. There are perhaps some cases where a stepfather might be better for the children, but such cases are indeed rare. As the years go by you will learn that the happiness which your children can give you will be greater than the happiness you might receive from this other man.

When Fear Enters.

In a letter today which I am not going to reproduce, a mother mourns in fear the tendency toward youthful criminality. I am not publishing the letter, because it is entirely too stark in its fears, too minute in its retailing of current criminal cases for wholesome or constructive reading. It is truth, but truth in such a bleak, stark form that I feel we are all of us better off without the morbid thoughts it induces. The mother herself is receiving a personal letter, for she has brooded herself into a dangerously fearsome, depressed channel of thought.

I am not one who mourns for the "good old days." I believe the present day is better and the present generation, too, but no one can deny that there is a laxity of control in behaviour: The older ones are often worse than the children.

Self-control, a sense of responsibility, is what we need. Cultivate it, both the young people and the adults. Try to realize the bigness of life, the fact that your little personal happiness of today does not mean so much as your integrity.

Young people are idealists. Adults can help them best by keeping their minds untarnished by fears, by holding the ideal before them, by practicing self control and teaching it.

Lack of Interest.

Dear Minerva: I have come to the place where I cannot solve my own problems. About two years ago I married a man three years my senior. We have never been happy since the day we were married. We were as happy as could be before we took that step.

Now we have a baby one year old and on account of the baby we cannot break up, still we are ruining our lives. He says if I leave him he will do everything in his power to get the baby, so I am staying with him on this account. It seems to me he doesn't love me or he would try to be good to me. He never gives me a cent of money and the bank account is in his name. I have done everything to make him understand how I feel but he thinks he is good to me. He never comes home in the evening until 8 o'clock and then he either goes out somewhere or works on his radio. I am always alone. Now do you think that is the right way for him to treat me? He never will talk to me in the evening and he seldom pays any attention to the baby. Before we were married he was always very affectionate but now he simply ignores me. I am getting so I just naturally hate him. It seems ages since he has spoken a decent word to me. Can't you tell me what to do? Mrs. W.

A. There are many adjustments to be made in married life, and one which frequently needs to be made is that of the husband who leaves all the responsibility of baby-tending to the wife and seeks his recreation alone.

You will have to take the matter firmly in hand. Secure someone to stay with the baby on certain evenings and ask your husband to take you out to a show or to visit friends or have friends in the home. He will enjoy the return to social pleasures with you, even though he doesn't realize he has missed them. Just to gradually wean him back to include you in his recreations is worth more than lecturing. Demand a household fund and personal allowance. You cannot have a happy home without it.

Miss Louise Enochs is conducting the contests in sewing, which will be opened with a test of the fundamentals. Other divisions are a standard pattern test, machine comprehension test, fiber selection, identification and testing and units in garment construction. In the latter section the contestants will be asked to do one of four things, decide and apply a suitable color on a smock or a color given, design, make and securely sew a patch pocket on a smock, make placket and cuff for the sleeve or make a durable set-in pocket for a house dress or smock.

The commercial contest will include shorthand, typewriting penmanship, and bookkeeping in charge of Mr. Hale, Mrs. Sutton and Mr. Apel.

The dramatic contests are in charge of Mrs. Miriam Drake and include besides regular humorous, dramatic and oratorical selections, a competitive presentation of one act plays.

The English tests begin with the writing of a five-line limerick. At 1 o'clock there is a one hour test for writers on a general topic, and there will also be a poetry judging contest. This work is in charge of Prof. C. T. Ryan.

Under the general topic of foods, in charge of Mrs. Romayne Webster, comes meal preparation and service, extemporaneous preparation of well known dishes, and food tests.

The contest in normal training is being supervised by R. W. Powell and consists of two parts; the written contest which will be on some special phase of the general topic, "Organization and management of a Modern One-Room School." The oral contest will be on some phase of the general topic, "The Nebraska Rural Teacher as a Leader."

The stock judging work is in charge of T. T. Anderson. The team or individual scoring the highest number of points in stock judging will be declared winner.

R. C. Rogers conducts music contest which includes violin, piano and vocal.

An industrial education division is in charge of Verne C. Fryklund. It consists of a drawing contest that stresses line technique, lettering, dimensions, arrowheads and related data, woodwork contest, and home mechanics.

Summer Schools Will Be Held To Study Y. W. Work

Summer schools to study Y. W. C. A. work from all angles will be held this summer in five states according to officials of the Lincoln Y. W. C. A., community chest character building agency. Several representatives from Lincoln are expected to attend the schools which will be open to those who wish to study the methods and program of the Y. W. C. A. movement, either as volunteer or staff workers or as preparation for entering the profession.

The first school will be held in Asilomar, Calif., June 21 to August 2. The next will be at Proctorsville, Vermont, July 1 to August 10. At Lake Geneva, Wis., which will probably be the one visited by the Lincoln representatives the school will last from June 21 to August 2; and at Camp Maqua, Poland, Me., the term will be from July 15 to Sept. 1. The usual session of the national school of the Y. W. C. A. will be held in New York City.

Modern problems of girls and women will be one of the themes of the summer session in Vermont. Another will be the place of the Y. W. C. A. in the life of today. The effects of migration and what can be done by a community or organization for the newly arrived immigrant will be studied. Miss Elizabeth Herring will be the executive.

At Asilomar the session will include the interpretation of the Y. W. C. A. as a Christian woman's movement, present trends in community life, the place of religion in solving personal problems, and the significance of the youth movement. Charlotte Adams and Lucile Lippitt of Los Angeles will be in charge of the school.

There will be three types of the courses offered at the Wisconsin school, one an introduction to association work for general secretaries in small cities and towns, another on association methods, and a one week's seminary for volunteers. Charlotte E. Burton and Clara Roe will serve as executives and associate executive, respectively. Anna V. Rice, general secretary of the national board, will also be at Geneva.

At Camp Maqua there will be a laboratory course for association secretaries, especially interested in leisure time activities for girls.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. P-169, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Write him today.—Advertisement.

American Girls Given Credit For Setting Another Beauty Standard

The visions of grace shown here are Adrienne Dore, left; Colleen Moore, center, and Lucy Doraine, right, who are three of the reasons which Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, inset, may have had in mind when he stated that in his opinion American girls had the best looking legs in the world.

(By International Illustrated News)

Whatever there is to be said on the question of legs has been said over and over again, hashed up in just a little different manner each time. It remained for Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, of dear old London, famous British surgeon and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, to add a new line.

Sir Lane recently said a mouthful when he opined that American girls have the prettiest legs in the world. Furthermore, his surgical mind went on to say that even if they had small defects the girls knew how to camouflage them (the defects). In this modern age of short dresses the art of making some things even look like legs is perhaps more of an asset than just being born with the type that men prefer.

No questions but that the "Goddess of Beauty" must have personally supervised the production of the underpinings of nine-tenths of the girls you see on the avenue. And that ain't all. This plethora of goodly legs is not confined to any locality, but is mighty general, as Sir Lane says, it is an American trait and that covers a lot of territory. We girls have to hand it to Sir Lane. He knows his legs. But, then, so do we.

Benefit At High School Auditorium

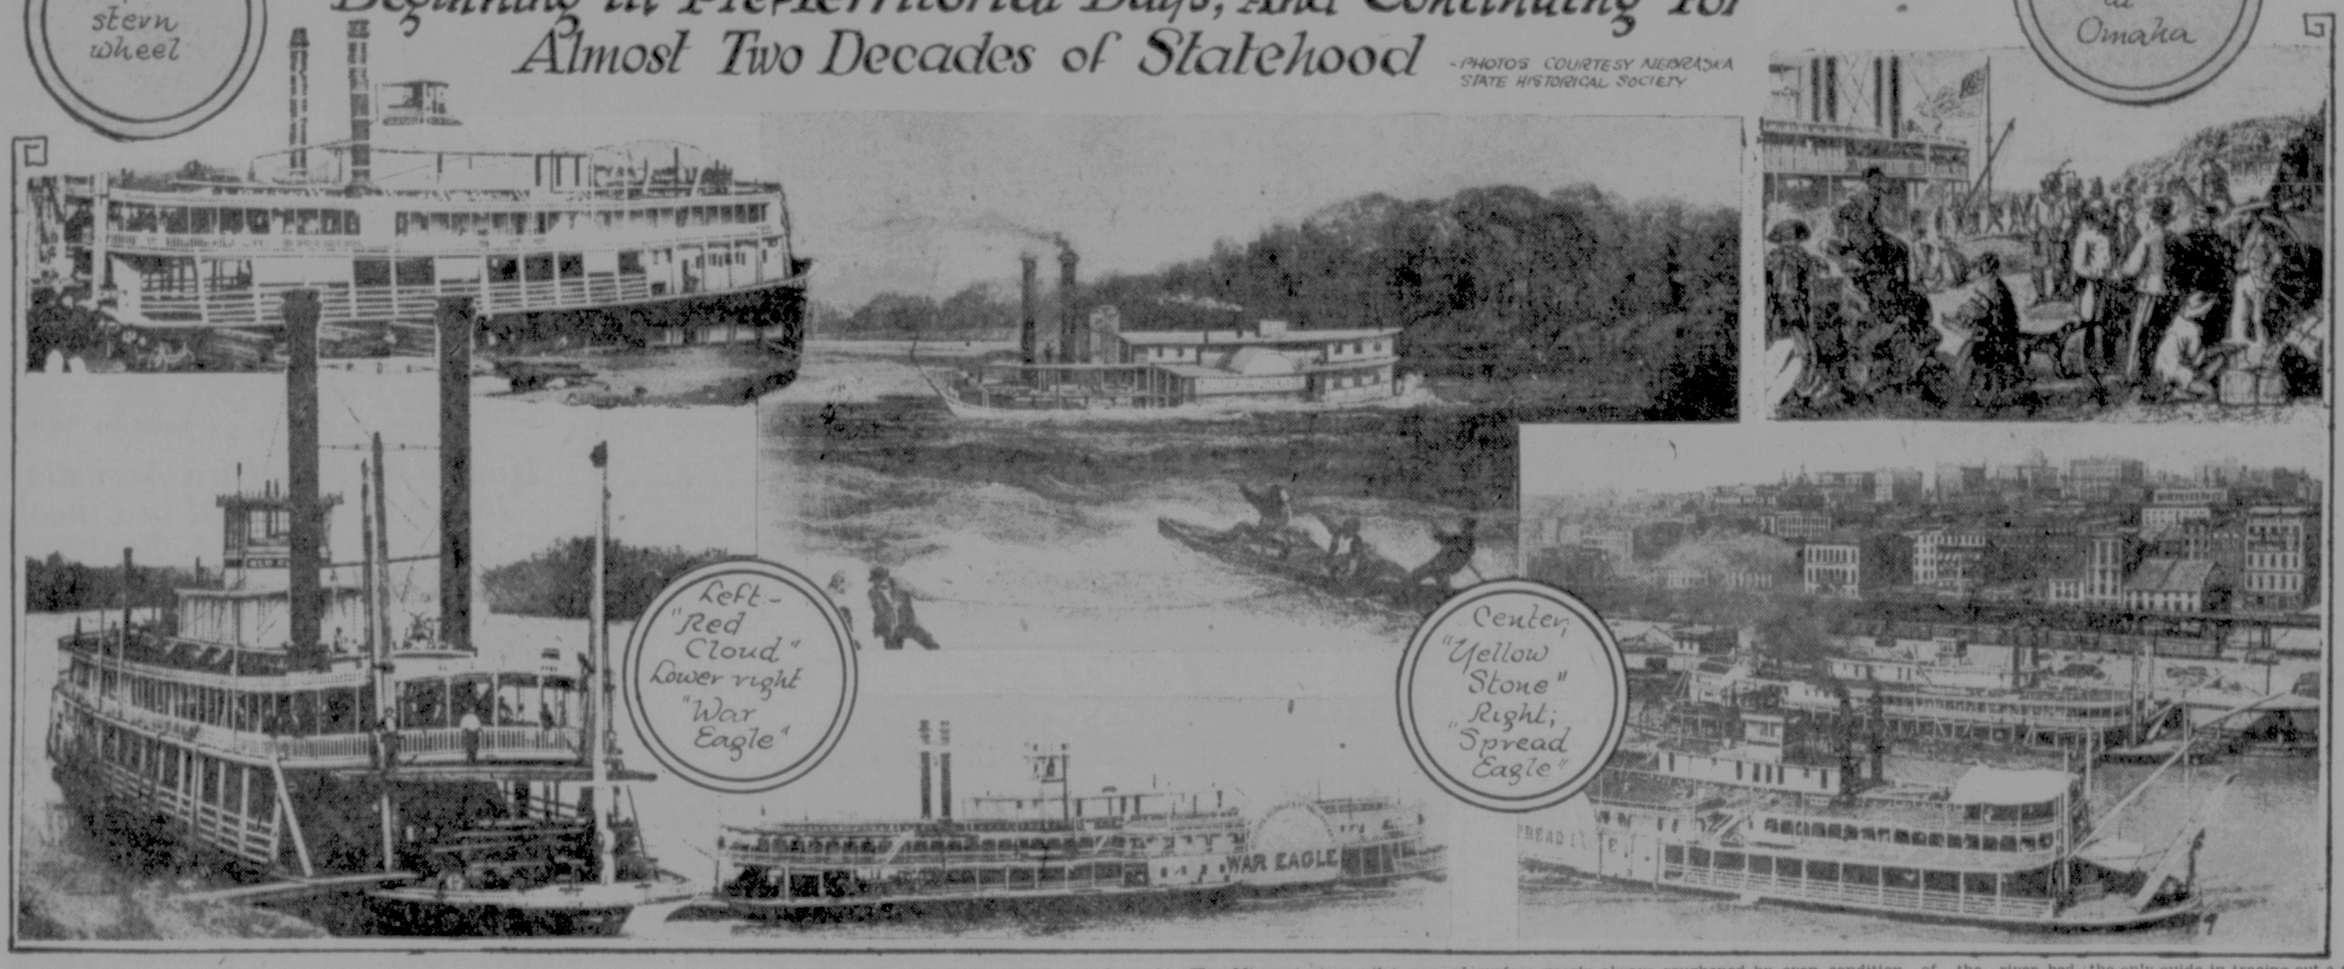
MISSOURI RIVER NAVIGATION IS AN OLD SUBJECT

Sidewheelers Brought Missionaries, Adventurers and Supplies Into Nebraska And Points on Upper River for Half a Century Beginning in Pre-Territorial Days, And Continuing For Almost Two Decades of Statehood

PHOTOS COURTESY NEBRASKA STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY



BY LULU MAE COE.

There's much less interest when the Leviathan puts out to sea than when the "Spread Eagle" or "Ben Bolt" or "Forest Rose" churned the Missouri into muddy foam, dropped their line, and nosed out from the dock at St. Louis into the channel, bound for the upper river, and no one knew what adventure.

Women in their wide stiff skirts and tight little bonnets, taking up the space of a couple of modern girls, recruits for various trading companies, hunters, trappers, voyageurs, mountaineers, perhaps a company of soldiers for military service, passengers going out for pleasure or scientific research into the interior, pioneer immigrants in later days, possibly a government exploring party, leaving the fringe of civilization for months, years, perhaps, forever, now and again. They needed the stimulus of the revelry that had gone before and the running roll of musketry of the mountaineers and others as the light river craft set out for the north.

Picturesque Days Gone.

Missouri river navigation is a popular subject, a "restoring to the glory that was Greece" sort of subject. Engineering may be able to dredge the Big Muddy, give it a permanent channel, keep the tempestuous river within its banks, keep it free of snags, sand bars and whirlpools, but it can never bring back the picturesqueness of the days when men and women risked life and fortune to the "Robert Fulton," the "Sonora," or the "Omaha, "there is no better boat at the landing than the steamer Omaha, regular Upper Missouri packet," it was said, to go into the wilderness that was some day to be Nebraska and north Iowa, South Dakota, and Montana.

For a century the history of the Missouri river was the history of the country through which it flowed. It is no longer a great artery of trade or travel, but the temperamental stream was at one time almost the only highway of commerce into the middle west. It ruled this territory, commercial posts and military garrisons being established, expeditions undertaken, and business projects carried out with reference to the Missouri.

Canoes, mackinaws, keelboats, and steamboats form the craft history of the river. Keel boats for the fur trade meant delay in transportation and heavy cost, and because of this the use of steam was determined upon in 1830, and from that time the true history of Missouri river navigation begins. The most important use of early steamboats upon the Missouri was in connection with the fur trade, after an unsuccessful attempt to use steam in 1819.

Steamer Frightened Indians.

The Western Engineer, under the direction of Major Stephen H. Long, and the first steamboat to ascend the Missouri river was 75 feet long, 13 feet beam, and 19 draught. The bow was shaped in to serpent's head, with the boiler and engine masked from view, and smoke escaped through the serpent's mouth, which was supposed to frighten Indians. At a speed of three miles an hour, it reached Council Bluffs.

This venture of 1819, planned to explore the Yellowstone country, "is well armed, but carries an elegant flag, painted by Mr. Peale, representing a white man and an Indian shaking hands, the Calumet of Peace and a Sword." This gentle flag was more diplomatic than realistic, in the light of later days.

In 1831, the American Fur company undertook long voyages, one or two steamboats making extensive trips each year. The first of these was the Yellowstone, which left St. Louis in April, 1831, and returned August 6, which went 600 miles farther than any steamboat had before navigated. Although bound for the Yellowstone mouth, the boat only went as far as Fort Tecumseh, opposite, Pierre, S. D. The Yellowstone brought down a full cargo of buffalo robes, furs, pelts, and 10,000 pounds of buffalo tongues.

Reached Mouth of Yellowstone.

A year later, in July, the Yellowstone arrived again in St. Louis from its second voyage, only this time she reached the mouth of the Yellowstone—700 miles higher than the previous year. This voyage was considered one of the landmarks of early western history. Maxmilian, Prince of Wied, was a passenger on the 130-foot sidewheeler, and he spent some time at Fort McKenzie. The Assiniboine, which went beyond the Yellowstone, was caught by low water, and remained through the winter.

The Missouri river pilot was of necessity the most skilled of his profession. The current was swift, the channel full of snags or sawyers, the surface nearly always roughened by winds, difficult passage of shallow bars made the pilot's position one of minute attendance to duty. An uneven condition of the river bed, filled with drifts or bars, sometimes called reefs, produced an appearance upon the water which was almost the only guide in tracing out a sinuous channel. The number of Missouri river wrecks was astounding, and about 70 per cent were caused by snags, which tore the boat.

The shallow bars, where there was not sufficient water to float the boat, occurred where channels, after following one side of the river bed, crossed to the other, and the channel split into chutes, none of which might have the required depth of water. One promising channel after another was tried, a deck hand making his soundings every five seconds, calling out his depths in a drawling singsong voice, interesting to the passengers seeking amusement. Canadian boatmen prefaced their findings with a native song. One or two days were often consumed in finding a channel, after the entire river in the vicinity had been sounded over a shallow portion.

Indians Were Menace.

Rapids and whirlpools added to the cares of a Missouri river pilot, but Indians added to the difficulties of all. From 1860 to 1876, hostile savages were formidable perils, the Sioux tribes being particularly annoying from the Niobrara to Milk river. They were many attacks, with lives lost, and att imes staterooms and decks were barricaded, and guard kept night and day.

Boats tied up at night, the running hours being from 3 a. m. to 9 p. m., with the crew divided into four watches. The early morning or the late night runs were the best, the wind be ng so low that it formed no serious drawback, and the water comparatively calm, especially in the morning. If the wind increased beyond a certain point, the boat was compelled to make for shore and wait for the gale to subside, because the area of the boat exposed to the wind was so great that in narrow channels it was almost impossible to keep within them, and the boat would lie at the bank for hours.

Fueling was a serious problem, as wood alone was used, and cottonwood, the most plentiful was not first class firewood. In early years, wood was cut by the crews, but wood yards were established with the growth of river traffic. Indians for a time cut all the wood, and refused to let the whites near the wooded areas. Wood cutting became a precarious business during the Indian hostilities, and crews were attacked at the landing. Captain Joseph LaBarge, well known riverman whose life embraced all the years of active boating business, equipped one of his boats with a sawmill and yoke of oxen. When he had to have wood he swung out a large stage, drove the team ashore, dragged logs on board speedily, steamed, away, and the crew cut the wood while en route.

Boats With One Engine.

The early boats were of sidewheel pattern, with only one engine, and an immense flywheel to keep it from stopping on dead center. The men's cabins were in the hold, with the forward part of the boat taken up with machinery. In the river boats, the main deck was first above the water, and the one covering the hold, the boiler deck was second, just over the boilers, and covered by the hurricane roof, and the hurricane deck was the third, and the texas, containing the officers' cabins, and pilot house on it.

A first-class modern river steamboat of later days was about 220 feet long and 35 feet wide, and would carry 500 packs. It was built with a light bottom, so that it would draw about 30 inches light and 50 inches loaded. It was propelled by a stern wheel, in place of the old side paddles, made possible by a balanced rudder, and had two engines, one on each side. The quarters of the crew and steerage passengers were on he boiler deck, and the texas was on top of the hurricane deck, and above the texas the pilot house, high over the river, so that the pilot could observe with more precision. The boats carried light armament, partly to fire salutes and partly to terrify the Indians.

The arrival of a boat was a great day for the lonely trading posts. Salutes were exchanged and the colors displayed when nearing a post. Passengers thronged to the deck to

University of Nebraska Planning to Establish Tradition of Annual Honors Day

BY PEARL COLLETE.

The University of Nebraska, in sponsoring an "Honors day" May 8, has added another new custom to important University events that undoubtedly will in future years become another endeared tradition.

Honors day has been established to emphasize high attainments in scholarship at the university. On that day three classes of undergraduate students will be awarded emblems for attainment in scholarship.

A committee headed by Prof. W. C. Brenke as chairman and including Prof. H. C. Filley, Prof. F. E. Kirshman, Dean T. J. Thompson, and Prof. O. H. Werner presented this plan before the senate and upon its approval this month the same committee was reappointed by the chancellor to make plans for this Honors day.

Honors will be awarded at a special evening convocation on May 8. There will be recognition both to social groups and to the non-social division. The social groups include social sororities and fraternities. The non-social organizations include professional and honorary societies.

Honor Upper 10 Per Cent.

Students of three upper classes whose scholarship average is in the upper 3 per cent will be designated as "Superior in Scholarship" and entitled to wear a suitable emblem selected annually by the Honors day committee. Those whose average places them is the upper 10 per cent will be designated as "High in Scholarship." Students who maintain a superior scholarship during three years will have their names inscribed in a permanent record at the university and be given an emblem permanently adopted for that purpose.

Campus organizations that are officially recognized will be entitled to awards at the convocation also. Students and organizations that are to receive honors will be selected by the university senate upon recommendation of the council of administration.

Students elected to honorary societies are to be announced at the program if the requirements for election conform to a standard of scholarship required by the council of administration. Any officially-recognized group whose scholarship average is 20 per cent above the undergraduate average on the basis of the scholarship ratings made by the office of the dean of students affairs will be announced in the program.

Thirty Greek Honoraries.

There are over thirty Greek letter honorary and professional societies in which membership is based on high scholarship or professional ability or both.

The mother of all Greek letter societies as well as the first honorary is Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic organization, which was founded at the College of William and Mary December 5, 1776. The society at this time was a secret organization and had adopted a Greek motto, thus the first Greek letter society in the United States. The next three oldest chapters of the society were at Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth. At the present there are 107 chapters established in the various colleges of the country.

Secrecy was abandoned in 1830. Originally men alone were eligible to membership but with the growth of co-educational institutions the policy began to be abandoned in 1875, and today practically all chapters admit women upon an equal basis. Total membership today numbers over 55,000, approximately three-fifths being men and the balance women. It has been said that over one-sixth of those persons listed in Who's Who are members of this fraternity. A few of the famous living members are Calvin Coolidge, Charles B. Hughes, Elihu Root, William H. Taft, Richard Byrd, Charles A. Beard and Owen D. Young.

800 Nebraska Members.

The chapter at Nebraska was established in 1896 and has over 800 living members. In general, the requirements are that the candidate be a senior who has met the group requirements of the arts and sciences college, though he need not be a member of that college, and carried successfully not less than 64 credit hours by March 5 of the year in which elected, in the University of Nebraska. The percentage elected out of the eligible group may vary from one-tenth to one-sixth of the whole class at the discretion of the chapter.

Prominent members from Nebraska include Samuel Avery, R. J. Pool, Roscoe Pound, Emory Buckner, Fred M. Hunter, Louise Pound, Laurence Fossler, Sheldon Tefft, and Joy Guilford. Dean J. E. LeRossignol is president for this year.

There are honoraries and professionals organized in commerce, agriculture, business, music, advertising, literature, journalism, geology, fine arts, engineering, and lines of science. These groups bring together students who are interested in the same life work; they encourage valuable discussion; sponsor dinners with prominent speakers in their line of work; offer scholarships and sponsor events at the university in their own field.

Sigma Xi Founded in 1897.

Sigma Xi, scientific fraternity, was founded at Nebraska in 1897. It aims to aid in research in scientific fields by selecting promising candidates to its membership, and by bringing together at its meetings men and women who are devoting their lives to some branch of scientific research or experiment. Essentials for membership are high scholarship, character and promise of advancement in scientific fields. Election to this is one of the highest honors that can be conferred upon students interested in science. There are four types of membership, associate, active, alumni and honorary. Different chapters specialize in various kinds of work, some emphasize research and experimentation, some aid in the interest of science to the general public, others work for the social contacts between science workers. The Nebraska chapter has been endeavoring to combine these functions. Well known Nebraska members are Samuel Avery, E. H. Barbour, W. C. Brenke, E. A. Burnett, A. L. Candy, Charles Fordyce, E. F. Schramm, G. D. Swezey, R. H. Wolcott, C. C. Engberg, Elda R. Walker, Leva B. Walker and many other faculty members.

Phi Sigma, national honorary biological society was founded in 1924 at the University of Nebraska, taking the place of the Zoology club. A bi-monthly meeting is held for members, faculty and students, where papers are given on research work, or on general topics of interest. Membership is limited to those who are juniors or above, and must have had one-fourth of their hours in biological sciences. Every member is required now to be a research worker. George Herzog is president.

Society for Geologists.

Sigma Gamma Epsilon, professional geological and mining fraternity is open only to juniors and seniors who are majoring in geology and who have a high scholarship average. The society sponsors activities of the geology department during Engineers week when the department and the museum is open to the public. Jerry Svoboda is president.

Sigma Delta Epsilon, is for women in all lines of science, doing graduate work. Dr. Eula McEwan is president of the group this year. The graduates must be doing research work.

Iota Sigma Pi, national honorary chemistry fraternity for women, was founded at Nebraska in 1912 and united with a similar group at Washington in 1914. Its purpose is the stimulation of interest and achievement among women in chemistry fields, and the promotion of friendly relationship between the faculty and students by social gatherings and open meetings. Charlotte Barney was president this year.

Phi Lambda Epsilon is honorary chemical fraternity with E. A. Fluevog as president. There is a scholarship requirement of an average grade of 85 or above and leadership is one of the requirements for eligibility. The past year the freshman with the highest scholarship rating has had his name engraved on the scholarship cup and has received a medal. This practice will be continued. Among its alumni are Samuel Avery, Dr. Fred W. Upson, Dean Thompson, Colonel C. V. Frankforter, Dr. D. J. Brown, Dr. C. B. Hendricks, Dr. B. C. Bren, H. W. Harshaw, H. A. Pagel, E. R. Washburn, R. C. Abbott, M. J. Blish, Dr. C. W. Ackerson and Horace C. Deming.

Several Agricultural Societies.

There are several agricultural societies. Alpha Zeta, national honorary fraternity is for men students regularly enrolled in the agriculture college. Eligibility to membership requires three completed semesters of academic work, rank in the upper two-fifths in scholarship, good character and promise of developing a high order of leadership. Announcement of new members is made in the fall of each year, when a medal is presented to the sophomore who attained the highest scholarship during the freshman year. Austin Goss was this year's president.

Gamma Sigma Delta, the honor society of agriculture, had for its president this year, Dr. George Peltier. There are four classes of membership, student, faculty, graduate and alumni. Students are chosen from the upper fourth of the graduating class. The faculty members must have had at least three years of experience in their profession and have shown exceptional ability. The graduates must have shown ability to conduct research work. Alumni must have graduated at least five years before their election and must have rendered signal service to agriculture. Former Secretary of Agriculture Jardine of the Kansas chapter is a member. H. C. Taylor, former chief of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington, D. C., is a member as is E. S. Haskell, agricultural dictation of Persia. Prof. J. O. Rankin of the agricultural college is one of its charter members and is national historian.

Four "Bizad" Fraternities.

There are four commerce and business fraternities. Beta Gamma Sigma, national honorary fraternity for men students regularly enrolled in the college of business administration, chooses for its members those who rank in scholarship in the upper one-tenth of the senior and junior classes and they must show promise of leadership. Graduates and faculty members also are eligible to membership. Its endeavor is to raise the standards of scholarship among business administration students and to create a good fellowship on the campus. Some of its faculty members include Dean J. E. LeRossignol, G. O. Virtue, T. T. Bullock and Oscar R. Martin. Wilbur Meade is president this year.

Gamma Epsilon Pi, honorary commerce sorority for women, was installed at Nebraska in 1923. It is for junior and senior women in the college of business administration who rank high in scholarship. The object is to encourage and reward scholarship among women by recognizing exceptional ability, and to raise the standards in scholarship among women in the college. Eleanor Paul is president.

Delta Sigma Pi was organized at New York university school of commerce in 1907 to foster the study of business in universities, to encourage scholarship and the association of students for their mutual advancement by practice and research, to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and the students of commerce, and to further the high standard of commercial ethics and culture and the civic and commercial welfare of the community. The fraternity awards each year the Delta Sigma Pi key to the senior in the college having the highest scholarship. Some of the faculty members include F. C. Blood, V. Z. Brink and K. M. Arnot. Douglas Timmerman is president this year.

Better Business Ethics.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, fosters scientific research in the field of commerce, accounts and finance, and attempts to build higher standards of business ethics. It is both honorary and professional in character, for the student must have an average of 75 per cent in university work to be eligible. It is also based upon his participation in campus activities, general initiative, and interest in the business college. Among the faculty members are Dean LeRossignol, O. R. Martin, G. O. Virtue, J. E. Kirshman, T. T. Bullock, C. C. Hicks and C. D. Spangler. Burt A. Weber is president this year.

Phi Chi Theta, women's business sorority, ranks with the medical, legal, dramatic and educational sororities and is a charter member of the National Professional Panhellenic association. At the present time a complete employment survey is being made by the national officers of Phi Chi Theta. It is hoped that this survey will bring to light opening and opportunities in the business fields for many who may desire them. It is also planned to have centers throughout the larger cities in the United States, where a Phi Chi Theta member will take charge of employment work in that district. These will be linked together with a central bureau of information in which one of the local members, titled the employment surveyor, will be in charge. She will also work in conjunction with all the Professional Pan-Hellenic association organizations, obtaining through them other employment information. Phi Chi Theta strives to raise the standard of scholarship and further the highest education for business women. Women in business rarely held a degree, and one of the principal objects of this sorority is to have more women secure the degree of bachelor of science in business administration, and to introduce higher ideals of training and business ethics in whatever field they enter. Eleanor Paul is president this year.

Among engineering fraternities there is Sigma Tau, honorary based on scholarship, practicality and sociability. The fraternity not only recognizes ability but aims to promote engineering advancement and to obtain recognition of engineering as a true profession. The organization holds semi-monthly dinners followed by informal talks. During Engineers' week there is the annual presentation of a picture of some prominent engineer for the hall of fame in the mechanical engineering building. A medal a'so is presented to the sophomore who in his freshman year maintained the highest scholastic average. There is a student loan fund maintained by the local chapter. This year Greg Cowley served as president of the group.

Honoraries In Education.

There are two education Greek letter groups at Nebraska. Pi Lambda Theta for women and Phi Delta Kappa for men. Pi Lambda Theta had for its first president, Ella Victoria Dobbs, head of the department of education at the University of Missouri and a writer of textbooks in kindergarten education. Personality, interest in education, professional promise and scholarships are all requirements. Clara Olson is president for the year of the local chapter. Clara Wilson of the University of Nebraska; Olivia Pound; Alice Hanthorne, who is now supervisor of kindergarten-primary work in Cleveland; Miss Alice Cusack, who holds a like position in Kansas City; Opal Lewton, a supervisor in Lansing, Mich., and Miss Luvicy Hill are members of this group. Miss Hill is national keeper of the records. The organization sponsors a graduate scholarship for women in education, $1,000 being awarded to some woman doing research in educational fields who is working on her doctor's degree. It is called the Ella Victoria Dobbs scholarship in honor of the first national president. The local chapter offers a $25 scholarship to the junior or senior showing the most promise and interest in her work. Over 4,000 members are in this organization. The requirements for membership state that a student must be enrolled in the college of education, and must be of junior standing with 75 hours at least and eight hours in education.

Phi Delta Kappa, men's educational honorary, was started in 1910 as a result of consolidation of educational organizations that had been formed in Columbia university, the universities of Indiana and of Missouri. Its purpose is to foster research, to prepare for leadership and to render service in public education. Active members are limited to students in education of the senior college or of braduate standing who have obtained high academic recognition and who give promise of professional leadership. Members of the faculty are eligible to associate membership and to participate in the organization. Prof. G. C. Minteer is president of the Nebraska group. Among the faculty members are Samuel Avery, Charles Fordyce, M. C. Lefler, O. H. Bimson, E. W. Lantz, R. E. Cochran, Will French, Clark Fulmer and C. Ray Gates.

Two Journalistic Societies.

There are two strictly journalistic societies, one for men and one for women. Sigma Delta Chi, the men's society, requires that a student have proven proficiency in journalism either in school or practice, that he pledge to pursue journalism as a profession, be at least a second semester sophomore in good standing, and have a 75 per cent average or better. This group was originally founded at DePauw university in Indiana. Munro Kezer is president this year. The aim of the organization is to promote better journalism and better standards as a profession. It offers a cup each semester for the best news story published in the Daily Nebraskan and supervises copy editing for the basketball tournament each year. It now sponsors a criticism bureau to aid the state's high school newspapers. Alumni of this chapter include Jack Cejnar of the Indianapolis bureau of International News Service; Philo M. Buck, an honorary member now at Wisconsin, and Gayle C. Walker and Gregg McBride of Lincoln.

Theta Sigma Phi requires that candidates for membership be upperclassmen who are students in the college specializing or majoring in journalism and whose work is of high standing. They must have done work on some publication outside the classroom as a local requirement. Character and personality are considered in addition to professional ability and intentions. A requirement for initiation is work on the Daily Nebraskan, school paper. Frances Elliott is this year's president. Two of the present active members are doing newspaper work. Frances Elliott in Lincoln and Florence Seward as a correspondent for an Omaha paper. Among its important alumnae are Jean Burroughs Reed of the Curtis Publishing company; Ruth Moore Stanley who has won prizes in state press slub contests and is a writer of plays; Bess Streetr Aldrich, novelist, and Sarah Muir. The national organization sponsors the magazine Matrix, a register in Chicago for women seeking journalistic positions

What do the monkeys do
When there isn't any zoo?
Where do the 'gators play
On a cold and snowy day?
Who tells them spring is here—
The birds and bears and deer?

The Antelope park ground hog is supposed to serve as a spring thermometer in the animal kingdom.

But he didn't do his duty this year.

He didn't appear per schedule on February 2. So the alligators stretched and the bruins stuck their heads out and the parrots preened their feathers.

Three days later, out he popped, and who could tell February 2 without a ground hog was very good. But a late appearance—was his calendar wrong, and did he come tardily to tell his tale of more winter, or if he didn't come on the proper date, were later appearances powerless to influence the weather man.

So the Antelope zoo returned for a time to winter lethargy. And doesn't think so much of the little brown and furry creature with psychic powers.

Spring Is Announced.

In lieu of this information, Clarence Kittinger, park superintendent, announces spring to the furred and feathered inhabitants of the park.

Winter at the zoo isn't really so different from any other season, except that the denizens don't cavort with such bouncing enthusiasm. They enjoy staying within a shelter, particularly this past winter, which was one of the chilliest seasons some had experienced since coming to Lincoln.

The most of the animals don't move in the winter—except from a barred pen back into a covered retreat. Seasons are seasons to them, especially if the 100 pounds of meat scraps come around daily for the three meals and late evening snack. Even the bears in captivity come out occasionally to see what it's all about. All except Nellie, that is, who is sort of a lazy lady, and does not care much about being bothered.

Monkeys Hate Cold.

Along about October, the monkeys go in, chattering and squabbling among themselves, to spend the winter in the green house annex, flying and climbing about their cages until warm weather comes. The ten don't care for chilly breezes, and the first ones send them huddled and distressed into corners. However, they don't have much time for despair at the Antelope zoo, because they are taken in for safety as soon as cool weather comes.

About the first of May, they are taken to the outdoor cages, and at the same time the two parrots are again able to loose their squawks on the open air. They live above the monkeys in the winter, and the tower of Babel had nothing on the racket when the parrots and the monkeys try a vocal duet.

The fish pond has been cleaned, and most any day now the gold fish will go out to summer quarters, after spending the cold months madly swimming about in the green house. The water for the fish pond moves in a regular circle—coming from the fountain, going into the pool, sliding under the road to the south of the Bear pits, where it serves for a lily pool, and then flowing into Antelope creek.

Alligators Wake Up.

For the last five months, or beginning November 1, the alligator family, consisting of two wicked looking and very long numbers, and four lesser ones, with a young tailed child, have been in a warm spot. They have been taken out now, the potential spring weather not being chilly enough to injure their knobby complexions.

A sudden cold wind chilled them just before they were taken in, and the smaller ones were handled just like cordwood, and unceremoniously dumped into their quarters. The two larger ones were shoved into a pen and taken within.

When spring removal time came, the 'gators were wakening up, and the men treated them with deference. A rod with a rope was put about each neck and front foot, so that the alligator would not choke, one man grabed a tail, another the rod, and they were brought out to their miniature lakes, where they drowse through the long, hot, summer, perhaps dreaming of tropic days and bays.

Alligator Is Ideal.

For a pet, an alligator is ideal. It only eats in June, July and August, and requires nothing more unusual than meat, and sleeps all winter, and, in fact, most of the year. One of the workmen tried to feed the alligators during fair week last year, the weather was warm and he thought his charges might like a little sustenance. But fair week is in September, and no proper alligator would eat in a month with an "r" in it.

If the plans of Mr. Kittinger can

Nellie, the beautiful brown bear in this case, might be greeting the spring, judging from her extended attitude, reaching up toward the sun and the warm breezes, but again she might be hoping for a bite of a thick bun. Whatever Nellie is doing, spring brings the Antelope park zoo animals who have spent the cold months outdoors into th open pens and once again ready to be viewed by eager youngsters—and their parents. The buffalo range during the winter, the bright red foxes wander out on pleasant days, but spend the chilly ones in their protected houses, and the white deer don't mind wintry blasts, just so there is a shelter with plenty of hay nearby. The only newcomers at the park this year are a bevy of rabbits, very, very white ones, and extremely black ones, which aren't at the moment nearly as long as their name, and which haven't opened their eyes as yet. Mary Grace Maschel is holding a whole pan of bunnies, an octette of them, and with her is her little brother, Charles Maschel, both of Omaha, who are visiting Ray Coffey.

Homes for New Bird Arrivals Being Constructed in Lincoln Again by Public School Pupils

The housing situation for summer visitors from the south is about to be acute.

There are quite a few residences left over from last summer, which are favored by some of the returned sojourners. Many want new dwellings to care for this year's families, and if they aren't supplied the travelers will go elsewhere to establish homes.

Some of the early comers, who arrived betimes to avoid the rush, found snow covered homes waiting. The situation wasn't so good, however, for nice juicy worms hid snugly beneath thick snow layers and many a tail feather got nipped when nature fooled them and withdrew its heating apparatus after a few days of luring appearance. Many of the credulous remained, neverthless, and the later arrivals will have to scurry about unduly, if help isn't given.

Lincoln's school children have devoted themselves to the building of bird houses for several seasons. Homes for bluebirds and chickadees, apartments for martines have been turned out with amazing rapidity and efficiency, and many a tree is now the site of a bird house, because the children spent some effort in constructing houses.

Special Construction Necessary.

Not all birds need man-made houses. Some of the cleverest prefer to build their own retreats. But those who need them, need them badly, if they are to spend a summer in the city. And it would be a sad summer indeed if the songsters took themselves to kinder environs and there were no trills in the dawn or quiet chirps in a sleepy twilight.

The architecture of bird houses is as definite as that of a dwelling. Birds will come to the trees where Lincoln residents have prepared homes for them, but they won't remain if their rather critical faculties are not satisfied. They like this—and they like that — and they'll pass up what they don't care for—even as you and I.

Suggestions for bird houses have been prepared by the United States government. When you get out your wood and your saw and your nails, you might as well have a house a bird will use instead of merely a pretty ornament in a tree.

Wood is superior to metal or earthenware for a house, and heads of nails, where the birds will come in contact with them, should be covered with putty. Houses should have hinged or removable roofs so that they can be cleaned easily.

Beware of Sparrows.

English sparrows, no friend of birds, enjoy perching annoyingly on a bird house porch—so don't have a platform by the entrance. Sparrows eventually drive away the song birds. A neutral shade of gray or green is suitable for the exterior of the house, but the interior should be unpainted.

A simple and satisfactory means of securing ventilation is to bore a row of small holes in the walls of the house, just beneath the eaves. There should not be a ventilating hole lower than the entrance, and all joints should be made tight—for birds do not like drafts—hard on the throat probably. Ventilation is one of the necessities, however.

Rain may be driven into the house through the door, and a hole bored in the floor will carry off the water. The nest covers the floor, but the water can still run out.

The size of the opening is one of the most important features of a properly built house, and often determines whether or not the house is to be occupied. If it is the right size, the house can be defended by the owners against the many foes, other birds, squirrels, as they can not get in for closer combat.

Red Cedar a Magnet.

For some reason as yet undetermined, birds like a house in which there is a small piece of red cedar. It may be the pungent odor or it may be the color—but birds like it. Vanity may be the prompting motive or it may be used as a periscope, but feathered residents also are attracted to houses which have a bit of glass or bright metal on the outside.

The following table, as prepared by the government, shows details of houses for certain birds. The size of the floor space, the depth of the house, the size of the opening, and the height of the opening from the floor all aid in determining the kind of bird to occupy the house. The detailed table is given below:

Bird Species	Floor of Cavity	Depth of Cavity	Entrance above floor	Diameter of Entrance In.

Reporters For Boys and Girls Clubs May Enter News Writing Contest Sponsored by The Star

Plans are complete for the 1929 news writing contest sponsored by the Linucoln Star for the reporters of boys and girls clubs in Nebraska. The contest will continue from now until November 1, 1929.

As in the past three years, the winner of the 1929 contest will attend the next club week at the agricultural college as the guest of The Star. All expenses will be paid for the entire week of fun.

Lucille Templeton of Colon won the 1928 contest and is looking forward eagerly to the coming first week in June when the fourteenth annual club week begins. Helen Riggs of Crawford won in 1927 and Geraldine Russell of Tecumseh won in 1926.

Any reporter of a 4-H club anywhere in the state may enter the contest. Application blanks and rules have been sent to the reporters whose names are on file in the state club office at the agricultural college. As new names come in they will be supplied with the blanks and rules. It is necessary to return the application blank to L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, in order to properly enter the contest. Elton Lux, extension service editor, will handle the deatails of the contest.

There will be no expense connected with the competition. In addition to the chance at the club week trip, those who write will get to see their own stories in print, and will help spread the influence of 4-H club work.

Below is the list of rules:

Who may enter—Regularly elected news reporters of standard 4-H clubs in Nebraska in 1929, who have not won in previous contests in news writing. No reporter may enter more than one contest.

Ten must compete—Ten or more boys and girls must be actually writing and sending in stories in each contest by August 1, 1929, or the state club office will call off that contest.

What the competing reporter is to do? White news stories about what his or her club plans or does during 1929. Send them in promptly after the meetings are held or the events happen, to Elton Lux, extension editor, agricultural college, Lincoln, where they will be edited and sent on promptly to the paper, and where the original stories will be kept on file for the judges at the end of the year. Write and send in at least four stories.

What the extension editor is to do—Prepare and furnish copy paper t othe contestants. Prepare and furnish special news writing lessons each month. Send back constructive criticism of each story as it is edited for the paper. Submit the filed stories to the judging committee at the end of the year.

How each contest will be judged—The original stories of all eligible contestants will be submitted on November 1, 1929, to a committee of three judges, one who is familiar with club work, one instructor in journalism of the University of Nebraska, and one representative newspaper reader. This committee shall pick a winner of each contest, basing its decision upon the news value of the stories, the style in which they are written, and the neatness of the copy, spelling, and grammar.

Elaborate Program of Expansion Underway at Camp Strader, Lincoln's 'Y' in the Woods

Camp Strader on the Blue, the 'Y' in the Woods, where since 1919 over four thousand boys and young men from Lincoln and Lancaster county have been given the chance to get away from the heat and crowds of the city and live as every boy wants to live, swimming, canoeing, hiking, a camp fire at night—Old Camp Strader that brings up never-fading memories in the minds of many—will enter a program of expansion and improvement which greatly enlarges its capacity and makes it one of the finest boys' camps to be found anywhere.

Chief among the improvements are a large, fully equipped dining hall and kitchen, the gift of Frank H. Woods and a headquarters building to be erected by the Lincoln Optimist club, a civic organization which has as its motto, "Friend of the Boy."

Program Adopted.

With the additions of these two buildings will come a recasting of the camp grounds, a shifting of the tennis courts and a number of other changes. Knox Burnett, a camper of 1913, has made several inspection trips to Camp Strader recently, studying the Blue river and its environs and has outlined the possibilities of the camp site with a view towards the future. In his report, Mr. Burnett declares, "I kept before me boy traditions of sixteen years and find that the site offers unusual possibilities for camping." At a subsequent meting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Burnett's plans were adopted together with a program of development calling for completion of certain projects this year and others at an early date.

Tom Woods, a new member of the camp development committee of the 'Y' and also a 'Y' camper himself, conceived the idea of a dining hall for Camp Strader. He made a trip to New York to put the proposition before his father, Frank Woods, who welcomed the idea as an excellent way to help the Y. M. C. A. in its boy-development program. In a letter to Mr. Luke, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Woods says in part, "I want to thank you for calling this matter to my attention, also for giving me this opportunity to assist in the wonderful work that is being carried on at Camp Strader." Since then, Mr. Woods has placed at the disposal of the 'Y' $3,200 for the construction of Woods hall.

Seats 100 Boys.

Woods hall will be 56x40 feet over all, of brick, concrete and frame construction, located at the extreme north end of the campus in accordance with the plans for the camp development. The whole building will be approximately 60 feet north of the present structure. The dining room proper will be twenty-six by forty feet, capable of seating one hundred boys. On the south, east and west sides will be screened porches eight feet wide, which can be used for auxiliary dining rooms, thus doubling the capacity of the plant. In the north wall of the dining room will be a large open fire place for rainy days.

The kitchen will be at the north end of the building, fourteen by forty feet, built entirely of brick. It will be large enough to care for the camp's needs not only now but for a long time in the future. Clean, sanitary and beautiful, this gift of Mr. Woods is one for which many thousands of Lincoln boy campers will long be grateful.

Optimists Plan Building.

Simultaneous with the gift of Woods hall came the announcement by K. B. Cary, president of the Optimist club, that in keeping with the motto, "Friend of the Boy," the club desired to undertake the project of financing and erecting a headquarters building to provide office and staff quarters for camp administration officials.

This structure will provide admirable housing for a number of camp units, which heretofore have been located at different points on the campus. Not only from a utilitarian point of view is this gift most acceptable, but as in the case of Woods hall, it also will fit in well with the development program, located as it will be at the northeast corner of the rectangle.

The headquarters building will be of frame construction 18x31 feet including an open-front porch. In it will be housed the camp store, the first aid dispensary and in the rear sleeping quarters for the administration staff, where eight persons can be comfortably housed. All athletic equipment will be checked out of this building, by means of a service window off the porch. A swinging telephone will be located here, accessible through the service window. Around the porch will be built-in lockers, where athletic equipment can be stored. The cost of the structure together with equipment will be approximately $600.

Camp Area Enlarged.

In planning this gift to Camp Strader, the Optimist club took into consideration future needs of the camp. As another unit in the expansion program, it will contribute much to the success of 'Y' summer activities at the camp on the Blue.

Last year A. L. Johnson, president of the Crete Milling Co., deeded three acres on which Camp Strader is situated to the Y. M. C. A. Since then two and a half acres more have been purchased. The tract is heavily wooded in spots, interspersed with open spaces which are utilized for athletic fields, archery ranges and baseball diamonds. In the development program these fields are to be shifted into better locations and undergo other improvements.

Included in the propect to be undertaken in the near future are a memorial marker, manual arts shop, forest chapel and a lodge. The latter structure will be designed to house camp community activities and will be located at the extreme south end of the campus, opposite Woods hall. The memorial marker is to be erected in the hollow near the bowl, where initiations and other midnight affairs are conducted.

Chapel In Forest.

The forest chapel, as the name suggests, will be built in a wooded area along the river at the extreme southeast tip of the site. The manual arts shop is to be located near the strip of beach just below the dam. An additional cabin will be added immediately to the seven already there, material from the old dining hall being utilized for this purpose. The cabins are on the west side of the campus.

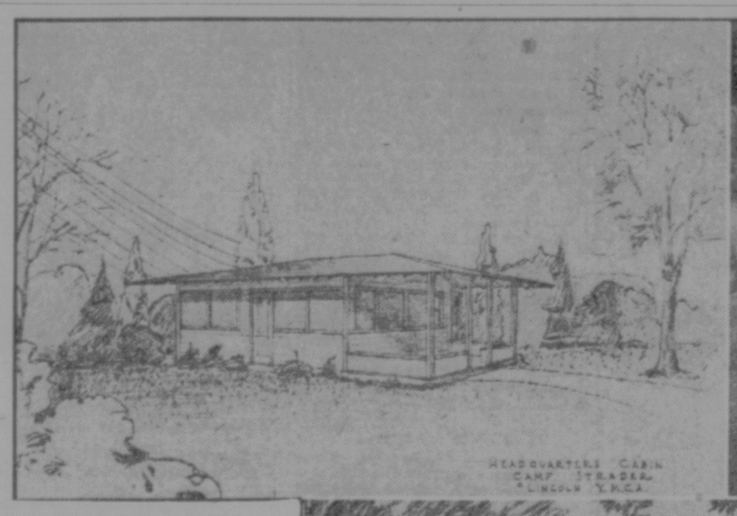
The whole plan of development makes the utmost use of the wonderful assets of the area chief of which is the beauty of the spot. Both above and below the dam fine swimming pools are found together with long stretches of canoeing water, where during each camp, the boys man the Indian war canoes and engage in battle royal.

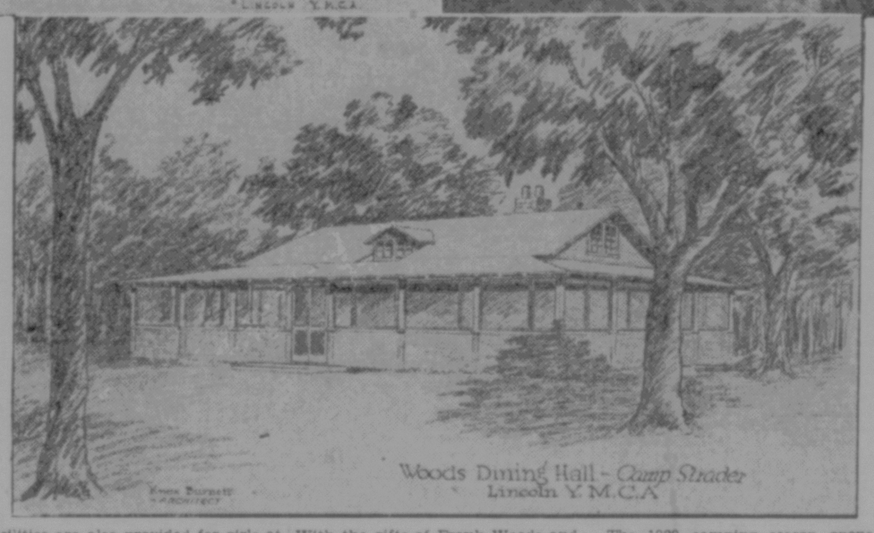
Established In 1913.

Camp Strader was established in 1913, the first permanent boys' camp in Nebraska. Today, due to the growth of the camping idea, there are well-equipped association camps at Columbus, Beatrice, Fairbury and Hastings. The Boy Scouts maintain three permanent and two temporary camps in the state. Camping facilities are also provided for girls at a number of places.

During the past three years the attendance at Camp Strader has grown from 398 in 1925 to 591 in 1928—an increase of 48 per cent. With the gifts of Frank Woods and of the Optimist club, the pressing needs of the camp will be met, and completion of the projects outlined above will carry the camp well into the future.

The 1929 camping season opens Tuesday June 11. Five regular camps will be held for boys between 12 and 17 years. One junior camp for boys under 12, two county camps and five two-day week end camps for young men complete the schedule, which runs well into the latter part of August. If good weather prevails during the summer, the attendance is expected to be far in excess of six hundred.





A view of Camp Strader with Crete in the background taken from a Woods Brothers plane while fifteen hundred feet up is seen in the upper right. The dam is plainly visible with the Blue river tumbling over it. This photo shows the beauty of the area and its natural adaptability as a site for a permanent boys' camp.

A sketch of the headquarters building to be erected by the Lincoln Optimist club at Camp Strader is reproduced in the upper left as it will appear when finished for the coming camping season.

Woods hall is sketched in the lower left, accompanied by a photo of the donor, Frank H. Woods. Woods hall will be the camp dining room and kitchen. One of the major buildings at Strader, it will be located at the north end of the campus, with the Optimist building to the east of it.

University of Nebraska Is Establishing New Tradition of Honors Day, In Recognition of Its Outstanding Students and a biennial convention. The local chapter sponsors an annual dinner for the school of journalism and round table luncheons and speakers. Some chapters such as that at Butler university in Indianapolis and Gamma chapter at the University of Missouri sponsor a Matrix table, a banquet at which some famous writer is the speaker for the evening. An alumni house is maintained in Chicago. The organization is both honorary and professional. There are nine alumni chapters besides the active groups. Sara Lockwood Williams of Columbia, Mo., is national president.

Advertising Fraternities.

Akin to both business and journalism and yet in a distinct field of its own is the profession of advertising. There are organizations for both men and women studying in this field. Gamma Alpha Chi for women was established at the University of Missouri. It requires that members complete successfully one course in advertising with a grade above 80, and have one year in school, although the members are mainly juniors and seniors. Miss Norma Carpenter, founder of the local chapter, is national treasurer of the organization. The group this year has taken over advertising in Lincoln for several firms. Kendrick Ott is sponsor for the group. Among important members of the national group are Miss Ella Wyatt, society editor of the Tulsa Tribune, Miss Marie Weesner of Lincoln, and Mrs. Ruth Midyette of Mount Vernon, Mo. Mary Dolan was president this year of the local group.

Alpha Delta Sigma, for men, had as its president this year Lyman Cass. Membership is limited to those planning to go into advertising as a profession and ability in the work is a requisite. The group this year handled all advertising in the Cornhusker yearbook.

There is a pair of literary organizations, one for women and one for men. Chi Delta Phi for women, requires literary interest and achievement; matriculation in the college; good standing in scholarship; and the endorsement of some member of the faculty. Alumni include Dr. Louise Pound, Dr. Laura Pfeiffer, Amy Bruner Almy, Ruth Bryan Owen, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Mrs. Keene Abbott, Ruth Moore Stanley, and Eunice Chapin, who is editor of the chapter magazine. Marjorie Stuff is president of the active group this year. Misses Margaret McPhee, Constance Syford, Flora Bullock, Ruth Odell and Zora Schaupp are all alumnae members. The group encourages creative literary work by undergraduates and furnishes the basis of contact for students interested in literary work. Among the prominent alumnae are Mrs. Roy Whitham and Nellie Lee Holtz, who is a faculty member at Stephens college at Columbia, Mo.

Edits Prairie Schooner.

Sigma Upsilon, the national writers fraternity for men, corresponds to Chi Delta Phi. The Wordsmith chapter was founded at Nebraska several years ago. Among its charter members are Volta Torrey, now on the Chicago Tribune staff, Edwin Morrow and Marion E. Stanley on the Omaha World-Herald; Roscoe Schaupp; Jacob Gable, contributor to the Golden Book; V. Royce West; and Robert Lasch, now at Oxford college in England. Lowry C. Wimberly of the University of Nebraska is also a prominent member. The organization edits the Prairie Schooner, Nebraska's literary magazine which was rated as one of the four best publications in the country by Edward O'Brien. Membership requirements are that the student show marked ability to write and have some article accepted by the chapter. Dean Hammond is president of the fraternity this year.

In music there are several societies, some connected with the university and some with the University School of Music. Mu Phi Epsilon, national women's honorary has a score of nationally prominent members. Rosa Ponselle; Ethel Leginske who is conductor of the Boston and Chicago Women's Symphony orchestras; Mabelle Glenn, director of music at Kansas City and president of the Music Supervisor National conference; Countess Helena Morsztn, polish pianist of international fame, are among them. This year members of the Philadelphia alumnae are planning a 66-day tour to the great music shrines in Europe. Julius Diabor, well-known concert manager and American representative of European festivals, will conduct the tour. Alumnae chapters are located at Cleveland, Des Moines, Detroit, Eugene, Ore., Indianapolis Lincoln, Long Beach, Phialdelphia, Portland, biAprWU. rimwor—ssiollcd-e h hh San Joaquin Seattle, St. Louis and Washington. The object of the organization is the advancement in music in America by locating chapters only on schools of high standing; high scholastic attainments required of its members; the maintenance of a benefit scholarship fund for members in need of assistance in pursuit of their musical education; co-operation with national movements which tend toward advancement of music locally; chapter co-operation in all local civic music ventures, and the maintenance of chapter scholarship funds with the aim of stimulating endeavor in the entire student body. A student must be of conspicuous ability, have an average of 90 or equivalent, must be able to make a creditable public appearance, qualify as to character and ability to co-operate, and must have attained junior rating before initiation. Mrs. M. C. Lefler is president of the Lincoln alumnae and Dorothy Wassum is active president. Among local aumnae are Hazel Kinscella, Edith B. Ross, Lynnelle Greer, Mrs. R. O. Hummell, Ruth Haberly, Mrs. Earnest Harrison Alice Hussong, Helen Lewis, Mrs. Leslie Cadwallader, Margaret Colby, Vera Ppton, Mrs. Homer Compton, Elizabeth Tierney, Mrs. Don Bell, Mrs. Bess Phillips and Mrs. Anne Leonard Munger.

To Encourage Good Music.

Delta Omicron, national musical sorority, tries to encourage the appreciation and performance of good music among musicians during student days to promote interest in the associated arts. Members are chosen on the basis of character, scholarship and musianship. Valoreta Callen is president this year. Among the alumnae are Alma Wagner, Lucile Cline, Kathryn Dean, Louise Pound and Harriet Cruise Kemmer.

Sigma Alpha Iota, national musical sorority, has for its national president Miss Hazel Ritchey of the Lincoln chapter. Among the alumnae are Marguerite Klinker, Genevieve Wilson, Mrs. C. C. Emerson, Miss Hazel O'Connor, and Mrs. Max Anderson. The organization is professional mainly. For this year Emma Strangman served as president of the group. The sorority gives one public performance a year, has a national scholarship and a local scholarship of one hundred dollars in addition which is awarded to some one of particular ability and talent, decided upon by the faculty.

Phi Mu Alpha, the only Sinfonia fraternity in America, is also the only Greek letter musical fraternity in existence. It was founded at the New England conservatory at Boston. Each chapter is required to present one or more public programs each year, embracing compositions of American composers. Its ultimate hope and aim is to gain recognition for American performers and composers and in so doing, to help lay the foundation for an American school of music and composition. Aubrey J. Bouck is president. Local members include leading men musicians of Lincoln and students who are studying some branch of applied music and theoretical subjects, such as Howard Kirkpatrick, Carl Steckelberg, Herbert Schmidt, Earnest Harrison, Herbert Gray, Homer Compton, Harry Warfel, Adrian Newens, Don Berry and Sidney Sulber.

Corresponding in a way to Phi Beta Kappa, is the honorary musical organization, Pi Kappa Lambda in the University School of Music, which selects each graduation the upper 4 per cent of those having highest scholarship records. It has for its president, Miss Marguerite Klinker.

Fraternity of Bandmen.

In 1912 band members of the R. O. T. C. united to organize Gamma Lambda. Its plans to foster good fellowship and brotherhood among its members, to promote and further their enterprises of merit, and to strive for the development and betterment of college bands throughout the United States. The membership is chosen annually from incoming members of the R. O. T. C. band, particularly among men whose abilities as musicians and whose interest in band work during the semester previous to initiation have qualified them for membership. Frank Calhoun is president this year.

Kappa Epsilon is the professional sorority in this class for women in the pharmacy profession. It stands for professional fellowship and attempts to foster fraternalism and unite women employed in pharmaceutical pursuits for their mutual encouragement and assistance. This group maintains a loan fund as a means of giving help to deserving members who are in college. Plans are under way to establish a scholarship fund. The national scholarship cup was awarded to Nebraska chapter at the national convention held at Madison, Wis., in 1927. Each year the group sponsors a university mixer. Ethel James is president this year.

In fine arts Sigma Lambda is a professional arts sorority for girls who are fine arts majors. Its purpose is to promote art, maintain high professional standards, secure such professional and social benefits as may be derived from association of students with each other. The group sponsors a tea for all girls of the art department. A carnival given for the fine arts students is sponsored by Sigma Lambda and Pi Sigma Alpha, men's art fraternity. The group also co-operates with the Art club in the observation of fine arts week. Miss Elizabeth Hauser is president. Among alumnae members are Miss Tressa Emerson, drawing and painting instructor at the university, and Miss Elizabeth Dolan, who painted the murals in Morrill hall.

Requirements Are High.

Alpha Rho Tau, honorary scholastic organization in the fine arts college, also corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa of the arts and science college. The specific grade varies each year but only high scholars are admitted and there has never been a lower average than 87.5. Albert Benson is president this year. The organization plans this coming year to take up some particular work as its objective. Among its important alumni are Hermine Steallar, a portrait painter in Chicago now; Maurice Clark an actor in New York; Susan Scott Davies, formerly an actress in New York; Miss Alice Howell, Prof. P. H. Grumann, Miss Viola Loosbrock and Miss Elizabeth Tierney, all of the University of Nebraska.

An honorary pre-medic fraternity is Theta Nu, which was founded here in 1922. It attempts to promote high standards of scholarship among pre-medics, and assists in the extra-curricular activities. It has been instrumental in the publication of Nu Med News the past several years. Election is held by the active chapter twice a year; once at the end of the first semester and again in May. Requirements for membership are based on scholarship, leadership, personality and general ability. The president for this year is Rudolph F. Sievers.

In engineering there are five societies, the Nebraska Engineering society, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the American Society of Mechanical engineers.

Three Law Fraternities.

In the law field there are Phi Delta Phi and Delta Theta Phi, and Phi Delta fraternities. In the medical college there is Kappa Psi, and in the dental college there are Xi Phi and Delta Sigma Delta fraternities. Alpha Chi Sigma is founded in the chemical field.

Delta Sigma Rho is a strictly debating fraternity which admits only debaters who have participated in at least two inter-collegiate debates. They must be junirs or servivors. It is strictly honorary. Members must show special proficiency in public speaking. The group sponsored a freshman extemporaneous speaking contest this year and awarded a cup to the winner. This is to be continued each year. Prof. H. A. White is sponsor of the local chapter alumni include Sheldon Teft, Emory Buckner, Attorney General Sorensen, Guy Chambers, Hugh Cox, Gayle Walker, Charles Matson and Louis Finklestein.

A fraternity in mathematics is Mu Epsilon, with Theodore Jorgenson, jr., as its director. Membership requirements call for a general average of 80 or more, 85 in mathematics and the candidate must have had calculus or be takin git. This year a $10 scholarship was awarded to the winner of competitive examinations in integral calculus and this next year another prize of $10 is to be offered in analytic geometry. The group was organized last spring.

Home Economics Sororities.

Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu are the two cororities in the home economis department. Omicron Nu has Evelyn Mansfield as president this year. It is composed of juniors and seniors who have qualities of leadership and who show promise of future achievement. Less than 5 per cent o fthe junior class and less than 12 per cent of the senior class is chosen for this group. This past year the work of the organization has been to sponsor essay contests in Lincoln high schools. They also give an annual tea for all home economic girls. Miss Margaret Fedde is national vice president of the organization. Among its alumnae are Mrs. Howard Gramlich, Miss Mary Ellen Brown, Mrs. E. A. Burnett and Mrs. W. W. Burr. Prominent national alumnae are Sarah Louise Arnold, dean of the Simmons school in Boston; Martha Van Renesselar, director of the college of home economics at Cornell; Anna M. Cooley, professor of household arts in the teachers college at Columbia university; Edna White, director of the Merrill Palmer school in Detroit; Dean Margaret Justin, national president, of Manhattan, Kas.

Lois Davies is president of the local chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron this year. The group is an honorary professional society with membership based on schalorship qualities of leadership and good character. Membership is chosen from women who stand in the upper two-fifths o ftheir class. They must have completed three semesters work. One year the group undertook Americanization work in Lincoln and this year it took care of a poor family at Christmas. It also sponsors a tea each year for the home economics department. Among nationally-known alumnae are Bess Rowe, editor of the Farmers Wife at St. Paul, Minn., Mrs. Lucile Rust, editor of the Candle the publication of Phi Upsilon Omicron; and local well known alumnae are Jane Hinkley, Birdie Vorhies, state superintendent of home economics in Nebraska; Anes Saunders, n charge of child division in the University of Nebraska.

Determining Sex

Octogenarian Says She Can Tell Whether Hen's Egg Will Be Pullet or Rooster.

Mrs. Louise Tuthill shown determining the sex of eggs.

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Lincoln Star.)

WASHINGTONVILLE, N. Y.—April 14—Scientists admit they can't tell whether a hen's egg, if fertile, will hatch into a pullet or a rooster, but Mrs. S. Louise Tuthill, 82, who has a poultry farm near this village, says she can. If her experiments prove successful, acclamations of scientists and the world, and lasting fame undoubtedly await her.

Science has its microscopes and its theory about the relation of sex to the minute things called chromosomes in sperm or egg cells. But Mrs. Tuthill doesn't bother with such things. She has a small instrument—and that's her secret.

This instrument reacts, she says, to the male or female determinant in an egg, a reaction by motion which she interprets. She can't explain why it reacts as it does, but believes it demonstrates a certain attracting force between male and female in any living thing.

One Way or the Other.

Translated into terms of magnetism to give a parallel commonly understood, she explains, in substance, that the male may be regarded as positive and the female as negative, or the other way round. The main point is that these positive and negative forces attract each other, whereas two like forces, either two positives or two negatives, repel each other.

Her instrument, therefore, she regards as an indicator of the relation between the magnetic field around her own body and the magnetic field around an egg. Thus, since she is a woman, possessing the vibration, magnetic force or whatever it is that is peculiar to the female of any species, she believes that the invisible lines of force around her act in definite ways when a male or female, whether egg, horse or any animal, including human beings, is close enough to her.

Her instrument, she says, gives a visible demonstration of what these lines of force are doing. If, in the case of the egg, the instrument tells of an attraction the egg is male, a future rooster, while if it should tell of a repellance, the egg is female, a future pullet.

What It May Lead To.

The possibilities of the thing, if it can be proved to work correctly, are at once apparent. A poultryman might have his eggs tested and set only those which would hatch into future hens, egg-layers, thus eliminating the necessity of having a lot of roosters on his hands each year.

Mrs. Tuthill says that several hatches on her farm already have satisfied her that the predictions of her invention are correct. She avers that by the use of her indicator she arranged two settings, one of male eggs and the other of female, and that they hatched out according to her prediction. She now is waiting for an incubator setting of 160 eggs which she confidently declares will produce all pullets. Ordinarily the average is about 50 per cent roosters.

She says that her invention can be applied to any egg, but makes no claim that it can be used to determine the sex of unborn children, pointing out that the prospective mother would give the characteristic reaction of a female, irrespective of the sex of the unborn child.

Theoretically, if a man used the instrument, he should get reactions opposite from those received by Mrs. Tuthill — that is, the instrument should register attraction when held over a female egg and repellance when over a male. Because of Mrs. Tuthill's disinclination to reveal the intricacies of her contrivance this has not yet been tested.

The aged woman believes, however, that she is particularly sensitive to her reactions and get results where others would fail.

"AMERICA, THE BEAUTIFUL."

In a few weeks, hundreds of thousands of Americans will be taking to the highways.

They will be pressing forward to the lakes, to the woods, to the mountains, and to the seashores, visiting unfamiliar sections in that glorious vacation season, when freed from the burdens of daily grind, they go forth to renew youth, to taste adventure, and to enlarge their knowledge of this country which is theirs.

It was under similar circumstances that the poem, which has in recent years taken its place as a national anthem, was written. Katherine Lee Bates, a beloved instructor at Wellesley university, whose death a few weeks ago brought sharp grief to the hearts of thousands of American women, was the author of "America, The Beautiful." It was written at the conclusion of her first transcontinental trip, a journey which took her from the Atlantic seaboard to the sun-kissed sands of the Pacific beaches. She had gazed for the first time upon those great cities which have grown up in the Ohio valley, she had marveled at that noisy metropolis which is Chicago, she had traveled for hours across the rolling prairies of the central west, she had skirted the foothills of the Rockies and then plunged boldly through and over those great piles of granite rock, with their yawning canyons, their towering walls reaching straight upward toward the heavens for thousands of feet, and she had gloried in the beauties of the Sierras.

In the sanctuary of her home she gave voice to her emotions inspired by a panoramic view of a great nation in these lines:

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties,
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for Pilgrim feet,
Whose stern impassioned stress;
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the Wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law!

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life!
America! America!
May God thy gold refine
Till all success is nobleness,
And every gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream,
That sees beyond the years,
Thine alabaster cities gleam,
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

Much the same thoughts must surge through all of us as we view the wonders of a land richly endowed by Nature.

Europe many centuries older; Asia, dusty with age; Africa, still resisting the call of civilization; South America, home of ancient civilization whch produced amazing works of engineering skill and then perished—nowhere do they offer more to excite the mind and delight the eye than this America which is ours.

It took a Katherine Lee Bates, rich in cultural experience, of keen and fertile mind, of kindly, sympathetic, generous nature, of flashing humor, to pay adequate tribute to the unending marvels which unfolded before her. Spacious skies of dazzling brilliance and delicate shadings, awe-inspiring majesties of purple mountains, amber oceans of grain and fruited plains! Alabaster cities, with their parks, their towering buildings, and their miles of beautiful homes! Yet in the face of all these material evidences of greatness, of staggering wealth, there flashed the memory of that beginning in the wilderness—the Pilgrim settlement, warmed with the hope and the dream of freedom and liberty.

Katherine Lee Bates was one of America's noble-women. That is why her poem has endured and gained in popularity with each passing year. She, like her Pilgrim forebears, was passionately devoted to democratic institutions of government. Those who were lonely aroused her interest. It is a tradition of the institution where she labored for so many years that the girl who came there friendless, and with slender purse, had her deepest sympathy. It was Katherine Lee Bates who encouraged these girls, who gave them the companionship they craved, who smoothed their path and helped them to achieve success. She lived a beautiful life exemplifying the finest traditions of America.

Yet the evidence of so much wealth, and so much luxury in America produced a shadow before Katherine Lee Bates' eyes. What could those lines on "Self control" and "liberty in law" refer to but the dangers which lie in the path of a people who have so much at their disposal. Let us add our prayer to her inspired and devout wish. Glories may turn to ashes when and if we should forget that which made it possible. Great civilizations have flourished before and the only evidence of them today lies buried under changing sands in ruined cities. If "America, the beautiful" is to endure it will be because her people have the intelligence to practice self-control and to progress along the orderly processes of law.

GERMAN REPARATIONS.

The work of the World war reparations commission has been completed and Germany's representatives were handed the check Saturday.

The total of the annuities asked by the Allies aggregates 100,000 million marks, which is approximately $24,000,000,000. Payments are spread out over a period of thirty-eight years, so that if she agrees to the terms and complies with their requirements, she will have wiped out her indemnity debt in 1967.

There is no escape from the fact that Germany had hoped for easier terms. The Allied demands are more than three times greater than the offer which the German government made in 1923, and approximately 1,000 million dollars less than the 25,000 million which the Germans offered at the original Versailles peace conference. When the original offer is recalled it would seem that the Allies have been moderate in their claims. Yet the last three years have given Germany much reason to hope that Great Britain and France would scale the indemnities greatly. They were the instigators of the Dawes plan. War passions have been cooling and old sores have been healing.

It is a conspicuous fact that neither Owen Young or J. P. Morgan, who were named by Calvin Coolidge to attend the reparations meeting, had aught to do with formulating the final report. They were not asked to approve it. Had they been so requested, it is doubtful if either one would have availed themselves of the opportunity.

The place of America at the reparations' table became increasingly plain after Mr. Young and Mr. Morgan had reached Paris. The Allies wanted Uncle Sam to in effect underwrite the German indemnity by transferring French and British debts. Both France and Great Britain wanted the United States to collect from Germany and apply those sums to the obligations which those countries incurred in loans from the American people. It was not a role which united America.

PUTTING SINCLAIR TO WORK.

A rule which has been in vogue at the District of Columbia jail for many years may be the means of putting Harry Sinclair to work making bricks.

The department of justice has been asked to approve the transfer of Sinclair from the district jail to Occoquan, a federal prison located about thirty miles from Washington. They have plenty of occupations at Occoquan to get prisoners interested. They manufacture brick and build roads and make automobile license plates. Mr. Sinclair will have his choice of any of these for three months while serving his sentence for contempt of the United States senate. It would be a novel experience for the oil magnate and certainly one that he did not contemplate when his case was before the court.

SANS COCKTAILS.

Mrs. Gann's whooping social triumph obscured public attention from a scarcely less notable victory scored by prohibition.

While the vice president's sister was taking her place at the dinner given by the Chilean embassy Thursday night in the chair traditionally reserved for the wife of the vice president, the spirit of old man Volstead seemed to be hovering over every plate. From the first course to the last, nothing stronger than water was served. It was the first dinner given by foreign representatives at which liquor has not been served.

Ordinarily 116 quarts of red and white wines have been necessary to slake the thirst of a dinner party of 200 guests, with the individual ration computed on this basis:

One twentieth of a bottle of gin and one twentieth of a bottle of Vermouth consumed in highballs.

One eighth of a bottle of white wine—Undurrago or Santa Rita at Chilean dinners.

One eighth of a bottle of red wine—San Carlos, Navedago, Cunaco, Concha T. Tore or Carmen.

One sixth of a bottle of champagne.

One twentieth of a bottle of liquor.

Whatta a life a diplomat must lead! That is more liquor than those of us of the hinterland ever contemplated. Most of us might visualize ourselves as present and conscious through the first two or three courses but we have grave fears that our dessert would go untasted.

The embassy, recalling that it expected to entertain the vice president, Secretary Mellon of the treasury, who is charged with prohibition enforcement, and members of the president's cabinet, departed from its traditions by sparing its guests the necessity of refusing real liquor. Nothing could speak more for Latin-American courtesy. We can well imagine the heartburn of some of those gathered around the banquet board if in line with duty it became necessary to push back those glasses with the contents untouched.

But we are on our way. Prohibition enforcement is making real progress. When Washington voluntarily stops drinking, then it is safe to say that the top of the hill has been reached.

GOOD NEWS FOR WEST NEBRASKA.

Accumulated snowfall in the mountains insures the eastern watershed of the Rockies plenty of water during the summer months, according to reports compiled by the government authorities. Streams which have their sources in the high peaks of the Rockies will carry an increased flow of from 8 to 111 per cent.

The north fork of the Platte river, which supplies a large irrigated section with water, will carry 24 per cent more flow than a year ago, the weather bureau officials say, while the South Platte, which also furnishes many ditches with water will have 19 per cent more flow.

It would seem that under the circumstances there will be no repetition of the trouble involving priority rights. The snows in the mountains are ample to insure sufficient water for all needs during the summer.

MAKING A NAME IN HISTORY.

Indulgence in fisticuffs in the state house Friday reminds one that legislators finding no other means of leaving "footprints on the sands of time" may find it possible to make lasting impressions by engaging in personal violence. This has been done, as witness the case of Preston Brooks, of South Carolina, who beat up Charles Sumner in the senate chamber of the United States and thus became a central figure in one of the most colorful presidential campaigns in the history of this republic.

This affair occurred on May 22, 1856, a few days after Sumner had delivered his famous senate oration on "The Crime Against Kansas." In that address Sumner, who was heartily disliked personally by practically every one of his senate colleagues, went out of his way and departed from the thread of his discourse to attack the state of South Carolina and Senator Butler of that commonwealth, who was not present.

Brooks, who was a congressman from South Carolina, and was also a relative of Senator Butler, bitterly resented these verbal assaults, which he considered insults to his native state and to his relative, and he resolved to chastise the Massachusetts orator. For two days he waited at a place on the capitol ground which Sumner was accustomed to pass on his way to the senate, having with him two congressional companions whom he wished to witness the affair. Sumner failed to appear, however, so Brooks went to the senate chamber.

That body was not in session, the only ones in the chamber being Sumner who sat at his desk writing, and a janitor. Brooks walked down the aisle until in front of Sumner's desk, when he rapped the latter on the head with his cane. This, he said, was to give warning. He told the senator of the insults to South Carolina and his relative, Butler, then he beat Sumner over the head with the cane until that weapon was broken. Sumner fell to the floor and it is said he received injuries to his spine from which he never recovered.

A resolution introduced in the house to expel Brooks failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote, but he resigned and was immediately re-elected by his constituents. No ante-bellum act more thoroughly aroused the north than this and in the Fremont-Buchanan presidential campaign, then approaching, it played a major part. "Bully Brooks" was pictured by the new republican party as a veritable devil, whereas, prior to his assault upon Sumner his reputation had been the highest. He was a member of an old South Carolina family, a graduate of the university of that state, a lawyer and had been a captain in the Mexican war. He was thirty-seven years old and had served in the legislature. His chastisement of Sumner by no means caused him to lose standing in his own state, as shown by his re-election to congress, but he probably never would have been heard tell of after the Civil war had it not been for that incident.

There are various ways of writing one's name on the pages of history. No legislator need despair.

Speaking of Explorers.

She went from Kansas to Africa to make animals looks pleasant.

By WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I can pick up as I try to keep an ear to the ground. Mr. Putman the Publisher had a Dinner party. It was given I think to this man Wilkins, that just been prowling around down near the South Pole. Around the table was just about everybody that we had ever seen in the Sunday supplement with a coonskin Coat on (not for fraternity purposes). There was men there that had eaten more meals with Esquimos than Mr. Stearns has with Mr. Coolidge. This Guy Putnam he kinder messes around on the fringe of the Arctic himself. I reckon he is about the only Book binder that knows the difference between a snowshoe and a La Crosse racket. There was Guys there that had flew over the North Pole, walked over it, jumped over it, and here was this Wilkins announcing that night, (at this very dinner) the fact that he was going to "Dive under it." He was going down in a Submarine and see what the pole was really anchored to underneath.

Sitting right by me was a mild, rather meek-voiced individual, that I kinder wondered how he got in this bread line, he dident look like he had ever been further away from Fourteenth Street and Fourth avenue than a Tammany Leader, and here he had spent more years in the Arctic than any man living. He had spent nine winters and thirteen summers with a floating Iceberg for a putting green. It was this fellow Stefansson. He is the one who have been reading about for years.

Cannibal Like Democrat.

Then right across was Martin Johnston and his wife (the best looking woman that ever had her picture taken with a foot on a dead Lion). Here they had been years in Africa, and the South Seas among the Canibals. A Canibal is a good deal like a Democrat, they are forced to live off each other. Come to find out this Johnston and his wife both come from right up above where I was raised.

One had come from Independance, Kas., and she had come from another little hay barn town right near, Coffeyville. It used to be our Post Office from our old home down in the Nation. It was forty miles away, but then we dident get much mail anyhow. In fact I have know some of us to make the whole trip and never get an oil circular. That just shows you, us down in the old Indian Territory, (now called, IMPEACHERINO.)

We always did know those Kansas people was queer. Imagine two fine young people going and spending their life trying to make a Rhinesosoris look pleasant in the Camera!

Amelia Earhardt, the Girl that flew the Atlantic Ocean to escape Boston Society, well she was there, a very charming young lady, one of the few Aviatrixes whose escapades have been with a Plane and not with unappreciative husbands. Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, a might pleasant little Mother was there by us. I wondered how she got in with all this "Safari." Then I happened to remember being out to their home the Sunday before her Husband and his Brother Ted started for some outlandish place called Thibet, to shoot some specimens of queer things for a Chicago Museum. You would think if Chicago wanted to see some queer things that was shot they would just go to the Morgue.

It begin to look like Mrs. Rogers and I were about the only one who never said, "I smoked your Cigaret and really found it took all the danger out of my entire trip." The furtherest I had eevn been from a Cooks guide was just hollering distance. I had visited some strange places in the world, but it was always so full of Tourists by the time I got to it that the Tourists were stranger than the place. Then I happened to spy Jesse Lasky (the big Close-up and Long shot Guy of the Movies) and I thought well he has never been out of sight of a head Waiter, and here I happened to remember a trip he took floating down the Colorado River away down into the wilds of Mexico. They floated down and dident have energy enough to row back, so they just kept on going. It was a mighty interesting group.

This Stefansson fellow told me he was in the Artic for five and a half years, that they dident know the war was on till it was a year old and dident get home till away after it was over. Think of coming out and asking, "Well what's the news, anything happened since I been away?" "Oh no, the boys had a little argument, and there was some pretty cross words between a few of the countries, but nothing much come of it, outside of a little war."

Plan Submarine Trip.

Then Wilkins and him got to talking about this submarine Gag. Wilkins said he would come up every day for air. If the Ice was over them, they would bore through it with an auger, or with some kind of Chemicals. Chances are the chemical he would use would be some bootleg liquor. That would melt the ice and leave a scar on the Pole. He figured he could go across in 21 days from Spitzbergen to Siberia, or Seattle or some of those northwest towns.

Stefansson suggested they should go the other way on account of the current (those Guys know everything) but Wilkins said it would be too hard to get his Submarine around there to start, have to take it through the canal. The Pole has been flown over three times with a Plane, and twice with a Dirigible. So just being No. 6 dont get you anywhere. Peary made it with a pack of flea hounds, Cook found it twenty miles north of Duluth.

What a scenic trip this will be, 21 days under the water! That will be just like wanting to see something on a train and a bunch of Box Cars in your way. I want him to lay out some place there at the pole, for I want to hold the next Democratic Convention there. Course that wont attract much attention to it. Wall Street wants to take up a collection and send the Federal Reserve bank members up there. They couldent disrupt the Icbergs with any statement. But they were all a mighty nice pleasant bunch of people, and I was glad I went over. Course on account of having to work in the Theatre I dident get there for the dinner, and dident get anything to eat, so thats why I could remember what everybody said and did.

Here and There

Possible Rearrangement.

(The Daily Oklahoman)

More is involved in Mr. Hoover's plan of strengthening his party at the south rather than the creation of a strong southern Republicanism. It may involve important party changes at the north itself. For it is not easy to discriminate against negroes below the line without stirring negro antipathies above the line. The rejection of negro leaders in the black belt may conceivably lead to negro resentment in the northern states.

No plan that Mr. Hoover can present will make southern Republicanism formidable if it includes any effort to enforce the fifteenth amendment generally. Few southern Caucasians will support a crusade for general negro enfranchisement. Never can southern Republicanism command the support of any great riumber of southern whites until it accepts the southern view of negro suffrage, and when that is done by the president and his lieutenants, there is danger of a negro revolt at the north.

In numerous northern states where negro disfranchisement has never been practiced the negro vote is a powerful factor. Without that vote several northern states now uniformly Republican would not be Republican at all. It therefore would become a serious matter in a national sense for the president to embrace a program that ignores the fifteenth amendment and to accept the southern view of suffrage. In trying to make southern states doubtful the administration might easily make northern states doubtful also.

Primarily the Hoover program seeks better government by the creation of the two party system in the heavily Democratic states. Its first purpose is to develop a healthy minority party under competent leadership and the appointment of better men to federal office. It is more a matter of good government than a matter of partisan tactics. But the partisan element is there, nevertheless, and it possesses many potentialities. An extremely remote potentiality, but a possible one, is the conversion of the Republican party to lily white standards and the movement of northern negroes into the Democratic lines. This result will become strongly probable if Mr. Hoover goes so far as to sanction an ignoring of the fifteenth amendment in the deep south.

QUESTION

Indianapolis.

"My early life at home with a drunken stepfather was very unfortunate. Now I am a young woman in the early thirties. I have begun to realize that I have missed many of the real things of life, but most of all companionship. I am fond of reading, enjoy my work and the doing of the household tasks and duties, but there is still something lacking. I should like to have a home and conduct that home as mine was not conducted when I was a child, and this is a privilege which only lonely women can appreciate. In my office I do not come in contact with men. Most of the men of my age are married. Those who are not married seem to care for young and frivolous lassies who, in too many instances, attract their swains by permitting them to take liberties which decency prohibits. I am still poor financially, and I think my condition is representative of thousands of single women throughout this country. I am deeply dissatisfied.

Am I a fool to entertain such longings for what possibly can never be? What would you tell a woman in such straits?

ANSWER.

Your desires for a home of your own, a husband you can respect and whose first interest in you was not due to your lack of refined scruples, are perfectly normal. Why should you deem yourself foolish because you are endowed with natural inclinations essential to the perpetuation and health of the rare?

I agree that your early years were not conducive to strong personality. No childhood can be made miserable as yours was by the sins committed against it without their consequences being carried over into adolescence and maturity. I beg you to try forgetfulness about this dark episode. It needs some forgetting, but it ought to have it. Too many nurse the sorrows of youth to the discomfiture of age.

Besides, you stood the test, managed to secure an education and have maintained high standards of character, state and behavior. The credit for having done this is very considerable. Now go forward to other achievements. Banish isolation, cultivate those souls who will share your sins and sympathize with your ideals. They live in Indianapolis and in every other city.

Avoid the doleful side of the day and become with discretion a better mixer. Men look wtih a favorable eye on a cheerful and straightforward woman. But they fight shy of an acidulated spinster who has real or fancied wrongs to right at the expense of the rest of us. Single women are not the grief stricken groups some imagine them to be. Quite otherwise, their lot is steadily rising in dignity, importance and contentment, and has become so attractive to many of the best of them that I occasionally wonder who is going to fill the cradles of the near future.

QUESTION

Nashville, Tenn.

Are not the statements of the Bible taken from men of religious experience who had no foundation whatsoever in knowledge or study of scientific laws? Are Christians, therefore, justified in pretending that these ancient men who wrote the Bible had a knowlge of all the wonders which have been revealed since their tim? By what procss do you excuse the exaggerated constructions given to sacred writings which their authors never intended them to possess and which could only be obtained by means of subsequent scientific discoveries?

ANSWER.

Apparently you are confusing two kinds of knowledge. The purpose of science is to ascertain the facts of nature and to demonstrate that there is a system of law and order in the physical universe. The purpose of religion on the other hand, is to understand the values of life and to give us a sense of the reality of God. Science investigates and relates the marvels of visible life, while religion unveils the moral and spiritual verities of human experience.

This experience is expressed most impressively in the Bible as the medium of God's progressive revelation to mankind which comes to its climax in Jesus Christ. It has stood the searching tests of centuries, and no conclusions of science have affected its validity as the supreme authority in religious literature.

The fact that claims have been made for the Bible which are foreign to its genius should not distract you from its main aim, which is to teach men the right way of living. The substance of its message is found in the words of Micah: "To do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with God" (Chapter vi, 8); and in the summary of the Master: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself; (St. Luke x, 27).

Has science ever contradicted these imperative truths? Do you know of anything better in human annals, or which affords more reliable guidance to succeeding generations? oS long as they have not been superseded we had btter abide by and practice these divine precpts.

Famous Pets Of Famous People

The Old Dog Mitte, for Whom ueen Henrietta of England Risked Her Life.

"I caught her up in my arms and brought her away."

By PRESTON WRIGHT.

Queens as well as laundresses can love dogs, as previous articles in this series have shown. Dogs were the last friends of Mary, Queen of the Scots, and Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, before their executions. Queen Elizabeth of England was devoted to all manner of dogs, with a particular liking for hounds, while Queen Victoria was mistress of a long succession of pets. One of these dogs she would allow no one else to bathe.

Probably, however, none of these royal ladies was as loyal to her pets as was the French wife of Charles I of England, Queen Henrietta, to her old dog Mitte, for whom she risked capture, imprisonment and death.

Though not as unfortunate a sovereign as either Mary Stuart or Marie Antoinette, Henrietta had her full share of troubles. These began to muitiply when, in 1637, she began to be active in the interests of the oppressed Catholics of England. She got them to contribute money for the king's army when the Scottish troubles broke out, and ultimately was voted guilty of high treason by parliament.

She went back to France, but in February, 1643, returned to place herself at the head of troops with which she assisted Charles. It was when she landed at Burlington Quay, in Yorkshire, that she had the adventure which has rendered her memory dear to all animal lovers. She related it, some time after, to Mme. de Motteville.

The landing was accomplished under difficult conditions, for the weather was bad, and Admiral Batten, representing parliament, was energetically engaged in an attempt to frustrate her.

Her attendants succeeded in conducting the queen to a certain house. However, thea dmiral located it and gave evidence of the hatred in which she was held by directing a hot cannonade upon it.

"My friends impressed upon me that I must leave the house," she told Mme. de Motteville.

"But where was I to go? Ah, my friend, there was no refuge for me but a ditch outside the town. She who had sat upon a throne, must cower in the shadows of a ditch.

"We set out, secretly. But the fire upon our position had been furious and unceasing. Bullets whistled past us and fell upon us.

"We had gotten well into Burlington street, when I suddenly gasped.

"'Mitte!' I exclaimed, 'Mitte! I have left her behind.'

"I had an old, ugly dog. I called her Mitte and I loved her very much. Was it not that she loved me?

"I do not know why I had forgotten her. It was the excitement of unaccustomed dangers, I suppose. But when I remembered her, I could not bear to leave her to the mercies of Batten, the parliamentary admiral.

"My attendants implored me to hurry on. I did not heed them. Instead, I turned and ran back into the house. Rushing upstairs I found poor Mitte fast asleep on my bed. I caught her up in my arms and brought her away."

A brave deed and a tender one. Mitte shared the ditch refuge of her mistress with perfect equanimity, it seems, and uttered no betraying barks or whines. Queen and dog alike escaped to see happier and more comfortable days, although Henrietta had to bear a fresh burden of sorrow in 1649 when Charles I was executed. She was then safe in France. When the restoration came she returned to England. She died in 1665 while seeking to restore her health on a trip to France.

Capitol Investigation

(The Kearney Hub)

It is not worth while to anticipate the findings of the legislative committee appointed to investigate the alleged defects in the capitol building of the charges of maladministration by the state capitol commission that has had charge of the work. All that we know at present is that reputable architects have pronounced the defects as of minor importance that can be easily corrected when the finishing touches are added to the completed job. Of course the investigating committee may take another view altogether. The most serious charge or series of charges is made by the former state engineer, George E. Johnson, in charge of the work at the beginning, who alleges a conspiracy to defraud the state out of thousands of dollars. The capitol commission is directly implicated by Engineer Johnson in five of the six specific charges that he makes.

The Johnson charges against the members of the commission allege that they did "knowingly and willingly" do thus and so; that they "knowingly accepted" and paid for inferior stone; that they "knowingly and willingly" made improper settlement for marble used in the structure; that they have wilfully proceeded" with plans for certain construction in a state of disintegration; and that they have been guilty of "wilfully squandering" more than one milloin dollars for a certain kind of tile. In conclusion the ex-state engineer charges, in addition to the amove "conspiracies," many agreements to "defraud the state out of money," etc, etc.

The upshot of the whole matter is that the members of the state capitol commission are unconscionable scoundrels who should be put behind prison bars, or former Engineer Johnson is a libeler of the first water who bobs up for a waiting game of revenge for former grievances. More than that, three governors are inferentially involved as having been derelict in their executive duties. That makes a pretty large list, to which must be added unscruplous dealers in material, dishonest contractors, and supervisors of construction who have winked at all kinds of irregularies. This leaves only one honest person who has been at any time interested in the capitol job, George E. Johnson, former state engineer, who makes charges broadcast and in terms that can not be misunderstood.

The part of the Omaha Bee-News has apparently been to play up to the Johnson charges and criticisms, with due regard for sensational effects, rather than to serve the interests of the state or to correct faults or defects that may or may not appear in the work of the builders.

University Radio Program for Week

Radio programs to be broadcast through the university studio of station KFAB for the week beginning Monday, April 15, will be as follows:

Monday, April 15.

9:30, Weather report by Prof. T. A. Blair director of Nebraska section of the U. S. weather bureau, at Lincoln.

9:35, "Questions and answers" by Mrs. True Homemaker.

12, "Crops and Soils Question Box", by P. H. Stewart, state extension agent in agronomy.

12:10, "A Little Pig into a Big Hog did grow", by W. J. Loeffel, associate professor of animal husbandry.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Library half hour, in charge of Gilbert H. Doane, university librarian.

Tuesday, April 16.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Questions and Answers on Poultry problems," by Prof. P. E. Musehl, chairman of poultry husbandry.

9:50, 4-H club crier.

12, "Insect Pests of the Season", by Prof. M. H. Swenk, chairman of economic entomology.

12:10, "Rabbits and your Fruit Trees", by E. H. Hoppert, state extension agent in horticulture.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Engineers talk, "House Plans" by W. G. Hill, Instructor in architectural engineering.

2:45, "How to Construct and Play the Wooden chimes"", by Dr. C. C. Weidemann teachers college.

Wednesday, April 17.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Cakes and Icings", by Mrs. True Homemaker.

2:30, Sociology talk, "Stumbling Blocks in Case Work", by Miss Ada Barker, secretary, Lincoln Social welfare society.

Thursday, April 18.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, Weekly museum talk, by F. G. Cowlins, curator.

9:50, "Exercises in Fundamental gymnastics," by Teresa Huesman, department of physical education, women's division.

12, Farm flash.

12:10, "Opportunities in Dairy Manufacturing," by E. L. Reichert, instructor in dairy husbandry.

12:20, "Boys' and Girls' club week" by L. I. Frisbie, state extension agent in boys and Girls' clubs.

2:30, "Twenty-seventh lesson of the radio course in beginning Spanish, by Dr. J. E. A. Alexis, professor of Romance languages assignment, lesson 27 in the textbook.

Friday, April 19.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, A book review by Mrs. True Home maker.

12, "Remodeling the Old Farm buildings" by I. D. Wood state extension agent in agricultural engineering.

12:10, "The Agricultural Outlook", by Harold Hedges, assistant professor of rural economics.

12:20, Farm flash.

2:30, Health talk, from college of pharmacy.

2:45, Third of a series of nature talks, by Dr. R. H. Wolcott, chairman of zoology.

Saturday, April 20.

9:30, Weather report.

9:35, "Origin of Place names in Nebraska" by Prof. J. T. Link, of department of conservation and survey.

9:48, "The University of Nebraska Summer session," by Professor R. D. Morita, director.

It is a crime to operate noisy devices, radio amplifiers in particular, in any public or private place in Detroit, Mich., in such manner that the peace and good order of the neighborhood are disturbed or occupants of nearby property annoyed.

Radio Digest

Worth Remembering.

The hum due to external fields surrounding the power transformers in a power pack even when the position of the parts are correct, can usually be eliminated by connecting the metal cases or cores of the transformers to either the ground lead or the "B-" lead of the receiver or power pack so as to bring the cases and cores of all transformers to the low potential side of the circuit.

Condenser Stops Interference.

The reduction of man-made static or machine-made interference is eliminated or diminished in electrically operated receivers by the use of filter condensers. This device, depending upon a combination of inductance and capacity, should be used. This filter is critical both to potential and load. The capacitative type of filter is applicable to most types of electrical apparatus, but the combination of both inductance and capacity is to be desired.

The Use of Cushioned Sockets.

Microphone noises in the screen grid tubes must be guarded against by the use of cushioned sockets. This is an important point in connection with shielding, too, because unless the shields are heavy enough and mechanically tight in all joints they will tend to vibrate too freely if close to the loud-speaker and cause jarring of the tube elements with consequent microphonic howls. The use of heavy shielding, solid construction and cushion sockets will prevent trouble from microphonic disturbances.

Shielding Compartments for Tubes.

Individual shielding "cans" for the tubes are recommended though not absolutely necessary. For best results even the lead which connects the plate from one tube to the coil of the next stage should be shielded by means of a small grounded metal covering. Shielding can be best be attained by the use of suitable completely inter-locking metal cases. For that purpose copper with soldered corner joint and slip-over tops are best but where such joints may be used. Very thin shields are practically useless. Aluminum used for the purpose should be at least about .08 inch thick. Copper may be thinner, but should not be less than about .05 inch thick. In a three-stage amplifier it is advisable to also include chokes in the screen-grid leads of each stage, although in a two-stage unit choke coils in the plate leads alone will usually prove adequate.

For the Notebook.

A transmitting set powered up to 1,000 watts, costs from $5,000 to $40,000.

Imperfect contact between two parts of the shielding surfaces will create noise.

A surprising difference in the tone can often be obtained in electric sets by shifting the tubes in the sockets.

A long lead-in is efficient in picking up the noise from the various kinds of electrical equipment distributed about the house or building.

The first place to look for trouble in a battery operated set is either the "A" or "B" batteries. If it is electric, look for a loose connection or examine the condenser; it may be defective.

Radiograms.

The highest advertising rate charged by an American broadcasting station is $900 an hour with discounts for sustained contracts.

Broadcasting stations in Minnesota are required by law to broadcast information helpful in searches for stolen property and criminals.

It is estimated that sales of radio sets and parts in the United States for 1929 will reach a total of $860,000,000 an increase of $210,000,000 over 1928.

The big wireless plant for sending and receiving to be installed in Vatican City, in Rome, Italy, will enable the Papal Secretary of State to communicate directly with all parts of the world, the secrecy of communication being assured by code.

Michigan and Nevada have enacted laws placing broadcasting under the jurisdiction of their State Public Utilit" commissions, giving them authority to promulgate rules and regulations governing broadcast transmission and reception.

Of the 20,000,000 receiving sets in use throughout the world there are between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 in the United States. Great Britain and Germany have approximately 2,500,000; France, 1,250,000; Japan, 550,000; Argentina, 530,000; Sweden, 371,000; Austria, 325,000, and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy 250,000 each.

The highest powered foreign broadcasting stations are all in Europe. Russia and Finland each maintain a station of 40,000 watts. Sweden has wo stations, one of 30,000, and the second 20,000 watts. France has one of 20,000, and the largest British station is rated at 16,000 watts.

100,000 Seedling Trees Daily Being Sent To Nebraska Farmers

Seedling trees have been going to farmers of the state at the rate of 100,000 per day the past week. Distribution has been from the agricultural college in Lincoln and under the direction of Clayton W. Watkins, extension service forester.

Provisions of the Clarke-McNary Act of Congress furnish the trees and the farmers pay one cent each to cover the cost of counting, packing and shipping them.

Every county of the state was again on the shipping list this year. Farmers seem glad to get the little seedlings and to take part in the campaigns to make Nebraska a real tree planter state.

This is the fourth year that the act has been in force. Nearly two million trees have now been sent out and a fair share of them are growing. Mr. Watkins and an assistant will check up on all the plantings this summer.

The agricultural extension service of the college of agriculture handles the detail of the distribution. Mr. Watkins' work is a part of the extension service program of the state. W. H. Brokaw is the director of the organization.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

MISERY MADE SAM TULLY A PIRATE

If Captain Levy hadn't been such a harsh master, Sam Tully undoubtedly would have remained an honest and capable seaman, content to work toward a captaincy by the route of hard work and low pay, familiar to every mariner of the early part of the nineteenth century.

Tully didn't live a long life, but there was more misery crowded into that life than was experienced by Father Noah in his long career, which also included some colorful seafaring and considerable experience with wild animals. Sam was born in New York, and was only five years old when his father marched away in 1776 to fight to make the world safe for democracy. The elder Tully was listed among the fallen heroes of the new republic, and Sam grew up in a hard world, realizing that a dead hero was not a very helpful father for a boy who needed clothes and food.

At sixteen, he went to sea as a foremast hand. Fortune left him stranded in France, made him a seaman aboard a French man-of-war, an impressed American aboard a British man-of-war, a deserter in Italy, a deck hand on an American merchantman, and a sailmaker in Quebec. He served later as a seaman on the Great Lakes, and then he went to sea again. He married a girl named Ruth Willeton in Lincolnshire, England, became part owner of a merchantman, and was impressed into the British navy again, from his own ship.

Aboard a British cruising frigate, he suffered incredible hardships in African waters. He barely escaped being eaten by cannibals. He served aboard ships that were ravaged by bubonic plague and yellow fever. If there was anything he missed, it was something that hadn't been invented as a hardship for a sailor, and his detailed story, before he became a pirate, would not look pale beside Joan Lowell's "Cradle of the Deep" story. And Trader Horn will have to live another lifetime in Africa before he can think up adventures to match those of this adventurer of an earlier day.

But, after years of tossing about in strange waters, he returned to England in a British ship from India. Having two weeks furlough, he hunted up his wife, and the two of them hunted up the American consul. His story, backed up by proofs, brought him a letter from the consul, protecting him from further seizure by British press gangs.

So Sam Tully sailed for New York, and took a boat up the river to Albany.

"Here," he said to his wife, "we will settle down, and I'll never go to sea again."

Alas for the stuff of which human resolutions are made! In a year, Tully was broke, and when he went looking for work he found a good job on an American merchantman. In three or four years he had enough money to settle down ashore again. He started a grocery store in New York, and his wife ran a lodging house for sailors.

In 1811 the grocery business was not going so well, and Sam Tully disliked the situation that arose when he had to call on his wife for funds with which to buy stock. The store was losing money, although the lodging house was showing a nice profit.

"I'll make one more sea trip," said Tully to his wife. "I can forget the store while I'm away, and reopen it when I come back with my savings. Meantime, you'll be all right, with nice profits from the lodging house."

So Tully went to Philadelphia, and there shipped as mate of the schooner George Washington, under Captain Isaac Levy. This Captain Levy had a hard name among seamen, and several mates had had trouble with him. But he offered better wages than Tully could get elsewhere, and the deal was closed.

He severed the cable with a few blows of the axe.

The George Washington was bound for Teneriffe and other ports in Northern Africa and Europe.

The first misunderstanding between captain and mate occurred four days out, when Captain Levy pulled all the mate's bedclothes and other belongings out of his berth and threw them on the floor, filling the mate's bunk with bread and other stores. Tully was obliged to sleep on the deck, although the captain's berth remained empty, as he had a hammock in which he preferred to sleep. There were several altercations about this state of affairs. Levy always settled every argument by citing the obvious fact that he was captain, and that Tully must obey, whether he liked it or not.

After a week's sailing, Tully approached the captain upon another important subject.

"Is there no liquor aboard?" he asked.

"Yes, there is some. It's mine," answered the captain.

"But I've never before sailed on a ship that allowed no liquor ration. This weather isn't to be endured without liquor. I'll be sick on your hands if you don't give me as much as I can drink."

"All right. I'll tell the cook to give you a glass of rum once a day, at mess," said Levy.

This didn't satisfy Tully, but after a few days the satisfaction nearly passed altogether out of his life when Levy handed him a bottle of rum, saying, "No more liquor at meals, mate. This bottle must last you four days. I can't have it wasted."

Two weeks later the liquor ration was stopped altogether, and Tully was ordered to cut the meat ration for himself and all hands to one pound a day. Then there was a grand quarrel, and Tully made Levy promise to discharge him as soon as the George Washington should make port.

At Teneriffe, Levy refused to carry out his agreement to discharge the mate, and Tully was obliged, under maritime law, to remain in his job. At the Isle of May, in the Cape de Verde group, he again refused. The mate worried and fretted so much about this situation that he began to act a bit crazy.

When Captain Levy departed for a night ashore, he gave Tully these final orders:

"Not a man is to go ashore at this port. We'll be here about a week. And, say, you're to stop the meat ration altogether. These lazy sailors can catch fish when they're not working, and a little fish diet will be good for all hands."

Tully flew into a towering rage at this, and the captain went away laughing. When Levy had got out of sight, Tully began talking things over with two or three dissatisfied members of the crew. It was agreed that they couldn't stand Levy's abuse. Tully rushed about like a crazy man, cursing the absent captain and making wild threats. Finally, when the night was well advanced, he got an axe, and, gesticulating with it, ordered the men to make sail for the open sea. He severed the cable with a few blows of the axe, shouting that there was no time for hoisting the anchor.

It was a month later that three men landed from an open boat at the town of San Lucie, in the West Indies. They were Tully, John Dalton, one of the George Washington's sailors, and John Owen, the black cook.

Tully was suffering from a severe concussion of the brain, and was weak from shock and loss of blood. He was, in fact, very close to death, and had to be carried out of the boat. Dalton also was sick. The cook was well, but in a panic of fear.

The three had plenty of money. They took lodgings, and gave out the story that they were shipwrecked mariners.

They were brought before the governor for questioning, and the cook, begging for protection from the law, offered to tell a tale of piracy and murder against his companions. So they were all arrested and sent to Boston as being under suspicion of piracy.

On October 20, 1812, Tully and Dalton were arraigned before the Circuit court at Boston on indict-

EARLY BOATS ON MISSOURI RIVER

greet those at the dock. Passengers had had a fairly pleasant voyage as a rule. The men often stood on the forecastle or the boiler deck to shoot at geese and ducks, adding to the supplies brought in by employed hunters. The engages or clerks tried out in feats of prowess, pilots told tales of heroic adventures, and the sturdy left the boat at long bends, and rambled across country, rejoining the boat when it came along.

Migration of Mormons.

About 1845, a change came over the river trade, and a new western empire started for the far coast and the interior along the river that had had its chief business with the fur trading posts. River boat stock both passengers, new recruits to the movement, and freight to the Mormons at Omaha and Council Bluffs. The Saluda, which later met a tragic end, was loaded with Mormons on its trip, the St. Ange in 1851 carried up 200, the Sacramento, 400, and many others from 1846 to 1856 took up passengers and freight to the colony.

Discovery of gold in 1848, with Westport, Leavenworth, Ft. Kearney, and Omaha as the starting points, meant that a great deal of the traffic for the emigrants was done by the river boats from St. Louis to these points. Intense government exploration followed, and large exploring parties and bodies of troops went to the coast and the distant interior.

In 1843, 100 passengers, including Audubon, the naturalist, who made a complete journal of the trip, and his party of scientists, reached Fort Pierre May 31 and Fort Union June 12. Returning to St. Louis June 29, the trip had taken forty-nine days from St. Louis to Fort Union, and seventeen days to return. In 1843-44, the "Nimrod," an American Fur company boat, with Comte d'Otrane, son of the famous Fouche of France, and Comte de Peindry as pleasure passengers, went north. In 1853, the "El Paso" outdistanced the far north record of the Assiniboine by 125 miles, and in 1860, the "Chippewa" and "Key West" arrived at Fort Benton in present Montana, "a point farther from the sea by continuous water course than any other boat had ever been," 3,575 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. In 1859, Captain LaBarge, on a fur company boat, went up to the mouth of the Yellowstone and back in twenty-eight days, doing business at the various posts, and made a record in time for the trip.

"Golden Era" of Traffic.

The years from 1855 to 1860 were the golden era of steam boat traffic on the Missouri river. In 1859, the steamboat advertisements in the St. Louis papers showed that more vessels left that port of the Missouri than for both the upper and lower Mississippi. In 1857, there were 28 steamboat arrivals at the new village of Sioux City before July 1, and there were 23 regular boats on that part of the river, with the freight tonnage for the season valued at $1,250,000.

With the boats fitted up more for passengers than for freight, particularly about 1858, when boating on the river was rather overdone, was an era of fast boats and racing. Great danger lay in raising the steam pressure above a safe limit, and the Missouri, out its nearly 170 wrecks, had six from boiler explosions.

The "Pirate" was sunk about twenty-six miles below Council Bluffs, when snagged. She was freighted with flour, bacon, corn for the Otoes and Pottawattamies, and fur company goods for the Indians, valued in all at $12,000. The "Naomi" was descending when she struck a snag, and sunk, but $19,000 in government specie was saved, and there was no loss of life.

Carried Strange Cargoes.

Among the cargoes of the day were 450 packs of buffalo robes, 20 packs of assorted furs, 1,400 buffalo tongues, a young grizzly bear, an elk, and the stuffed skin of a 1,200 pound grizly bear, all on the "General Brook," 1,400 bales of hemp, 100 vasks of bacon, 430 barrels of pork and lard, "and eighty passengers," the list says, 5,000 sacks of corn (the largest shipment of corn ever made from the upper country) and brought down on "The Omaha."

Missouri river steamboat traffic had its bright days before the coming of the railroads, and it was largely closed when the Northern Pacific railroad reached Bismarck in 1873, and was virtually abandoned when other railroads reached the river at Pierre in another seven years and Chamberlain the next year. It is probable that the last through commercial trip was made in 1878, and the last for any purpose from St. Louis to Fort Benton in 1885. For forty years it has been been an active agent as the chief medium of communication between the east and the west, and brought in those who made the west much of what it is today.

at some time be carried out, he would like to have a winter animal house, so that Lincoln residents can enjoy the animals the year around. As it is now, with the parrots, monkeys, alligators, and gold fish in the green house, it is not convenient to have sightseers viewing them in winter, but at the same time, there is no reason that they shouldn't be on view the entire twelve months.

Were his plans to be carried out, the house would be a glassed roof affair, so that it would have plenty of sunlight. On the main floor, Mr. Kittinger would place the fish at one end, with the alligators at another, on one side the monkeys, and the other the birds. The house would also be used for palms and ferns, which are now rather shoved about from pillar to post for lack of suitable space.

Of the animals which are not winter-housed, the zoo has five red foxes, which stay in their pens all during the cold spell. They were fed with a bottle when they first arrived there, but now they take their meat with the best of them. The number was considerably larger, but some have died, and some have been killed, partly because they do not have adequate room for their restless moving. In the same row with the foxes are a wild hog, a pair of coyotes, a badger, a couple of lynx, which came from a donor in York, who got them from New Mexico, a couple of raccoons, and the ground hog, all of which spend the winter in the open in the regular cages.

Birds Brave Weather.

Nellie, the lazy cinnamon bear, and Bruno, a big black fellow about eighteen months old, and a couple of other black bruins, one of them the 450- pound animal that escaped a couple of weeks ago, and which is now encased in an extra coating of wire, make up the residents of the bear pens.

The three bald eagles and the owls, housed in the same general cages, but separated within, are birds that stay out in all sorts of weather. The pheasants, of which there are three kinds, seek only the nominal shelter of their pens, and often come out in thir runs in the cold months. Bantam chickens hatch the pheasant eggs, and the little ones are raised in a pen by themselves. They require considerable care, and their water must be sprinkled on the grass, as that is the only way the little ones know to get it.

Completing the zoo are several white fallow deer, a couple of Japanese deer, a buffalo, and a so-called sacred cow. They spend the cold months in the open, but a hay-lined shelter, with southern exposure has been prepared for the deer during the coldest periods. They are out most of the time now.

Chadron Normal

Newly initiated members of the "C" club are: Berl Hammack, Stuart; Robert Haworth, Downers Grove, Ill.; Ray Albro, Scottsbluff; Herman Schrader, Atkinson; Clinton Gross, St. Michael; Glen Buckingham, Morrill; Howard Curfman, Lisco. The "C" club is sponsored by Coach Arthur R. Stark, and students eligible to membership must have been awarded a letter in one or more of the major sports.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Philpott visited at the home of cousins of the latter at Hot Springs, S. D., Sunday, April 7. Mrs. E. F. Ringler and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Camburn were also in the party.

A birthday dinner, honoring Geraldine Trachta of Galesburg, Ill., was given at the Kappa Theta Sigma sorority house, Saturday, April 6. Miss Trachta was presented a gift.

Wesleyan Debators End Successful Year

Out of fifteen scheduled debates the affirmative team won seven, tied one, and lost four. Three were non-decision debates. The team consists of Donald Swanson of Lincoln, Harold Ried of Kearney, Ford McCoy of Orleans, and William Brown of Lincoln. They debated St. Olof's college at Northfield, Minn., Western Union; Buena Vista, Gustavus Adophus, of St. Peters, Minn.; Yankton of Yankton, S. D.; Morningside; Emporia college, Hastings; Kearney; Doane; Midland; Cotner, Peru, and Washburn.

The women's teams representing Wesleyan won four out of seven debates. The women making up the teams were Thelma Jams of Bloomington, Rose Marie Fellers of Paltsade, Eva Kalley of Holdrege, and Bernice Foster of Sidney. They debated Morningside, Doane, Cotner, and South Dakota university.

known as "Dimples" Walker several years ago when I was first big enough to take an interest in the movies? Is she married and if so to whom?

I feel a terrible shove from behind, so I guess some other fan wants to get to the front. Ta, ta, until next time. SO LONG LETTY.

"The Dummy" was not so dumb if he could convey the impression of a deaf mute in real life to the fans. There's nothing the matter with Mickey Bennett off screen, I can assure you. That was his own voice you heard. He is a talented youngster and has been getting good training in the movies for years.

Well, at least Bebe has announced her engagement to Ben. But, Bebe has been engaged before, so we'll just wait until the "I dos" are said.

"The Son of Anak" is about due for general showing George O'Brien is the hero. It's a Fox feature.

Colleen will talk and sing in her next feature, which is a change at least, and may present her in a more diversified role. James Hall is the leading man.

"Queen Kelly" will introduce Gloria Swanson to the fans in a talking picture.

You will locate Laura La Plante at the Universal Studio, Universal City, Calif. Laura was just emerging from the cradle when Lillian Walker, who was known as "Dimples" was in her prime as a motion picture artist. They are not related in any way. Miss La Plante is Mrs. William Seiter in private life.

Dear Movie Editor—Now that the bricks, et cetera, have subsided a little, I'll venture to stick my nose out again. I'm telling you that I was right, but perhaps a little premature, in regard to Clara Bow. You just notice and see that other fans are deciding they don't like her quite so well as they did. She just doesn't wear well. We often meet people like that. Sometimes like them fine upon first acquaintance, but a close up is not so good. However, I've done enough damage, so far as the little "It" girl is concerned, and I didn't come to start another argument concerning her.

I saw "Redskin" after months of waiting and was so disappointed in it. I expected to see another "Vanishing American," but it was nothin gmore than a flat, trite Dix story ,in spite of the color. I admire Richard Dix but he was just "blah" in this picture. Enough said!

I have a brick for Joan Crawford, too. I don't see why the fans pick out somebody like Joan and Clara for favorites. I give them credit for having more intelligence! Joan looks so empty. But, here I am starting more arguments. Niles Asther is princely enough for any prince. No wonder he causes all of the flapper's hearts to do an "over" and back.

George Bancroft is much too intelligent to be wasted on such cheap stuff as "The Wolf of Wall Street." He did his part well and with conviction, but it seemed to be he rebelled inwardly at playing such a wishy washy hero. Baclanova's voice was pleasing. Let us hope she retains the accent.

Well if I stay around here much longer, I fear I will bring forth as many bombs as the Mexican revolution, so I'll just run and duck while I sign my name, "THE CRITIC."

Dear Movie Editor—Well, here's another old fan back again. I've been out of town for several months and have had no time to write, but of course I took the paper and read all of the fan letters anyhow. And now I am glad to be back with you again.

I saw "The Doctor's Secret" and have a new favorite. Yes, you've guessed it correctly—Ruth Chatterton. She is just charming. Reminds me a great deal of Mary Pickford, or of the way Mary would look with her hair cut. And her voice was magnetic. I seem to hear it in my dreams. Such love scenes, too, and we could hear them bill and coo. Yum, yummy! That was a good picture.

I am glad I have returned in time to find out something from you about Ruth Chatterton. Is she married? If so, to whom? Please tell me all you know about her and give me her address.

Do you think Greta Garbo will ever return to this country again? I hope so, because she is another artist. I admire her languishing ways and mournful eyes. Is she married and if so to whom?

How old is Mary Pickford and how many times has she been married? Who were her other husbands?

How old is Doug Fairbanks, jr.? He seems like such a kid to be engaged to Joan Crawford, but perhaps he is older than he looks. Did he play in "Dream of Love?" Who played opposite Joan in that picture?

Hoping to see my letter soon, I am AN OLD FAN.

This will have to be "Old Home Week," I think, with so many wanderers back to the fold.

Miss Chatterton has been a favorite on the stage for many years, but it was only recently that she was lured to the screen. Emil Jannings is said to be responsible for her discovery. At any rate he suggested her for his feminine lead in "Sins of the Fathers." She has since made "The Doctor's Secret," "The Dummy" and Madame X." She was loaned to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Paramount for "Madame X."

Your new favorite claims New York City as her home. She played in stock with Lowell Sherman, Pauline Lord and Lenore Ulric in the early stage of her career. She was starred when she was only eighteen because of her notable work with Henry Miller in "Daddy Long Legs" and "Come Out of the Kitchen." She came west with "The Green Hat," in which her husband, Ralph Forbes, played opposite her, and has been on the stage in Los Angeles in that and "The Devil's Plum Tree."

Miss Chatterton is five feet three inches tall and has blue eyes and auburn hair. Address her at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

I not only think, I know, Greta Garbo will return to us again, because she already has, and is preparing to start work on a talking picture. She is single.

Miss Pickford was born in 1893 and has just celebrated a birthday. I'll let you do the headwork. Owen Moore was the only husband she had prior to her marriage with Doug Fairbanks.

Douglas, jr., was born in 1910, so he hasn't many years behind him. He was not in the cast of "Dream of Love." Nils Asther was the leading man.

Dear Movie Editor — Several months ago I happened to see a picture that I liked very much. It was called "The Wise Wife." I wonder if you could give me the cast for it. I believe Phyllis Haver was the featured player. It had a pretty good lesson in it.

And do you know who the leading man was in "Open Range?" Betty Bronson was the heroine. What company is Betty with now?

Who was the little black-eyed Spanish girl who played with Doug Fairbanks in "The Gaucho?" She was a regular fire eater.

Who owns Rin Tin Tin? As a rule I don't care for dog pictures, but Rinty is almost human in his intelligence. He must have a wonderful trainer, although I know police dogs are unusually smart anyhow.

I'll appreciate an early reply to my letter. Many thanks.

BLUE EYES.

Here is your cast for "The Wise Wife": "Helen Blaisdell," Phyllis Haver; "John Blaisdell," Tom Moore; "Helen's Father," Fred Walton; "Jenny Lou" Jacqueline Logan; "Carter Fairfax," Joseph Striker; "Jason, the butler," Robert Bolder.

That was Lane Chandler with Betty in "Open Range." It was his first featured part. You no doubt saw him later with Clara Bow in "Red Head." Betty Bronson is under contract to Warner Brothers now.

Lupe Velez was the little "Madcap" in "The Gaucho." Lupe, you know, is one of the most talked of young players in Hollywood since her part in the Fairbanks' picture.

Lee Duncan is the owner and trainer of Rin Tin Tin. He brought him back with him upon his return from the World war.

Making Talkie Debut—Another stage star who has "gone talkie" is Laura Hope Crews. She will make her talking picture debut in "The Marriage Holiday," which is under way at the Paramount Hollywood studios.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I think it is so nice to have a place where one may write and express views on the plays and players we see on the screen. And how time does fly, too. It seems only yesterday that I saw my first motion picture,—the serial "The Trey of Hearts" was the first one I ever saw,—and here we have talking pictures already. I must say I'm not very fond of them, either.

I suppose talking pictures are alright for the young people who can see and hear well, but I have passed that stage and although I know they are a step upward, I feel sort of sad, because they are taking away one of my greatest sources of pleasure.

I do not hear well any more unless I am close to the speaker, and so unless I sit in front at a talking picture I am unable to understand a thing that is said so of course I lose much of the pleasure of the show. On the other hand, if I sit close to the front, the picture is all a blur and I am unable to enjoy it on that account, so you see it's a rather difficult proposition all around. Naturally you will think that I should stay at home since I'm so hard to please, but I do enjoy pictures when I can read the sub-titles and know what it is all about.

I have never been able to travel much and I get so much pleasure out of seeing how the other side lives through the educational films. I love every one of the comedians for the many laughs they have given me. As we pass on through life, it isn't always easy to find the laughs, but when we can sit in a show and see the comedy situations that are presented for our benefit, we lose ourselves and forget the tragedies in our own lives for a few hours.

I always go to a show that sounds like a comedy drama so I can have a good laugh. I really don't care for shows like "The Singing Fool" where everybody cries. I suppose, too, I am the only person in Lincoln who did not attend that picture.

I have no questions to ask today in fact I have never asked you any, although I have written my opinion of shows a number of times. I am not so interested in the private lives of the players as some fans, because I prefer to think of them as the characters in the story in which I see them and not as real flesh and blood people with all the frailties of flesh.

I hope I am welcome and I'll not tire you with any more talk this time. I appreciate your kindness in giving me ear. MRS. M. F. T.

We are always happy to hear from Fans, regardless of whether they need information or not. We enjoy hearing their sentiments on the happenings of the celluloid world.

Perhaps in time it will be possible to run a few subtitles with the dialogue of the picture so that fans such as yourself and the fans of foreign countries who cannot understand our language may be able to get the gist of the story without hearing or understanding the lines given by the players.

I have found that the picture has been less interesting for me on occasions when some unexpected sound in the theater or poor enunciation by the player has prevented me from hearing all of the dialogue. I can readily understand your complaint.

Dear Movie Ediotr—I'd like to know why they have wasted a perfectly ideal leading man like William Powell on villain's roles all of these years. I saw him as the detective in "The Canary Murder Case" and he was simply perfect. In the first place, it was a well told story. I had read the story and wanted to see the picture to see how much they could ruin it, but I was pleasantly surprised.

That poker game where Powell confirmed his suspicions of the murderer was one of the best scenes I have even seen on the screen. It was so realistic and yet did not reveal to the audience who had not read the book, who the murderer really was and thus spoil the balance of the film for them.

I notice that "The Green Murder Case" is to be filmed with Mr. Powell as the detective, too.

Of course, you are not in the dark now as to what my letter is all about. I want all of the information concerning Mr. Powell that you can give me, including the titles of some of the other pictures in which he has worked. Of course I have seen him many times, but don't recall just what the pictures were because he never really appealed to me until I saw him in "The Canary Murder Case." Sincerely, LILLIAN.

And when you did fall, you fell hard! I agree with you. William has kept his light under a bushel long enough. He was fortunate to have had such a lucky "break" in his first starring picture.

Mr. Powell is a graduate of the Arts in New York, so he was well equipped to go on the stage. His first role was in "The Ne'er Do Well." He later played in various stock companies before he won his first screen role in "Sherlock Holmes" with John Barrymore. Among his other pictures are "The Bright Shawl," "Romola" "Too Many Kisses," "Beau Geste," "The Last Command," "Interference," and "Four Feathers."

Mr. Powell was born in Kansas City, but spent most of his childhood in Pittsburgh. He is six feet tall, weighs 162 and has black hair and blue eyes.

Dear Movie Editor—I'm your almost every Sunday visitor. I am always so filled up and running over with questions I just naturally can't stay away from your department. Of course I like to see my letter in print ,and I most certainly do enjoy reading the letters from other fans. I think it's so much nicer to see the whole letter than just the answer as they do in most of the movie magazines.

I expect you are anxious to have me get down to business and ask my questions.

First, I want to know if the little boy in "The Dummy" was really deaf and dumb or not. I heard that he was, or he couldn't have acted the part so well, and that some other boy doubled for him when he did speak. Is that so?

Is is true that Bebe Daniels is going to marry Ben Lyon? I think they would make a nice couple. I just adore Bebe. She is so sweet and clever and pretty. Ben is good looking ,too.

Has "The Son of Anak" been released yet? Do you know who will play the leading role? What company is making the picture? I read the story in The Post and so am very much interested in it.

I wish they would give Colleen Moore some decent stories once in a while. I haven't liked her in either of her last pictures, "Synthetic Sin" and "Why Be Good." They both seemed to fall flat and were too much like some of her others. I like Colleen and hate to see her ruined by poor stories. Clara Bow seems to have lost out with the fans for the same reason. I'd rather see one good picture than two poor ones, and I believe that's the way all of the fans must feel about their favorites. But for some reason or other they think they have to turn out a picture every few weeks to maintain their joiularity with us. I'm wonderine what the other fans think about Colleen.

What is the title of Gloria Swanson's next picture?

Please give me Laura La Plante's address? Is she the girl who was

Director Offer To Miss Talley

NEW YORK, April 13.—(I. N. S.)—Marion Talley, the 23-year-old opera star, who has announced her decision to retire, has been offered a post as musical director for the new forty-story Barbizon-laza music center, which is to be built here overlooking Central park at a cost of $10,000,000, it was announced tonight.

William H. Silk, president of the Hotel Barbizon, which is interested in the new project, declared in urging Miss Talley to accept the post, that he felt her decision to retire "may possibly have a discouraging effect on countless young American artists striving for success."

LINDY AND ANNE TO WED IN JUNE

Morrows to Leave Mexico City Soon to Buy Her Trousseau.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

MEXICO CITY, April 13—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow will be married in the June-time, probably in the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J., International News Service learned today.

Miss Morrow, together with her parents, Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, and other members of the family, are now preparing for a trip to Englewood, to be taken two weeks hence, for the purpose of selecting Miss Morrow's trousseau.

The wedding, International News Service's informant said, is expected to take place early in June. The definite decision whether it shall take place at the Morrow home at Englewood will be made after the Morrow family reaches that place.

Planned to Wed Easter.

The couple had planned to be married during the Easter holidays at the Morrow country home in romantic and picturesque Cuernavaca, near the Mexican capital, but the turmoil accompanying the outbreak of the Mexican revolution compelled a postponement of these plans.

The collapse of the revolution and the outlook for an early pacification of the country now makes it possible for the ambassador to leave his post, it was said. He expects to be absent from Mexico City during all of May and June.

Accompanying the Morrows on their northern trip will be Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Yates of Englewood. Mrs. Yates is a sister of Mrs. Morrow.

Screen Siftings.

Charles and Mary Again — The marital difficulties of Charles Rogers and Mary Brian will be seen together again in the talking version of Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia." Mr. Rogers will take the role of Tom Rumford, created on the stage by Leo Carillo. Walter McGrail is returning to the screen for the role of Major Patterson in support of Mr. Rogers, and Anderson Lawlor will be Joe Patterson. Music, song and dialogue will make this another 100 per cent talking feature.

Nagel Will Sing—Conrad Nagel is a talented singer as well as a player, as fans will learn with the release of Metro-Goldwn-Maver's "Revue of Revues." Mr. Nagel is to sing in this production. Conrad's father, Dr. Frank Nagel, is nationally famous as an expert on opera.

Auburn Debaters Win District Championship

Front row: Marshall Howe, Nina Burdette, Robert Stever.

(Special to The Star.)

AUBURN, Neb., April 13—Auburn high school won the southeastern district debating championship this year by defeating the best teams of the district. The Auburn debaters have an enviable record of six victories in the district as against one loss. In this competition they have had but two votes of the judges cast against them, while twenty-two have been in their favor. They have also engaged in seven non-decision debates.

The Auburn team is made up of one senior and two juniors. Miss Burdette is captain of the team and is debating for the third year. Marshall Howe and Robert Stever are juniors and are debating for the first time this year. The team is coached by L. A. Breternitz, a member of the state championship team from North Platte high school in 1922.

This team will take part in the state contest to be held in Lincoln April 25, 26 and 27.

This is the second Auburn team to win the district in the last three years.

ALL UP!

Average Life at the Average College, as Gathered from the Pages of Any College Daily at Any Alma Mater.

Monday, First of the Month. Extracts from the Daily Ding Dong, Alma Mater College.

All up, Boys, for the big basketball game tonight. We want to see every man turn out and root and shout for Alma Mater. Remember, this is the first big game there has been for ten days, and there will be no other for over a week. Every man up! We want every man who has proper college spirit to be right there in the grand stand, rooting. You can buy right on the spot a program that will tell you who the players are, and how the game is played, and how to know which side is which. All up!

But at the same time:—

Don't forget that before the game begins you have time to come and hear the Banjo and Mandolin semi-final tryout in Hoot-It-Up Hall. All free, no charge. Remember that the Banjo club and the Mandolin league need support. These things can't live on mere love of music. They need enthusiasm, they need rooting, they need support. They need YOU. One dollar a year from eevry student at Alma Mater will buy a banjo for every man in the fourth year.

But, REMEMBER, best of all! Everybody up for the big ALL-ALM-AMATER SORORITY AND FRAT FEED right after the big basket-ball game! Buy your flowers early, as the College Chrysanthemum Shop reports a big run already. We want to see everybody at this feed and dance! It will be the last dance but two before the final three. Don't miss it! All up!

We call your attention also to our advertising columns under the head of WHERE TO GO AFTER THE DANCE. Do you want a cozy feed for a dozen or so at a table and a high-class cabaret show? Drop in at the Student's Alma Mater Union. Cover charge, only two dollars.

So ends Monday.

Tuesday, Second of the Month. The Daily Ding Dong Speaks Again.

We hope that all students will duly turn out at 11:00 A. M. to exercise their privilege of voting for the new members of the Students' Government League. The different faculties have suspended all lectures for the day in order to enable students to vote at eleven o'clock. Get in early. It is the duty of every student to remember that all the activities of college life ought to be his earnest concern. Don't miss any. On page four you can see who the candidates are and what the Government League is. But come anyway. There will be student ushers who will tell you how to vote.

Also—for those who have voted—

FREE EXHIBITION OF CONJURING

All student voters are invited at 11:30 to come into Hoot-It-Up Hall and see a free exhibition of conjuring given for the benefit of the students by the distinguished Italian conjurer now appearing at the Star Theatre. What we need at Alma Mater is all-around culture. Conjuring is just as much a part of a student's work as mathematics or football. All up!

And don't forget—

Later in the day at 3:00 P. M.—STUDENTS' ANNUAL ESQUIMO DOG RACE, followed at four P. M. by GRAND RECEPTION BY THE LOCK AND KEY SOCIETY TO THE VISITING DELEGATE FROM THE OBJIBWAY INDIAN RESERVATION TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

Wednesday, Third of the Month. More Extracts from the Daily Ding Dong.

Fellow students! Tonight is the big night—the one night in the year. Leave aside all books for this one evening and turn out for the ALMA MATER FOLLIES. The performance is staged for 8:00 in the Alma Mater Theatre and runs till 1.00 A. M. Tickets $5.00 a seat and up.

All reports say that the Follies this year will be bigger, brighter, and brainier than in any year before. Special features this year include a buck and wing clog dance by the Trustees of Alma Mater, champion mouth organ solo by the Dean of Research, and a huge ensemble chorus composed of all the girls worth looking at in Alma Mater. All up!

Thursday, Fourth of the Month. The Daily Speaks for the Fourth Time.

We regret that in our yesterday's number we omitted to give adequate publicity to the joint meeting of the Mathematical and Economic Societies to hold a joint debate on "How to Make Money Out of the Stock Exchange." We are glad to learn that the meeting was in any case a crowded one.

Lack of space prevented us from giving more than a passing announcement of the annual meeting of the Students' Rod and Gun Club, of the Students' Deep Sea Travel Association, the Bridge and Poker Club, the Night Off Society, and the Rest from Study Association.

Today the DAILY earnestly hopes that eevry student of Alma Mater will turn out to see the final All-Continent Ping Pong Match between Alma Mater and the University of Tugugigalpa, Honduras. Alma Mater will be represented by Ted Swatgood, who has done more to put Alma Mater over at Ping Pong than any student alive or deserving to live. Tugugigalpa will be championed by the redoubtable Joe Logwood, one of the big figures of the Ping Pong world.

If Alma Mater wins—that is, if Ted beats Logwood—we are tied for the semi-final. Alma Mater has put big work into this; that is to say, Ted has been training under a staff of ten coaches for a year at the expense of the college. It won't do to lose. If this college carries off the Ping Pong pennant, it is a grand thing for everybody connected with Alma Mater; this muscle-building, character-making sport is what is needed to build us up. It is all the greater pity that this year only four out of our four thousand students actually played the game. But we expect the others to make up for this by turning out en masse to help down Logwood.

Friday, Fifth of the Month. The Daily Still Exhorting.

All students attention! A principal feature for this afternoon will be an EXHIBITION OF DANCING GUINA PIGS in Hoot-It-Up Hall. This entertainment, which is being staged by the Department of Anthropology, will run from 2:00 P. M. till 6 P. M. Students are requested to get into their seats sharply on time so as not to keep the pigs waiting. Remember the hour, 2:00 P. M., and the name, Guinea Pigs. All afternoon classes suspended.

We beg to call attention to a letter appearing in another column and forwarded to us by Mr. Hustle Moore of the class. Mr. Moore draws attention to the fact that under present conditions at Alma Mater the students have not enough opportunity to get to know one another. He suggests a new organization to be called the WHO DO YOU KNOW CLUB, with power from the students' council to collect fees and to compel attention. The Daily is entirely in the students of this college to appreciate one another is to levy a suitable fee and fine those who drop out.

SUPPLEMENTAL ITEM SET BY THE DAILY IN BLACK

The DAILY is under the melancholy duty of chronicling the death of one of our fellow students, Mr. J. Smith, under very distressing and baffling circumstances. The doctors who attended our deceased fellow student declare that he died from over-study. This seems inexplicable, but apparently the medical facts warrant no other conclusion. That any student at Alma Mater College could be exposed to a danger of this sort is extremely difficult to believe. It may have been that the mistaken young man was purveying books to his room and making surreptitious use of his room as a place of study. This, of course, would be extremely difficult to prevent.

The sad occurrence teaches us, however, one lesson at Alma Mater, namely, that every effort should be made to brighten and diversify our college life. Our present activities are confined perhaps to too limited a field, and it might be well to call a general meeting to form a WIDER ACTIVITIES LEAGUE. Meanwhile there is one thing that we can do to honor the memory of our misguided fellow student. We want to see every man turn out at his funeral and testify in an unmisfakable way to the grief we feel. We suggest a try-out rehearsal for the mourners in Hoot-It-Up Hall and then a big grand rally on the day itself. All up, boys, for Smith's funeral. Don't forget the name, Smith.

Saturday, Last Call. (Poster in the corridors of Alma Mater.)

Owing to the nervous prostration of all the editors, the DAILY will not appear till Monday.

The guests of honor will be Mrs. Walter Matzen, Columbus, supreme president; Mrs. Charles McCloud, York, past supreme president, and Mrs. Clara Shapard, Omaha.

The Masonic employes of the state house have been invited by Lancaster lodge, No. 54, A. F. and A. M. to join in the work and festivities of April 19. Three master mason degrees will be conferred, work beginning at 3 p. m. A banquet will be served at 6:30 following which the Honorable A. J. Weaver, governor of Nebraska, will be the speaker. Music for the work and following the banquet will be furnished by a male quartet composed of J. E. Latsch, John G. Mason, Lee Ager and Leslie Strain. Music will be furnished during the dinner hour by a brass quartet composed of John Shildneck and Julius Sands, trumpet players and Aubrey Bouck and James Wynkoop, trombone players. The Honorable Verne Hedge will introduce the governor and Secretary Whitten of the chamber of commerce will welcome the guests.

Annual muster day services, the thirty-first anniversary of the call for volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, will be held Sunday, April 21, in the Antelope parkway, Twenty-third and N streets, at 2 o'clock. The exercises, under the auspices of William Lewis camp, will consist of ceremonies during which Spanish American war, Philippine insurrection, and Boxer rebellion soldiers, sailors, and marines will renew their oath of allegiance. John D. Brady, commander of the local camp, and a corps of officers will administer the oath. Fred S. Lecron of Columbus, state commander, will speak following the official ceremonies. The auxiliary will take part in the ceremonies, which are open to the public.

Members of Apoomattox W. R. C. No. 128 entertained the G. A. R. members and their wives at luncheon Monday in I. O. O. F. hall. A patriotic program was given after the luncheon. Among the numbers on the program were a drill by twenty women dressed in red, white, and blue, impersonation, "When Dad was a Boy," Mrs. Madeline Johnson; piano, drums, and xylophone sections, James Miller, reading, "Let Me Walk by the Side of the Road," Mrs. Orpha Kinnamon, address, John Curtiss. The program closed with singing patriotic songs.

The American War Mothers' kensington held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Henrietta Toogood, 536 North Fourteenth street, Wednesday afternoon. The needs of the veterans' hospital were discussed during the afternoon. Refreshments were served at the close of the session. The organization admits women whose sons served in the World war, and the work is done for ex-soldiers and their families.

ments charging piracy, murder and barratry. Owen was granted immunity for his testimony against the others.

The charge of murder related to the death at sea of George Cummings, seaman of the George Washington. Two of the George Washington's men had left ship in a boat when she made sail, under Tully's orders, at Isle of May. There were left aboard then Tully, who took charge as captain, Dalton, Owen and Cummings. The latter seemed demented, although some of the men thought him merely drunk. How he got enough liquor to keep him drunk aboard such a frugal craft, was never explained.

Cummings kept refusing to work, and insisted upon kissing the hands and feet of Tully and Dalton. He was melancholy, cried most of the time, and refused to eat. After two weeks at sea, Cummings rose in the night and stole upon Tully, who was asleep on deck, and gave him a terrible blow on the head with a hammer.

Tully was stunned, but cried out for help, and staggered to his feet to grapple with the apparently insane Cummings. Tully had no weapons. Cummings brandished a knife and a hammer, and Tully was badly cut and bruised.

Dalton came running to his chief's relief, and he and Tully managed to push and carry Cummings to the gunwale, and thence dropped him into the sea.

Upon this incident rested the charge of murder. Next night, land was sighted. The money on board, amounting to less than three thousand dollars, was divided among the three survivors, and the long boat was hoisted out and towed astern. Owen, who was not greatly trusted by the other two, was compelled to get into the boat while the George Washington proceeded on her way.

After some hours, Dalton and Tully abandoned the ship and took their places in the boat. Owen thought he heard the two talking about having scuttled the vessel, and on this allegation the charge of barratry was based.

Dalton and Tully denied that they had scuttled the vessel. They denied that they had murdered Cummings, but insisted that they had merely drowned him in defense of their lives, after he had nearly killed one of them. They admitted running away with the George Washington, but their lawyer insisted that their action was not piracy, because they had not exercised violence against Captain Levy or any other person in taking possession of the ship.

The two men were convicted, almost wholly upon the testimony of the negro, who, of course, was making out the best possible case for himself and the worst possible one for his shipmates, since he wanted to save his own life and sacrifice theirs.

On December 10, 1812, Tully was hanged at South Boston. Still suffering from his wounds, which probably would have killed him eventually, he had prepared a final statement, which he intended to read from the gallows. The statement gave his side of the story quite fully, and was a fine defense against the charge of murder. As to the piracy, Tully admitted sailing away with a ship that didn't belong to him, approaching the funds aboard her, and abandoning her at sea. His only defense for this action was one that would not hold in law. He said that Captain Levy had goaded him beyond endurance by his stinginess and abuse, but particularly by his refusal of an adequate liquor ration to himself and the crew.

But Tully was unable to read his last statement. He was too sick. In fact, there was much doubt that he was conscious at the time of the hanging. He had to be carried to the gallows, and appeared to be in a coma. The deputy United States marshal read the paper aloud to the assembled multitude, which cheered the defense lustily. The trap was sprung, and in a few minutes Dalton stepped forward to have the rope adjusted about his neck. When the hangman had fixed the knot and the last prayer had been said, Dalton was asked whether he had anything to say.

"No sir," he replied. "Let's get it over with as soon as possible."

The hangman pulled the black cap over the doomed man's face. At that moment another deputy marshal came running and shouting that the hanging should be stopped. He bore a reprieve for both men. Too late for Tully. But Dalton was eventually pardoned.

ANNOUNCING—
the installation of a
PIPE ORGAN
We have just completed the installation of a Reproduco Pipe Organ, an instrument built for Mortuary services.
Perhaps there is nothing which adds to the beauty and comforting memories of a funeral service so much as appropriate music. There is something of Infinity in the rich swells of pipe organ music, and a quality of hope and promise—an effect suggestive of celestial beauty. The organ service is an exclusive feature of Wadlow's. This being the only pipe organ in a Lincoln Mortuary.

A Man You Must Meet

That Is, If You Desire to Get Close to President Hoover, for Chief Secretary Akerson Will See to It.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ackerson.

BY BONITA WITT.
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Lincoln Star.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—If you desire to shake the hand of President Hoover, have your picture taken with him, present him with a bolt of goods or a pet orang-outang, George E. Ackerson, chief secretary of the president, is the man to see.

In a corner of the wing of the White House given over to the executive offices, Akerson, a youngish-looking man with graying hair, occupies a spacious office lined with chairs which seldom are empty. There he meets a constant stream of persons who desire to see the president on missions both important and foolish. It is Akerson's job to see that the merely curious and those with trifling proposals get no opportunity to take up the president's time, while those with legitimate business to transact are admitted as speedily as possible.

Akerson's day begins at nine o'clock, when he arrives at his office and immediately goes into conference with the president. He finds out whom the president desires summoned during the day, which persons he is eager to see and what the general program is to be. Together they go over some of the mail.

The Grind Begins.

Then, at ten o'clock, the engagements begin. If a cabinet officer, senator or representatives arrives he is admitted at once and those who have had engagements for weeks must wait. It is Akerson's job then to keep those who are waiting patient and in good humor. He must learn to know the callers by sight.

During the morning he frequently must call the president to pose with various groups who have come to Washington. Twice daily Akerson holds press conferences, answering such questions as lie within his prvince to answer so that correspondents need not wait until the president's weekly conference. He sits in also on the president's press conference.

In the afternoon, when there are few engagements, he must be available so as to supoly President Hoover with any information he may require. At five o'clock he again meets with him, goes over the day's happenings and lays plans for the morrow.

With President Three Years.

For three years Akerson has been associated with Mr. Hoover. He comes from Minneapolis, Minn., where he obtained a position on The Tribune, some 12 years ago, just after his graduation from Harvard.

When the Tribune's political writer quit young Akerson was given the job because of his enthusiasm for politics, and he soon was known throughout Minnesota for his work. He traversed the borders of the state and began to write of the agrarian movement in North Dakota and Townley's Non-partisan league until he became an acknowledged authority on both subjects.

After writing of things political for years, he took a hand in the election of a mayor in Minneapolis and was given considerable credit for the gentleman's subsequent victory. Finally his love of politics drew him to Washington, where he covered an important conference. Within a short time he became secretary to Mr. Hoover, who then held the commerce portfolio in the Coolidge cabinet.

Since that time he has been with Mr. Hoover constantly, making trip after trip with him. He was a member of the party which accompanied the president to South America.

GRACE METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

Doane College Notes

Messrs. Arthur Byler, pianist, Charles V. Kettering, baritone; and C. Burdette Wolfe, violinist, of the Doane college faculty, are scheduled to give a fomal concert in the First Presbytertian church at Tecumseh, this evening, April 14.

Work has already begun on the new Simon athletic field. With favorable weather the rough grading will doubtless be completed before the first of May.

A Shrine of Memory
Make of that spot in "God's Acre" a shrine for your dearest memories.
We will co-operate with you in the erection of a tribute of devotion.

IF YOU WERE SPOTTED WHAT A FINE LOOKING GIRAFFE YOU'D MAKE —

A LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME —

YOU'VE BEEN AT THOSE DOUGHNUTS AGAIN —

AW! I ONLY HAD ONE

I DIDN'T ASK HOW MANY YOU TOOK — YOU TOOK ONE — THAT'S ENOUGH — AND YOU KNOW I TOLD YOU NOT TO GO NEAR THAT PANTRY — A LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME ALL ABOUT THIS —

AND THE SAME LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME THAT YOU'VE BEEN AT YOUR BANK AGAIN — AND YOU AND GEORGE MASON SHOT ALL THE WINDOWS OUT OF CHARLIE STEVENS' BARN WITH THAT AIR GUN YOU GOT FOR CHRISTMAS — I TOLD YOU NOT TO PLAY WITH IT —

I'VE WARNED YOU AND I'VE THREATENED YOU — AND NOW YOU'VE GOT TO TAKE YOUR MEDICINE —

BUT GEE WHIZ

GO RIGHT IN AND SEE YOUR FATHER — HE'LL TEND TO YOU

I DON'T WANT TO GO IN AND SEE MY FATHER

HERE'S A YOUNG MAN WHO NEEDS ATTENTION — HE'S BEEN AT THE DOUGHNUTS AGAIN — AND BROKE THE WINDOWS NEXT DOOR WITH THAT AIR GUN YOU FORBADE HIM TO PLAY WITH — I WANT YOU TO PUNISH HIM —

SO!

UP TO THE OLD MONKEY SHINES AGAIN, EH? WELL — COME ACROSS MY KNEE —

I'LL NOT DO IT AGAIN — I'LL NEVER DO IT AGAIN —

NOW — PERHAPS YOU'LL STOP AND THINK BEFORE YOU PULL ANYMORE TRICKS —

YEOW!

I'M GONNA RUN AWAY FROM HOME — SEE IF I DON'T — BOO! HOO! HOO! YOU'LL MISS ME WHEN I'M GONE — YOU'LL BE SORRY —

DON'T YOU KNOW, CHESTER, THAT IT BREAKS YOUR POOR MOTHER'S HEART WHEN YOU DISOBEY HER LIKE THIS? EVERY TIME THAT YOU ARE NAUGHTY — OR SAY A BAD WORD — OR DO ANYTHING THAT YOU SHOULDN'T — THERE IS A LITTLE BIRD THAT SEES AND HEARS EVERYTHING — AND HE COMES RIGHT TO ME AND TELLS ME —

WAIT TILL I FIND THAT BIRD —

VOT DER DOD-GAST - - -! ISS YOU COO-COO? COME IN DER HOUSE! DID YOU HEAR ME?

GOLLY! TIGHT GE-FROZEN LIKE A DING-FRIZZLED ICICLE! HELLUP LIFT UP, BOYS!

MAMMA, BRING QVICK A HOT TODDY! DER INSPECTOR ISS FROZEN STIFF IN A LUMP!

OOH, MY!

DIDN'T I SAID FOR A OLD VUN IT SHOULD BE BY DER FIRES?

HEAFENS! ALREADY HIS FEETS DROPPED OFF'M!

HIMMEL! HIS FACE HAS VENT!

HA, FOLKS! NOW I FEEL LIKE A NEW VUN! A SHORT, SHARP VALK IN DER SNIPPISH AIR! DOT'S DER REAL STUFF!

OH, SO!

EEK! A GHOSTER!

QUID UF DER VAY, SHRIMP! I GOT IM-PORTANT BITZNESS!

BUT V'Y DID HE MELT?

4-14

CAPTAIN! NOT BEFORE BED TIME!

SAY! YOU FAT LUMP! VOT'S DER IDEA UF DER HAT-SMESHING?

SO SOON I GET FIN-ISHED MIT DER EXER-CISES, INSPECTOR, MAYBE I APOLO-GIZE!
